New York, April 14.—Rear-Admiral Osbon reported that after a careful study of the situation he was satisfied that the Raleigh, barring storms, would be in the bay at daybreak on Saturday. This morning ex-Assistant Naval Secretary McAdoo was assured by the authorities at Washington that Capt. Coghlan was sure to get his ship here on time.

"At this time of the year," added the Rear-Admiral, "there is quite a current running in the Gulf Stream, and the Raleigh will be greatly aided thereby. I am certain that Capt. Coghlan will not disappoint us. He is not that sort of a man."

The naval parade will be in three divisions. The first will be made up exclusively of Government tugs, in command of Capt. John C. Fremont. The second division will be composed of the tugs W. A. Luckenbach, E. F. Luckenbach, Jamestown, C. P. Raymond and S. L'Hommedieu, and will carry the naval veterans and the naval cadets in uniform. The third division will be in charge of Chief Engineer Frey. Its formation has not been completed.

The official programme is merely a summarization of the various details which have appeared. The Raleigh has a new set of colors, made in China, which have never been unfurled. The cruiser will be presented when she gets into the harbor with a new home pennant, a great streamer of silk 200 feet or more in length.

Arrangements have been made for the firing of a National salute with aerial bombs, and fifty American flags will be raised by kites over the bay as the Raleigh steams up. When she is abreast of Sandy Hook a National salute wil be fired from the big guns salute will be fired from the big guns at Forts Wadsworth and Hamilton and Governor's Island.

Big Tammany Scheme.

New York, April 14.—Late last year it was said that the Tammany city government was planning to build two bridges across the East River, one to Long Island City and one to be located near the present Brooklyn Bridge. Tammany officials rushed forward to deny this, pointing to the fact that the new East River bridge is as yet far from completion and in any event no bond issues could be had for new bridges pending the building of schools, the development of sewers and the opening of streets in outlying sections of the city.

It can now be said on high official authority that the Tammany city government has completed its plans for the two new bridges and that only the adjournment of the Legislature is awaited to make announcement.

The Board of Public Improvements and the Municipal Assembly will then be asked to confirm the plans of the Department of Bridges, and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will supply the money necessary for preliminary work. Bridge Commissioner John L. Shea, who has been hard at work on the estimates for the two bridges, has had frequent conferences with Mayor Van Wyck and Comptroller Coler and these two officials favor the scheme.

THREATENED SAXTON'S LIFE.

Testimony Against Mrs. George by Her Former Attorney.

Canton, O., April 14.—The trial of Mrs. Annie E. George for the murder of George D. Saxton, brother of Mrs. McKinley, was resumed yesterday with W. F. Cook on the stand. Cook had testified to seeing Mrs. George with a revolver in her hand standing at the top of the stairs in the Saxton block as he was returning to his room at night. On cross-examination his testimony was unshaken.

Lorin Wise, a Canton attorney, testified that he saw Mrs. George on a Tuscarawas street car on the night of the murder.

Attorney Werntz, a former partner of Attorney Sterling, one of the counsel for the defence, testified that he talked with Mrs. George on Monday of the week Saxton was killed. He called on Mrs. George at her home. The defence objected to a question as to what he said during this conversation. The defence said it wanted to show that the witness was with her attorney at the time, and that the conversation related to matters then pending in the courts. The Court said that under the law conversations between attorney and client were confidential. Prosecutor Pomerene said the State would show there was no such thing as confindential relations between lawyer and client in matters pertaining to a homicide. The witness was allowed to say that the affairs of Mrs. George and George Saxton were discussed in this conversation. He said one cross-examination that the entire conversation was in connection with matters then pending in the courts. Regarding the admissibility of the conversation as evidence the Court heard the arguments of counsel.

The State read to the court, not in the jury's hearing, the testimony given by the witness before the Grand Jury. The testimony was highly sensational. It detailed the conversation. It went on to say that Mrs. George told the witness she was going out to the Althouse residence to make trouble for Saxton. Attorney Werntz advised her not to do it. The testimony also read that Mrs. George said she was going to kill Saxton—that she was going to shoot him. She said she had the revolver in her trunk. She had received it from Chicago. It had cost $5 and was of 38 calibre. She asked Werntz if it would not be a good plan to throw away the revolver after killing Saxton. He said it would be a good plan, but advised her not to do anything of the sort.

The revolver which the State alleges Mrs. George used was found under a culvert.

Judge Field's Funeral.

Washington, April 14.—Impressive funeral services were held over the body of the late Justice Stephen J. Field at the Church of the Epiphany yesterday. The church was crowded with a distinguished company gathered to pay their last tribute of respect and honor to the memory of the great jurist. Among those present were President McKinley, Secretaries Wilson, Long, and Attorney-General Griggs, the British, Russion, French, and German Ambassadors, the Chinese Minister, and the diplomatic representatives of other foreign countries, ex-Postmaster-General Don. M. Dickinson, ex-Senator Edmunds, many Senators and Representatives, and other distinguished persons.

BOEHM'S.

"I live on a farm and keep house for my papa," says a young woman living in Panther, Ky. "My age is twenty-five. For ten years I have been afflicted with that dreadful disease, dyspepsia, and tried every kind of medicine I did I could hear of, but found no relief in any of them until about two years ago, I tried a fifty-cent package of Ripans Tabules. Did I find relief? Yes, I did. I am no more a sufferer. Ripans Tabules did it. I can eat anything I want to. Before I commenced using them I could not eat highly seasoned food without suffering with my stomach. With truth I can recommend Ripans Tabules to any one suffering as I was. If they do not want to take my word for it let them try just one package and it will convince them what they will do, and then they will never consent to be without them for anything."

A new style packet containing TWELVE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (60 tabules) can be had by mailing forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

CROKER ON THE STAND

He Is Expected to Tell His Experiences as Boss.

DEVERY GIVEN A VACATION

Police Very Active Raid a Notorious Resort as Inquiry Police Magistrates Say Come Next Van Wyck's Turn.

New York, April 14.—Richard Croker, who said [illegible] that if called before the Mazet committee he would tell them things they didn't wish to hear, will not have [illegible].

It was no surprise last night when it became known that Mr. Croker had been served with a subpoena returnable today. Mazet investigation committee to-day. Mr. Croker himself had been expecting it all along, and he says he is ready, "not anxious," to answer all questions. Whether this is so or not will be shown. Among other things, he may be asked to shed a little more light on the $17,000 in bills with which he purchased his son's entrance into the contracting business. Mr. Moss is all primed up for the catechism, but what line he will follow he refuses to divulge. He declined to say this morning what actuated the committee in its sudden resolve to issue the subpoena.

Mr. Moss also said that he had received no intimation from the Parkhurst Society. That they had assumed a friendly attitude toward the committee, and decided to put all their data into the committee's hands.

"The only announcement I've given out," said Mr. Moss, "was a denial of the rumor from Albany that the investigation was to be dropped."

Magistrates Indignant

It is almost certain now that the Police Magistrates will be asked to tell certain things, apropos, for instance, of the statement made the other day by Justice Jerome in the Court of Special Sessions that the police court clerks were lax in their duty regarding excise cases. The remark itself created considerable warmth among the Magistrates and they deny the allegation as baseless. When Magistrate Cornell, who is now sitting in the West Side Police Court, was asked about the matter he said:

"My attention has been called to an alleged statement by Judge Jerome, of the Court of Special Sessions, to the effect that they find great fault in the Special Sessions with the complaints drafted by the clerks in the Magistrates' courts in cases charging violations of the liquor tax law. The chief point made by him is that frequently there is no alegation made in the complaint that the place where the violation is alleged to have occurred was a place duly licensed for the sale of malt and spirituous liquors.

"If the statement of Justice Jerome is corectly reported he has certainly made a mistake, because no clerk could now err in this respect, for the reason that all the blank complaints for violation of the liquor tax law (except those in which the charge is made for selling without a license) have that very statement printed in the body of the complainant's affidavit.

"If Judge Jerome did say or intimate that any improper or dishonest work was done by the clerks of our courts I most strongly deny that to be the fact."

Other Big Interests.

The Long Island water supply, the delayed bond issue and the Street Cleaning Department are all offering such tempting openings that Mayor Van Wyck himself may sit on the gridiron awhile for the public good. The Mayor refused to talk this morning, as usual. A card sent in to John Proctor Clarke, asking certain veiled questions as to the progress of the investigation, brought this reply:

"The counsel engaged for and by the committee have seduously refrained from making any announcement whatever as to their plans, the witnesses to be examined, or the course of the investigation, preferring to have all such matters developed at the public hearings and by witnesses under oath."

The first beneficent fruits of the Mazet investigation was the raiding by Detectives Glennon and Benning, of Capt. Price's squad, of the resort known as Paresis Hall, at Fourth avenue and Twenty-fourth street. This is one of the infamous resorts of whose location Chief Devery displayed such ignorance when on the witness stand.

The proprietor of the "Hall," John Wendenken, who is 55 years old, and has long enjoyed immunity from police interference, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. This is the first of a series of such raids which will now be made in the attempt by the police to veneer past apathy. Chief Devery is likely to receive an invitation to tell the committee why certain raids did not take place before, but greater interests even than these are slated for the near future.

Chief of Police Devery explained today the origin of a rumor which caused much comment to the effect that the Chief had secured a vacation and was going to take advantage of it and arrange his defense for further attacks by Mr. Moss.

He said: "I will stay right here until these investigators are quite through with me. I can leave to-morrow if I want to. A vacation of twenty days has been granted to me by the Commissioners."

"Application is made every spring by the chief and all officers down to captains for vacations and the Board acts upon these. When the vacation is formally granted the officers are entitled to take twenty days at a time or one day or a week, as they please. When this Mazet business is finished, as far as I am concerned, I shall take my vacation, and not before. There is nothing extraordinary in my vacation being granted just at this interesting time."

The "City Record" shows that twenty days vacation was granted to the chief on March 28.

Small-Pox in Boston.

Boston, April 14.—The Board of Health discovered another small-pox case this morning in the Roxbury district. It has found already five cases in Charlestown. As a result, fifty vaccination stations will be opened at once in various parts of the city. The officers say that there is no need of fear of the disease becoming epidemic.

EMBALMER TESTIFIES

Rudolph Spicer a Funeral Director of Harrisburg Saw Scales.

PROF. BIGELOW'S REPORT

A Tilt Occurred Between Gen. Miles' Representative and the Inquiry Board When the Professor Said That the Canned Roast Beef Was More Nutritious Than the Refrigerated Beef.

Washington, April 14.—Rudolph K. Spicer of the 4th Pennsylvania Volunteers, which regiment served in Porto Rico, was a witness at the army beef inquiry yesterday. Spicer explained that he was a professional embalmer and funeral director in Harrisburg. He had observed crystalline scales on the surface of refrigerated beef issued to the men of his regiment in Porto Rico. The meat also had a greenish color, he said.

The soldiers, he said, found the canned roast beef unsatisfactory and often rejected it. It was frequently spoiled and could not be eaten. He said he ate some of the refrigerated beef in Porto Rico once only. It had a peculiar taste and made him ill.

"Was the surface of the rerrigerated beef moist or dry?" asked Col. Davis.

"The greenish surface made it kind of dry," was the answer.

"Did you touch the beef?"

"Yes."

"Did it have any moisture on it?"

"I never touched it until the butcher cut it up."

"Can you swear that it was not moist?"

"No, sir."

"And this substance you saw was on meat?"

"It was in the crevices."

"And the meat was decomposed?"

"Yes."

Prof. W. D. Bigelow, a chemist employed by the Department of Agriculture, who accompanied the court of inquiry on its inspection of the packing houses at Chicago and Kansas City, was next introduced to the court. Recorder Davis, who explained that by direction of the court, Prof. Bigelow while on the trip of inspection had obtained samples of the beef from the packing houses and made analyses the result of which was stated in a report on the subject. Col. Davis then read to the court Prof. Bigelow's report of his examinations.

An important revelation made by the report was that canned roast beef really contained more nutriment than the fresh beef. Prof. Bigelow showed this by contrasting tables giving the composition of the fresh beef and the canned roast beef had been canned in the presence of Prof. Bigelow. In a general statement the report explained the influence of canning on the composition of beef.

The report stated in conclusion that the figures given showed that in canning the only substances lost were water, fat and ash, while the proteids were increased. "It is shown," said Dr. Bigelow, "that a can of thirty ounces of roast beef contains everything contained in 48.9 ounces of fresh beef except a certain amount of fat."

Recorder Davis also read to the Court a summary sent to the War Investigating Commission by the division of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, stating the general conclusions of a number of reports on the examination of canned roast beef as compared with uncooked fresh beef. It was remarked in this report that the examinations showed that canned beef contained 24.4 per cent. nutritive substance or muscle-making food, as compared with 18 per cent. of the same substance in the fresh beef.

Major Lee pointed out that the reports of Prof. Bigelow sent to the War Investigating Commission, were of the examination of the beef furnished the army within the present year and too remote to be compared with the beef supplied to the army in Cuba. He objected to its introduction as testimony.

Col. Davis explained that had he known in advance to what the reports related he might not have submitted them. He offered to withdraw them, but Major Lee quickly interposed that he should not press his objection, but should rather expect to introduce also some testimony relating to supplies of recent date. His remark on this point was so threatening that Gen. Wade said:

"I don't know what you mean about that."

A brief executive session was held, and the Court decided to exclude the report previously submitted to the War Investigating Commission.

Prof. Bigelow was then examined by Col. Davis as to what chemical he had discovered in different food preparations. He described the different food preparations. He described the use of boracic acid, and said it was frequently used in the preservation of milk and wines.

Loubet Deeply Touched.

Washington, April 14.—The State Department has made public the following message from President Loubet of France in reply to that sent by President McKinley:

"Paris, April 12.

"To His Excellency, William McKinley, President of the United States, Washington:

"I am deeply touched by the sentiments which your Excellency was pleased to express toward me on the occasion of the signing of the ratifications of the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain, and I heartily thank you therefore. I especially desire to assure your Excellency of the sincere desire of the Government of the Republic and its President constantly to draw closer the bonds of traditional friendship which have so long united the two great Republics.

"EMILE LOUBET."

Proclamation Doing Good.

Washington, April 14.—The President has received a dispatch from Prof. Schuman, president of the Philippine Commission, in which he says in effect that the recent proclamation has done a great deal of good, that many Filipinos are visiting the Commissioners and professing their allegiance to the United States. They say that Aguinaldo is tyranical, and they like the promises of our Commissioners better.

Catarrh of the Stomach

A Pleasant, Simple, Safe, But Effectual Cure for It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable.

The usual symptoms are a full or bloated sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the lungs and heart and difficult breathing; headache, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out and languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate disease is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily and thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach.

To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do, and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlan on the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids.

These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and, not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher, of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom, passing back into the throat, reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me three years for catarrh of the stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I can not find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for book, mailed free, on stomach trouble, by addressing the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

Elizabeth the Hope of Democrats.

The outcome of the city election in Elizabeth Tuesday, when the six odd-numbered wards elected Aldermen and members of the Board of Education, was a victory for the Democrats inasmuch as they elected four of the six members chosen at that time for each board.

Though Elizabeth has had a Republican Mayor for the past few years nearly all the rest of her municipal offices have been filled with Democrats, and the members of the latter party hold rosy views of keeping the administrative departments of the city in their grasp if they do not the executive.

Under such conditions Elizabeth must be accounted in the Democratic column. In sharp county and State elections, however, the results are usually rather close, but with an aggressive organization such as the Democrats are now securing through the efforts of Captain D. F. Collins, chairman of the city executive committee, the party is better able to stand the onslaught of the G. O. P. than in some time before.

Outside of Elizabeth, however, the Democrats are wofully in lack of organization while their political opponents are in splendid condition in that respect. In Plainfield, for instance, the Democrats are absolutely without organization, but the Republicans possesses a machine that seems to be particularly active and effective in all campaigns and rolls up majorities that has put Union county in the Republican column.

There is the sound of Yankee talk in the graphic and interesting letter written by Captain Morrison from the Phillipine Islands, which was published in The Daily Press yesterday. What could be more typical of the Yankee than "expansion or no expansion they (the Filipinos) need licking from one end of Luzon to the other." Judging from the stirring events which Captain Morrison was an eye-witness to, and which he depicted in graphic terms, the Filipinos are not having a picnic with the American soldiers.

There has been considerable criticism about the city because the Plainfield Street Railway Company has not yet sprinkled their tracks, and great clouds of dust follow in the wake of the trolley cars as a consequence. An inspection of the ordinance shows that the company is not obliged to do this work until May 15th. A little liberality on the part of the trolley capitalists in this respect would be appreciated.

Chicago must take a back seat in in resourcesulness in comparison to New York. In the Windy City a banquet has been declared off because Mayor Harrison and Governor Altgeld refuse to attend the same event together. In New York they hold their political dinners in such numbers that it must be a very particular man that can't find at least one that is satisfactory to his ideas.

Ambassador Choate was a guest at a dinner in London Tuesday evening, at which it was agreed that no speeches were to be made, but before the affair was at an end the rule was abrogated and the American statesman was compelled to make an impromptu toast to himself. Ancient traditions seems to have a great hold on Englishmen.

The Governor of Kirin district in China beheads 500 men every year. Aguinaldo would not be able to go into the beheading business at that rate, or there would be such a shrinkage in in the size of the Filipno field force that the man with the gold whistle would soon have to take his own medicine out of sheer force of habit.

New York has commenced talking about getting the two National political conventions next year to meet in the metropolis. New York did the same thing four years ago, but while she was yet talking Chicago jumped in and carried off the prizes. New York should beware of her western competitor.

With the improved methods of naval construction in these days the battleship that is to be named New Jersey will be an able and fit representative of this commonwealth.

When a man troubled with indigestion takes the opposite side of every question it is but the natural sequence of the things he eats failing to agree with him.

The ostensible celebration of Thomas Jefferson's birthday was an excuse rather than an essential for the Tammany dinner in New York last night.

Warm weather is doing its share in developing the flower of the political parties that hope to bloom in office.

It is scarcely expected that Mr. Croker will act the part of a croaker before Mr. Moes today.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

New Jersey does not send forth able-bodied men authorized to harass and despoil the people of other states in the Union, but she does what is quite as offensive and much more effective She authorizes incorporated bodies to do an illegal business beyond her own borders, and makes such authorization a source of large profit to her Treasury New Jersey is thus making a name for herself which must bring the blush of shame to every high-minned citizen of that state.— Philadelphia Record.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Apropopos of the question as to whether or not women should remove their hats in church, a Lexington, (Mo.) man suggests return to the good old custom under which the men sat on one side of the church and the women on the other. "In that way," he says, "the ladies could get the full benefit of their big hats. Ladies wh remove their hats out of courtesy to those who sit behind them could, of course, sit where they choose. The others could have the full benefit of attempting to see the preacher through a jungle of feathers and geegaws."

In country towns and cities where the system of street light is very poor the facetious criticism has often been made that "the lights only enable you to see how dark it is," but the American village has yet to be heard from where matters are so bad that the street lamps serve to end the reign of light and create darkness, as seems to be the case in an Irish town where the authorities in all good faith to impart helpful information have issued the following notice:

From the beginning of darkness every vehicle must ca ry a lighted lamp. Darkness begins when the street lamps are lighted.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Music Hall patrons will enjoy a rare treat tomorrow in the performances of "Killarney and The Rhine," by J. E. Toole and his capable and evenly balanced a company as has been seen here this season. Each artist is given due credit for the excellent work he or she performs. Mr. Toole is said to be a worthy successor of the famous Emmet, and his voice has the clear ring which characterized that of "Fritz" in his palmy days. His dialect, too, is perfect, and in spite of the fact that the entire action takes place within the boundaries of Ireland, the auditor seems unable to disabuse himself of the impression that he is not hovering beneath the shadow of the dreamy Alps, and reveling amid the charming scenes of romantic Switzerland. Miss DeWoolf supports Mr. Toole most ably. Her rich voice is a welcome adjunct to the entertainment, and she is rewarded by continuous encores. Reserved seats for the matinee are now on sale at box office.

STATE CLAIMS.

Governor Asks Secretary Gage How They Shall Be Made Out.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, April 14—Governer Voorhees last Friday wrote a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage, asking for a more lucid construction of the last clause of the circular which the department has sent out to the officials of the States and territories relative to the claims for reimbursements by the United States

In his letter he said that the State of New Jersey was preparing its claims for arms, equipments, etc., in complying with the call for troops, and the authorities are in doubt as to the intention of the first section of the act passed by Congress and approved on March 4, 1899. The Governor wished to know whether the State should reimburse the officers and file vouchers with the State's claim, or whether each officer should made an independent claim for reimbursement upon the United States.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 14.—A fractious horse, driven by a man from Bound Brook, took fright at one of the Plainfield trolley cars yesterday afternoon, and threatened for awhile to throw his driver into the gutter. Fortunately for the man the horse was hitched to a cart, and all the turning in the world could not upset the vehicle.

Beginning with Monday, the pupils in the High School department of the public school were dismissed again at 1 o'clock. This was the custom until the first of the year, but then it was changed to two sessions. The new rule makes it better for the pupils, as it gives them more time in which to prepare their lessons.

Apgar's Hall was the scene of a dance last night given by two young men, Edward Herlick and Fred Giddes. There was a good attendance, and a delightful evening was spent by all. It was not until the early morning hours that the enjoyable affair was over.

The property formerly owned by Mrs. Lydia Johnson was sold Wednesday at Sheriff sale. It was purchased by her son, C. W. Johnson, for a consideration of $3,400.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Why We Eat Salt.

Some diversity of opinion has existed among physiologists as to the physiological signification of eating salt. According to Bunge, the use of sodium chloride with food is to counteract the effects of the potassium salts predominating, especially in vegetable diet, while other physiologists regard salt purely in the nature of a condiment with no special action. M. Leon Fredericq, writing in the Bulletin de l'Academie Royale de Belgique, describes his observations on certain salts used by the natives of the Kongo State.

These salts are produced by the incineration of aquatic plants and are placed on the market in the form of cakes produced by evaporation of the solution formed by dissolving the residue. An analysis shows them to consist almost entirely of chloride and sulphate of potassium, the former largely preponderating and the presence of sodium being only detectable by the spectroscope. The fact that salts of potassium are thus used for cooking purposes seems to negative the views of Bunge and to support the opinion, previously advanced by Lapicque, that the use of salt is primarily to improve the flavor of food.—Scientific American.

Making a Room Look Livable.

The successful placing of chairs in a drawing room amounts to an art. Every one knows how, with some articles of furniture, one woman will make a room look livable and another will make it look stiff, while a stupid servant will completely spoil the effect after a general cleaning by putting each thing "just wrong."

Any one who entertains much should study the arrangement of chairs, as their juxtaposition and look of invitation have much to do with the success of small gatherings. A Washington woman, whose charming receptions were noted for their attractiveness, and who had the nearest approach to a "salon" that is possible in this country, said when asked for the secret of her success:

"I really ascribe what you are kind enough to term my popularity to my chairs. I never clear out my rooms for a crowd, as is generally the custom, but place inviting looking seats in groups, and it is astonishing how quickly each group forms, as it were, a focus and draws congenial people together."—Exchange.

TRAINED SKIRTS.

The Manner of Making and Finishing Them.

Ceremonious costumes are made with a train, which is more or less long according to circumstances. A bridal gown, for example, has a more extensive train than any other toilet, but its length varies according to the richness of the material employed, the most costly goods permitting the longest train. If the wedding gown is of plain satin, the train is lined with the same fabric as the gown itself, but if it is of broche material the lining is still plain satin. No stiffening of any kind is used in the train. Where the lining is satin of a superior quality no frill is required inside the hem of the train, but otherwise a ruffle or accordion plaiting of silk, pinked at both edges, is placed at the inside of the edge.

In the case of a wedding costume it is necessary to have everything of the same tone of white—stockings, shoes, gloves, veil and petticoat must be cream if the gown is cream, dead white if the gown is dead white. The prayer book need not necessarily be cream or white; it may be of pale green, lavender, pink or coral morocco.

The illustration shows a reception gown in which the foundation is ruby velours, with rich incrustations of white cloth. The princess tunic of white cloth forms a sort of corselet, the velours with its applications appearing as a yoke and also forming the sleeves. The velvet collar has cloth tabs, and the belt of ruby satin is passed through cuts in the tunic and tied in a bow at the back. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION NOTES.

Items With Regard to Prevailing Styles.

Wedding veils are arranged in mantilla fashion if they are of lace and are kept at the back of the head. If they are of tulle, however, they fall over the face. The hair is placed at the top of the head, the little crown of orange blossoms passing around it, the veil lying over all. After the square of tulle is properly arranged it is sometimes necessary to trim off the points with scissors to prevent them from overpassing the edge of the round train.

A novelty in parasols has but five ribs instead of seven, the usual number. This makes the breadths wider at the outer edge and therefore increases the curve of that edge when the parasol is expanded. As a consequence it assumes the shape of a five pointed star and looks odd to unaccustomed eyes. These parasols are shown in solid colored silks of bright hues and also in silks with wide, contrasting stripes, which run from the center outward and form V's at the ribs.

Not merely toques, but large, round hats, are entirely formed of flower heads set close together. Violets, cowslips and hyacinth bells are thus employed, being arranged upon the wire frame so that the shape is perfectly distinct. Of course the trimming of such hats is very light and consists chiefly of gauze, tulle and flowers, lace veiling or spangled net.

The girl's coat illustrated is of mastic cloth. It hangs straight at the back and in front, but is curved slightly under the arms. The trimming consists of stitched bands of cloth a shade darker, which outline a yoke, pass down each side of the front, around the lower part of the coat and up the back at each side. The revers and turnover collar are outlined by similar bands. The same trimming is arranged at the top and wrists of the sleeves and around the pockets. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Elbing. Ein interessanter Fund wurde in einem Kieslager bei Wintersdorf (Kreis Schwetz) gemacht. Arbeiter fanden hier einen mächtigen versteinerten Knochen. Derselbe wurde dem westpreußischen Provinzialmuseum eingesandt. Der Direktor dieses Museums, Herr Professor Dr. Conwentz, hat festgestellt, daß es sich um den unvollständigen Schädel eines Moschusochsen handelt, welcher heute noch in dem arktischen Nordamerika vorkommt.

Marienwerder. Der Staatssekretär des Reichspostamtes hat nunmehr die Herstellung einer Stadtfernsprecheinrichtung in Marienwerder genehmigt, welche unter Anderem Anschluß mit Berlin, Danzig, Graudenz u. s. w. erhalten wird. Aehnlich wie von Dirschau wird auch von Marienwerder die Gewährleistung einer Gebühreneinnahme von 850 Mark für die Dauer von fünf Jahren verlangt.

Rheinprovinz.

Köln. In einer der letzten Nächte zerstörte Großfeuer ein am Rhein gelegenes großes Sagewerk von Dülken u. Co. Dem energischen Eingreifen der gesammten Kölner und der benachbarten Feuerwehren gelang es, nach mehrstündiger Arbeit den Brand zu dämpfen. Der Schaden dürfte etwa 200,000 Mark betragen.

Aachen. Der hiesigen Kriminalpolizei ist es gelungen, einer lange gesuchten Ladendiebin auf die Spur zu kommen, und sie zu verhaften. Die Diebin, die Ehefrau eines hiesigen Webers Jansen, hatte in ihrer Wohnung 2500 Mark in Baar, fünf Sparkassenbucher über 5000 Mark und eine Unmenge gestohlener Waaren; Alles rührte von Ladendiebstählen her, welche die Frau in den am meisten frequentirten Geschäften verübte, sobald der Andrang irgendwie stark war.

Krefeld. Im September d. J. wird hier eine große allgemeine Gartenbau-Ausstellung für Rheinpreußen stattfinden.

Provinz Sachsen.

Erfurt. Interessante Funde wurden bei den Ausschachtungsarbeiten auf dem Grundstück des hiesigen Etablissements zur „Domschänke" gemacht. In zwei blosgelegten Gewölben lagen etwa 60 gut erhaltene Skelette. Wie Professor Dr. Beyer festgestellt hat, sind diese Gewölbe Reste von Hausstellern. Die betreffenden Gebäude sind 1667 abgebrochen worden, als die Citadelle „Petersberg" erbaut wurde. Zur Franzosenzeit 1813 befand sich dort ein großes Lazareth, in welchem täglich Hunderte Franzosen, Russen und Preußen starben. Die Leichen waren den Gewölben einverleibt worden.

Naumburg. Die hiesige Garnison wird durch die Verlegung eines der neuen Artillerie-Regimenter hierher zum 1. Oktober eine Vergrößerung erfahren. Für den dann nothwendig werdenden Kasernenbau und Exerzierplatz ist ein Terrain bei Roßbach in Aussicht genommen.

Provinz Schlesien.

Breslau. Der Magistrat hat zum ersten Male eine Berechnung des Vermögens der Stadt Breslau bekannt gegeben, der zufolge die Aktiva 105,000,000 Mark betragen, während sich die Passiva auf 46,000,000 Mark belaufen.—Der Vorort Morgenau, in dem zahlreiche große Vergnügungsetablissements vorhanden sind, beschloß, bei dem hiesigen Magistrat seine Einverleibung zu beantragen.

Sorau. Die hiesige Strafkammer verurtheilte den Einbrecher Kühnel wegen 14 schwerer Einbruchsdiebstähle in Orten der Niederlausitz zu 15 Jahren Zuchthaus und 10 Jahren Ehrverlust.

Steinau. Wegen Erkrankung fast aller Schüler an heftiger Influenza ist das hiesige Lehrerseminar auf unbestimmte Zeit geschlossen worden.

Provinz Schleswig-Holstein.

Kiel. Hier brannte das Logirhaus „Zum grünen Jäger" ab. Der Invalide Steffens, der sich nicht schnell genug retten konnte, kam in den Flammen um.—Der Seeoffiziers-Aspirant von Puttkamer hat aus Furcht vor einer Disziplinarstrafe Selbstmord begangen.

Rendsburg. Feuer zerstörte das Gewese des jetzt hier wohnhaften Fährmannes Clausen. Da es hier von vornherein klar war, daß Brandstiftung vorlag, stellte die Polizei eifrig Nachforschungen an, welche das Resultat hatten, daß die beiden im Alter von 16 und 17 Jahren stehenden Söhne des Besitzers gefänglich eingezogen wurden. Der jüngste Sohn hat die That bereits eingeräumt.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 16, "The Eternal Morning and Modern Missions"—Text, Isa. lx, 1-12.

"Arise, shine; for thy light is come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee!"

Other ages have seen marvelous religious revivals and reformations, but no age has seen such vast changes wrought by a single religious system in such widely separated parts of the world and over such multitudes as has been effected by Christianity during this present century. Not to speak of the Old Testament revivals, which were national, the most strikingly aggressive religions have been Buddhism and Mohammedanism. The first may be called the Protestantism of the orient, as it was a reformation of Brahmanism and the previous heathen systems of the east, which had grown corrupt. Mohammedanism was a reform movement of vast importance and a wondrous advance upon the old material religions which it supplanted. At one time it threatened to overrun all Europe and divide the world with Buddhism. But neither of these systems has lifted any nation into advanced civilization and neither fulfills the requirement of a universal religion for all men.

The advance of Christianity for the first 300 years was marvelous. From obscurity and contempt it came to the seat of power in the Roman empire. Its conquest of the barbarians who overturned the empire is one of the marvels of history. Most fascinating is the story of the conversion of the northern nations of Europe and the subsequent development of the Greek, the Roman and the Protestant churches.

The deepest interest, however, centers around the work of the church during the present century. This is the era of missionary societies, Bible and tract societies. Since this century began more Bibles have been made and distributed than in all previous ages.

To see clearly the advance of the gospel one should take the map as it was in 1800 and compare it with the world now. All the Pacific islands, Japan, Korea, China, India, Africa, South America, Mexico and the Indians of America have been reached with the Bible and pure religion, and whole nations lifted from vilest barbarism and heathenism into peaceful, progressive civilization and religious purity.

Surely the light has come. Earth sees her Redeemer as never before.

Arousing Interest.

Some years since a pastor of a New England city church announced a missionary meeting for Sunday evening on a new plan. He selected two laymen to speak on some phase of missions. One of those selected for this work was a young man who had never made an address before so large a company. His timidity and objections were overcome, and he selected "The Evangelization of the Sandwich Islands" as his theme. The public library furnished several volumes which were read and noted and a short speech prepared covering the prominent points in the story of its missions. It was a simple incident and probably passed from the mind of the pastor soon after. Its effect on the young man was permanent. His interest was aroused. He was led from business into the ministry, and the mission fields of the church became matter of special study. Personal acquaintance with leading missionaries in each mission field has led to the collection of photographs, which in the form of slides for the stereopticon are widely in use among the Leagues to illustrate the work of our church among the heathen. Set the young people at work searching and talking, and they will acquire an interest which will last life long.

Power of the Word.

Some fifteen hundred years since at Milan, Italy, there was a noted teacher of rhetoric who had never become a Christian, but held to the belief of the Manicheans. His mother, a devout Christian, had never ceased to pray for his conversion. Ambrose, the eloquent bishop, was interested in the young man. But all arguments had failed to convince him and all persuasion failed to move him. One day a copy of the epistle of Paul to the Romans came under his notice and the passage "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ and make not provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof" caught his eye and arrested his attention. He could not get away from it. It fastened conviction until he saw the truth and decided to become a follower of Jesus the Christ. He became known as Augustine and was made bishop of Hippo in Africa. Few men have been more influential in shaping the course of thought in the Christian church than he. Still the word proves itself powerful to convince and to convert, and demonstrates that it is the word of God.

The class meeting is not dead or dying. Spiritual culture will ever need expression and will seek companionship. The confessional is not adapted to an advanced condition of piety. Social communion and friendly interchange of thought are a necessity. In some form the class meeting must live wherever vital piety is not extinct. The devotional meetings of the League can do much to perpetuate this helpful means of grace. Personal testimony is a great help to a live Christian.

Twenty millions of dollars is a large sum of money, but that is what the Methodist Episcopal church proposes to raise to mark the opening of the twentieth century. It means debts paid, schools endowed, hospitals erected, missions re-enforced and advance made on every line.

Bishop Foss is writing a book on missions in India for the use of the League. He visited our work there last year, and with Dr. Goucher of Baltimore saw more than any previous official visitor had ever seen.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 16—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The eternal morning and modern missions.—Isa. lx, 1-12.

This chapter is a song of triumph upon glorified Zion. It is a magnificent picture of the church in its glory and beauty after the light of God has shone upon it, and may be looked upon as a picture of the ideal Zion after the return from captivity or a picture of the New Jerusalem or heaven. Three characteristics of this eternal morning are prominent—darkness, moral and spiritual, in the church is to disappear; many of the nations of the world are to be gathered into heaven; the nations that will not serve God are to be destroyed.

The bearing of this passage upon the subject of modern missions is clearly evident.

1. In the light of the eternal morning modern missions are seen to pay. Modern missions have two specific purposes, (1) to dispel the spiritual darkness of the world and replace it with the light of God, and (2) to lead the gentile nations to God through Christ and to eternal salvation. The picture of the prophet in its application to eternity proves that both these results are to be accomplished. The darkness of the church is to be dispelled and the light of God is to shine upon it. The nations of the world are to flock to the church of God and are to bring their wealth and consecrate it to God. These facts prove to us that mission work is successful; that it does pay. The cry that missions are a failure should be forever silenced by this picture of eternity as given to the prophet by God Himself. It gives us a view of the result of missionary efforts, and it is one that should encourage and inspire all who are interested in this great cause of God to increased zeal and earnestness in the cause.

2. In the light of the eternal morning we see the necessity of modern missions. "Darkness shall cover the earth" except where the church exists. How important therefore that the church of Christ should extend over the whole world, that this glorious light of God may be worldwide. Again it is said that at that time the nation and kingdom that will not serve God shall perish; those nations shall be utterly wasted. But how can the heathen nations serve God unless they first know God? And how can they ever know God except the church of Christ sends them the knowledge of God? The responsibility for the salvation of the world is upon us. How will we meet it? Depending upon God for strength and encouraged by the assurance of success, let us rise to the full measure of our responsibility.

The Pledge in England.

The pledge that is generally used by Endeavorers throughout Great Britain is the original one, with the introductory sentence, "Relying on the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation, and trusting in God for strength, I promise Him." No one seems to know who composed this introduction. The theologians think that there is a confusion of persons in the Godhead in the phrase. They ask, "To whom does the 'Him' refer?" Some societies, especially the Irish Methodist, have adopted the American revised pledge. It was agreed by the British National council, at its recent session, to adopt, after the phrase, "I will pray to Him and read the Bible every day," the words, "that I will support my own church and its services in every way in my power." This is to be the form suggested for ordinary use.

Faith In God.

In view of the prevailing and abiding love of Him in whose hands all power in heaven and on earth is lodged what a folly seems our unbelief and what a sin and shame our worry! We have but the duty of the present. The provision for the morrow is our Father's care, and because He cares and wills that we should have the help that never fails His trusting children in their hour of need we can put our whole strength into the moment's work, assured that the morrow's task will never be allowed to pass beyond the morrow's strength. —Congregationalist.

Purity Is Power.

The rose, among the sweetest and most beautiful of God's creations, is armed with thorns, nature's sharp bayonets for warding off attack. Purity is the defence of beauty; modesty is the safeguard of innocence. The severe chastity which repels familiarity is as absolutely essential for the safety of the soul as genial attractiveness is for its beauty.—A. J. Gordon.

The Life Within.

All as God wills, who wisely heeds
To give or to withhold
And knoweth more of all my needs
Than all my prayers have told!

Enough that blessings undeserved
Have marked my erring track;
That whereso'er my feet have swerved
His chastening turned me back.

That more and more a Providence
Of love is understood,
Making the springs of time and sense
Sweet with eternal good.

That death seems but a covered way
Which opens into light,
Wherein no blinded child can stray
Beyond the Father's sight.

That care and trial seem at last,
Through memory's sunset air,
Like mountain ranges overpast,
In purple distance fair;

That all the jarring notes of life
Seem blending in a psalm
And all the angles of its strife
Slow rounding into calm.

And so the shadows fall apart,
And so the west winds play,
And all the windows of my heart
I open to the day.

—John G. Whittier.

BAKED HIS BREAD IN BLAZING BAKERY WAGON.

LIVELY FIRE IN THE BOROUGH.

Henry Voehl's Wagon Nearly all Destroyed by Fire—Horses Rescued.

Henry Voehl, the Somerset street baker, has been very careful about a fire in his shop. The thought of a fire in his baker-wagon, however, never occurred to him until last night. Then it was practically demonstrated. He still has the running gear and bottom of his wagon, but that's all. The rest went up in flames last night.

Voehl's bakery wagon stood on Codding avenue, ner Somerset street, last night at ten o'clock. There were two horses attached. Exactly how the fire started nobody knows. It probably originated from a lantern or a cigar. At any rate, the flames were first seen blazing away at the rear of the wagon.

Otto Neher was passing by and rescued the horses from their position which began to grow uncomfortable. Then Voehl and several other men tried to form a bucket brigade with a pan but their efforts were not very successful, and the top and sides of the wagon were destroyed.

SUCCESSFUL BENEFIT.

The rest of the evening was devoted to dancing. The grand march was led by W. J. Douglass and his daughter.

A social time followed the euchre, interspersed with music and singing. Then the farm wagon came around again and the members were taken home.

The fire is supposed to have been caused from some defect in the electric apparatus.

UGLY TRAMPS CAUGHT BY ENRAGED CITIZENS

Rounded Up at Basking Ridge and Locked in Box Car.

THEY TERRORIZED TOWN.

THREATENED WOMEN WHERE THEY WERE REFUSED REQUESTS.

The Tramps Raised a Disturbance in the Postoffice—Chased by a Posse of Citizens and Arrested — Seven Men Guarded Them All Night and Yesterday Were Taken to Somerville.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Basking Ridge, April 15.—Five tramps, whose names are unknown, came to town Thursday afternoon, and at night called at many houses, demanding food and shelter. When people refused to give them food or shelter they made threats and used violent language to the women.

One of the tramps entered the apartments of I. B. Bowers, which are on the second floor of the Y. M. C. L building. Mrs. Bowers, who has been very ill, was at home with a woman nurse. The nurse told the tramp she had nothing to give him, but he refused to leave. His actions alarmed the women, who screamed for help. Two men came in, and after a short tussle with the tramp succeeded in forcing him out, after breaking a large double-plate glass in the door.

Another of the tramps demanded money of Rev. J. E. Appley, threatening to do him bodily injury if he refused. Mr. Appley, who is a man of large stature, drove the tramp away.

The tramps later raised a disturbance in the postoffice. A posse of citizens, fearing the tramps might do some damage during the night, followed them to the railroad station and forced four of them into a box car, which they locked. Later the posse captured the fifth tramp and placed him in another car. The Basking Ridge posse was assisted by a number of residents of Bernardsville, whose assistance had been asked by telephone. Seven men guarded the cars all night to see that the tramps did not escape.

Yesterday I. B. Bowers and Postmaster Lewis Shafer went before Justice of the Peace Dunster and made a complaint against the tramps. A warrant was issued for them and the were taken to Somerville.

For the past three months this town has been pestered with tramps, and it is thought that this will put a stop to tiheir visits.

David is eminently qualifiad to fill any position, as he is mentally equipped above the average by his long years of newspaper training and natural attainments. His many friends in every hamlet and at every cross-roads in this county wish him all kinds of success.—Somerville Democrat.

David J. Carney, whose interesting articles have frequently appeared in these columns signed "A Tilden Democrat," has accepted a position of a confidential nature with a syndicate who are to build the Nicaragua Canal. Mr. Carney will remain in the east for a few months, when he will probably locate somewhere on the Pacific slope. Every Democratic and Republican politician in the county will wish him success, as few men are so well known and admired for their thorough independence in the cause of party success as is the jolly, rotund Democrat from North Plainfield.—Bound Brook State Centre.

GETTING THE PRIZES.

RESULTS OF CONTESTS AT ST. JOSEPH'S BAZAAR.

Father Miller's Picture Won by Miss McMahon, Who Turned in $114—Balance of the Prizes Will be Awarded Tonight.

The attendance last evening at the bazaar given in Sangerbund Hall by the women of St. Joseph's church was large. The chief interest was in deciding several contests. The main contest of the evening, that for Rev. Father Miller's picture in a handsome painting, was secured by Miss McMahon, who turned in $114. Her opponent, Miss Regan, collected $107. The lucky ticket, 62 C, for the handsome set of china, was held by Miss Nellie Angleman, of East Fourth street. This contest brought in about $30.

In the contest for the gold ring Vincent Meaney was the successful contestant. His opponent was Robert Hamilton, and about $25 was realized therefrom. The doll contest brought in $25 and Miss Kittie Conshea won the prize. Her opponent was Miss Mamie Watson, who turned in almost as much money.

In the contest for the Japanese urn between Miss Kittie Cooley and Miss Lida Boice, the former was successful. The Liberty wheel contested for by Miss Margaret Daly and Miss Kittie Wheland was won by the former who turned in $80 60, while her opponent turned in $24 45 Miss Mary Kenney won the gold watch contest, turning in $75.10 against $33.05 which Miss Maria Caffery, collected. Lawrence McCann was awarded the gold cuff buttons, and David Kenney was given his choice of a year's subscription for either of the Plainfield papers, The Daily Press or News. Mr. Kenney decided to take The Press. Rev. Father Brennan had charge of the contests and announced the winners.

This evening the balance of the contests will be decided, which include Father Brennan's picture, a chiffonier, a silk quilt, a ton of coal and a number of other things. The bazaar has been very successful and the receipts will be large.

CAREFUL STREET WORK.

Commissioner Gavett Being Particular With Park Avenue Improvement.

The steam roller has undergone extensive repairs this spring, and in a week will be ready for use again. The large wheels were worn so thin that they had to be fitted out with new tires. When it is finished the roller will look like new, with its coat of fresh paint.

Street Commissioner Gavett says that Park avenue will probably not be finished for a week or so yet, and not until the steam roller is ready for use anyway. Mr. Gavett is being very particular with the two blocks he is doing now, because when the asphalt or brick pavement is laid, it will join the macadam at Fourth street, and he does not want too great a difference between the two kinds of pavement.

A FINE PLUM TO DROP FOR SPEAKER WATKINS

Will Be Appointed United States District Attorney.

SUCCEEDS J. KEARNEY RICE.

APPOINTMENT WOULD HARMONIZE A FACTIONAL FIGHT.

General Sewell's Probable Candidacy for Re-election to the United States Senate is the Cause of Watkins' Good Luck, it is Thought—Sewell Plans to Insure Republican Legislature in 1900

(Special to The Daily Press)

Woodbury, April 15—An interesting bit of political news is the announcement that Speaker David O. Watkins, of the New Jersey Assembly, is to be appointed United States District Attorney to succeed J. Kearney Rice, of New Brunswick. Mr. Watkins went to Washington yesterday to confer with Attorney General Griggs about the matter.

Should Mr. Watkins receive the appointment and accept the same it would remove him from the field as a candidate for State Senator next fall in Gloucester County, and leave a clear track for the renomination of Senator Solomon Stanger. The appointment of Mr. Watkins would harmonize what would otherwise have been a bitter fight, and the master hand of Senator Sewell can be traced throughout the game of politics being played.

General Sewell will be a candidate for United States Senator again in two years, and the next Senator from Gloucester County will have a vote on that question. A factional fight might lose the county to the Republicans, and every effort will be made to avoid the same. Should Attorney-General Griggs recommend speaker Watkins for District Attorney, to assure a vote for Sewell for United States Senator, it would seem as if there was nothing in the story that Vice-President Hobart intended to make a fight for General Sewell's seat in the United States Senate.

AWARDED $3,000 DAMAGES.

Verdict for Mrs. Sofield, Whose Husband Was Scalded to Death.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 15—The jury in the case of Nellie Sofield against the Guggenheim Smelting Company, of Perth Amboy, has returned a verdict for $3,000 for the plaintiff. Charles Sofield, husband of the plaintiff, died from injuries received at the Guggenheim works. He was employed at one of the furnaces, and on the night of July 10th last his second night on duty, he fell into a tank of boiling water. The wife sued for $10,000 damages on the ground that the company was careless in not having the tank covered with a granting, so as to prevent such an accident.

Cortlandt Parker, of Newark, represented the plaintiff, and Alan H. Strong, of this city, the company.

A RELIGIOUS STORY.

Inspiring Lecture Given Before an Appreciative Audience.

Warren chapel was filled with a large and appreciative audience last evening when Rev Garret Conover, of Nyack, N. Y., gave his highly interesting illustrated lecture entitled "The Life of Jesus in Picture and Song." The pictures were fine and gave a history of Jesus from his birth to his ressurection As the pictures were thrown on the screen Mr. Conover recited the story in an interesting manner, and at intervals he and Mrs. Conover sang several very pretty duets which increased the interest very much. In conclusion Mr. Conover displayed the beautiful and celebrated "Rock of Ages" series, and before the affair came to an end a collection was taken to defray expenses.

A Goat's Misfortune.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Corby, of Washington Valley, owned a goat which she and her little friends used to drive to a tiny sulkey. Thursday afternoon she went out driving with the daughter of Mr. Pedilious. The goat was kept at a lively pace and resented it by running away and throwing the children out. Neither were injured. When the goat tried to stop, it met with disaster and become entangled in the sulkey. A broken leg was the result and the poor steed had to be shot.

CLOSING NIGHT OF PRINT EXHIBITION.

Great Success of Plainfield Camera Club Affair.

WILL END THIS EVENING.

EXHIBIT OF VALUABLE LANTERN SLIDES OF CENTRAL AMERICA.

George H. Fountain Will Talk on Them Tonight — Remarkable Success in Enlargements by William Demarest and the Misses Tracy — Professional Work From Easton—Other Features.

After scoring the greatest success of any of its kind ever held in Plainfield, the annual photographic print exhibition of the Plainfield Camera Club will close this evening. From a technical and artistic point of view, the exhibition has been a record-breaker. The improvement made was remarkable, and some of the work shown by amateurs was of the highest class. Then, too, the attendance at the exhibition has been very encouraging. Every evening the club gallery in the Babcock building, where the exhibition is being held, has been crowded

This evening the exhibition will close. The various exhibits still continue to attract much attention, and to receive the hearty praise of the visitors who have examined them. The enlargements are a class that very few amateurs attempt. William Demarest and the Misses Tracy have done some excellent work in that line which is on exhibition. Mr. Demarest's work is almost entirely with portraits while the Misses Tracy have an excellent marine view.

In the centre of the gallery is a stand on which S. B. Johnston, an Easton professional, has a very pretty display of his work in portraits. They include pictures of a number of prominent Easton society people and Lafayette College students.

For the last three evenings an exhibition of lantern slides has been an added attraction. Thursday night J. Hervey Doane showed a part of his fine collection.

Tonight George H. Fountain, the well known antiquarian, will exhibit his collection of views of the strange ruins and antiquities that have been discovered in Yucatan and Central America. Mr Fountain possesses the only set of lantern slides of the subject that is owned in the United States. Many of the views are very valuable and could not be replaced without great cost and labor. These views will be shown tonight and Mr. Fountain will explain them briefly.

The Camera Club rooms will be open from 2:30 to 6 o'clock and from 7:30 to 10. It is possible that, as this is the last night, the exhibit may be kept open later than usual. Admission to all is free.

SPELLING OUT NAMES.

A New and Entertaining Game Played at the Congregational Church.

The members of the Congregational church spent a pleasant evening last night in their chapel at one of the sociables given under the auspices of the Woman's Association. The evening was spent in playing games. For refreshments Boston baked beans, brown bread and coffee were served.

A new game called the "telegram" was introduced, and every one found much fun in this. Slips of paper were passed around, on which were written the initials of different persons, and the young folks were expected to spell out a name or word with these letters.

To the two who showed themselves particularly adept in this, prizes were awarded. Mrs. C. L. Goodrich and Mrs. F. F. Clark were the lucky ones. Other games played were the games of buzz and hunting the bean.

Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux, chairman of the Woman's Association, had charge of the sociable, and Mrs. E. Messersmith looked after the refreshments.

VERDICT IN FAVOR OF TROLLEY COMPANY

Jury Decided That Plaintiff Had No Cause For Action.

TO MOVE FOR A NEW TRIAL.

MR. ROGERS COLLIDED WITH THE TROLLEY CAR IN DUNELLEN.

Accident Happened on a Dark, Foggy Night Last Winter and Rogers Had One Horse Killed Besides Receiving Injuries Himself—He Wanted $1,000—Car Running at Four Miles an Hour.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 15.—Clark T. Rogers, of New Market, lost his case against the Brunswick Traction Company yesterday, the jury bringing in a verdict of no cause for action. The case was begun Monday, adjourned until Wednesday, adjourned again to Thursday, and finished last night. The jury were out almost all the night, and only arrived at a verdict after long and tedious argument. Rogers' lawyer, William Newcorn, of Plainfield, says he will move for a new trial Monday, on the grounds that the verdict was not in accordance with the weight of evidence.

Rogers, who is a truckman, met with an accident on the road leading from Bound Brook to Dunellen one night last winter A trolley car and his team collided, and in the collison one of Rogers' horses was killed, his wagon was broken and himself slightly injured.

The accident happened about 6:30 o'clock on the evening of a dark and foggy day. The sun set at 4:30 o'clock that day, and according to the testimony of some it was impossible to see any distance ahead.

The testimony of Rogers and the witnesses for the trolley company differed materially. Rogers claimed that the car came upon him without a sound of the gong, and was going at such speed that it ran entirely over the horse, so that nothing but his tail and hoofs could be seen. Rogers explained his being so near the tracks by saying that he had just turned out to allow a wagon to pass by.

The motorman, who had charge of the car, said that when he was passing that particular part of the road he was only going at the rate of four miles an hour. He said that he never saw the wagon until he was eight feet from it, and then it was too late to bring the car to a stop. Upon cross-examination, however, he claimed to be able to stop a car going four miles an hour in three feet.

Rogers wanted $1,000 damages for the dead horse, the broken wagon and injuries to himself.

PILOT COVERED WITH BLOOD.

An Investigation Showed That a Large Dog Had Been Killed.

The employes of the Jersey Central railroad in the vicinity of the Grant avenue station were thrown into a state of excitement last evening shortly after six o'clock by a supposed fatality on the railroad.

When train No 15, which leaves New York every evening at 5:45, stopping at Plainfield at 6:38, reached Dunellen last evening, the pilot of the locomotive was found to be splattered with blood. The side of one of the coaches on the east bound P. and R. train, when it passed at Grant avenue, was also reported to be marked with blood.

The section gang and other employes of the railroad hurried out and looked along the tracks in the neighborhood to find some trace of the victim. It was at last found and proved to be a large white bird dog.

FOURTEEN CONVERTED

Evangelist Taylor's Meetings are increasing the Christian Flock

Evangelist Taylor spoke to a large audience at Hope chapel last night upon the necessity of making a choice at once whether to take life or death. His text was the nineteenth verse of the thirtieth chapter of Deuteronomy, "I call Heaven and earth to record against you I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing, therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live."

During the meeting he called upon all those who had been converted during his preaching this past week to stand. Fourteen arose and it is probable that there were several others who were not out last night. The converts were young people and a few adults also

Now He Sues the Newark Trolley Company for $2,000.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 15—Vincent Daniels, Elizabeth's Italian court interpreter, wants $2,000 from the North New Jersey Traction Company for being forcibly put off a trolley car in Newark because he happened to be carrying a small goat from Elizabeth as a present to a friend in Ferry street.

The goat was in the interpreter's arms and no objection was made by the conductor of the trolley car on which Daniels went from Elizabeth to Newark. He was given a transfer to the Ferry street car, the conductor of which dislikes goats, and told Daniels he would have to get off.

When the interpreter refused he was ejected with such violence that he fell to the ground. He was somewhat bruised and had to walk two miles.

LOVE LEFT THE ATTIC, BUT GOT NO DIVORCE.

Chancellor McGill Denies the Petition of Edwin Jacquin.

QUITE A ROMANTIC STORY.

WHEN HUSBAND ROSE IN THE WORLD HE LEFT HIS WIFE.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacquin Married in Youthful Years and Lived Happily in a Tenement House Till the Husband Became an Inventor—Chancellor Held That Jacquin's Residence Here Was Not Good.

Chancellor McGill has just handed down his decision in a divorce case, testimony in which was taken in the year 1898. The parties are Edwin Jacquin and Kate Jacquin. The application was made by the husband in 1897. The Chancellor reviewed the evidence, and declined to grant the application.

There is a pretty little romance connected with this change of feeling on the part of the husband. The couple were married under the legal age in 1879. They both lived in New York, and went to housekeeping in a humble part of Greenwich street in that city. Jacquin was a machinist by trade, and the two lived happily together until the husband invented a patent gas and electric light fixture, and found himself on the road to wealth.

Then, the wife says, with his new position in life, Jacquin had no further use for the companion he had taken in his youth, and deserted her. Coming to Plainfield he hired a room in Blimm's Hotel, and claimed this city as his residence. This was in 1893.

Jacquin's reason for deserting his wife was that she grew insolent, refused to cook his meals for him, and was ugly and cross when he was around, and also that she refused to live with him.

Jacquin employed Gen. E. L. Bullard, of New York, William Douglass Moore, of Jersey City and Gallagher & Richards, of Newark as his counsel. Mrs. Jacquin was represented by Harry C. Bunyon, of this city.

The Chancellor said in his reply to the application, that such a residence as Jacquin maintained in this city was not such a one as the law required. He rented an attic room, put some clothing, which he never wore, in it, then went on about his business here and there around the country. He paid one $1 a month for the room, but when he did come to Plainfield it was shown that he never occupied it.

Small Fire at Lincoln.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Lincoln, April 15—An alarm of fire at 10:30 o'clock last night called out the fire department to the butcher shop of C. C. VanDyke, on the Lincoln Boulevard, which was in flames. A stream of water was turned on and in a short time the flames were under control. VanDyke had just laid in his stock of Saturday's meat, but this was saved. The only damage done to the store was inside. The interior was badly gutted.

CROKER IS FOR SPOILS

The Boss Admits That Tammany's Creed is Plunder.

CONTROLS THE JUDICIARY

Ex-Judge Daly Takes the Stand to Croker's Surprise and Tells Why He Was Not Renominated—Ex-Judge Pryor Testifies Concerning Assessments—A $10,000 Check Make Payable to Croker Which Michael T. Daly Got Pryor to Alter Making it Payable to Bearer.

New York, April 15.—Richard Croker, "the man who runs the city of New York," was put on the witness stand before the Mazet Assembly committee yesterday to tell under oath how he does it. He was not anxious to give an account of his stewardship. Sometimes, indeed, he has been known to disclaim all responsibility on the ground that he holds no office under statute of law. The committee of the State Assembly, however, in the course of fulfilling its mission of investigating the municipal departments regard Mr. Croker as the fountain head of the city government. Mr. Croker did not want to go on the stand and subject himself to questions about what he terms his "private business." So when Mr. Croker let it be known that he would not appear voluntarily before the committee, the Chairman, Assemblyman Mazet, took steps to compel him to do so by process of law.

Mr. Moss began his questioning of Mr. Croker in his most affable tone. He might have been starting to give a Sunday school lesson. Mr. Croker leaned back comfortably, stretched out his legs and crossed them, leaned his elbows on the cushioned arms of his chair and turned rather nonchalantly toward Mr. Moss. His answers in the beginning were short, softly spoken and indifferent. He answered Mr. Moss's questions as to Tammany quietly enough until the questions turned upon the management of Tammany Hall.

Then came the explosion. Croker straightened up in his chair, brought his feet down on the floor with a bang and said, "There's no use playing to the gallery. Have a straight talk and let's get through with it. I am the leader of the party, as everybody knows. These people (referring to a list of Tammany lights read by Mr. Moss) are my friends, and I'll stick to them."

There was an outburst of applause from some Tammany heelers in the rear of the room, and Mr. Croker smiled faintly. Mr. Moss paid no attention to Croker's petulance.

The effort which the Tammany leader made at the beginning of the examination to appear unconcerned failed most dismall He looked worried from the first, and soon began to give way to his annoyance. He either snapped his answers or mumbled them in a growl, and altogether made an entirely different impression than that of the self-contained, self-reliant leader of bygone years.

Mr. Croker's eyes showed a gleam of more than usual interest when Mr. Moss took up a newspaper and read from it an interview in which Mr. Croker was quoted as declaring that the Mazet Committee was inspired by nothing but spite and a desire for revenge. Mr. Croker straightened up in his chair and listened intently.

"Did you say that?" Mr. Moss asked.

"I did," Mr. Croker replied as quick as a shot. There was a flash of defiance in his round gray eyes. Mr. Moss leaned back and smiled in the peculiar way that has proved so disconcerting to many witnesses. Then he threw down a challenge to the Tammany leader to prove his words, saying that if he had any evidence to adduce the committee wanted it. Mr. Croker did not accept it. He shifted his position, his eyes fell for an instant and he said he would not attempt to prove it. "It is for you to prove that it is not so," he said, doggedly.

The demonstrations of approval that from time to time greeted Mr. Croker's answers showed that a contingent of Tammany men was on hand.

Mr. Croker got into a little better humor as the examination proceeded. He smiled once or twice when Mr. Moss was prodding him as to his vast power as a leader.

"I guess it must be so, if you say so," Mr. Croker said once or twice with a broad smile.

This smile grew into a laugh a moment later at a question involving the veracity of the World. Even Mr. Croker, worried as he was, had to laugh at that, and the spectators laughed with him.

Mr. Moss was in the best of humor and his questions were all put with a good nature that was not without its effect upon the austere witness. He asked the most pointed questions with a smile and in a voice entirely free from any offense.

Mr. Moss adroitly led Mr. Croker into the admission that it was a principle with Tammany to fill all city offices with Tammany men when that party is in power.

"Is it not the theory of Tammany's government to fill all offices with Democrats?" Mr. Moss asked after leading up to that point.

"Yes," said Mr. Croker.

And when Tammany got control of the city government you filled all the offices with Democrats, did you not?"

"All we could. And we began by getting you out of the Police Board."

The Tammany men in the back of the room laughed uproariously, and Mr. Moss joined in the laughter.

Croker Compliments Moss.

"Yes," he flashed back quickly, "I'm going to frame that. I am glad you mentioned it. That is something that I am interested in personally, and Mr. Croker, I want you to tell us just how you went about getting me out."

"We got you out to put a good Democrat in your place."

"Why? Was there anything wrong with my work as a Commissioner?"

"You done your work good.

A moment's reflection convinced Mr. Croker that he had made an admission that he did not want to stand by and he hastened to do his best to correct it.

"I am glad you say so," said Mr. Moss.

"I mean you done it good for your party," said Mr. Croker hastily. "You went right over to the Bowery and done your best for your party."

The boss was worried by his admission that Mr. Moss had made a good Commissioner and had only been put out for partisan purposes. He evidently remembered some of his previous interviews in which he had declared with great solemnity that there was no politics in the Police Department. He repeated two or three times that Mr. Moss had been a good Commissioner for the Republican party.

A little later Mr. Moss got Mr. Croker on record as "the political boss of Tammany Hall." Mr. Moss read a newspaper heading and asked: "You are the political boss of Tammany Hall, are you not?"

Croker got angry again. "That's about four times you've said that," he snapped.

"Well, isn't it true?" continued Mr. Moss.

"I leave that to you," said Croker.

"You won't deny it?" Mr. Moss persisted.

"No," said Mr. Croker, and there was not a suspicion of a laugh from the Tammany claque in the background.

Mr. Moss drew from Mr. Croker the admission that Judges elected by Tammany were expected to favor Tammany men by appointing them as referees and in other ways. It was a virtual admission of all that was charged against Tammany during the campaign, which resulted in the defeat of Justice Joseph F. Daly last fall. That Mr. Croker should be so astonishingly frank in his admissions seemed to amaze even the stanch Tammanyites present. Mr. Croker admitted that the Judges named by Tammany were naturally expected to name Democrats as referees in cases. This meant, as Mr. Croker said in answer to questions, that these referees would employ Democratic autioneers. In other words, as Mr. Croker said, the spoils belonged to the victors. He said the Judges were not instructed to give patronage to no one but Democratis, but were expected to do so. The plain English of the admission was that the Judiciary was considered by Tammany to be a part of the general political spoil and was so used.

In bringing out this point Mr. Moss got what is known sometimes in Tammany circles as "close" to his witness. Mr. Croker didn't like it. He enunciated the principle "To the victor belongs the spoils," in a defiant manner, and then objected vigorously to Mr. Moss speaking of "plunder." Mr. Moss thought there wasn't much difference between "spoils" and "plunder," but deferred kindly to Mr. Croker's distinction. The atmosphere got a bit electric as Mr. Moss remarked. "Yes, to the victor belongs the spoils and to the boss belongs the lion's share of the plunder." A hush came over the room. Mr. Croker bit his lips and growled, "There's no plunder." He was uncomfortable, and a moment later tried to hit back at the lawyer by saying: "You're getting paid for this business, I suppose."

"Good boy, Dick!" shouted an enthusiastic Tammanyite. Chairman Mazet threatened to clear the room if any further demonstrations were made.

"Now, in the matter of a candidate for a judgeship, does he not have to put up a large sum of money to get the nomination?" asked Mr. Moss.

"That used to be so, I believe, fifteen or twenty years ago, but it isn't so now."

Croker and the Bench

"How much would it cost now?"

"Oh, seven or eight thousand, maybe."

"Well, you expect that judges when elected will give the preference in all clerkships and all other places to good and faithful members of Tammany?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Provided, of course, that he's as good as any other man."

"Oh, yes. I don't expect him to appoint any unfit man or any man of bad character."

"And does he always prove obedient?"

"No, not always. Some of them now on the bench have not appointed the men recommended."

"And this is all to get all the places possible for the rank and file as rewards?"

"Exactly."

"So that Tammany is well represented by the tiger, which, though it has a small mouth, is always eating?"

"Yes."

The investigation here turned into the business affairs of Mr. Croker. The witness admitted that his partner, Peter F. Meyer, is a member of the Dock Board, and that since he went into the real estate auction business with Mr. Meyer, in 1892, the firm has had nearly all of the judicial sales.

"How is it that the judges send you all the business?" he was asked.

"They don't, the referees bring it to us."

"This is it, then—the judge selects the referee, the referee the auctioneer and the auctioneer the place of auction?"

"That's it."

"Well, you have said that the judges elected by Tammany Hall ought to give patronage as far as possible to Tammany Hall?"

"Yes."

"So that they are, in your mind, bound to appoint a Tammany referee?"

"Yes."

"And the referee, being a Tammany man, is expected to appoint a Tammany auctioneer?"

"The auctioneer, the head auctioneer at our place, is Mr. Meyer. The others pay rent."

"And in that rent you participate?"

"Yes."

"If your firm is appointed it is a good party act, is it not?"

"It is."

"Why?"

"Because Democrats profit by it."

"Now, as the nomination of a judge on the Tammany ticket is equivalent to an election, and you choose the judge, you naturally expect that from his election profit will come to you?"

"To the victors belong the spoils," replied Mr. Croker.

"Then you, in your management of politics, are not actuated by any high motives of statesmanship, but are working for your own pocket?"

"All the time," replied Mr. Croker.

This was the signal for a repetition of the handclipping. This aroused Mr. Croker to respond, when Mr. Moss asked him whether he did not consider his share as "the boss" ought to be the lion's share of the plunder.

Word "Plunder" Disagreeable.

"I don't call it plunder. It's no more plunder than when you will send your bill in for this work to the Legislature by and bye."

"Ki-yi-yi! Good boy, Croker!" cried Tammany, standing ten deep in the rear of the hall.

Mr. Mazet gave notice that he would clear the hall if there should be another such demonstration.

After Mr. Moss had explained that he had not used the word "plunder" in anw invidious sense, but to mean the same thing as Mr. Croker's word "spoils," Mr. Moss said:

"Don't be afraid there is anything at all hidden behind my questions."

"I'm not afraid of anything," said Croker, and his lips shut tightly.

Mr. Moss suspended for a time the examination of Mr. Croker and called Wheeler H. Peckham to show that the corruption of the judiciary was mainly responsible for the Tweed scandal. Mr. Peckham was one of the attorneys who prosecuted Tweed. Mr. Moss's bold move in calling Mr. Peckham right on the heels of Mr. Croker's admissions came as a surprise.

While Mr. Peckham was being examined, Mr. Croker took a seat just back of Mr. Moss. He buried his chin in his hand and seemed to be intensely uncomfortable during the reference to Boss Tweed and the corruption of the Judiciary.

Mrs. Croker appeared at one of the doors of the room at 12:30 o'clock. John F. Carroll jumped up to give her a seat, but she declined it and retired after a moment with her son Frank, who has been subpoenaed to testify again.

The name of Tweed was mentioned several times in the course of the examination of Mr. Peckham. When Mr. Moss first mentioned it everybody looked curiously at Croker. He took a firm grip of his stubby beard with his right hand and looked straight ahead at the witness.

Pressing the point as to the corruption of the judiciary by Tammany, Mr. Moss called former Justice Joseph F. Daly after Mr. Peckham. Mr. Croker seemed surprised when Justice Daly's name was called. He sat immediately in front of the witness, just a few feet away. Before he had been on the stand five minutes Justice Daly said that he had known of the attempted use of the judiciary by Tammany.

"Last fall I received notice that because I would not make a political appointment, I would not receive a nomination for re-election."

"Who gave you that notice?" asked Mr. Moss.

Croker's Orders to Judge Daly.

"It came from Mr. Croker," said Justice Daly promptly, gazing squarely at the Tammany leader, "whom I see here now, and, as a do not suppose he will deny it, I do not think it necessary to mention the medium through whom the notice came."

Every eye was turned on Mr. Croker at this direct challenge, but he sat still, apparently unmoved, and made no move to deny the charge. He kept his eyes on Justice Daly and waited for the examination to continue.

Justice Daly said that the appointment which he had refused to make was that of Michael T. Daly as clerk of his court. To make this appointment it would have been necessary to remove Clerk Jones, who was an efficient officer. Justice Daly went on to tell of another matter in which he had deeply offended by refusing to remove the court sales as the Tammany leader wanted. He said if it were true that the appointment of referees was dictated by a political party, the system was monstrous. He considered a referee a semi-judicial officer. Politics should not enter into such appointments.

Dr. O'Sullivan attempted to destroy the effect of Justice Daly's testimony by showing that the witness was first nominated for Justice by Tammany Hall during Boss Tweed's reign. With great frankness Justice Daly admitted that this was so, but he declared that at the time of his nomination he had never seen Tweed. Dr. O'Sullivan tried hard to connect Justice Daly with Tweed's regime. Was it not because he was a protege of Tweed's that he was defeated for renomination last fall? Justice Daly said that he had heard that Mr. Croker had made such a statement. No such charge had even been hinted at when he was renominated by Tammany before.

"You talk about assessments—how much did you pay when Mr. Tween nominated you?" Dr. O'Sullivan asked.

"I was informed by Mr. Sweeny that the expenses of the election would be unusually heavy and he apologized for the amount that he asked for—$3,500. That was an unusually heated election."

Justice Daly said that he recognized the fact that there were legitimate campaign expenses that had to be met, and he understood that the system of assessment existed in both parties.

While Dr. O'Sullivan was talking Mr. Croker leaned over and whispered to Mr. Moss. The fruit of this appeared a few minutes later when Mr. Moss asked ex-Justice Daly if he had not gone to Richard Croker personally and asked to be sent to the Constitutional Convention.

"Mr. Croker doesn't think he is getting enough out of the cross-examination," said Mr. Moss, with a glance at the medical lawyer.

The witness answered the question in the affirmative, and Justice Roger A. Pryor was called to the stand. Justice Pryor said he was ill, and looked it, but he was willing to be questioned. Mr. Moss went at once to the point and Justice Pryor cheerfully said that he had paid $10,000 to Tammany Hall for his nomination to his justiceship of the Court of Common Pleas. He said he had given his check for this amount to Mr. Croker at the latter's suggestion. The check was made out to Richard Croker, as Chairman of the Tammany Finance Committee, and later it was brought back to him by Michael T. Daly, and he drew the check to "bearer." He thought that it would be an infinite improvement if Justices were relieved of these campaign assessments. In answer to Mr. Moss, he said that this payment of campaign money amounted in a sense to paying for office. He said that he was a Democrat and that, all things being equal, he gave the preference to Democrats in the matter of appointing referees.

Judge Pryor Called.

Hon. Roger P. Pryor was a witness on behalf of the Committee and testified as follows:

BOEHM'S.

You know that our minister used to be a practicing physician. He was a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, and he says of Ripans Tabules that the formula has long been in favor with medical men, but the method of preparation in the present form is modern and a very great convenience. He lately spoke of them to me in these very words: "I always keep a vial of the Tabules upon my dressing-table and use them with confidence whenever occasion arises. For a disturbed condition of the digestive organs I know of nothing so good, and for an 'all round' family remedy I do not believe there is anything better to be had."

Q.—It has been stated, Judge Prior, here within the last half hour, that it has been the custom for many years past to assess Judicial candidates. Do you know that that is so. A.—No, I do not. I only know about myself.

Q.—Will you tell us of your experience in that matter? A.—I will. On the 14th of October, 1891, or the 15th of October, I [illegible] nominated for the Common Pleas Bench, I contributed $10,000.

Q.—$10,000, A.—$10,000, and also $5,000 to the County Democracy. It seems that Mr. [illegible], a friend of mine, had subscribed given $500 to that organization and I heard of it, and I said I would reimburse him. That is my experience.

Q.—That was not an unusual experience, was it, as you understood it? A.—Well, of course I know only of my own experience.

Q.—Was it suggested to you that you should contribute that large sum of money? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you feel willing to state who requested you to do so? A.—I have no objection.

Q.—Will you kindly tell us?. A.—Mr. Richard Croker.

Q.—And to whom was the money given? A.—The money was given on the 14th of October, 1891. I drew a check for $10,000, payable to the order of Richard Croker, Chairman of Finance Committee, Tammany Hall, on the 15th of October, 1891. The next day that check was returned to me by Mr. Michael P. Daly, who said that he preferred to have the check payable to bearer, that he himself would collect and turn the money into Tammany Hall. I think he said to Mr. McQuaid; probably that is right. This he did. That he did so collect it is evidenced by the fact that his indorsement was on the back of the check (Mr. Daly's). All this I have stated in my sworn affidavit filed after the election; I mean the substance of all this.

Q.—Do you not think, Judge, that the judiciary would be elevated in the eyes of the people and made more independent in the performance of their duties if they were relieved by law from the payment of political assessments? A.—Decidedly; I am on record as being of that opinion.

MR. BRYAN IS IN NEW YORK.

The Hat Will Pass Around at To-nights Banquet

New York, April 15.—All the arrangements for the dollar dinner of the Chicago platform Democrats at the Grand Central Palace to-night were completed to-day. Treasurer Eugene V. Brewster said that there would not be a hitch from the beginning to the end.

The decorations of the big hall were finished yesterday. The costly flowers and evergreens so noticeable at the $10 dinner are missing, but there is a profuse display of American flags and red, white and blue streamers. The boxes are handsomely festooned.

James R. Brown, chairman of the Silver Democratic League of New York, will preside. He will announce that the feast is really a $10 dinner. Each guest will be handed a card crediting him with having paid a dollar for the dinner and pledging him, should he care to sign the card, to pay $9 more at the rate of a dollar a month to the Democratic Ways and Means Committee of the National Democratic Committee. "The difference between the two dinners," said Mr. Brewster, "is that in one case the cause got nothing; in the other case it will be well remembered."

"We expect two thousand men to sign this card," he continued, "and thus add $18,000 to the funds."

The Committee of Fifteen has reserved 250 seats for out-of-town visitors who asked for tickets but did not send the money. When guests go to the hat boxes, they will receive a diagram of the dining hall, the balcony and the boxes, and will know just where to go without the assistance of ushers. The guests at the main table will assemble in the small hall and await the coming of William J. Bryan. Then the feast will begin.

The ladies, 400 in number, with their escorts, will be dined in the hall adjoining the banquet room. Then they will retire to the balconies, where the fee will be 50 cents apiece.

It is aranged that the last speaker will be William J. Bryan. He will take an hour and a half, and for this reason all other speakers will be limited. Oliver H. P. Belmont will speak for twenty minutes on "Concentrated Wealth." He was a member of Mr. Croker's dinner committee, but resigned. George Fred Williams, of Massachusetts, will also speak, and will demand 16 to 1 as a financial platform. The only other speaker of prominence will be Congressman Charles A. Towne, of Minnesota.

Col. Bryan is in the city at the Bartholdi.

Here is what Col. Bryan will eat to-night:

Virginia soup; boiled haddock, with sauce and new potatoes; pickles, beets and celery; prime ribs of roast beef; roast Monticello turkey, with cranberry sauce, black coffee; ice cream, etc.

THE SHERIDAN AT MANILA.

Several Deaths Reported During the Voyage.

Manila, April 15.—The United States States transport Sheridan, formerly the Massachusetts, which sailed from New York on February 19, having on board the Twelfth Infantry and a battalion of the Seventeenth Infantry, has arrived here after a smooth passage.

On the night of April 11 Lieut. Meyer disappeared from the ship. The weather was intensely hot, and the Lieutenant was sleeping on deck, and it is supposed that he fell overboard. Three privates and six children of privates died from pneumonia.

Consuls to Return to Spain.

Washington, April 15.—The Secretary of State has ordered the United States consuls who were obliged to leave on account of the war to return to Spain. Consul H. W. Bowen, at Barcelona, and Richard M. Bartleman, at Malaga, are now in New York. A third, Mr. J. Howell Carroll, consul at Cadiz, is now at Gibraltar. These will be retained in the service, there being no evidence of any personal ill-feeling incurred by them.

The sub-consular officers mostly remained in Spain throughout the war and were undisturbed. They will also be continued in the service.

ADVERSE TO MR. QUAY

A Ruling Which Practically Admits the Red Book.

ITS USE BY THE CASHIER

Hopkins' Checks Offered in Evidence—District Attorney Alleges It Was Part of a Plan to Keep Certain Tran-actions from the Knowledge of the Clerks.

Philadelphia, April 15.—In the Quay trial yesterday, Judge Biddle decided that witness Goldsmith, former clerk in the People's Bank, should be permitted to testify as to entries in the "red book," and their connection with the regular bank books. The decision practically admits the famous "red book" as evidence against the defendant.

Albert E. Taber, receiving teller, was recalled and identified the handwriting of Hopkins in the "black book" and the "blue book," small memorandum books, which were found in the cashier's private desk. In the former are records of individual loans and in the other of bank loans and collateral.

The witness identified the signature on a number of cheks signed by Cashier Hopkins and others. The first one was dated October 31, 1887, for $3,400, signed William H. Taber, cashier, indorsed M. S. Quay. This was while Mr. Quay was State Treasurer. One drawn in 1897 was to the order of Treasurer Haywood.

State Treasurer J. S. Beacom, who has been in office since May last, was called to identify the signature on a letter of H. C. Greenwalt, clerk in the Treasurer's office.

At this point the District Attorney formally offered in evidence all the books of the bank identified by clerks except the "red book," stating, however, that he proposed to offer that interesting volume immediately. On a point raised by the defense, the Court ruled that the bank books would be admitted so far as they go to prove the conspiracy charged in the indictment. The defense appeared to want the offer limited to Senator Quay's account or "alleged account," as counsel put it.

Meyer Goldsmith, an expert accountant, the next witness, was called to prove that the "Red Book" was a regular book of the bank. The District Attorney said that in proving this he would show that after 1891, when Hopkins became cashier, a new book was added to the bank's books, and was kept by the cashier, in which the interest of State funds was calculated.

Mr. Shapley objected, saying the witness' testimony would only be cumulative. "The commonwealth, he said, had called all the officers and employes of the bank with the exception of President McManes, and had failed to have one of them identify the "Red Book" as one of the bank's books. He quoted a number of opinions as to how far an expert can go in testimony.

Mr. Shields followed. He said the witness never saw the "red book" until after the arrest of Mr. Quay. He read Judge Biddle's decision of Wednesday, admitting the books with respect to their being records, when the Judge said he was not yet satisfied that the Red Book" is competent evidence against Mr. Quay, but afterward withdrew the latter statement. He dwelt on the fact that none of the bank officials or clerks had identified the book.

The District Attorney acknowledged that none of the clerks had ever seen the book, because it was the purpose of the cashier, in furthering the conspiracy, to keep the book from the eyes of the other employes. In October, 1891, he said, the system whereby the clerks were aware of the transactions was changed by Hopkins for the very purpose of deceiving the clerks, and the "red book" began its "iniquitous existence."

The "Red Book," he insisted, is a part of the bank's books, and entries in the ledgers cannot be explained or understood unless it is admitted. Mr. Shields asserted that not a single entry in the "Red Book" corresponded with an entry in the regular bank books.

The District Attorney replied that on the contrary every entry in the "Red Book" corresponded to an entry in the ledgers and cash books.

Judge Biddle decided against the defense.

Schley's New Duty.

Washington, April 15.—The Secretary of the Navy has detailed Admiral Schley to be a member of the Naval Promotion Board. This assignment has caused great surprise in naval and official circles, because Schley is not made presiding officer of the board but takes the place of a captain, who is relieved from duty. The president of the board is Rear-Admiral Howell, and it is not customary to appoint two admirals on the board, the other places being given to captains and officers of inferior rank. This fact emphasizes the action of the Secretary, and Schley's friends declare that it is another move on the part of the Navy Department to humiliate the hero of Santiago, and emphasizes the favoritism shown to Sampson.

The Naval Board of Promotion is a continuous body, and has its headquarters at the Navy Department. Its duty is to examine officers ordered for promotion, and pass upon their qualifications. The Department is reticent in regard to the Schley detail, and all that is given out is that he has been assigned to the board to succeed Capt. Scouler, who retires, and that Admiral Howell is still president.

The friends of Schley say that this detail was arranged, so that if a squadron is sent to England Sampson can be put in command of it. It is known that Admiral Schley desires a sea consignment, and it was thought that he would be given charge of the European squadron, but the Navy Department is determined not to form such a squadron at present.

Opposed to Wife Beating.

St. Louis, April 15.—Judge Thomas H. Peabody, of the Court of Criminal Correction, publishes a card denying that he rendered a decision justifying wife beating, or chastisement by a husband of a wife under certain circumstances. The Judge adds that he has always severely punished wife beating, and abusers of children when arraigned before him.

DUN'S WEEKLY REPORT.

The Squeeze of Last Week Has Given Place to Easier Conditions.

New York, April 15.—There is still increase in all legitimate business, and the productive power of great industries increases even though some of their stocks decline. The sharp reaction in speculation a week ago in no way affected the producing capacity of furnaces or mills, and has in part recovered, while the disturbance of business caused by the formation of great combinations has in large measure ceased. The money market is in safer and more wholesome condition, and in spite of four heavy payments by large syndicates, amounting, to about $50,000,000, has grown easier.

In spite of some strikes because wages were not raised as much as hands expected, the cotton industry has a very good demand, and most of the mills are working satisfactorily. A southern combination of fine goods makers is proposed, like that of Fall River mills, which has kept prices quite steady of late. Woolen mills have begun to buy wool more largely, though at prices much of their own making, but there is improving demand for goods, with light weight purchases continuing surprisingly for the season. Sales of wool at the three markets have been 16,792,000 lbs. in two weeks, against 3,385,000 last year.

Wheat advanced about half a cent, accounts of injury discovered since April 1st supplementing the Government report.

Imports of foreign goods continue heavy, partly because of the heavy sugar movement, partly because imports of raw material are unprecedented, and also because imports of luxuries and fancy articles on which duties are relatively high are large enough to swell the revenue materially.

Failures in the first week of April were $1,103,521 in amount, against $1,520,493 last year, and $3,730,191 in 1897, in the three previous years the amount having exceeded $3,000,000. Manufacturing were $262,928 against $451,842 last year, and trading $699,317 against $772,851 last year. Failures for the week have been 188 in the United States against 254 last year, and 22 in Canada against 18 last year.

AGREEMENT ABOUT SAMOA.

Identical Instructions on the Part of Three Governments.

Washington, April 15.—After hearing from the British and German Embassies, the State Department is enabled to announce positively and finally that the three parties to the Berlin treaty had agreed upon the instructions to be given their Samoan Commissioners, and that it was certain that the commission would leave San Francisco on the 25th instant for Samoa, on the Badger.

The instructions to the Commissioners are identical, the three governments having accepted a form which compromises the differences which have hitherto existed. The Commission will be empowered to deal with the situation as it finds it in the Samoan Islands upon its arrival. This applies to acts necessary to place the affairs of the islands in a peaceful and satisfactory condition for the time being, and whatever the Commission does in this direction is understood to be of a temporary character, and subject to the approval of the three Powers.

As to the merits of the bitter controversy between the representatives of the Powers on the islands, which led up to the unfortunate outbreak of April 1, the Commissioners are expected to make a thorough, impartial investigation, and report the results to their respective governments. The latter will, by ordinary diplomatic exchange, apply any corrections that seem to be necessary. The Commissioners will have no power to alter the treaty of Berlin. They may make recommendations to that end, and where they are unanimous, it is probable that their recommendations for changes in the treaty will be accepted.

Muster Out of Volunteers.

Washington, April 15.—The War Department will reply to the telegram of Gov. Lee of South Dakota to President McKinley asking for the immediate muster-out and return of the South Dakota troops in the Philippines, that the troops will be brought home as soon as is deemed expedient by the United States, and as soon as possible with the transports at hand. It is held at the War Department that the law requiring the muster-out of troops contemplates that the executive department shall have ample time to issue the necessary orders and make the necessary preparations properly to discharge the soldiers and bring them home.

The provision in the bill allowing the volunteers in the Philippines to be enlisted for six months may be construed to mean that the volunteers will not be mustered out before that time if they are necessary to the government. Chairman Hull stated on the floor of the House, when asked whether the six months' clause would be construed to continue the volunteers in the Philippines if they wanted to come home, that he had the assurance of the Administration that such would not be the construction.

An official of the War Department said to-day that the matter was in the hands of Gen. Otis, and it would be satisfactorily arranged by him and the volunteers in the islands. Already those who desired to leave because of pressing business needs, or because the support of their families depends upon their return, are being discharged.

The Vote at Harrisburg To-Day.

Harrisburg, April 15.—Calvin Wells, the Pittsburg ironmaster, was the choice of the anti-Quay Republicans to-day's joint ballot for United States Senator. Mr. Wells will also be voted for to-morrow and on Monday by the anti-Quayites. To-day's ballot, the seventy-fifth of the session, resulted as follows: Quay (Rep.), 86; Jenks (Dem.), 66; Wells (Rep.), 50. Total vote, 202; necessary to a choice, 103; paired or not voting, 51.

Ex-Premier Sagasta Assailed.

Richard Croker's Power.

Richard Croker has long been one of the most interesting men of this country—a man in a class all by himself. Students of human nature and of public life have marveled at the great power that he has been able to exercise without a vestige of any of the things that are considered essential attributes to influence and prestige with other men who hold sway in public matters. All acknowledge his power in shaping the local affairs of the greatest city in the United States, but what gives him that position as simply a man among men is an enigma that not even the most acute observers and students of public life can explain in logic and doctrine.

Yesterday Mr. Croker was the star witness before the Legislative committe that was appointed to investigate the affairs of New York. He faced the searching inquiries of one of the brightest and best informed lawyers on such matters in the city. Taking his answers to the questions put to him as a whole he showed up remarkably well. Apparently he was frank and straightforward and easily held his own with Mr. Moss. He admitted his leadership and explained to some extent the political tenets which he believes and which he practices. They are exactly those which his resolute acts have shown for years.

But with all the questions and the artifices of legal talent Mr. Moss did not bring out how the Tammany chieftan obtained the power—the absolute power in certain cirles—that is his. Croker is nothing more than what he delights to call himself frequently—a private citizen with no more rights than any other citizen. He is surrounded by scores of supporters and friends that are his equal—in some cases his superior—in mental equipment and in the qualities that go to make up men. Yet he practically admitted that all bowed to his will—as it would have been useless to deny because of events too fresh to divert the public mind from the practical truth.

And yet through it all he is but plain Richard Croker. But he is the practical ruler of the second city of the world. He admits it, his friends concede it, and everyone who knows anything about New York municipal affairs acknowledges it. By what peculiar tact, precept or whatever you may like to call it, he does this, however, is a great mystery.

The New Jersey Law Journal of which A. V. D. Honeyman, of this city, is editor, speaking of the new law of our State making the kissing of the Bible in taking oaths unnecessary, quotes a passage referring to the virtual abolishment of the Bible from the city courts of New York, which regards it as having no other than a sanitary significance, and adds, "it does not appear to have occurred to anybody that a Bible can be so bound as to be kept as clean as a dinner plate."

The Cleveland Leader says that Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Lease, formerly of Kansas and the Populist party, but now devoting some of her time to lectures on spiritualism, has evidently a most terrifying conception of hades. Thus in one of her recent lectures she said: "It is a great comfort to think that the man who has been rewarded for feeding embalmed and poisoned beef to our soldiers will be kept eating embalmed beef in the great hereafter."

Many Jerseymen who served as volunteers in regiments recruited outside of this state during the war with Spain believe that they are entitled to pay under the Ketcham bill passed by the last Legislature. This is not so. Only those who served in the New Jersey regiments will be entitled to the money that is to be paid out of the state treasury under the provisions of the bill.

Secretary Wilson is going to foolish extremes. He proposes to take a large lump of public money and expend it in sending a man to the coldest part of Alaska to see how he will thrive and live. A more practical idea would be to send a man to Elizabeth during the mosquito season to see if he could come out of it without resembling a bunch of juniper berries.

A western Legislature has passed a bill making it compulsory for lobbyists to wear badges. If such a bill was passed in New Jersey and rigorously carried out nine-tenths of the people who visit the State House in Trenton during the Legislative session would be adorned with the telltale insignas.

The Paterson Press, one of the most loyal of the Republican papers in New Jersey, believes that a frank confession is good for the soul and, therefore, concedes that Paterson is a Democratic city. Either Attorney-General Griggs or Vice President Hobart should be called upon to explain.

After having tried the curfew bell ordinance for a few months the officials of Vineland have decided to repeal the law, which has not been the success anticipated. It is said that the ordinance was practically a dead-letter in enforcement.

Mr. Croker had the advantage of early training in his interview with Investigator Moss yesterday. His ability as a pugilist in his youthful days aided him very well in sparring successfully with the lawyer.

The bitter factional fight in the Republican party in Bayonne has led to a suit for $50 000 damages, brought by ex-Mayor William C. Farr against Dr. Alexander Dallas.

The Tribune's Jersey editor speaks of "the Democratic press of Newark." There is no Democratic press of Newark. The newspapers of that city are independent.

There is too much political quibbling in the public school affairs of Newark to secure for that city the standard of education that it should maintain.

Many a watch is carried in full view by stylish women, but this does not prevent the timepiece from traveling in cog.

The admission of the "Red Book" in Senator Quay's trial makes things look blue for him.

Croker differs from Platt in that the former does not admit that he is an "Easy Boss."

Miss Augusta Gardner, of New York, has returned home after visiting her cousin, Miss Eva Noe, of LaGrand avenue.

Prof. John Leal, who has been very ill with appendicitis, is rapidly recovering and he hopes to be at his school next Monday.

Arthur Boone and family, formerly of this city, but now of Montclair, will soon return to Plainfield and reside on West Sixth street.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Tonight's attraction at Music Hall, the celebrated actor Mr. J. E. Toole and his play "Killarney and The Rhine," is certainly something "new under the sun." The novelty consists in the scenes being laid in Ireland and the principal character in the play that of a German. Irish wit and German comedy are here interlarded, the Teuton and the Celt being introduced in a new and ingenious manner. The piece is purely melo-dramatic, and withal abounds in by play of a humorous character. Replete with romance, it chains the attention of the spectator by its situations and dialogue. The dialect of Mr. Toole, who is the central figure of the piece, is as pleasing to the mind as his face and form are gratifying to the eyes, and he invests the character with a naturalness that belongs to finished acting. His make-up is strikingly original, in keeping with the songs and mannerisms attaching to his difficult role. From his initial appearance he enlists one's attention, and retains it even to the end, while the songs, dances and sayings with which the characterization is punctuated render his every appearance the sure barbinger of approaching enjoyment.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

City governments exhibit wisdom that pave as the people pay. A mile a year makes it easy for the taxpayer, and never any more than there are funds to pay for it is safest for the dominant party in office.—New York Press.

The coming fall election in Union county promises to be warm and exciting and from present indications Westfield will have a good deal to say as to who will be the candidate on the Republican ticket for County Clerk. There will no doubt be a split at Plainfield; for it is well known that Sheriff Kirk, of that city, would like to be clerk, and City Clerk McMurray, of the same city, would also like the nomination. Both have plenty of friends and they will go to the convention loaded for bear. Then Westfield will step in and show her hand; and it is safe to say that her delegates will hold the card that nominates the clerk. If you have a pin about you stick it in here.—Westfield Standard.

There are those who say that the gavel recently presented to Mayor Smalley by Assessor French was one of a left-over assortment found by Senator Reed in the sub-cellar of the State House during the recent session, in an over-looked Barney Ford lot. The decoy duck alighted too soon on the marble slab. The disgruntled Democrats who gave aid to elect N. B. Smalley mayor are not disposed to coincide with the Mayor as regards his allotment of the committees. Councilman Swackhammer, the rock piper from Hunterdon, who is the lone Democratic member of the body, they claim was unjustly slighted by the Mayor in his make up of the committees, and at the last meeting of the Council there was a lively discussion over the matter. The lobby of the Council will grow in numbers as the days lengthen and unusually lively tilts can reasonably be expected. The boroughite need not make dates hereafter for the first Friday evening in each month, as an all star show of his very own liking is billed for that date to run two seasons.—Bound Brook State Centre.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard street, Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Robert Browning's poem "Apparitions" comes instinctively into the mind of lovers of Browning who pass, at this season, Mr. Parker's place, corner of Grove street and Mercer avenue. Mr. Browning wrote:

"Such a starved bank of moss
Till that spring morn,
Blue ran the flash across,
Violets were born."

But the flash across Mr. Parker's grounds is not only blue, but yellow and white, as the crocuses have unfolded their many hued blossoms in every part of the beautiful lawn.

LINCOLN'S "SELFISHNESS."

In Order to Save His Peace of Mind He Rescued the Pigs.

Mr. Lincoln once remarked to a fellow-passenger on the old-time mud-wagon coach, on the corduroy road which antedated railroads, that all men were prompted by selfishness in doing good or evil. His fellow-passenger was antagonizing this position when they were passing over a corduroy bridge that spanned a slough. As they crossed this bridge and the mud-wagon was shaking like a Sucker with the chills, they espied an old razor-backed sow on the bank of the slough making a terrible noise because her pigs had got into the slough and were unable to get out, and in danger of drowning. As the old coach began to climb the hillside Mr. Lincoln called out, "Driver, can't you stop just a moment?" The driver replied, "If the other feller don't object." The "other feller"—who was no less a personage than at that time "Colonel" E. D. Baker, the gallant General who gave his life in defense of Old Glory at Ball's Bluff—did not object, when Mr. Lincoln jumped out, ran back to the slough and began to lift the little pigs out of the mud and water and place them on the bank. When he returned Colonel Baker remarked, "Now, Abe, where does selfishness come in on this little episode?" "Why, bless your soul, Ed," that was the very essence of selfishness. I would have had no peace of mind all day had I gone on and left that suffering old sow worrying over those pigs. I did it to get peace of mind, don't you see?"—Springfield Monitor.

A Duck as a Policeman.

A correspondent of the Swiss Landwirth-schaftliche Zeitung describes a scene he witnessed in his chicken yard. Two hens seemed to hate each other and took every chance to engage in a sparring match. Among the inhabitants of the yard was an old duck, which seemed to look on itself as a self-appointed policeman; for every time the hens begin to fight it waddled between them and kept them apart until their anger had abated.

CLIMBING ROSES.

Extensive Bloom Depends on Liberal Fertilizing and Judicious Pruning.

In the case of climbing or running of pillar roses the end desired is as great an amount of bloom as the plants are capable of bearing. Such plants are, as a rule, strong growers, and if the soil fertility is kept up they are capable of producing an immense number of good blooms. Perfection of form and large size of bloom is not a direct object, as in the case of hybrid perpetuals, hybrid teas and tea roses, where close pruning is resorted to to attain such results. Knowing the plant to be of a vigorous variety, and in good condition, as shown by the growth of wood of the previous year, it is safe to assume that it will be able to carry nearly as much bloom as can set on the strong canes and shoots of the last year's growth. It is always to be understood that the soil fertility is maintained in the highest condition by the use of stable manure or artificial fertilizers. The essential pruning, therefore, of climbing roses, in the condition mentioned, consists in shortening in the long canes by removing some of the smaller growth at their tips, which was made late in the season, and also shortening in the last year's growth from the older canes, allowing as many buds to each shoot as, in the judgment of the pruner, may be well developed the coming season. American Gardening gives the following pruning directions:

Cut away entirely all dead wood and all old canes that are no longer serviceable, and all weak shoots.

Leave as many principal canes as the plant appears capable of supporting.

Shorten the principal canes to strong, sound wood.

Shorten the shoots of last year's growth to a few buds (four or six) from which the plant will be able to produce new shoots sufficient to cover the whole space of the trellis, or that occupied by the main canes.

OUR FASHION LETTER

SKIRTS THAT CLING WILL WORRY OUR WOMEN.

Made So Tight Their Wearers Cannot Bend With Comfort—How Heavy Skirts May Be Handled—Soft Cashmeres Make Effective Spring Costumes.

Here is a big picture hat, with groups of ostrich tips and lacey brim. The hat has deep purple velvet streamers, which start from a rosette and tie under the chin in a graceful bow. The crown is made of plaited yellow net and stands up like a ruff. The transparent brim is of open work yellow straw lace, outlined with a fine black velvet cord. Around the crown is a band of deep purple velvet, and the full curly tips are jet black.

Most attractive are the spring costumes that are now being turned out by the gross—so attractive, in fact, that few women will be able to resist the temptation to buy more than one. To begin with, there are so many different styles, each and all appropriate to so many different occasions that it will be extremely hard to refrain from buying a gown for each and every occasion. Of course, first on the list must come the coat and skirt style, the accepted uniform for shopping, traveling and all such occasions. These gowns are made in several different ways, the principal novelty in them being the skirts. There are several models of skirts, most of which are attractive; some, however, too exaggerated. There is one style made, as I were, in a half circular—that is, with circular sides and a seam down the centre of the back, but with absolutely no fullness until very nearly at the foot of the skirt. However, the seam down the centre of the back seems to relieve somewhat the very plain look that is given by the circular skirt that has no fullness and no break in the material. These skirts fasten at the left side, sometimes with an invisible fastening under a flap or fold of cloth. Others fasten under a piece of braid or straps of the cloth. Then, again, there are skirts made on this same plan that have the perfectly plain effect, but are relieved by little cords of trimming.

The New Shade of Blue.

An attractive gown in light blue (the new shade of blue) is trimmed to represent an overskirt. This consists of lines of black satin bias folds not over a quarter of an inch wide outlined with a narrow white silk braid. They are put down the front breadth, turn around in a graceful line, come up at the side in points and then go down again to the bottom of the gown at the back. The skirt is cut with so much of a flare that this trimming gives the effect of an overskirt finished in points and is infinitely more graceful, because there is no flapping of extra material, as would be the case if two skirts were used. Another style—this perhaps smarter—has the skirt cut with the same flare and is trimmed with bands of the dress material. The bands only show in certain lights and yet give a style that is most charming and exceedingly smart.

All the skirts are awkwardly long, the flaring flounce touching the ground everywhere. It is hard to hold these skirts up; women, however, are gradually acquiring the art, which consists of grabbing the centre of the back breadth, holding it up quite high and then with the disengaged hand holding the fullness that otherwise would fall on the ground at the left side. This can be made a most picturesque pose but also an extremely awkward one. It calls for the daintiest of silk petticoats, for it must be confessed there is always more or less expose of lingerie. It is said the bootmakers are rejoicing in this new style of skirt, for they say that it shows the feet far more and consequently women are taking much more interest in their boots and shoes. It certainly does show the feet a great deal. Just here it may be well to say that colored stockings are coming in fashion again and can be shown to advantage with this style of skirt.

For house wear the long trained skirts are attractive and becoming. They add greatly to a woman's height, too, and have a look of elegance about them that a short skirt can never possess, but on the other hand, nothing looks worse in the street than a skirt that is allowed to trail along on the ground, cleaning up our dirty streets.

Smart Gowns in Black.

Some of the smartest gowns are black. One of light, smooth cloth for half mourning is made with the skirt so tight around the hips that it does not seem possible for the wearer there of to sit down; however, it can be accomplished if she will remember to pull the skirt up a little in front as she sits down. Below the sheath in effect around the hips the skirt flares so that it gives more freedom in walking than might be supposed. It is built on the plan described, with a seam up the centre of the back, and opens in front at the left side by means of hooks put on under the seam so cleverly that they do not show at all. The coat is quite short, fits tight, and is cut in round points at the back and trimmed with several bands of stitched cloth. These bands are stitched before they are put on. The double-breasted front is trimmed with small silk buttons fastened with loops of silk twist—not buttonholes. The coat can be worn open or double-breasted, as has been described, the revers being faced with a light gray silk stitched and corded. With this jacket and skirt is always worn a light gray silk blouse just a shade lighter than the trimming on the revers, the waist showing between the revers when the coat is worn open. The sleeves fit absolutely tight and, of course, the whole gown is intensely severe, but it is very becoming even to a woman without a figure, because the tailors can arrange to help out nature and give the desired lines.

Effective Spring Costumes.

The soft cashmeres make most effective spring costumes; they are made not only in the princesse shape, but also in waists and skirts. One of the smartest that has been turned out is a light brown, and has a close-fitting skirt, quite long, trimmed down the left side, where it is fastened with rows of narrow braid and ten crystal buttons. The coat is tight-fitting, double-breasted, cut short in the back like an Eton coat and in front with square tabs that fasten over each other with small crystal buttons. There are wide revers, round in shape, and a high round collar that can be turned over or worn standing, the latter faced with purple velvet, stitched in many rows, with an applique of brown cloth over the purple velvet. It is worn over the waist of the gown, which is strapped with bands of white lace over blue satin ribbon, put on to give the effect of a fichu crossed in front, and then going around at the back and fastening down under a most minute cloth belt. There is a V-shaped piece let in like a yoke in front of the waist and cuffs pointed in shape made of brown chenille. Trimming cashmere gowns with plain cloths, dotted with chenille, is one of the fads of the season, and it is sure to be one of the leading models.

Beige Cloth Dress.

One of the most fashionable colors at the present moment is very bright beige, resembling certain shades of peau de Suede or peau de Saxe gloves. It is of the princesse shape, but the skirt appears detached from the body, which forms a bolero crossing from right to left. The skirt, in the prevailing style, is comparatively tight around the body. In the back the corsage and the skirt are marked down sides by seams starting from the inset of the sleeves and extending in the form of a tunic to the bottom of the skirt. This tunic falls over an under skirt of violine taffetas, which is seen for a width of ten centimetres below the tunic, and is trimmed with a shaped flounce slightly gathered, and gives the dress the effect of being very much widened at the hem. This tunic is fastened down the front slightly on one side, and the sides are ornamented with rounded festoons of white cloth, piped with white along the edges.

The violine silk appears between the festoons all the way down. The upper part of the bolero is cut low, over a small yoke of violine silk. The neck trimming with narrow black velvet. The sleeves are quite tight, and are trimmed along the outer seam with a narrow band of white cloth.

The hat that completes the costume is of felt, matching the cloth. The brim, is crinkled across the front, and bound with black velvet. On the top of the hat is an ornament composed of black feathers and violine roses.

Three Electric Fishes.

Of about fifty species of electric fishes, only three are of special importance—the torpedo, a kind of skate of the Mediterranean; the gymnotus or electric eel, of the Orinoco; and the malapterurus or thunderer fish, of the Nile. Interesting facts about the electric organ have been lately brought to light. This most remarkable of all batteries, whose results are said to be more economically obtained than any reached by man, acts only at the will of the animal, which also controls its intensity, and the discharge seems to depend upon some chemical process in the plate where the nerve filaments end. In the full grown gymnotus, whose shocks may stun a man, the voltage is probably between 300 and 800. A curious feature of the batteries is that they are without insulation. The discharge, which does not affect the fish itself, is used for protection and securing food.

A drop of oil in time may save many a gallon of perspiration.

Techau. Erhängt hat sich der Eigenthümer Lenschow, nachdem er Tags zuvor seinen für 12,000 Mark gekauften Besitz bezogen. Lenschow war früher Vorarbeiter; er hatte sich 8000 Mark erspart. Aus Aerger über den Kauf scheint er sich das Leben genommen zu haben.

KLING TAOS OF SIAM.

A STRANGE HALF CIVILIZED PEOPLE IN AN UNTRODDEN REGION.

Some of Them Worship Snakes—Possess Some Agricultural Skill—A Brave and Fearless People—Magicians Possess the Most Influence in the Tribe.

In the course of my explorations in Asia a portion of my route carried me through the wilds of Annam and Northern Siam, a land covered for its greater extent with well nigh impenetrable forests and malarial swamps. Little has been written about this almost unknown country, and yet it is one of the most strange and interesting regions of the earth. Of all the mixed communities of the much-mixed East the country about the headwaters of the Mekong River offers a more varied object lesson in interracial complications than probably any other locality of its size in the world.

Firmly convinced that nothing save a speedy, determined, even impetuous, advance would enable me to succeed where others had repeatedly failed, my journey into this untrodden region was made by following the course of the

Some Warriors of the Tribe.

Mekong River nearly to its source in Southeastern Thibet. My expeditionary force consisted of twenty Bangkok coolies. Leaving Saigon early in the year, by midsummer we had successfully overcome the dangers which menaced us from the fierce Lao tribes and had penetrated to the heart of the Chiao Plain, a region occupied by one of the strangest races in the world, the Kling-Taos, an important branch of the great Lao race of Siam. For several months we remained among this strange people, thoroughly exploring their country.

The Kling-Taos, although generally recognized as a distinct race, are in reality the issue of an amalgamation of races entirely alien in their general characteristics and differing widely in appearance and language. The level of civilization varies, but seldom reaches even the average standard of Southern Asia. This people are of medium height, of fleshy rather than muscular frame; in color a sooty brown, with high but rather narrow and retreating forehead, thick lips and high cheek bones. A peculiarity is the variance in hair, some having it long and straight, as in the Mongolian race, while among others it is black and frizzly, as in a full-blooded negro.

Most of these tribes are nomads. There are but few settled villages, these even of the most miserable. The houses are one-storied affairs constructed of wicker and bamboo with a covering of clay and raised on piles to a height of five or six feet from the ground. Among the more savage Kling-Taos it is the practice to build dwellings in trees. This is done to safeguard the dwellers against enemies and evil spirits.

An Improvident People.

All of these tribes show considerable agricultural skill, but in spite of the fertility and natural riches of the country they are singularly improvident, and during an especially trying season they die by hundreds of starvation. When this occurs whole tribes migrate to the south and raid and make war upon the more civilized natives of central and southern Siam. The Kling-Taos, being bold and warlike, are really the "bogies" of Southeastern Asia, and the fierceness characterizing these periodical forays and the dread which they inspire among their more peaceful neighbors have hitherto saved them from retaliatory punishment.

My acquaintance with the Kling-Taos was not confined to meeting marauding parties of warriors or trading bands. I visited and studied these remarkable people in their own country. We camped one day by the side of a tiny rivulet in the country of the Kazyios, one of the proudest tribes of this race, and knowing the savage nature of our surroundings we had built a strong "kao," or stockade, of thorn trees, which afforded us protection from attack. The camp was in an open plain, and on our way thither we had been made aware of the interest we created among the inhabitants by the glimpses of bands of Kling-Taos who were intently watching our movements from little eminences off to the west. Sometimes when we could not see the warriors their presence would be revealed by the glint of the sun on their big, bright spears, or on the "senge" ornaments of the women. "Senge" is the Siamese name for a thick iron wire, which answers the purpose of money among these people.

Anxious to See White Men.

Hardly had we settled in our "kao" when hundreds of warriors, followed by women and children, came streaming into camp. The news of the arrival of a white man's caravan was the signal for a general mustering of the population of the entire surrounding country. They wished to see what we were, to trade with us and to demand tribute for the privilege of passing through their country. Boldness and impudence are not attractive qualities among civilized beings, and in a savage they become intolerable. We soon discovered that these traits predominated, for even the children were bold, insolent and aggressive. They were afraid to take liberties with the mysterious white-faced leaders of the party, but they seemed to be at great pains to impress our coolies that they considered them no better than animals. Our men for several months past had stalked about among the weak tribes previously encountered in a boastful, bullying manner, but now the case was quite different and otherwise, and it was laughable to see the tables turned on our men so completely and so suddenly.

Treatment of Travelers.

The head-man of the district was a pompous old warrior, who announced his intention of preventing our passage through the country unless we submitted to the exorbitant charges for the privileges which he demanded. We promptly seized upon his person, threatening the most dire punishment should he attempt to put his threat into execution. Then his insolence vanished, and, finding that we were not to be cowed by threats, he became more gracious. The Kling-Taos being brave and fearless themselves, admire these traits in others, and the effect of this summary treatment was to secure for us the freest opportunities for exploring the surrounding country and completing our investigation.

No Settled Government.

There is no settled form of government among the Kling-Taos, and the constitution of society is very simple. Rank is hereditary, but as no respect is shown for birth the chiefs have little power. The religious institutions are likewise simple; there is no general object of worship. There is a vague notion of a universal ruler, who is represented by several malevolent spirits. Mian, the most powerful, inhabits the woods in the form of man-eating animals; Narge, who carries off children, lives in the clouds, and Fenak, who lives in the streams, raises storms. As a protection against these the people construct—having first with much ceremony chosen a tree for the purpose—certain rude images called kwars, each representing a recently dead progenitor, whose spirit is then invoked to occupy the image and protect them against their enemies and give success to their undertakings. The kwars is about a foot high, with head disproportionately large; the male figures are sometimes represented with a spear and shield, the female holding a snake. Omens are observed before starting on any expedition; if they are unfavorable the person threatened retires, another day is chosen and the process repeated.

Magicians and Rainmaker.

The most influential members of the tribe are the magicians and rainmakers, whose business it is to regulate the weather and to whom is intrusted the process of ordeal to discover crime. The desirability of this position is open to question, for, should the unfortunate magician fail to provide what is required of him, he is punished in a horrible manner. A hollow tree is selected, and in it he is imprisoned, his head protruding from a narrow orifice, while the remainder of the opening is sealed up with clay. In this position he remains until he dies or until some fortunate chance assists in his release, which is not often.

Some of the Traders.

The position of woman among the Kling-Taos is very low, and the traveler cannot fail to be struck by the hardness and misery of her lot. Although a woman is looked upon as a valuable commodity, she is treated in the utmost contempt, and her existence is infinitely worse than that of the animals of her lord and master. Polygamy is generally practiced, and in addition the more powerful chiefs maintain concubines. I have known of a man who possessed at one time fourteen wives and nearly twice as many concubines. At death a man's property is transferred to his relatives, but the women of his household are looked upon as common property and may be seized by the first who comes along, and who is able to uphold his claim by combat.

Among nearly all savage races a certain affection is manifested by parents for their offspring. Among the Kling-Taos such a moral quality is unknown.

Knives Made by Pressure.

It is announced that an entirely new method for the manufacture of table cutlery is being introduced into Sheffield, England, and is exciting much interest. A round bar of steel is placed in a machine, and by means of hydraulic pressure a perfect knife is formed—blade, bolster and handle. The "fash" is taken off, and it is subsequently ground and polished by machinery. One such machine is capable, it is stated, of producing 5,000 of these all steel knives per day at a comparatively small cost in labor. The machines are capable of dealing with any kind of cutlery or tools.

AROUND THE BASES.

The batting order of the Plainfield High School nine in its opening game with Leal's School team at the Crescent Oval Monday afternoon at 3 30 o'clock, will be as follows—Squires, c., Fisher, lf., Radford, ss., Craig, 3b., Mason, 2b., Morgan, 1b., Miller, rf., Droll, cf., Edwards, p. J. Stanley Mosher is first substitute.

The old time rivals, the Plainfield High School and Leal's School, are to meet Monday afternoon at the Crescent Oval for a friendly baseball game. It will open the season for the Plainfield boys while it will be the first appearance of the Leal School team at home. Last year the High School defeated Leals when they met for the first time for years. This year the High School is supposed to have the stronger team, but there's no telling how the game will come out until its played. The High School team will have the advantage of an experienced pitcher. Claud Edwards, who will occupy the box for the High School team, was there last spring and then played all summer with the Carthage, N. Y., team.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Crescent Wheelmen of No. 17 North Moore street, New York, will have a run to MacVey's Hotel, this city, Sunday.

All the local repair shops have their hands full at present. The recent warm weather has convinced the cyclists of the fact that the time has come to get out their wheels. The result is that the repairmen are having more than they can do putting wheels in order for the riding season.

Among the first of the local riders to get out on the road this season is Yep Sorenson, who did some fast work last year on the road. Sorensen says that he is through with road racing now and will confine his racing hereafter to the track. He hasn't given up fast work, however, and wants to ride any of the local men twenty five miles on the track.

BREAK IN TROLLEY WIRE.

Street Car System Disarranged for Sometime by the Accident.

The trolley wire on East Front street, just west of Watchung avenue, snapped last evening at 8:45 o'clock and generally disarranged the entire street car system of the city. The repairs were not completed until early this morning.

A car from the Front street line had just gone east when the wire snapped close to one of the supports and the long loose and twisted and squirmed about the street. The two west bound cars were returning, but were stopped in time by some of the passersby who had seen the accident. Patrolman Mattox notified the carhouse of the trouble and the repair wagon was sent to the scene on the run. Meantime the cars became mixed up and the schedule was not followed. The passengers were finally transferred around the break and traffic was resumed.

KEAN'S TROLLEY PLAN STRIKES A BAD SNAG

Elizabeth's Council Not to Act As the Senator Desires.

COMPANY MAY NOT ACCEPT.

CHANCES FOR LINE FROM ELIZABETH TO PLAINFELD LESSENED.

Officials Want to Make a Five Cent Fare from Staten Island Ferry to Cranford and Also Hold the Right to Change the Transfer System in the Future—Concessions are Liberal.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 17.—Elizabeth's City Council was in session until 1 o'clock Sunday morning, trying to agree on the features of an ordinance which is intended to give Senator John Kean the privilege to change the motive power of his street railway in Elizabeth from horses to electricity, and also to extend the road to Cranford township.

The Council adjourned without passing the ordinance, as it would not be lawful to take such action on Sunday. In its amended form the ordinance will not be accepted by Senator Kean, and the proposed trolley line will not be constructed this summer.

The clauses in the granting of the franchise that Mr. Kean's company will not submit to are a five cent fare from the Elizabethport and Staten Island Ferry to Cranford, and the right of the City Council at any future time to make such an arrangement as it sees fit for the exchange of transfers between the Elizabeth Street Railway Company and its rival, the North New Jersey Traction Company.

Senator Kean's company thinks it has made a liberal concession to Elizabeth, when it agrees to spend $66,000 for paving streets which the proposed electric line is to traverse, when the North Jersey Traction Company was given a much more reasonable franchise for nothing.

It is intimated that the opposition to Senator Kean's proposed trolley line is largely inspired by the North New Jersey Traction Company, which, it is alleged, is interested in the electric railway which is being constructed from Plainfield and Westfield to Elizabeth.

Arranging for Memorial Day.

Next Wednesday evening there will be a meeting of the joint detail of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans, and a committee of soldiers of the late war, at the office of Comrade Elmore D. What Mr. Carr Spoke About.

"Come see a man who told me all things that ever I did," was the text that W. G. Carr spoke upon at the Y. M. C. A. rally yesterday afternoon. The words were those used by the woman of Samaria to the men of the city after her meeting with Christ by the well. Mr. Carr also spoke at Warren chapel in the evening upon the "Marks of a Bible Christian."

J. P. Laire is detained at his home on Richmond street today by illness.

OFF TO CENTRAL AFRICA

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH BOOTH.

Given by Sabbath Evangelizing and Industrial Association—Will Start an Industrial Mission in Nyassa Land.

There was a gathering in the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday evening when the members of the congregations of the Plainfield, New Market and New York Seventh Day Baptist churches met to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Booth, who start shortly to resume their mission work in Central Africa. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Sabbath Evangelizing and Industrial Association, of which Mr. Booth is field secretary. They will sail Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock on the steamer, "Paris," and go to Nyassa Land, British Central Africa, where they will establish an industrial mission under the control of the association.

The meeting Saturday night was held in the chapel of the church and was presided over by D. E. Titsworth, president of the association. There was a good attendance. Mr. Titsworth made the introductory remarks after the meeting had been opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Sindall, the new preacher at the New Market church. Mr. and Mrs. Booth both spoke. They have, on previous occasions, described their work of the past and the proposed methods for the new industrial mission. They thanked their friends and spoke words of encouragement and cheer.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, made a short address on the need of the mission work and the great good that might come from it. Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the church, also made a few remarks along the same line.

Prof. Henry M. Maxson presented the departing missionaries with a handsome American flag in the name of the Association. The flag they will carry with them and it will float over their home in the other continet. The meeting closed with prayer by Dr. Lewis.

After the meeting, an informal reception was held when the friends gathered around Mr. and Mrs. Booth, gave them a hearty grasp of the hand and bade them "God-speed." Refreshments were served by the women of the church.

FELL BENEATH WHEELS BUT MANAGED TO ESCAPE.

NARROW ESCAPE AT THE STATION.

Commuter Tried to Board Moving Train—Was Thrown Down and Under Wheels—Miraculous Escape.

It's only a question of time before one of the commuters, who daily run for the train at the North Avenue station, will be killed or badly injured by a fall beneath the wheels of one of the trains. This morning the crowd at the station thought the time had come.

A young man arrived at the station just as the 7:55 express was pulling out. He caught the hand-rail to one of the platforms but lost his footing, stumbled along and fell. Just as the front trucks of the car passed, both of his legs landed right across the rail By a great effort he swung them to one side just in time to avoid the hind truck. The crowd held their breath, and a great sigh of relief went up when it was seen that the young man had escaped.

Print Exhibition a Success.

The annual photographic print exhibition of the Plainfield Camera Club closed Saturday evening. It was the most satisfactory exhibit of its kind ever held in this city. The committee was much pleased with the fine display and the last attendance. There is some talk of having the pictures on exhibition at the Y. M. C. A. for a time.

Presbytery to Meet Here.

The Presbytery of Elizabeth will meet in the First Presbyterian church tomorrow and Wednesday, to hold their annual meeting. Delegates will be present from all over the district, and the usual business of the yearly gathering will be transacted. Officers will also be elected for the coming year.

FARMER GORED BY A MAD HOLSTEIN BULL.

HIS INJURIES MAY PROVE FATAL.

William Dunn Knocked Down and Gored by Mad Brute—Animal Clubbed in Face.

William Dunn, employed by George Vane, a farmer, living about a mile south of Bound Brook, while milking yesterday was attacked by a large Holstein bull, knocked down and gored and pawed. His screams attracted the attention of Mr. Vane, who seized a pitchfork and tried to drive the beast away. He succeeded in doing so by clubbing the animal in the face.

Mr. Dunn was terribly bruised and lacerated, and after a number of cuts were sewed up by Dr. Garretson he was removed to his home in Franklin Park. The doctor has small hope of his recovery, as he is badly hurt internally.

This is the second time the bull has attacked one of the farmhands, and his owner has decided to kill him.

DUNELLEN HOT AFTER BRUNSWICK TRACTION COMANY.

Meeting of the Council Held Saturday Night and the Company Given Two Weeks More to Comply With Agreement.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Dunellen, N. J., April 17.—A special meeting of the Council was held Saturday night to take some action in regard to the running of the trolley cars by the Brunswick Traction Company. The residents have been complaining for two months at the unsatisfactory way in which the service is given. The Council at a recent meeting gave the company until Saturday last to arrange to comply with the franchise, which sets forth that cars are to be run every half hour. As there was no change in the the schedule on that date, the Council met to take some action upon it.

The chamber where the Council met was crowded, for it was expected that some stringent means would be proposed by which to compel the railroad magnates to come to terms. But the listeners were doomed to disappointment. A representative of the company was present, and asked for another two weeks in which to comply with the ordinance, giving as an excuse for not doing so before that they find it impossible to secure cars enough to use on their Bound Brook route.

Upon their faithful promise to put on an extra car by May 1st, no further action was taken, and the matter hangs in abeyance until the first of the month.

FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS.

Entertainment Arranged for Young Members of St. Stephen's Church.

The little folks of St. Stephen's church were treated to an entertainment Saturday afternoon in the small hall of the Y. M. C. A. The entertainment was free, and consisted of Punch and Judy show by A. Brown, of New York.

The entertainment was followed by a sale of fancy articles, made by little folks themselves, which showed much skill on their part. Ice cream and cake were served at the close, and all departed happy.

Loyal Temperance Legion Entertained.

The Loyal Temperance Legion entertained a number of its friends, Saturday afternoon, with a pleasing programme of recitations and songs at the W. C. T. U. rooms on East Front street. There were piano solos by Mrs. J. B. Goendyke, soprano solos with auto-harp accompaniment by Miss M. G. Morse. The address of welcome was given by Dora Wilson. Recitations were given by Phillip Leichentritt, Clarence Snell, Charles Post, May Raymond, Edward Honeyman and Alexander Galloway. The programme also included temperance songs by the Legion and several dialogues and songs in which a number of the children participated.

STRIVING TO SECURE MORE MAIL-CARRIERS.

Postmaster Bird Visits Washington For That Purpose.

ACCOMPANIED BY FOWLER.

AN INSPECTOR TO VISIT HERE WITHIN A FEW DAYS.

Mr. Bird Has an Interesting Interview With Chief Clerk Machen and Brings Strong Arguments to Bear Out the Claim for the Appointment of More Carriers to Deliver Mail in Plainfield

Postmaster Bird has been working diligently for sometime past to secure more carriers for the local office, and in connection with this effort he visited Washington, Saturday, in company with Congressman Fowler, of Elizabeth, City Clerk MacMurray and Andrew McArdle, the Fourth Ward Republican leader. Mr. Bird went cocked and primed to make a forcible argument with the Postoffice Department.

In company with Congressman Fowler the Plainfielders visited the Department and secured an interview with Chief Clerk Machen, of the carrier service. Mr. Bird explained that the Plainfield office had but eleven carriers, which was not sufficient to serve the patrons in a satisfactory manner. The trouble with Plainfield, he stated, was that it was scattered over such an amount of territory that each carrier had to serve a district much larger than the Department calculates on. Each carrier in the service is supposed to deliver mail to at least 2 000 people, but where they are scattered to the extent that they are in this city it is a difficult job and is the cause of many complaints.

Chief Clerk Machen recognized the fact that there is much dissatisfaction with the service in Plainfield, though Postmaster Bird is doing the best that is possible with the facilities that are put at his disposal. Mr. Bird made an earnest plea for at least two more carriers, and with the facts and figures which he had prepared for the interview, he was able to convince the department officials that his appeal was not without its merits. But as Plainfield is only one out of some 40 000 postoffices in the country, and each one is constantly urging that it be treated more liberally, the department is sorely perplexed to give to each one the things that are desired and needed.

Postmaster Bird urged especially that the department detail an inspector to visit this city and go over the territory and see for himself the difficulties which the eleven carriers have in covering their routes satisfactorily to the residents. It was finally agreed that an inspector would be sent here in a few days and would make a thorough inspection of the local conditions and make such recommendations as he thought necessary.

No change, however, can be made till the first of July, when the fiscal year commences and the new appropriation comes into use. In the meantime Postmaster Bird hopes to bring influences and arguments to bear on the department so that the additional carriers will be allowed. Congressman Fowler has personally interested himself in the matter and is doing all that he can to aid Mr. Bird in improving the local postal service.

TALKED WITH MR. BRYAN

JAMES E MARTINE A GUEST AT THE GREAT DINNER.

Had a Personal Chat With the Great Silver Leader in His Apartments at the Hotel Bartholdi, in the Afternoon.

James E. Martine, of this city, known throughout the State as the "Farmer Orator," was among the conspicious State leaders who attended the banquet given in the Grand Central Palace in New York, Saturday night.

Late in the afternoon Mr. Martine had a pleasant personal chat of considerable length with William Jennings Bryan at the latter's apartments in the Hotel Bartholdi. Mr. Martine has met the great Free Silverite several times before and is an ardent admirer of the Nebraska man. Mr. Martine says that Mr. Bryan is looking healty and is in fine mettle for the coming National political contest.

At the dinner Mr. Martin and several other Jerseymen were among the guests who were honored with a seat on the platform from which Mr Bryan made his address.

FIFTY YOUNG PEOPLE STAND FOR PRAYERS.

MAKING CHRISTIANS AT THE CHAPEL.

Services Yesterday Given Over to Evangelist Taylor, Who is Meeting With Success.

Yesterday was a day of rejoicing for the earnest workers at Hope chapel. Evangelist Taylor took charge of the morning and evening services, and also spoke in the afternoon. The session of the Sunday-school was given up so that an evangelistic service could be held, and as a result fifty of the scholars rose to their feet at the invitation to all who wanted an interest in the prayers of the pastor and people, and showed a desire to lead a different life.

Mr. Taylor was at his best yesterday. Both the morning and evening sermons were strong and earnest, and he was listened to with rapt attention by large congregations. The meetings will be continued until Friday night, although Mr. Taylor's series closes with tomorrow night.

RAN AWAY FROM HOME

LITTLE OLIVER PEEL DIDN'T LIKE TO KEEP HOUSE.

Told City Judge Runyon He Couldn't Keep House and go to School Too—So He Ran Away to Escape Punishment.

City Judge William N. Runyon made a new acquaintance this morning. The regular batch of prisoners had been arraigned and the court was preparing to depart.

"By the way," remarked Chief Grant, "There's a little boy in there who was brought down from Scotch Plains Saturday night." Then Patrolman Flannagan went into the cell and brought out the little prisoner, a lad of ten years. Little Oliver Peel was a bright looking boy, with a frowsy head of curly hair that sadly needed a brush and comb and very dirty hands and face. He was a little afraid of the Judge at first and his lower lip trembled as he tried to keep back the tears. But the kindly voice of the Judge soon encouraged the little fellow and told his story.

He had lived with his mother in Netherwood, he said. His father had run away four years ago and now his mother worked in the carpet factory. It was his duty to wash the dishes, sweep the floor, feed the chickens, chop the wood, carry the coal and get his own lunch. He was also expected to go to school. He couldn't do them all, he told the Judge, so his mother licked him with the end of a horse whip.

He didn't think his mother cared for him anymore so he ran away five days ago. Since then he has slept in houses, under stoops and in the fields. He had wandered up to Scotch Plains where he was playing with the boys when he was taken back to Plainfield and turned over to the police. The Judge promised to look into the case.

GOOD RECORD BROKEN

First Arrest in the Borough by the Marshals Since Election Day.

James Polio, an Italian, residing on Watchung avenue, near the bridge, imbibed too freely last Saturday evening, and after he left a saloon in the borough he was very much under the influence. It was about 1 o'clock that Marshal Campbell found the man on Chatham street unable to propel his pedal extremities. He locked him up and held him until 9 o'clock this morning when he was given a hearing before Recorder Long. A fine of $5 was imposed and paid by the offender. This is the first arrest that has been made by borough marshals since election day.

Death of Mrs. Anderson.

Mrs. Edey Anderson, aged 63 years, mother of James D. Anderson, of 184 Duer street, died Saturday last after a long illness of grip and gastritis. She was under the treatment of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, and all that was possible was done to save life. The funeral services will be held this evening from the residence, 184 Duer street, at 7:30 o'clock Interment at Princeton at the convenience of the family.

ST. JOSEPH'S FAIR ENDS.

PRIZES AWARDED TO SUCCESSFUL COMPETITORS SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Event Was a Great Success as Conducted by the Women, and Will Put a Tidy Sum in the Treasury.

The bazaar held under the auspices of the Rosary Society and Children of Mary in Sangerbund Hall four evenings last week, came to a close Saturday evening and St. Joseph's church, for whose benefit it was held, will receive a large sum of profit therefrom. There was a good attendance the last evening and most everything was disposed of to good advantage. There were also several contests decided and this furnished plenty of enthusiasm. The persons in charge of the bazaar worked hard and faithful to make a success of the affair and they succeeded far beyond their expectation. They were liberally patronized by friends and members of the church and they are gratified with the result.

Among the contests and events decided Saturday evening was the chiffonier which was won by A. E. LaPorte. A fifteen-pound live rooster donated by Mrs. B. A Boyce was won by Jeremian Calahan, Joseph Blatz, Jr., was the winner of the boy's silver watch, while James Kane was successful in winning the ton of coal.

One of the greatest contests was that on Father Brennan's picture. Mrs. DeChane was the winner of it, and the contest brought in almost as much as that one for Father Miller's picture. Mrs. B. A. Boyce secured the handsome banquet lamp, and Mr. Berhand got the album. There were chances on a $5 gold piece and the winner of it is a resident of New York. There were a few things left and those will be disposed of this week in one way and another.

During the evening those present enjoyed a visit from Father Miller, who just returned from South Amboy, where he has been visiting his parents. Father Brennan was also present, and a reception was given to Father Miller. He congratulated all on their earnest efforts and was surprised to learn that all had done so well.

The bazaar closed about 11:30 o'clock and everyone went away feeling that they had helped a good cause along so successfully. The financial result of the bazaar will be announced in the course of a short time.

CHASED INTO BOROUGH; CHASED BACK AGAIN.

THE HOLMES' HAD SOME TROUBLE.

Finally Landed in Jail and Made Disparaging Remarks About Chief and Officers—Fined This Morning.

Merton Holmes and Oliver Holmes made all sorts of trouble for the police yesterday afternoon. First, Chief Grant and Special Officer Mattox chased them around. Then Mrs. Jose Carboone put them out of her husband's store on North avenue. Patrolman Flannagan chased them into the borough and Marshal Campbell chased them back. Finally the Chief and Flannagan locked them up.

In the jail Merton Holmes abused the Chief and said that they would have no more like him on the force. Oliver Holmes told Flannagan that that officer was drunk and that he could lick him. This morning Oliver was sentenced to a $4 fine or ten days in jail and Merton to $8 fine and 20 days in jail.

UNABLE TO LOCATE DR. ROBERT TRACY.

He Has Been Missing From Saranac Lake Five Days.

THOROUGH SEARCH MADE.

NO REASON GIVEN FOR HIS UNEXPLAINED ABSENCE

He Was Formerly House Physician at New York Hospital and Has Been Recuperating His Health for Sometime—His Brother Howard and E. C. Perkins Hunting Him—Family Worried

The sudden disappearance of Dr. Robert Tracy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, of West Eighth street, has occasioned some fears among the family in this city. Dr. Tracy has been stopping for sometime at Saranac Lake, where he made many friends, and Wednesday of last week he left that place and has not been seen since. Every effort is being made to learn of his whereabouts but thus far all have failed.

Until five months ago Dr. Tracy was a house physician at the New York Hospital. He had completed his term of service, which had been a very hard one, and he decided to give himself complete rest from all duties. He then went to Saranac Lake, where he remained until last Wednesday. It was reported that he had been seen on the following day but this statement cannot be verified.

Since Dr. Tracy has been at Saranac Lake his father received a letter from him in which the son inquired of the summer camp owned by Mr. Tracy and located in Canada. Mr. Tracy is inclined to think that his son may have gone to the camp to remain for a time.

Regarding the report that Dr. Tracy had much money with him, the father states that he did not have a great deal of money, and he places no faith in the report circulated that there may have been foul play. The river at Saranac Lake has been dragged, but no trace of the young man could be found at all.

The family is very much worried about the disappearance. Howard Tracy, a brother of the doctor, in company with E. C. Perkins, of this city, have gone in search of the missing young man. The doctor is about 27 years of age, and has always been of a quiet turn of mind.

ALMOST A CENTENARIAN.

MRS. PHEBE FOX DIES AT THE AGE OF NINETY-FIVE.

For the Past Year She Has Been Blind—Always Lived in This Vicinity—Leaves a Large Number of Descendants.

Mrs. Phebe Fox, aged ninety-five years, widow of the late Henry Fox, died Saturday evening at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Amos Gray, 118 Elmwood place, with whom she had lived for some time past. For a year past Mrs. Fox had been blind and during the past two weeks she was confined to her bed.

Mrs. Fox was born near Basking Ridge, and has been a resident of Plainfield about thirty years. She also lived at Scotch Plains at one time, where she was a member of the Baptist church. She was a woman of rare Christian character and lived in the faith to the last.

Among those who survive her are Mrs. Amos Gray, Herbert Overbaugh, Walter Overbaugh, of this city; Mrs. Dow, of Elibabeth; Charles Overbaugh, of New York, all of whom are grandchildren. There are also two grandchildren living in Newhatcom, Wash., and another one living in the west. Among the great-grandchildren are Mr. and Mrs. Gray's four children, Walter Overbaugh's child, while there are three living in the west and two in New York.

The funeral services will be held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gray tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Scotch Plains.

Exchanged Pulpits.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the Baptist church at New Market, exchanged pulpits yesterday morning with Rev. Dr. Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, and delivered a most excellent sermon, from the text, "He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second," Heb. 10-9. Considering the stormy condition of the weather, a good-sized congregation was present and the earnest words of the preacher were attentively listened to and well received.

To Preach in Danish.

Rev. C. C. Menges, of Philadelphia, will preach at the Danish service in the German Reformed church on Craig place tonight. There will also be a christening.

DICK CROKER TALKS AGAIN

The Mazet Investigating Committee Continues to Probe Into New York Affairs.

"GO INVESTIGATE PLATT"

Croker Tells This to Committee Saying: "That's Where All the City's Corruption Comes From."

Denied That He Is Worth $1,000,000—Is Opposed to Gambling—Refused to Answer Questions Touching on Private Affairs—Gets $25,000 a Year Out of Real Estate Auctions.

New York, April 17.—Richard Croker was the principal witness again before the Mazet Committee. As on his previous examination he defiantly refused to answer questions that touched what he called "private affairs."

It is said that all of the other big men of Tammany Hall who may be examined will follow the lead of Mr. Croker and of John F. Carrol.

Counsel Frank Moss has asked the Mazet Committee to institute proceedings for contempt against Mr. Carroll when they return to Albany.

When asked about corruption in this city, Mr. Croker was inclined to get angry. He declared that all corruption in this city emanated from the office of "Platt's firm," and wanted to know why it was that Mr. Moss and the committee did not probe for it there.

Mr. Croker denied that he was worth a million dollars. He said he was opposed to gambling. He admitted that it was his influence largely which resulted in the closing up of all the poolrooms in a single day by Superintendent of Police Byrnes. He pledged himself on the stand to direct Chief of Police Devery and the Police Commissioners to close up all the poolrooms if they could.

Mr. Croker declared that the breaking of friendship between him and Bourke Cockran was not due to the fact that he had taken from Mr. Cockran a part of a fee which Mr. Cockran got from the Broadway road and had then demanded more, but was duet to the fact that Tammany had refused to support Mr. Cockran for United States Senator.

Peter F. Meyer, Mr. Croker's real estate partner, testified that he made more money in the real estate auction business before he took Mr. Croker in than he does now. He said Mr. Croker was getting from $25,000 to $30,000 a year out of the business.

The committee adjourned at 1:30 P. M. to go down the bay to meet the Raleigh.

QUAY LOSES A POINT.

"Red Book" Admitted as Evidence in the Former Senator's Trial.

Philadelphia, April 17.—The sixth day of the trial of former Senator Quay began with the prospects of a battle royal between counsel as to the admission of the "Red Book," which Expert Meyer Goldsmith said was undoubtedly a book of the bank.

Mr. Goldsmith again took the stand and as an indication of the purpose of opposing counsel to contest every question which might bring the contents of the book before the jury before its admissibility has finally been determined, the first question of the District Attorney was objected to, and after a spirted argument the defense scored a point. The question was, "What period of time is presented by the calculations in the 'Red Book?'"

COL. BRYAN IN NEW YORK.

3,000 DINERS PRESENT.

The Democratic Leader Received at Grand Central Palace With Wild and Deafening Cheers.

In His Speech Claimed That There Can Be No Harmony Between the "National" Democrats and "Chicago Platform" Democrats—George Fred Williams, O. H. P. Belmont, Ridpath and Others Also Spoke.

New York, April 17.—The Jeffersonian banquet of the Chicago Platform Democrats at the Grand Central Palace Saturday night was strikingly simple in its arrangements, profoundly impressive in its enthusiasm.

The welcome given to Colonel Bryan from the 3,000 diners as he entered the hall was tumultuous. It was not a dress affair. The most of the Chicago Platform Democrats wore plain clothes. National colors sufficed for the decoration of the hall.

The first of them began to drift into the hall as early as half-past five o'clock. They sat down and patiently waited.

By half-past six the vast space of the main dining hall was filled not with men in dress coats but in their workaday clothes. All these had apparently but one object in view, and that was to see and hear Mr. Bryan.

When he did appear at the great entrance to the banqueting hall, 3,000 men arose from their seats and cheered as one. The women who had left the gallery boxes to dine on their own account in their own particular room, came hurrying back and seemed to join in the welcome.

Men forgot that they had dinner tables in front of them and jumped upon them to get a better view of Mr. Bryan.

The order of speakers and toasts was as follows:

George Fred Williams, "Trusts and Monopolies;" Oliver H. P. Belmont, "Concentrated Wealth;" John Clark Ridpath, "Thomas Jefferson;" John S. Crosby, "Civic Liberty," Judge James P. Taryan, "Power of Organized Wealth;" Jerome O'Neill, "Labor's Hope;" Charles A. Towne, "Americanism," William J. Bryan, "Democracy."

Mr. Bryan walked down the aisle leaning on the arm of Eugene V. Brewster, chairman of the Committee of Arrangements. Following them were James R. Brown, Dr. John H. Gardiner, O. H. P. Belmont, John S. Crosby, Willis J. Abbott and others of the invited guests.

When Mr. Bryan reached his place at the guest table, one man jumped on the platform and proposed "Three cheers for our next President".

In his address among other things, Mr. Bryan said

"The character of a political banquet is determined, not by the cause of it, but by the sentiments which are woven into the post-prandial oratory.

"We have not one word of hostility to utter toward those Democrats who left the Democratic party in 1896; far be it from us to criticise any man whose judgment or conscience leads him out of the Democratic party.

"When the Republicans met at St Louis some of the Republicans left the Republican party rather than accept the platform written out at St. Louis They organized a distinct party and they took a name sufficiently different from the Republican name so that no one would mistake the one for the other.

"They made a bold and honest fight and Republicans who left the party in 1896 have neither gone back, nor, standing outside, have they attempted to write the platform of the party which they left.

"There were democrats who left us in 1896. They organized a distinct party. They nominated a ticket and perfected their national organization. But instead of calling themselves Gold Democrats, so that they would not be mistaken for the regular Democrats, although they didn't expect to carry a precinct in the United States, they called themselves National Democrats."

WOMAN SAW SAXTON KILLED

Mrs. Christian Eckroate Dramatically Accuses Mrs George in Court—Heard the Shots Fired

Canton, O., April 17.—Mrs. George was dramatically pointed out in court as the slayer of George Saxton, President McKinley's brother-in-law, by an eyewitness of the murder.

The witness was Mrs. Christian Eckroate. It was expected that her testimony would be sensational, and there was a great stir in court when she took the stand. She is a nervous little woman about fifty years old. She knew all the parties concerned in the case.

She said she had often seen a woman near the Althouse residence at night, who, she afterward learned, was Mrs. George. This woman often patrolled back and forth in front of the house. At times she would rap on the door and call Saxton.

The witness said she was at home the night of the murder. She was at the supper table on the north side of the house when she heard the shots.

Upon hearing the shots she rushed to a window on the north side of the house.

"I leaned out of the window," said the witness, "and I saw a figure on the other side of the street. The figure was in a stooping position. I saw the flash of a revolver. The figure walked away. Then it came back, stooped over as if to pick up something off the ground. Then the figure straightened up and left the spot. I saw the figure walk to a vacant lot south of the spot, and when this was reached she started and ran across the lot."

"Did you recognize the person?"

"I think I did. It was the same I had seen before."

"Did you know who this figure was you saw on the night of the alleged homicide, and whom you saw leaving the place?"

"I did."

"Who was it?"

"It was Mrs George."

Witness said an electric light was burning, but not brightly. She recognized Mrs. George in the flash of the pistol.

The witness said after the shooting she went across the street and saw a man lying there. He was George Saxton.

"The person who did the shooting was dressed in black," she said.

On cross-examination the witness admitted that at a proceeding a short time prior to the alleged murder she testified she did not know Mrs. George.

The defense attempted to break down this testimony by proving the witness to be an opium eater, and that she had taken morphine on the day of the murder and just before testifying.

Mrs. Cora Oberlin, with whom Mrs. George boarded, testified that on the day of the murder Mrs. George dressed in black.

"That woman has her story well rehearsed," was Mrs. George's exclamation to several friends at the conclusion of the morning session of court, referring to Mrs. Elkwate. Her eyes flashed her wrath. One of her sons laid his hand upon his mother's arm, and in an instant her anger disappeared. "She can't harm me," were her next words, in a very subdued tone.

MONNETT'S $400,000 BRIBE.

Attorney-General of Ohio Asks the Court to Order an Investigation.

Columbus, O., April 17.—Attorney-General Monnett has filed in the Supreme Court a bill of information setting forth officially the story of the alleged attempt to bribe him in connection with the pending litigation against the Standard Oil Company. The document consists of sixteen typewritten pages, and asks the court to take official cognizance of the charges by ordering an investigation. The document does not disclose the name of the Cleveland man who is said to have offered Mr. Monnett the bribe of $400,000. The court is left to infer, however, that an investigation will disclose the names of all parties to the alleged transaction, and the Attorney-General asks for authority to take testimony of everyone connected with the several attempts to bribe former Attorney-General D. K. Watson and himself.

Tried to Save Her Husband.

Chicago, April 17.—Isaac B. Becker and his wife Annie, lost their lives at their home in Highwood, twenty miles north of Chicago, and Mrs. Becker's death was a sacrifice in an effort to save her husband. Mrs. Becker had asked her husband, who was a tailor, to show her how to clean a dress with gasoline. He got a can holding five gallons of the fluid and was using it when it exploded. Both husband and wife were thrown to the floor and covered with the blazing fluid. Mrs. Becker made her way to the yard where she was met by four men who tore her blazing clothing from her. She heard her husband calling for help and madly dashed back into the flames. Husband and wife died together.

Shelmerdine and former Mayor Warwick.

RALEIGH AHOY! ALL'S WELL

Dewey's Crack Cruiser Drops Anchor in New York Bay After 4 Month's Cruise.

A HEARTY WELCOME.

New York's Officials and Citizens With Streamers and Bunting Galore Hasten to Do Her Honor.

Mayor Van Wyck and His Committee Present Captain Joseph B. Coghlan and Her Other Officers With the Keys of the City—Raleigh Convoyed By Two Captured Gunboats.

New York, April 17.—"Raleigh Ahoy!" was the cheerful greeting to Dewey's crack little cruiser at 11.55 as she rounded up a four months' cruise by dropping anchor at Quarantine "All well on board?"

"All well," came the hearty answer over the water.

She had been sighted off Sandy Hook at 11:20 p. m. showing no signals but the observer there hoped and believed that she was the Raleigh, and so sent word to this city. The newspaper tugs were soon on the way, and the identity of the stranger was fixed beyond doubt when the rattle of her anchor chains were heard as she slowed down at Quarantine.

She was heartily cheered by the crowd that insisted on remaining there till daylight if necessary, only so the cruiser could be seen and word sent that she was safely home at last. It was a trying trip indeed, the Raleigh had made. She left Manila on December 15, just four months ago, coming here for a general overhauling. Her coal bunker capacity is not very great, and she stoped frequently to replenish her stock of fuel. Then she struck exceedingly stormy weather in the Atlantic.

Near Gibraltar the Raleigh met and passed the Spanish fleet under Admiral Camara. She hoisted the Spanish ensign and immediately fired a salute to the Spanish flag. The Admiral's flagship, Carlos Quinto, promptly raised the American flag and fired a similar salute. At Hamilton, Bermuda, on April 9, a splendid reception was given her, and with daylight on April 13 she sailed for this port.

She is said to have a speed of eighteen knots an hour, when hard pressed and this fact is what led to preparations for a reception here long before she really was due. The committee had figured that she would travel at least twelve, if not fifteen knots an hour, entirely overlooking the fact that her coal bunkers were light, and, besides, her boilers are said to be in bad condition.

In addition, lying so long in Manila Bay, her bottom necessarily is in bad shape. All these things combined to retard her speed, so that she really traveled from Bermuda to this port at from 8 to 9 knots an hour.

But the several disappointments and forced changes in programme did not interfere with the magnificence of the reception given for Captain Joseph B. Coghlan and his splendid crew, now that they have brought the game little cruiser here at last. The fact that several men from the Olympia also are on board adds to the interest this city is showing in the Raleigh.

Men have been seen, and men have been talked to here who had a hand in the fight in Manila Bay, but the desire has been great to see one of the real warships that aided in making history and changing maps of the world—and the Raleigh is one of them. She is here, and patriotism found full vent.

THE CRUISER RALEIGH.

The city and shipping in the bay were decorated with flags and streamers in the Raleigh's honor and the inhabitants turned out in full force both Saturday and Sunday, to give her royal welcome

The Raleigh was welcomed officially Sunday, by Mayor Van Wyck and his committee on the Glen Island. There was a little speech-making and Mayor Van Wyck presented her officers with the freedom of the city. Then the water parade was formed, nd the Raleigh, escorted by the captured Spanish gunboats Sandoval and Alvarado steamed up to Grant's Tomb, a host of steam craft of every description following in her wake.

At Seventy-second and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth streets, she was saluted, and at Grant's Tomb she herself fired the national salute in return Then Dewey's cruiser steamed slowly back to the foot of West Thirty-fourth street. As soon as the valiant jackies clean house she will be open for inspection by the public.

ALIBIS IN LYNCHING TRIAL.

Testimony of an Unusual Kind to Prove the Innocence of Three Men.

Charleston, S. C., April 17.—A large batch of witnesses for the defense were examined in the Lake City lynching trial. About the only thing done in this direction was to try to prove alibis for three of the defendants. Baker was killed the night of Feb. 21, when the weather was bitterly cold and he ground was frozen. Witnesses testified that Alonzo Rodgers one of the defendants, was out fishing that night until nearly 1 o'clock. Alleged Lyncher McKnight was said to be at his store at Scranton until 1 o'clock. Witnesses said they saw him there at that hour, for they went to buy medicine. One man says he drove five miles to buy medicine for a sick mule and then could not remember what he bought. Another man said he went a mile to McKnight's at 1 A. M. to buy soothing syrup Two other witnesses said they sat around McKnight's until 12:45 and then walked home, a distance of seven miles.

It was alleged by half a dozen witnesses that Ward sat up with a Mrs. Collins until 4 A. M. and gave her medicine. He was no relation of Mrs. Collins. Several men were with Mrs. Collins, who is a young woman, and they all remained in one room with her during the night. There was no physician, but all the visitors at the sick house testified that Ward was with them.

This is the line of defense so far. Newham, who turned State's evidence, has sworn that all three of these defendants, with others, were hiding in the thicket waiting to shoot Baker while he and Lee set fire to the building. Strong efforts are made to ruin the character of Newham.

To Enlist Indians in the Army.

Washington, April 17.—The War Department has entered on a new departure in regard to enlistments, in directing that able bodied Indians be recruited for the regular army. Some years ago the War Department decided that the experiment of making soldiers out of Indians was a failure. It was found that the Indians did not take kindly to the rigid discipline of military life. The intention in regard to the new Indian recruits is to send them to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines where their superior knowledge of scouting and woodcraft would be of considerable benefit to the white soldiers. There will not be any organizations composed entirely of Indians. Those enlisted will be distributed among various regiments.

Urged Eagan to Seed Cattle.

Washington, April 17 Before the Wade Counrt of Inquiry Col Charles Bird, in charge of rail and water transportation in the Quartermaster General's office, expressed the opinion that the Government could have saved money by buying beeves on the hoof, killing them in Cuba and Porto Rico and keeping the meat in refrigerators of its own. He had expressed this opinion to Col. Davis, of Gen. Eagan's office, while the war was in progress

Kean's Trolley Operations.

The difference of opinion between the Board of Aldermen of Elizabeth and Senator John Kean as to the stipulations which the latter should agree to in return for the granting of a valuable franchise for the operation of an electric street railway in that city, is of contemporaneous interest to Plainfield and every town between this city and the county seat. It is so because Mr. Kean's project of building a trolley road on the proposed county boulevard depends to a great extent upon his operations in Elizabeth in converting the old dilapidated green horse-car line into a modern electric railway.

In this antiquated transit line Mr. Kean owns a perpetual franchise that is of no earthly value unless the municipal government of Elizabeth is willing to permit the motive power to be changed and other improvements carried out. Both Mr. Kean and the Aldermen hold positions of certain advantages, but without unity as to future plans that will be of benefit to both the former and the people of the city the practical worth of their respective positions is nothing.

Mr. Kean has agreed to improve the streets along which his line runs, which would cost him between $50,000 and $60,000. At a prolonged session of the Board of Aldermen Saturday night amendments to the ordinance, granting him the necessary rights, were proposed which keeps important details in the control of the people. From a cursory view of the situation it looks as though Mr. Kean is not being asked to concede too much—that of committing to the people the power to make certain changes if the circumstances warrant it for public service in the future.

But Mr. Kean says that he will not accept the new amendments, and as a consequence many Elizabethians are frowning and worrying because they fear the projected plans will come to naught. After having gone through very much the same experience in Plainfield the past winter we do not apprehend that Mr Kean is going to throw up the scheme so easily. When the Plainfield Street Railway Company wanted to extend its road to Scotch Plains it made a proposition to the Council which was not thought to be best for the city by a majority of people. In the excited agitation that accompanied the negotiations the trolley capitalists declared that they would never submit to the terms that were proposed. But after many threats of giving Plainfield the go-by and doing various other disagreeable things the Street Railway Company finally agreed to the very stipulations which they at first declined to touch "with a ten thousand foot pole." But this was only after they had seen that the people were determined.

In their methods of securing franchises all capitalists pursue very much the same tactics. If the officials of Elizabeth are resolute in their purposes to protect the people's interests we do not imagine that Mr Kean's announced purpose of quitting the project will last forever.

The Jersey City Journal says that there are 63 000 commuters in New Jersey within thirty-five miles of New York, and that a great many thousand do not vote at the local elections in their home cities. This may be the condition in some towns, but not so in Plainfield. The average commuter in Plainfield takes a very lively interest in the outcome of the city elections, and does his share in making the result.

Though he was defeated for the office he once filled as chief executive of Bayonne, Former Mayor Fair stands to win. If he had been elected he would have had the salary and emoluments of the office, but inasmuch as he did not he has commenced a suit against the man whom he thinks caused his defeat for $50,000 damages for slander, which, if successful, will even things up.

The only Plainfielder who attended the great dollar dinner of the Chicago platform Democrats in New York Saturday night was James E. Martine. Mr. Martine says that the event was one of Jeffersonian simplicity, and attended by men who have honest and firm convictions of the political principles which Mr. Bryan stands the leading representative of Frank C. Koehler, of Cherry Hill, is very proud of the distinction of being the youngest justice of the peace in the United States, so far as known. He was twenty-one years old when elected to the office on both tickets in Riverside Borough two weeks ago. Justice Koehler cast his first vote last November. He is a Democrat.

When the Riker trolley syndicate was encountering opposition to its desires in Plainfield last winter it was charged that John Kean was behind the objectors; now when Kean is meeting with trouble in Elizabeth over similar plans the Rikers are accused of being the instigators. This is a world of contradictions.

How Mr. Croker got it he probably regards as a professional secret. And as there is no one else in the Tammany chieftan's professional class it looks as though Investigator Moss would have a hard time at getting the information he is after.

Since April, 1898 there have been built eighty-five miles of improved roads in New Jersey under the State law, besides a large mileage built independently of State aid. Every cent thus expended is well spent.

Admiral Schely is said to be a lightning calculator. The remaining members of Cevera's crew accept the statement without dispute, for they have seen the flashes and heard the thunder.

In a New Jersey court the value of a girl's fingers was set down at $1,500. Strange, when one thinks that a fellow can get a girl's whole hand for the asking, remarks the Evening Sun.

After witnessing the demonstrations that take place wherever Bryan appears there can be no doubt about his popularity with the voters who believe in the Chicago platform.

The reception that the Raleigh got yesterday will pale into utter insignificance in comparison to the time that Admiral Dewey will be honored with when he comes home.

The man who makes garden now will have the opportunity of seeing his neighbors' chickens grow fatter as the summer progresses.

Martial says that it is to live twice when we can enjoy the recollections of the past. And yet all men have to die to face the future.

Even the "oldest citizen" has hard work to remember when there has been a pleasant Sunday in the weather line.

Manila has only one brewery. That probably accounts for many Americans in the Phillipines desiring free trade.

The Raleigh was a day late in getting here, but that only helped to make her welcome all the greater.

Mr. Croker does not seem to be thick in a mental sense, but he stands probing pretty well.

The Elizabeth Aldermen are keen enough not to be Kean.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

If the franchises disposed of by cities to private parties are such good things, why should not the cities themselves hold on to and reap whatever profit is to be derived from their operation? This question is being more generally and earnestly considered in this country just now than ever before Municipal ownership of various public enterprises is one of the live and most interesting topics of the day.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

The trolley road, as sure as you live! Begun Monday. On the land of the Garwood Company, and Autocrat Morse looking on, with Mr. Harden in the background, sixty Guineas bushwhacking, Engineer VanEmburgh in charge, Contrator Serrell falling from his wheel and hurting his hand, and mud abounding. The rails are coming, and will be laid next week, and no one can afford to croak. Sing, ho, the trolley, and listen to the Central proclaming half hour service over this section, in competition.—Westfield Republican.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Manager Maze Edwards, of Music Hall, had intended giving his patrons what promised and what was assured him was a superior dramatic attraction, in the performances of the Boston Star Repertoire Company, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the present week, but late Saturday night of the past week, he received a letter stating the organization had collapsed, so there probably will be no dramatic performance on the dates mentioned. Some good attractions, however, are booked and will be given during the following three weeks, the present season closing with the performances of Saturday, May 13th.

A new group of more than usual importance has been placed on exhibition at the Eden Musee, New York. It is an elaboration of the famous army and navy group, which attracted so much attention during the past year. A large corner section of the central hall has been remodeled and arranged especially for this group. It consists of thirteen figures. Standing or sitting in easy positions are Miles, Shafter, Roosevelt, Sampson, Schley, Sigsbee, Dewey, Otis, Merritt, Lee, Hobson, Wheeler, and other heroes of the army and navy. The place of honor upon a platform, apparently the entrance of a large hall, is occupied by Dewey, and the other heroes are ready to welcome him. Inscriptions on the walls show the decisive victories of the war.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

AMERICAN WOMEN SCULPTURE.

Miss Effie Stillman, Well-known in Plainfield, is Highly Complimented

A recent number of Harper's Bazar contains an article on "American Women Sculpture," among whom is Miss Effie Stillman the daughter of the distinguished critic, William E. Stillman and a cousin of Mrs J. Kirtland Myers, of East Seventh street, for whom an informal reception was given last month. The Bazar says of Miss Stillman "though she has always lived abroad she most loyally insists upon being considered an American.

"Think that, unless for erection in public places, there is small demand for large pieces of sculpture, Miss Stillman usualy confines herself to small medallion portraits, her first success being a likeness of Mrs. Anne Thackeray Ritchie. This was so highly considered that shortly afterward, when Miss Stillman settled permanently in a London studio, she received a most important commission for a 'portrait in little.' The order was from the Society of Americans in London for a bust and medallion of Mr. Bayard. Modelled life size, the bust was to be reduced to about an inch to ornament the top of the silver loving cup presented to the Minister by the society of his loving England. When completed, the bust was so successful, that it was presented to him the original size in bronze as well as in the silver reduction. The medallion was given to the subscribers for the cup. It was inscribed 'Thomas F. Bayard, U. S. Ambassador at St. James, 1896-1897. Honor et Justitia.' Miss Stillman is making her first visit to her fatherland this winter, and among a number of portraits of prominent people has just completed one of Professor Charles Eliot Norton."

The Bazar article is accompanied with an illustration of the medallion of Professor Norton.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Charles Westphal, of South Second street, has secured a position in Brooklyn, and he and Mrs. Westphal are temporarily residing there. They may decide to live permanently in the City of Churches.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. NOW, LOOK PLEASANT

THAT IS THE WAY TO DISCOURAGE THE WRINKLES.

How to Smooth Out the Crow's Feet and Keep the Years From Leaving Footprints on Your Face—Any One Can Do It.

[Copyright, 1899, by American Press Association.]

No one really wants wrinkles. We would all prefer to put off their arrival until the latest possible moment, but most of us are not aware that anything can be done to that end by one who has not an unlimited supply of money.

The fact is we have not yet outgrown the prejudices of our Puritan forefathers, who believed it to be a sin to try to look as well as one could. We are yet struggling to appear resigned to every mark of old age, no matter how premature may be its arrival, and we think we show great wisdom, fine discipline and beautiful Christianity when we have brought ourselves to a point where we don't care how we look.

It is all utter nonsense. We ought to care. God did not intend we should be ugly, and if we are so it is only because of the sins of the fathers which have been visited upon the children for many generations. It is our duty to keep the soul's tenement as attractive as we possibly can without neglecting duties of greater importance.

It is easier to prevent wrinkles from coming than to get rid of them after they have appeared. One of the best methods is to get into the habit of straightening the face several times a day and of always going to sleep with it straight.

The majority of people go to sleep making up faces. They would hardly believe it, but it is a fact nevertheless, and when you have begun to think to straighten your face occasionally you will see that you, too, had a habit of going to sleep with it wrinkled.

Get into the better habit of straightening it every night before falling asleep and you can keep off the wrinkles for many, many years. To straighten it, try to make it lifeless and without expression. It will not take you long to get into the habit.

During the day get away by yourself for a moment if you can, throw yourself on a couch or in an easy chair, close your eyes and straighten out your face. If you can only keep it so for three minutes at a time, it will do you good, and it will rest you wonderfully.

You have heard of people so ugly that their faces ached. Well, when you have learned how to straighten your face you will think that you must have been one of that class, although you had become so accustomed to contorting the face until it ached that you didn't know you were doing it. Straighten it out and let it rest and you will soon see the difference.

If you can't see without squinting your eyes, go to a good oculist and let him fit you with glasses or you'll be sure to have crow's feet. Worse than that, you'll have the fine wrinkles beneath the eyes that always make one look old. But perhaps you squint your eyes more than you need to. It is one of the unconscious habits very easily acquired, and is most often acquired by using the eyes in a bad light.

When you have succeeded in straightening your face so that you feel there is not a line in it, open your eyes and look about you. You will probably catch yourself squinting the first thing, but nine times out of ten it will be without reason. Then you may know you have formed a habit of which you can and should break yourself. It is the same with frowning.

You have heard of the girl who had been blind all her life and who was cured when a young lady. She exclaimed upon first looking about her, "Oh, how ugly and cross everybody looks!" It was a terrible shock to her, for she had imagined that every one would be as beautiful as the flowers.

Look at the people you meet next time you go out walking and try to imagine that you have never before seen them. The majority of the faces will look scowling, anxious and preoccupied. You will easily understand how the young girl felt, and when you stop to consider that you yourself are one of the multitude you will have learned a most helpful lesson.

For a little while you will form your face into pleasant lines, but only for a little while. New thoughts will come, and you will soon be looking as ugly as before. The lesson will help you, however, for you will straighten your face more and more frequently, and thus the skin will become pliable and less apt to wrinkle.

It's a princess dress of tan-colored cashmere, with a scalloped overskirt opening over a front of pale ecru satin, corsage is trimmed on either side with guipure lace in a deep shade of cream with insertions of white satin. The dainty collarette is turned back with pale pink revers, showing a suspicion of white lisse, and is encircled by a cravat of golden brown velvet, which rests on a lace-trimmed pink collar just reaching to the top of the narrow long sleeves, and scalloped at the edges. The sheaf-like skirt is cut long and just a suspicion of the wood-brown velvet at the waist-line gives a dainty finish.

At an exhibition of French dress models more than half of the evening toilets and tailor costumes of cloth Vicuna, crepon, carmelite, drap d'ete bengaline, or silk-warp mohair were of gray or fawn color in one or the other of the delicate shades so much the fashion this season. The decorations for these gowns were either white lace appliques, cream-colored chenille embroideries with designs in braiding, gray faille milliners' folds bands, and special pieces in ecru Renaissance insertion, or gray or brown silk soutache trimmings en applique. Tiny gold-washed buttons are oddly used by French ateliers on toilets of ceremony, those in white lace white net, and crepe de Chine showing these little buttons put on the bodice and sleeves in rows dwindling to points, or in square, oblong, or triangle shapes, some of the dull gold styles having a French brilliant in the centre of each button. The shapely little mutton-leg sleeve, so easily fashioned and so graceful in its present modified style, still continues to divide honors with the close coat shapes, open or slashed on the shoulders, tucked, strap-finished, and with many other fanciful arrangements. Novel and varied styles in these pretty sleeves appear upon almost all of the dressy tailor-gowns.

The display in the fancy jewelry departments of various importing houses of belt-slides, buckles, brooches, and new hat-ornaments is varied and costly. Very odd Egyptian devices take a prominent place. They are in dull lustreless old silver, set with ruby, emerald, and onyx stones. There are also triangles of pale rose-colored and topaz mock jewels, and large clusters of violet blossoms in enamel, sprinkled with French brilliants to simulate dew. This ornament is to be set upon a tulle-trimmed hat, amid a front or side cluster of airy loops in lieu of a genuine bunch of natural violets.

In studying the French novelties in dress and dress accessories, one cannot but take special notice of the decided prominence this season of lace appliques in countless different patterns and effects, arranged upon garments of every sort, both for day and evening wear. Parasols are covered with Venetian lace; gowns, tunics, coats fancy jackets and capes, overskirts are bordered with it. Webs of dainty tulle or net, draping expensive hats and toques, show Honiton, Flemish, and Renaissance lace. French dress models of nuns'-gray drap royal veiling, chiffon, or bengaline, have special designs on point de Venise, arranged upon the gown from collar to skirt hem; and airy summer wraps of draped and plaited mousseline de soie over silk or satin foundations, show deep, spreading collarettes of Vandyke points of Chantilly, Duchesse, or Renaissance lace. Touches of this beautiful trimming are even seen on the airy vests of handsome tailor costumes. Expensive underwear is enriched with it, and at any of the importing houses may now be found white or tinted silk hosiery, with a delicate tracery of real lace en applique on the instep.

A very old-time fashion is revived by adding to half-length dress-sleeves of silk, satin, brocade, etc., Marie Antoinette undersleeves of embroidered chiffon, net, or lisse, finished with little turn-back cuffs or falling ruffles of the embroidery. At a recent view of French pattern gowns these dainty feminine accessories appeared, and were greatly admired by the fashionable rising generation of young women who had never seen them save in pictures of by-gone fashions. The returned buyer of one importing house affirms that not only will these white under-sleeves be worn with full and demi-dress toilets, but they will form a novel and picturesque addition to every-day dresses of French organdie, veiling, pique, dotted Swiss muslin, zephyr goods, etc.

Machine-stitching continues to be a favorite mode of finishing tailor costumes of every sort. Not only is it used to complete the hems and edges of the gown, but entire circular skirts are covered with machine-stitching—for example, a fawn-colored vicuna costume is silk-stitched from belt to skirt edge in straight rows of seven in cluster alternating with stitched straps of the vicuna. The open-fronted jacket—short at the back but rounding down from the hips on the front is trimmed with stitched straps in applique devices. The turn-down collar and rather large revers are covered with pale old-rose moire, and there is a full chiffon vest in cream-color shirred over rose-colored silk.

Eudora is much used by French and American dressmakers in the preparation of handsome mourning gowns and costumes. This fabric, much like an ideal Henrietta cloth, is made of silk-warp wool with a smooth surface that is the perfection of modern weaving. It is manufactured in two shades—a raven black, to match black crepe for deepest mourning, and a shade off the jet to give it a slight brightness for general uses. Plain black camel's hair, mohair, and black cheviots in great variety will be much worn this and next season.

Some of the newest French gowns are made still more closely fitting around the hips by the use of a yoke about three-eights of a yard deep in front, and rounding up nearly to the waist at the back. The deeply curved lower portion of the skirt is added to this yoke, the joining seam covered by a tiny line of ribbon or chiffon ruching, braid, embroidery, or other trimming. The pointed peplums or over skirts do not invariably match the underskirt, and, if preferred, can be made of different material, introducing some of this fabric on the sleeves, yoke, collar, etc., of the bodice; therefore, if the style finds favor, it may prove desirable for remodelling gowns for the spring and summer. Pale doe-colored and tan covert suitings appear among the season's new models in tailor costumes to be worn throughout the spring and until duck, Holland, pique etc., are in order. Two vests very often accompany these suits, one of striped or dotted silk, the other a more dressy affair in mousseline de soie over taffeta or China silk. Darker costumes in brown or laurel green have vests of ecru or pink bengaline, covered with silk appliques the color of the costume. Some of the vests are single-breasted, and button up over the chest, with a standing collar and a four-in-hand tie; or are cut lower and double-breasted, with a tucked chemisette and neckband, a dainty turn-over embroidered collar, and a silk string-tie.

Some novelties in flowers have appeared. A large-sized pansy, with six or eight upper petals, in prettily gauffred silk and two lower petals of velvet, variously marked, has met with immense success. It is one of the latest creations of Mlle. Staub, who, besides exercising her profession of premiere to a wholesale house, directs two municipal classes, where the art of making artificial flowers is taught in all its branches. This flower is reproduced in no less than seventy different tints and combinations, mostly violets, mauves, orchid pinks, crimsons, dahlia tints, and yellows. The same house has also brought out a large double poppy, very full blown, with silk petals, that milliners are ordering freely.

Both these are used in couples, the two set back to back, but as many as four of the pansies, with as many buds, may be grouped together. Other additions to the list of fashionable flowers are of a more artificial character, such, for instance, as roses or large clematis blooms, the petals of which are made of white or black tulle, to which firmness is given by an edging of very fine wire concealed beneath a bordering of black or steel spangles, whereas others again are close imitations of nature, and include various vetches and other small wild flowers, besides some of the spray orchids, which replace advantageously paradise and other eigrette.

An Easter Hat.

Some milliners are evincing a great taste for small pompon roses, several mounted together on one stalk, while others prefer larger blooms, arranged with very pale leaves of velvet, some being so pale as to be almost white. For the rest, the flowers most in favor are primroses, anemones, wild hyacinths, lilac, forget-me-nots, and blue cornflowers.

München. An seinem 90. Geburtstag ist dieser Tage der hier ansässige Friedrich Wilhelm Valentin gestorben. Seinem Zwillingsbruder Wilhelm Valentin fiel es zu, den Trauerfall in den Zeitungen bekannt zu geben. —Im „bayerischen Brauhaus" barst ein mit siedendem Pech angefüllter Kessel, wobei die Arbeiter Beckh, Herter, Hepp und Hummelspach und der praktische Arzt Dr. Duster schreckliche Brandwunden erlitten.—Es besteht hier in maßgebenden Kreisen die Absicht, in Bälde den herrlichen Hirschgarten abzuholzen, zu parzelliren und zu Bauplätzen zu veräußern. Der daraus für München erwachsende Schaden wäre unermeßlich und nie wieder gut zu machen.

Ansbach. Der hiesige evangelische Arbeiterverein erwarb als Vereinshaus das Restaurant Tivoli für die Summe von 55,000 Mark.

Augsburg. In den Lechauen an der Wolfszahnau entstand neulich ein Buschbrand, der erst nach mehreren Stunden eingedämmt werden konnte; im Ganzen sind etwa 100 Tagwerk von dem Feuer betroffen worden.

Bamberg. Der seit Kurzem verwittwete Kutscher Jakob Hutter von hier ließ sich in der Nähe der Theresienstraße vom Eisenbahnzug überfahren. In der Nähe der Stelle wurde sein Stock im Boden steckend gefunden, darauf der Hut. Der Unglückliche war seit dem Tode seiner Frau tiefsinnig; er war erst 33 Jahre alt und hinterläßt drei unversorgte Kinder.

Gemünden. In Folge der in Hofstetten herrschenden Typhusepidemie wurden daselbst, auf Anordnung des Bezirksamts, sämmtliche Brunnen, lauter Sickerbrunnen, geschlossen. Der einzige Quellbrunnen außerhalb des Dorfes liefert reichlich klares Wasser, liegt aber hart am Maine und ist daher der Ueberschwemmung ausgesetzt. Es erging an alle Hausbesitzer der Auftrag, sämmtliche Abort- und Dunggruben ausmauern und cementiren zu lassen, da der ganze Untergrund aus sehr porösem Bundsandstein besteht und durchlässig ist, wodurch die hochgradige Verunreinigung des Wassers zu erklären ist.

Karlstadt. Der glückliche Gewinner des Haupttreffers der Nürnberger St. Elisabeth-Lotterie in der Höhe von 60,000 Mark ist ein Oekonom von Aschfeld. Der einfache schlichte Mann war ahnungslos nach Würzburg gekommen. Zufällig kam bei Bekannten das Gespräch auf den Besitz des Loses. Man beschaffte eine Ziehungsliste, aus der man alsbald ersah, in wie reichem Maße Fortuna den Aschfelder Einwohner bedacht hat.

Nürnberg. Es ist hier die Einrichtung getroffen, daß während der Wintermonate eine Abgabe von warmer Kost an Schulkinder stattfindet, die zu Hause keine solche erhalten. Bei mehr als 20,000 Schulkindern mußte nun nur an 68 warmes Mittagsmahl verabreicht werden, davon erhielten 14 auch warmes Frühstück. Diese geringe Zahl ist ein günstiges Zeichen für die hiesigen Erwerbsverhältnisse.

Regensburg. Das Schwefelbad Abbach an der Donau ging um den Preis von 250,000 Mark in den Besitz des Dr. Trisch (Frankfurt a. M. über.

THE SHIP AND THE SONG.

The ship was launched at midnight,
Without a parting cheer;
But, bringing wealth from lands afar,
Through seas where calms or tempests are,
While doomed barks miss the lighthouse star,
She sails for many a year.

The song was wrought in silence,
Through starless night of pain,
To darkened homes the words are light,
And faint souls feel the master's might;
While post on fame's sunlit height
May sing a song in vain.

—George T. Packard.

MADAM'S FRIEND.

"Yes, but when, Dick—when?" anxiously inquired Madame Girardin, looking up at her friend beseechingly, as he was preparing to depart.

"You must leave that to me," replied Dick Halston. "You must trust me implicitly. We will seize the first favorable opportunity, of course. More than that I cannot tell you now. We must conceive some pretext for removing your husband beforehand, until when, my visits to you must be an inviolable secret, or our plotting will revert to our own destruction. And now I will be going—in case monsieur turns up unexpectedly."

"You will come again tomorrow Dick? Do!" she pleaded. "I feel so nervous and apprehensive when you are gone until you return. You will come, Dick?"

"Wisdom advises 'No,' but I will. Good-bye, Winnie!"

Madame was reclining, looking pale and dejected. She sprang to her feet as her husband entered.

"Victor! Is it you, dear! How early you have come home today!"

Monsieur looked fixedly at her while he wove his own interpretation around her remark, then he said:

"Yes; I am earlier than you expected."

The constraint in his manner and an inferential something in his voice pricked her sensibility to danger.

"What is the matter?" she inquired. "Is anything wrong, Victor?"

"Nothing," he replied, abruptly. "Nothing that I know of."

Then he sat down and perused a paper, to give his wife an opportunity to explain, but she remained silent, with her fears and misgivings and her longing for the morrow and Dick Halston's protecting presence.

Monsieur Girardin was a jeweler, with a shop in the Rue de la Paix and a luxurious second floor apartment in the Rue du Faubourg St. Honore, the other side of the Madeline, close by the English embassy and the English church, for Monsieur was a Protestant and his wife an English woman who had brought him a considerable fortune. His business, ever a failure before his marriage, took a prosperous turn immediately his wife's money assisted him in opening the shop in the Rue de la Paix, and had flourished ever since.

Now, monsieur had glided into the habits of clockwork regularity, leaving for business immediately after breakfast, taking his lunch at a neighboring café, and returning home at four in the afternoon for a read, a gossip, a little shopping or an idle stroll with his wife along the boulevards before dinner. Whatever had prompted him on that particular day to break through his established routine was quite obliterated from his mind the following day, when he sought for a pretext to do likewise, and he left his shop two hours earlier than was his custom with an excuse that deepened a blush of shame to his cheeks. He was going to play the spy upon the woman he ever loved, and whom he had honored and trusted before all others.

As he reached his house in the Rue du Faubourg St. Honore the blush of shame was suddenly overwhelmed by a flush of anger when he saw a note issue from the house, spring lightly into a waiting cab and drive away at full speed.

It was madame's English friend.

One day a messenger knocked at madame's door, handed in a note from Dick Halston and departed. Madame tore open the message and read the message; then in haste she sat down and wrote upon a blank telegraph form which she had in readiness for this emergency:

"Meet me tomorrow at Metz. Best to travel separately. WINNIE."

She directed it to Dick Halston, and walking to the window glanced up and down the street. Satisfied with her inspection, she descended the stairs to the street door, and waved her hand to attract the attention of a man whom she had observed from the window. The man answered her signal with alacrity.

"Will you take this to the telegraph office for me?" she asked. "It is very important and urgent."

She gave him some coins, and told him to pocket the excess for his trouble. Then she returned to her apartments and began to pack a small bag with the necessaries for a short journey.

The man, having glanced at the writing, walked briskly down the street, but instead of entering the telegraph office he continued his course along the Rue St. Honore, though the Place Vendome into the Rue de la Paix, and turned into a jeweler's shop.

Monsieur Girardin was in his private office alone, and the man presented him with the telegraph form without comment. Monsieur recognized his wife's handwriting, and his brow clouded ominously; but, having read the dispatch, he directed the man to send it from the nearest telegraph office without delay.

He made arrangements to be absent a few days; then he left the store and walked quickly to his bank, where he drew a substantial sum of money in convenient form.

At a Paris terminus madame, from a corner of one compartment, furtively watched a man enter the other. There was less risk of discovery leaving Paris thus than together, and when the train glided out of the station the sweet breath of relief fanned madame's face, but it was only transitory. Danger would lurk until the frontier was safely crossed, and the language and the costume changed from French to German.

The train crawled into Metz just as darkness settled down in earnest. The station was indifferently illuminated, and as she alighted she visually swept the platform. The smile that she had summoned vanished, and her heart gave a downward throb of bitter disappointment.

Where was he? Had he changed his mind and alighted at an intermediate station?

A voice spoke over her shoulder.

"Surely your English friend has not played you false?"

Madame turned quickly and confronted her husband.

If either exhibited embarrassment, it was certainly not madame. Monsieur Girardin in the course of the journey from Paris had drawn several mental pictures of this meeting, but the actual differed from them all. She stood before him with eyes filled with love—that sober love exhibited at a crisis before the passionate outburst.

"I have known Dick Halston from childhood," she replied, "and he never broke faith with anybody. But we cannot talk here."

She led the way to the stuffy but half-deserted waiting-room.

"Where is he, then?" satirically inquired Monsieur. "You made an appointment to meet him here."

"He is in Paris," she replied.

"Then he turned coward before your departure."

"How blind you are, Victor! Cannot you guess what Dick is going to do in Paris during our absence?"

"Solving conundrums is not my forte."

"Dick is a London detective. He is in Paris on professional business. Cannot you guess now?"

"Again I must say no!"

"Victor!" the name broke from her like a cry. "Won't you confide in me? Dick and I have conspired to save you. I do not believe you are guilty of—of what they would have arrested you for, but for Dick's timely warning and scheming. I know there is some explanation; that you are not what—what they say. Won't you confide in me? We are safe now, dear. Dick says they will not follow you over the frontier, and—"

She stopped. The amazement in his face puzzled her.

"Winnie," he said, "what do you mean. I fail to understand your allusions."

"I mean—I mean the coining. Oh, you must know! Won't you confide in me now?"

"On my honor, Winnie, your words are riddles to me."

He spoke emphatically, truly.

Then she explained to him how the London police had suspected that English counterfeit coins were being imported from Paris; how they had gained the co-operation of the French police, who had tracked the coiners to Monsieur Girardin's jewelry shop, and how Dick Halston had been sent to Paris to superintend their arrest. To all of which Monsieur Girardin listened with stupefaction. Then he emphatically denied all knowledge of the affair, and vowed that the Paris detectives had made egregious asses of themselves.

"They are to make a raid on your shop to-morrow," added Winnie. "That is why we lured you here today, taking advantage of the jealousy you had displayed at Dick's visits and my silence. And Dick felt certain that the man you had employed to watch his comings and goings would take my telegram straight to you."

Monsieur Girardin had begun to knit his brows. He consulted a time table, and returning to madame remarked with a troubled voice that fortunately there was a night express to Paris, and he would be able to reach his shop in the Rue de la Paix before the raid was begun.

"Some time ago I let an electrically lighted basement room to two men purporting to be small working goldsmiths," he said, "and I suspect that the coining apparatus will be found there. I was never quite satisfied with my subterranean tenants, but I never suspected until now—"

They returned to Paris by the night express, and found Monsieur Girardin's late suspicions established truths. Dick Halston was sincerely apologetic for his mistake, but Monsieur Girardin would scarcely listen to him.

"You and Winnie have certainly made a mistake on a foundation hardly flattering to me, but I have made a perfect fool of myself. I ask your pardon, monsieur."

Chewing Gum and Wrinkles.

Girls, if you want your faces wrinkled before you reach a hale old age, keep right on chewing gum.

It is impossible that such a grotesque and unnatural exercise of the facial muscles as is required by this champing of the jaws for hours at a time should not only throw the mouth out of shape, but must sooner or later bring on wrinkles.

The first to appear are little fine lines just below the temples. Then a deep, ugly line begins to take up permanent residence about the corner of the mouth, and next in the cheeks. The plumpest cheek that ever bore a rose will soon wrinkle under the force of this ugly gum-chewing habit.

"This is a great country."

"Yes, with a great language. I heard one man say to another that the only way to make him dry was to soak him."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The fauteuil made vacant in the French Academy by the death of M. Edouard Herve has a peculiar distinction. Since the establishment of the Academy in 1634 it has been occupied by a lesser number of members than any other chair. CYCLING COMMENT

Substitute Letter-carrier Robert Tingley has purchased a 1899 Spalding wheel.

Earl Kiser, the Dayton racer, who met with such indifferent success in '98 after a triumphal season the year previous, has decided to undergo a thorough course of training this spring, in an effort to regain his standing with the leaders. Kiser is well-known in Plainfield, where he has frequently raced.

The latter part of last summer saw a decided revival of the interest in cycle racing in this neighborhood. There were road races and track meets and all met with considerable success. Harry K. Lister made his debut as race-meet promoter and the results of his efforts were satisfying to both contestants and spectators. Lister is now beginning to plan for an active season this year. He isn't going to wait until the season is nearly through before making a start but plans to begin next month. Road racing is all right in its way, but then it isn't very attractive to promoters or spectators. So he's decided to give up road racing this season and devote his efforts entirely to track events. No definite plans have been made as yet but Lister thinks that he will get things moving so that his first meet will be held at the Crescent Oval about the middle of May.

GOLF.

Saturday evening there was a meeting of the board of governors of the Park Club for the purpose of electing five persons to act as trustees of the Park Golf Club in conjunction with Edward T. Douglass and S. St. John McCutchen, who represent the golf club as trustees. Those selected are E. S. Hooley, Meredith Dryden, Walter McGee, J. C. Peck and B. A. Hegeman, Jr. The two last named hold membership as trustees by virtue of their offices in the Park Club. Early this week the trustees will meet for the purpose of organizing and electing officers.

There was a discussion as regards the formal opening of the golf course, and it was generally thought that if the weather is good the course may be opened next Saturday. The links are in far better condition than last year and are constantly being improved. The increasing membership of the golf club is a source of gratification to all, and while it is distinctly understood that the club is in no way antagonistic to the Hillsides, but on the contrary on very friendly terms, a number have left the latter club to join the new one. As soon as the club ascertains its strength events will be arranged and competitive play will be the rule. No prescribed schedule of events is likely to be arranged, however, this season, but play will be of an informal nature.

The work on the addition to the clubhouse is being pushed rapidly toward completion and it is hoped to have it ready at an early date. A decided feature this season will be the frequent teas that will undoubtedly be held every Saturday when there is play.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The team record at the Park Club alleys was completely shattered Saturday evening in the second of the series of games between the Plainfield and North Plainfield bowlers. Plainfield won two out of the three games rolled, winning the first by the phenominal score of 972, the highest ever rolled on the alleys.

The score by games was as follows:

AROUND THE BASES.

An exciting baseball game was played on the Washington avenue grounds Saturday afternoon, between the day gang and the night gang of the Pond Tool works. The day gang won by a score of 17 to 12.

Arthur W. Lederer, one of the young Plainfielders who is studying at Princeton University this year, has made a fine showing in baseball there. He was a candidate for the Princeton 'varsity team and was considered quite sure of a chance to play there. An accident to his arm disabled him for a time. He is out again now, however, and has been picked for the Freshman team, a high honor at Princeton. He will play in the field. He is considered an excellent batter. The candidates for the Freshman nine have been cut down to sixteen.

Alleged That Alexander Taylor, Democratic Candidate for Mayor, Was Defeated by Trickery—To Investigate.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Summit, April 17—The first election in Summit since that place became a city has proven a troublesome problem. Last Tuesday's battle of ballots may count for naught. The Democrats are trying to prove that the election of George Wilcox to the Mayoralty was illegal, and a committee of nine citizens has been chosen to consider the justice of having a recount. The majority of Wilcox for Mayor over his opponent, Alexander A. Taylor, was only 13 votes.

It is claimed now by the friends of the defeated candidate that marked ballots used at the election should be thrown out, in which case the election of Taylor, instead of Wilcox, will be proven.

There were fifty marked ballots, so it is said, and the advocates of the recount are urging the disqualification of them as votes.

It is considered by the Democrats that they have splendid grounds upon which to show that Taylor was not defeated in fact, but that Wilcox obtained his so-called majority by underhand work on the part of his cohorts.

The appointment of the committee of nine to investigate the matter has caused a stir among the politicians in Summit, and the outcome of that body's work is awaited with much interest. The committee will hold a meeting early this week.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

John C. Quinn, of Kingston, Ont., is visiting his cousin, Mrs. M. J. Coyne.

Miss Christine Meggs, of the borough, has gone to Brooklyn to spend three weeks with relatives.

Miss M. Lou Karner, of Bradford avenue, has accepted a position as teacher in the grammar department of School No. 1 Elizabeth.

E. M. Leavens, of Philadelphia, is spending a few days in the city on business, and also visiting his cousin, Frank Whiteside, of the News.

Night Ticket Agent Shirtz at the North Avenue station has resigned his position and returned to his home at Lebanon, Hunterden county.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schomp are taking charge of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Westphal's house on South Second street, while the latter are stopping in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Dean have returned from their honeymoon, and for a few days are stopping with Mrs. Dean's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Lowrie, of Park avenue.

Mrs. George A. Strong and Mrs. Stockton Schoonmaker, of Central avenue, are resting at Atlantic City. Dr. T. S. Davis and his son are to be seen daily on the board walk.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—J. M. Taylor, who has been agent and postmaster at Picton Station for several years, has been transferred to a station in Pennsylvania. Instruments have been put in and Picton is again a telegraph station.

—Fred and Percy Sandford had dace fresh for breakfast yesterday morning, and they were the more highly relished from the fact that they caught them themselves Saturday in one of the brooks near Plainfield.

TRAINING A HUSBAND.

How the Boy Grows Into the Man. Selecting a Dress for Mother.

It was a large store in New York where a sale of a special fashionable article of dress was taking place. The father and son, a boy of perhaps thirteen or fourteen, were customers. The boy was the purchaser, and was left free to select the garment, evidently intended as a gift for his mother. Hundreds of these articles were piled in confusion on the counter. At last a choice was made, when the father said, in a slow, contemplative tone,—

"I never saw mamma wear plaid."

The boy looked up.

"Don't you think she ought to?" he asked.

"Well, I do not know about 'ought;' she never seems to choose it," was the response.

The boy said in a determined tone,—

"I like plaid."

"Oh, yes," interrupted the father, "but you want her to enjoy wearing it, not wear it just to please you."

"Why, of course," and the boy put down the garment of his choice and selected a dainty pink, saying, in a soft loving voice. "That looks like mamma more than the other, even if the other is pretty."

The father nodded, and the perfect love that surrounded one woman in this work-a-day world was evident to the chance observer, as was the fact that one boy was being trained to appreciate the clothes worn in his home and by those he loved. The ideal husband is not the man who provides, but the one who provides money with a warm, intelligent interest in the way it is expended, and notices and comments on the results obtained by the money expended.

CENTRAL'S NEW ROUTE

SAVES TEN MILES BETWEEN NEW YORK AND PHILADELPHIA.

It Steals a March on the Pennsylvania Railroad by Putting Princeton on its Route—Large Force at Work.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey has hundreds of men employed in building a new line which will shorten its main line between Philadelphia and Jersey City by ten miles, and will at the same time precipitate a competition between it and the Pennsylvania Railroad for the traffic between Princeton and points north and south.

The new road will place Princeton on the Royal Blue Line of the Central Railroad between Philadelphia and New York, and will, in all probability cut the Pennsylvania lines out of the most profitable bit of railroad in its great system, that of three miles between Princeton and Princeton Junction, where a connection is made with the main line. The Central worked so quietly that the Pennsylvania line authorities were caught napping.

LEGION OF HONOR DECORATIONS.

A Law Passed Limiting the Number of Members to 12,000.

Of all the French institutions, perhaps only one of any national importance is a monument to the consulate. That one is the Legion of Honor, which Napoleon organized while that most transitional of governments was in existence. It appealed strongly to French instincts, has survived all the changes through which France has passed since that time, and its bit of red ribbon is still considered a sufficient reward for most important services to the state. Napoleon III bestowed the decoration so widely and with so little regard for the character of the men whom he made chevaliers that for a while the order fell into some disrepute. Toward the close of that unfortunate monarch's reign there were about 25,000 civil members, besides all those who had been decorated as soldiers. To restore the prestige of the order an act was passed in 1872 providing that only one new chevalier should be nominated for every two vacancies caused by death. The effect has been to reduce the number of civil knights to 10,000, but recent ministries have found the awarding of the few favors of this sort at their disposition created for them vastly more enemies than friends. The Meline cabinet has solved the difficulty for itself, at least, by introducing and securing the passage of an act repealing the law of 1872, and substituting for it one fixing the number of civil knights permanently at 12,000. There was a long debate in the chamber of deputies on this bill, and the socialists opposed it fiercely, but the measure finally passed by a vote of 344 to 124.—New York Times.

GREELEY'S WRITING.

Two Roosters Imitated His Chirography and the Old Compositor Set It.

There was only on printer who could read Greeley's writing well enough to put it in type. He used to boast that he could read the great editor's wondrous scrawl a mile away.

One night the boys in the New York Tribune composing room "put up a job" on the old man. They took two roosters, made them walk around on a newly inked form, and then run all over ten sheets of copy paper.

The foreman wrote over it, in Greeley's well-known scrawl, "The Plain Duty of Congress," and put it on old man Lawton's hook. I think his name was Lawton, but if it was not it does not matter much.

The old printer picked it up, swore a little, remarked that they had to shove the stuff on the old man as usual, adjusted his spectacles and began sticking type.

The other printers watched him for a few minutes, but beyond a muttered oath or two he gave no sign. Lawton went on setting type until about half way through the "copy."

Then he was stuck.

He took the copy over to the foreman and asked:

"Jack, what is that word?"

"I don't know," replied the foreman. "You know I could never read that stuff."

Lawton took the sheet down to Greeley and pointed out to him a particularly awful scrawl of the rooster's foot, asking what that word was.

Greeley looked at it a moment, and replied with a frown:

"'Unconstitutional,' of course."

Lawton went back to the composing room and finished his task with the utmost sangfroid.

The old man never knew how the "copy" was produced.—Journal of Education.

Refurbishing the Fez.

A business in Constantinople, monopolized by the Greeks or Armenians, is the renovation of the fez. This headgear, which is worn almost universally by the male population, is manufactured in France. It very soon, however, loses its pristine jauntiness, and becomes a limp and dejected affair, that gives to its owner a rakish air of imbecility not to be borne. In this condition it becomes necessary to resort to the fez restorer, who promptly adjusts the offending headgear over a heated brass pot, shaped like a flower pot. Over this goes a second conical pot, which is made to revolve briskly around the lower one by means of two handles. When this is removed the fez is found to have regained its youthful appearance and vigor, and is returned to its rightful owner, who stands patiently by.—Leslie's Magazine.

WANT VOTES OF WOMEN

ROSELLE EDUCATORS EXPECT TO CARRY THEIR POINT.

They Want to Erect a New School Building and Are Urging Women to Turn Out and Help Them to Carry the Election

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, April 17.—The members of the borough Board of Education at this place are determined that a new school house shall be erected. The board brought the matter before the people at the annual school meeting held in March, at which time they asked the voters to appropriate $30,000 for the erection of a new school. The people voted against the proposition at the rate of four to one.

However, the Board of Education intends to get the new school if possible and has therefore called a special school meeting to be held at the Borough Hall, Saturday, April 29. Polls will be kept open from 3 until 8:30 p. m., in order that every voter and woman in the borough will get a chance to vote for the new school. The Board anticipates getting out a large vote of the ladies of Roselle and thus carry the day.

Postmaster's Rich Find.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cape May, April 17.—Reuben L. Johnson, a postmaster at Erma, while digging a cellar for an addition to his store, turned out of the ground a tin can which contained gold and silver amounting to more than $1 000. His father, who preceded him, used to bury money because there was no bank in antebellum days, but has no knowledge of forgetting any.

—The Borough of Mountainside is to have a borough hall. Heretofore the meetings of the Board of Councilmen have been held in the barroom of the hotel, and some of the Councilmen objected.

SIGNIFICANCE OF SPRING ELECTIONS.

A Quartette of Successful Mayors To the Fore.

RACE FOR STATE HONORS.

LOCAL ELECTIONS SUMMED UP FROM PARTISAN STANDPOINT.

Democrats are Full of Glee Over the Results and the Republicans Smile Confidently When They Look into the Future—Mayor Seymour, of Newark, May be the Next Democratic Nominee.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, April 18.—The result of the municipal elections last week does not show much change in public sentiment, with the exception of the Republican city of Paterson, where Mayor Hinchliffe, a Democrat, made a most phenomenal run for re-election. Jersey City went Democratic by an increased majority, as had been expected. Mayor Hoos was re elected by nearly 7,000 majority, the largest ever given a candidate for that office since the city was incorporated, and not only that, but the Democrats elected all of the Aldermen with but one exception. Truly this great Democratic victory in Jersey City has placed Leader "Bob" Davis higher up in the councils of his party than he ever had reached before. He will now weild great influence in State politics and in future will probably run the State machine of his party.

What effect the general result will have on State politics is a question of much moment to the leaders of both parties. The inference is deduced that the Democrats are gaining in strength, and that two years hence they may nominate a winning candidate for Governor. It it conceded that New Jersey is a Democratic State and that it has changed its politics during the past five or six years only on account of dissensions in the organization of the party over the financial question. But the free silver theory is fast becoming a thing of the past, and the prospect is that both wings of the party will again flap together during the next important campaign. In State campaigns, at any rate, there is a strong hope felt among the Democrats that their party will again be united.

Four full-fledged Democratic candidates for Governor are mentioned as the outcome of the recent elections. And they are all Mayors at that—Hoos, of Jersey City; Seymour, of Newark; Hinchliffe, of Paterson, and Fagan, of Hoboken. Should their friends persist in booming their candidacy there will be a merry scramble all around. Of course, Democratic Leaders James Smith, Edward F. C. Young, Allen McDermott, "Bob" Davis, Johnston Cornish and William B. Gourley will have all to say about the matter. Before the Democratic convention meets they will have ample time to compare notes and ascertain who would be the strongest candidate. Should Mayor Seymour be re-elected in Newark next spring, he would undoubtedly make about the most available candidate of them all. Again should "Bob" Davis insist upon the nomination of Mayor Hoos, his associate leaders of his party might be prevailed upon to accede to his desire.

The Republicans do not feel dismayed at all over the piling up of the big majorities in the Democratic cities. On the contrary they feel as confident as ever being able to maintain their grip on State affairs and electing a successor to Governor Voorhees. Already three candidates are mentioned for the office on their side—Pitney, Watkins and Fort. But when the time comes to make a nomination, perhaps Essex on account of its unswerving loyalty to the party may demand the honor by naming Franklin Murphy, who has done such effective work during his long service as chairman of the Republican State Committee.

In Honor of Mrs. Adelman's Birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Adelman, of this city, entertained about sixty friends at their home last evening in honor of the anniversay of Mrs. Adelman's birthday. The evening was passed in dancing and in listening to vocal and instrumental music. Mrs. Adelman received a large number of very handsome presents from her friends. At midnight a bountiful supper was served to the guests. Music for dancing was furnished by Samuel Frazee.

Which is a Nasty Dog—Canine Knew How to Bite—A. J. Leader the Victim.

Albert J. Leader, of Duer street, last evening added another chapter to his chain of accidents that have occurred while he has been riding a wheel. Mr. Leader has met with all sorts of accidents, but not until last evening had he encountered a dog.

It was about 8:30 o'clock that he was passing in front of J. K. Arnold's grocery on Somerset street, and a small dog ran into the road and attacked Mr. Leader while on his wheel. The dog made a grab for the rider's leg and succeeded in getting a hold. The trousers were ruined and the flesh on the leg was broken. Mr. Leader fell off his wheel and sustained a few bruises.

He was assisted to his feet and a little later he went to the home of Dr Buchanan, who cauterized the wound. No serious results are feared, but Mr. Leader instructed Marshal Campbell, who was near when the accident occurred, to shoot the dog, which will be done today. The owner of the animal is not known.

FAIR TO AID CHURCH.

CHRISTIAN SOCIETY STRIVING HARD TO RAISE FUNDS.

Edifice Prettily Decorated for the Occasion—Interesting Programme for To-night—Those in Charge of the Tables.

The fair and bazaar at the Christian church opened last night, and will be continued all the week with a change of programme each night. The little church is decorated with bunting and flags and makes quite a patriotic appearance, and the booths, in different colors, adds more to the scene. Last night the management were disappointed in not being able to present as much of a programme as was announced, so the evening was passed in singing and playing on the piano. Tonight Prof. Carpenter will play, Rev. H. W. McKane will tell "Why the Sea is Salt," a highly humorous tale, and Miss Etta Baybert is expected to sing.

The fair committee consists of Mrs W. C. Smith, chairman; Miss Ada Nash, secretary, and Arthur Smith, treasurer. At the fancy booth, which is all in red, are Miss Ada Nash, Mrs. Clarence Leland and Misses Nethersoles. The candy table is in pink, and is presided over by Miss Jennie Smith and Miss Retta Nash.

Julius Stahl has charge of the soda fountain, and Mrs. W. C. Smith the grocery department. At the ice cream and refreshment table are Mrs Scribner, Misses Lillie and Florence Scribner and Mrs. Gano, while Mrs. Andrew Cox, in the gypsy tent, tells fortunes.

SURPRISED LAWYER AND WIFE.

Pleasant Unexpected Visitation to Mr and Mrs. H. C Runyon.

Furman Long and Irving Mills have been busy for the past few days arranging for a surprise party for Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Runyon, of the Babcock Building. The party was given them last night, and as the guests hoped, was a surprise in every sense of the word.

About thirty-five young people met at Mr. Long's and at the main entrance to the building, and went up to Mr. Runyon's apartments in a body. The lawyer and his wife soon recovered from their amazement, and made every one welcome. Dancing was the order of the evening.

The company did not leave until three o'clock, but in the meantime had sat down to a sumptuous repast which they brought with them in baskets and bags.

Flagpole Raised.

The flagpole for the new borough schoolhouse at the corner of Watchung and Mountain avenues, known as the Watchung School, is being placed in position today. The pole is seventy-two feet in heighth and stands in the ground to a depth of seven feet. It is placed in the schoolyard. William Hand & Son are in charge of placing the pole in position.

Death of David Runyon.

The death of David Runyon, formerly a resident of this city, occurred yesterday in New York from consumption. His remains were brought to this city. The funeral will be private. He leaves a sister, Miss Runyon, a teacher in the High School, this city, and a brother, Albert Runyon, of the borough.

Discussed Street Work.

A meeting of the street committee of the Borough Council was held last evening. A number of bills were passed on and the committee discussed the work that will be necessary this summer and the best methods of reaching the desired ends.

GOVERNOR VOORHEES DEFENDS THE TRUSTS.

Replies to the Recent Alusion of Governor Pingree.

NEW INDUSTRIAL STATUS.

SAYS THE STATE WILL GET $1,000,000 IN FEES THIS YEAR

Declares That the Trusts Organized in New Jersey are Not Obnoxious and That Their Chief Purpose is to Bring About Economy in Production—A Few Hurt, But That Cannot be Helped.

The attention of Foster M. Voorhees, Governor of New Jersey, was called to Gov. Pingree's recent alusion to the desirability of having New Jersey secede from the Union on account of the protection which her laws give to Trusts.

"I ought not," said Gov. Voorhees, "to criticise a brother executive, but may be pardoned for saying that this clamor is largely demagogical. Our State has acted liberally towards corporations, but the highest English legal authority has commanded our law and three sister States have passed an identical statue. No charters for fake or fraudulent concerns are granted with us. Our law is stringent on this point, and and only bona fide corporations can get recognition. The license fees are high, and from this source alone our State treasury will get almost a million dollars this year.

"The combinations of capital which lately attract so much public notice are hardly Trusts in the obnoxious sense of that term. The old-style Trust, which was in reality a monopoly, sought to enhance the price of the commodity it handled. In this selfish purpose it failed oftener than it succeeded, witness the Cordage Trust, the Pottery Trust, and scores of others, but in the concentration of interests now going on, the chief purpose is to bring about economy in production. The low prices at which oil and sugar sell are pretty good evidence that the public does not suffer from these gigantic combinations. In the modern evolution of business associated capital does what was formerly left to men in their single capacity. In this changed order of things a few will get hurt, but this is an inevitable result of all modern progress."

RALPH VOORHEES' LIBERALITY.

Governor's Uncle Makes Gifts of $25,000 to Church Institutions.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Clinton, April 18—Ralph Voorhees, of this place, has drawn upon his bank account for benevolent purpose to the extent of $25,000 during the past two weeks. One of his checks was for $10,000, which was presented to the American Bible Society, of New York City. Another for the same amount was sent to the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church, and one for $5,000 to the Board of Education. These are the largest gifts ever given to similar societies by residents of Hunterdon County Bible Society.

Governor Voorhees is a nephew of this philanthropist. A year ago last Christmas the Governor was included in the list of relatives who received from this source $60,000 for distribution. Mr. Voorhees has been blind for a great many years, but can travel about any of of the streets of Clinton without a guide, and with such confidence that an ordinary observer would not perceive that he is sightless. He lives in a quiet manner in a house which cost less than $1,500. He is married, but has no children.

LAST OF STAR COURSE.

Professor Barbour Proved to be an Interesting Entertainer.

The last of the Star Course entertainments at the Y. M. C. A. was given last night. This closes the series, which will be begun again next year.

Professor Livinston Barbour, of New Brunswick, was the entertainer, and recited Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol." The rendition of this piece took up the entire evening, with a few intermissions of two minutes each.

The characters were well represented, especially "Old Scrooge," and also his nephew. Mr. Barbour's specialty seems to be the impersonating of such characters as Scrooge, and he makes a success of it.

Councilman Buckle Was Ill.

Owing to a slight illness Councilman Buckle was unable to attend the meeting of the council last evening, hence the setting of the date for the trial against Patrolmen Totten and Saffron was adjourned to a later date.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldron, of Somerville, are visiting relatives in this city.

SOMERSET COURT OPENS

H. P. REYNOLDS ELECTED FOREMAN OF GRAND JURY.

A Number of Licenses Granted—James Loughlin Applies, but a Remonstrance is Presented Against the Granting of it.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 18.—The April term of the Supreme and Circuit Courts convened in the court house this morning, Judge Magie presiding in the former and Judge Bartine in the latter.

H. P. Reynolds was chosen foreman of the grand jury. He is the only North Plainfield member. William Demler, of North Plainfield township, is also a member. The Judge did not charge the jury, as there are no important cases to come before it.

The calender for the term is made up of six cases in the Supreme Court, two of which are ready for trial; five in the Circuit Court, three of which are ready for trial; seven jury appeal cases and five justice of peace appeal cases.

Judge Bartine granted licenses to the Arlington Hotel, Adolph Borehn, wholesale liquor dealer and bottler, and to Mrs. Catherine Demler, for Demler's Hotel in the Notch.

James Loughlin applied for a license to run a bar in connection with his dancing pavilion just outside the borough limits, but a strong remonstrance was presented against it. Judge Bartine laid the matter over till Friday.

VOLUNTEER'S STATE PAY NOT YET QUITE READY.

SENDING OF CHECKS DELAYED.

General Donnelly Announces That Money for Volunteers Will Not be Forthcoming Yet.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 18.—Quartermaster-General R. A. Donnelly has made an official announcement to the effect that the checks for the soldiers' State pay would not be ready for several days.

"I do so," said General Donnelly, in speaking of the announcement, "because some newspapers evidently misconstrued the purport of the circular issued from this department last week, and announced that the money was ready. That led many of our volunteers to suppose that their pay would be forthcoming at once, something quite impossible because of the legal formalities that have to be complied with.

"We have done everything possible to expedite the payment, and for that reason issued the circular requesting the volunteers to send their discharge papers to this office. When that is done we will make out the warrants and vouchers and have the checks forwarded. All this will occupy considerable time, and for that reason we do not want the volunteers to be laboring under the impression that their allowance may be expected by almost any mail."

PASTOR CANNOT FIND HIS AFFIANCED BRIDE.

SHE CAME TO HIM FROM ITALY.

Reached New York in Safety But Missed Him in Rush at Ellis Island—No Trace Found.

Mark Pastor hopes to be married soon. The only trouble is that he can't find the young woman. She exists and crossed the ocean to wed him but now she is missing, lost somewhere between Ellis Island and this city.

Pastor is a driver for George Voehl, the West Front street baker, and lives in the Voehl building. He intended to marry Giorgina Mongionetto, and she left her home at Piverone, Italy, and sailed on the French liner, LaTouraine, for this country.

Saturday night the steamer arrived in port and Sunday Pastor went to see his prospective bride. He promised to meet her the next morning. He went to the immigrant depot but failed to find her. He then applied to the agent who told him that the young woman in question had started for Plainfield alone. He hurried home expecting to find her, but she has not appeared as yet.

He hunted all along the route that she would probably take, but failed to get any trace of her. This afternoon Pastor and his employer went to New York to report the case to the authorities.

Primary Teachers' Met.

The Sunday-school lesson for next Sunday, "Jesus the Way and the Truth and the Life," was taught by Miss Rowley, while Miss Beeching taught the topic on the subject of "New Music." There was a large attendance and much interest was manifested.

GAS JET FOUND OPEN; CAUSED HER OWN END

Mrs. Hattie Elliott's Death Was a Voluntary Act.

HAD BEEN A LONG SUFFERER

SUICIDE WAS CAUSED BY TEMPORARY ABERATION OF MIND.

She Lived With Her Sister, Mrs. Charles Lister, Who, When No Answers was Heard to Call, Sent for Her Husband—Latter—Broke in Door and Found Mrs. Elliott's Body Lying Dead in Bed

Mrs. Hattie Elliott, youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs Lewis Putnam, of West Second street, was found dead in bed this morning in the home of her sister, Mrs Charles Lister, of Watchung avenue and East Second street. There was a strong odor of gas in the room when opened by force, and as the gas jet was found open it is supposed that death was caused by Mrs. Elliott's voluntary act.

For a long time past Mrs. Elliott has been a great sufferer. At times her mind has been affected to the extent that she did not know any one. Last evening she retired as usual and nothing especially strange was noted in her condition. This morning about 7 o'clock Mrs. Lister went to her sister's room for the purpose of calling her. When she found the door locked and no response was forthcoming to her repeated calls, she began to think strange of it.

Mrs. Lister sent for her husband about 8 o'clock. He effected an entrance to the room by breaking the lock on the door. He was startled to find that there was a very strong odor of gas in the room, and upon examination learned that Mrs. Elliott was dead in bed. She had every appearance of being asleep. The body was then cold. Dr. Long was then sent for, after which County Physician Westcott was summoned. After an examination the cause of death was given as suicide.

The supposition is that during the night Mrs. Elliott arose from her bed to take medicine and that after lighting the gas and turning it out again, she turned it on again while under a temporary aberation of mind. Of late she had experienced similar spells, when she would fail to recognize her own mother and other members of the family, which was due to the intense suffering she experienced

Mrs. Elliott had a host of friends in this city who will mourn her death. She had a lovable disposition and was liked by all who knew her. A husband and two children survive her. Arrangements for the funeral services have not yet been completed.

PRISONER'S HONOR WAS NOT GOOD KIND OF BAIL.

FOR HE NEVER APPEARED IN COURT.

Arrested Saturday Night and Promised to Appear in Court Monday. But Did Not.

A case of miscalculation occurred late last Saturday evening and the experience will no doubt have a good effect on the officials of the borough, under whose rule the affair happened. A stranger from New York found his way into the borough and during the evening imbibed pretty freely. In consequence he became somewhat fractious, so much so that one of the marshals took him in charge, and was about to lock up the non-resident.

Just about that time Mayor Smalley happened along and through some means the man was released to appear for trial Monday morning. The man went away and has not been seen since. The failure of the stranger to put in appearance has caused the Mayor to decide that hereafter no one will be released to appear unless bonds are furnished.

ONLY THE FAITHFUL FEW

NO MEETING OF BOARD OF TRADE FOR LACK OF QUORUM.

Those Who Did Attend Discussed the Present Situation and the Needs of Plainfield—Want Through Trolley Cars.

There was no meeting of the Board of Trade last evening. It was the time set for the regular monthly meeting and a faithful few turned out to gether in the Board room and chat until a quorum should gather and the meeting be called to order. But the quorum never came. After the faithful few had waited nearly two hours in vain, they bid each other good night and departed.

While there was no meeting, the members of the Board discussed the situation in Plainfield at the present day. It was generally agreed that while Plainfield was not any worse off than most of the other suburban towns, the healthy growth that should exist here, was not in evidence.

The need of a reduced rate transportation was remarked on and several expressed an opinion that the advent of the through trolley lines would materially reduce the railroad fares in the near future. The was also a discussion on the many advantages to both city and interested trolley companies if through cars were run from Plainfield to New Brunswick and return without the present trouble at Dunellen between the Plainfield and Brunswick companies.

NEWS FROM MISSION FIELDS

Novel Meeting Held by Endeavor Society of Trinity Church.

The Christian Endeavor Society meeting at Trinity Reformed church last evening was a very novel one. It was a missionary meeting and Miss Sadie Searing was in charge. It was arranged that letters from six missionaries working in foreign fields should be received and read. To accomplish this idea Hiram Humes, attired in a letter-carrier's uniform, made his appearance. Before he entered the room he gave the customary blow of the whistle, after which he entered and gave Miss Searing six letters coming from the missionaries.

Miss Searing then distributed the letters, after which they were read by the ones receiving them. They proved to be of unusual interest and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the innovation. During the evening Miss Nettie Krietling presided at the piano and the music was a pleasant feature.

CITY FATHERS HAD BUT LITTLE TO DO.

Adjourned Meeting of the Common Council Last Night.

PETITIONS ARE RECEIVED.

MONEY VOTED FOR OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY.

Residents of Putnam Avenue Want That Thoroughfare Improved — Watchung Water Company May Lay Pipes From Dunellen into the City—Taxes Refunded—To Receive Bids for Macadamizing.

The amount of business before the Common Council at the adjourned meeting last evening was of no special importance and it did not require much time to consider it. In the absence of President Andrews the chair was filled by Councilman Hetfield. Mr. Buckle was also absent from the meeting.

The Council received a petition from J. A. Smith & Brother, grocers, in which they asked for permission to erect an iron frame in front of their place of business for an awning, and agreeing to remove the present frame structure. The request was placed in the hands of the fire and building committee, they to act according to their best judgment in the matter.

Frank B. Clark filed an application for the position of driver in the fire department. J. P. Emmons asked the Council to remit the sum of $2.42 assessed and paid through an error on his property at 309 Filmore avenue. The petition had the signature of Assessor H. C. VanEmburgh as being correct and that the amount was due Mr. Emmons. The request was granted by the Council. Residents of South avenue asked to have a fire hydrant located on their avenue between Leland avenue and Terrill road, and this was granted by resolution. In accordance with a request from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., the Council granted the usual appropriation of $100 to be used in observing Memorial Day.

James Craig and othe residents of West Front street, near the city line, asked the Council for several fire hydrants, one of which would be located inside of the line of Dunellen. Mr. Coriell stated by way of explanation that Charles Sebring, of the Watchung Water Company, had informed him that his company would be willing to place pipe across Jefferson avenue and a hydrant at the corner of West Front street and Jefferson avenue and furnish water if they were given permission. This proposition was considered with favor, and the matter was referred to the fire and building committee. After the meeting an obstacle to this proposition appeared. The Council learned that they would first have to secure the consent of the Plainfield Water Supply Company to have another company locate in the city where they have a franchise. No doubt the matter will be adjusted satisfactorily to all concerned.

A petition, signed by a host of persons residents on and in the vicinity of Putnam avenue, complaining of the condition of that avenue, was received. Mr. Barrows stated the Council had the improvement of the avenue under advisement and he moved that the petition be received and filed. It is proposed by the Council to improve Putnam avenue and give the residents what they want.

A communication was received from P Ballentine & Sons, of Newark, asking the Council to transfer the saloon license held by Martin Kane, of West Third street, to Hugo Kurzhals, as a transfer in business had been made. The matter was referred to the license committee and finally on a motion was laid on the table until the next meeting.

Albert Hedden, of East Fourth street, petitioned the Council for permission to erect an addition to his present place of business to be used for the storage of carriages. The petition was referred with power.

Mr. Mellick, from the committee on assessment and collection of taxes, moved that the sum of $27.83 be returned to Messrs. Welsh, owners of property on Third street, as they had requested at a previous meeting, as it had been learned that the amount had been charged through an error. He also moved that an adjustment be effected with Mrs. Eddy, of Muhlenberg place, who rightfully claimed a return of certain money assessed on more property than she owned. The exact amount due Mrs. Eddy will be ascertained and returned to her.

On a motion offered by Mr. Barrows Monday evening, May 15th, was set as the time when the Council will meet to receive bids for macadamizing

Publicity Counts—That's What the People Want—Plainfield Expression on the Subject.

Make it public.
Tell the people about it.
Gratitude promotes publicity.
Grateful citizens talk;
They tell their neighbors, tell their friends.
The news is too good to keep.
Everybody should know about the "Little Conqueror"
Bad backs are numerous.
So few understand the cause.
Plainfield people are learning.
And better still, they're being cured.
Lame backs are lame no more.
Weak ones regain their strength
This is every day labor in Plainfield of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Our citizens are making it public:

Mrs Margaret Reville, of 752 West Third street, says:—"For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store, and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend, and when I had a cold or over-exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got but little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back My experience with them has been very satisfactory and I do not hesitate to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney troubles."

GEN. LAWTON WITHDRAWS.

Acting Under Orders From Gen. Otis He Returns From Laguna De Bay.

ABANDONS EIGHT TOWNS

General Otis Ordered General Rios to Turn Over the Supreme Court to Americans.

Rios Has Informed Madrid Government that General Otis Has Offered Him 1,500 Native Prisoners Captured by Americans to Exchange for Spanish Prisoners in the Hands of Filipinos.

Madrid, April 18.—General Rios, the commander of the Spanish troops in the Philippines, telegraphing, says: "Hostilities at Maiolos have been suspended. General Otis has given me a pass for my Chief of Staff and another officer to take my letter asking Aguinaldo to liberate the Spanish prisoners at an early date on the grounds of humanity and international law, and demanding of him, in case of refusal, that he give a final reply, with the view to placing it before the civilized world. I offer in exchange 1,500 native prisoners captured by the Americans, and placed at my disposal for this purpose by General Otis.

"In a conference between the Archbishop and leading merchants they drew up a strongly worded letter, which has been taken to Aguinaldo by Baron Dumare. This is my last effort. I will communicate the result."

General Lawton Withdraws.

Manila, April 18.—Acting under orders from General Otis, General Lawton has returned from his campaign around Laguna de Bay, abandoning eight towns and twenty miles of territory along the lake, which is a rebel stronghold. The gunboat Princeton has arrived.

GENERAL E. S. OTIS.

General Otis has ordered General Rios to transfer the Supreme Court to the American authorities. Colonel Crowder has been appointed to reorganize the civil judiciary, which is greatly in need of an overhauling.

TRIAL FOR CONSPIRACY.

Prosecution Depending Mainly on Expert Testimony in the Case Against Quay.

Philadelphia, April 18.—The second week of the trial of ex-Senator Matthew S. Quay on an indictment charging him with conspiracy to use unlawfully funds of the Commonwealth deposited in the People's Bank has opened. There were no indications of any cessation of interest in the case. On the contrary, the District Attorney's office was besieged from an early hour by applicants for tickets of admission to the court room, the capacity of which was taxed last week. As the case progresses, by slow stages, interest in it seems rather to increase than diminish, in spite of the fact that the trial promises to be long drawn out. A criminal lawyer of this city was quoted as saying that he was of the opinion that the trial would not end before May 10.

District Attorney Rothermel called Expert Goldsmith to the stand at 10:15 o'clock and handed the witness a paper, asking him if he would swear that it contained the results of his examination of the bank's books.

"Yes, sir," replied Goldsmith.

"I offer it to go before the jury as evidence," Mr. Rothermel said, and Mr. Shield's immediately objected.

"It is not the result of an examination," he said. "It is the expert's theory. It can never be evidence in a court of Justice." Mr. Shields argued at greater length on his objection, and concluded by saying: "I pray your Honor not to allow this great case to be settled on the testimony of two paid experts."

Mr. Rothermel argued in reply and cited many authorities in support of his contention, but Judge Biddle sustained the objection of the defence, and the District Attorney had lost practically his first fight. In giving his ruling Judge Riddle said that the expert had a right to make memoranda to aid him in testifying but not to prepare a paper to hand to the jury. In accordance with this decision, the District Attorney immediately handed over the paper over to the witness to use as memoranda and then asked: "How many semi-annual settlement periods for call loan borrowers did you find in your examination of the books?"

"Two annually, ending April 30 and October 31," was the answer.

Marriage to a Divorced Woman.

Jersey City, April 18.—The Rev. William E. Chalmers, pastor of the Parmly Memorial Baptist Church, has resigned, and the resignation has been accepted to take effect on July 1. Mr. Chalmer's resignation was brought about through his very positive opinions on the subject of divorce. A short time ago one of the most prominent members of the church married a woman who had been divorced, and Mr. Chalmers did not hesitate to express his dsapproval. In fact he made it the subject of a sermon which he preached on Sunday, March 26. He took for his text St. Matthews xix., 6: "Wherefore they were no more twain, but one flesh. What, therefore, God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

THE LATEST NEWS.

GENERALS OTIS AND LAWTON DISAGREE.

Manila, April 18.—Gen. Lawton's expedition has returned to Manila from La de Guna province, by the express command of Gen. Otis. Santa Cruz and the other villages taken by the expedition under the old Indian fighter are completely evacuated.

There is decided difference of opinion betwen Gen. Otis and Gen. Lawton over the evacuation of these villages. Gen. Lawton considers that Santa Cruz at least should be held by an American garrison. In his judgment the possesion of Santa Cruz is most important strategically, as it commands the entire La de Guna district. With the Americans in control of Santa Cruz, Gen. Lawton says, they would be in a position easily and effectively to intercept any communication between the insurgents of the northern and southern portions of the island of Luzon.

Gen. Otis defends his orders for the evacuation of the captured villages by declaring that he considers it impracticable at present to spare a sufficient number of troops to garrison Santa Cruz. He says the plan of campaign he has adopted contemplates a continuation of the fighting in the northern portion of the island, and that every man of the available force will be needed in that locality. Besides, Gen. Otis argues, Santa Cruz and the other cities can easily be retaken if necessary during the rainy season.

"With the force I have," he said, there is no doubt I could go through the whole island, but if a government is to be established, it will be necesary to garrison all the towns. It would take 100,000 men to pacify the islands. I regret the necessity of abandoning the captured territory."

Gen. Lawton's expedition reached Manila, bringing all the men of the captured insurgent boats. Its object—the capture of the insurgent boats and the distribution of the proclamation—emphasized by a lesson of American power throughout the lake region, have been attained. The results of the nine days' raid are regarded as highly satisfactory. All of the prisoners taken by Lawton's men during the expedition are to be released and sent to their homes as an object lesson in magnanimity.

General Lawton immediately began preparations for an important expedition on land. There has been no fighting on the lake for three days.

MAYOR SWARTZ SPIRITED FROM CITY.

Columbus, Ohio, April 18.—This city got along yesterday without a Mayor as the result of a bitter fight between two factions of the Republican party. After fifteen years of Democratic administration, Samuel J. Swartz, Republican, was elected Mayor at the recent spring election. His promise to divide appointments fairly between the two factions was attacked immediately after the election by men who wanted everything. Swartz was spirited out of the city, it is said. The term of Samuel L. Black, the outgoing Mayor, expired at midnight Saturday, but Mayor Swartz could not be found, and consequently the city ran itself. Leaders threaten to have Mayor Swartz impeached as soon as he takes his seat for the alleged violation of the Garfield Corrupt Practice law.

G. O. P. MONEY COMMITTEE HOLDS SECRET SESSION.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 18.—The committee appointed by the Republican members of the House of Representatives with a view to drafting a bill on the currency question, was to have met yesterday, but owing to the failure of Congressman Henderson, who is chairman, to arrive, the meeting was postponed until to-day. The other members are here. The session of the committee will be of a secret character. Bryan will be invited to meet the members on his arrival Wednesday night.

BIRTHDAY BLOWS KILL SCHOOL GIRL.

She was a general favorite, and they had pounded her merrily for long life life and good luck. Blood poisoning set in from an injured bone, and today her schoolmates mourn the sweetest little girl in school. Edna was the daughter of Samuel T. Morrow.

MANILA VOLUNTEERS COMING HOME.

Washington, April 18.—The War Department expects to be able to announce in a few days the volunteer regiments which will be brought home from the Philippines. It is expected that some of these organizations will re-enlist for six months, and Gen. Otis has been directed by telegraph to designate the order in which the others will be returned to the United States.

Croker Denies That He Was Broke When He Returned From England the Last Time.

Did Not Pay Taxes Last Year On $50,000 Personal Property Because Mortgages Exceeded Assessment—Simon Buttner Testified That He Paid Captain Price $100 a Month for Protection.

New York, April 18.—Mr. Fallows, of the Mazet Committee, has left for Albany with instructions to prepare papers adjudging Richard Croker and John F Carroll in contempt in refusing to answer questions put by Mr. Moss. A resolution will be presented to the Assembly asking for Croker's and Carroll's commitment.

Richard Croker was recalled to the witness stand by Mr. Moss. Mr. Croker testified that the police did not contribute a cent to the Tammany campaign last year, but the office holders did. Mr. Croker said he did not know the amount of money raised last year. Neither did he know in what bank the funds were kept.

Croker said he never received a cent from Bourke Cockran. He also swore he was never caught short with Manhattan "L" stock, and did not lose $27,000. For the first time during the investigation there were half a dozen women present.

RICHARD CROKER.

Simon Buttner, former proprietor of the Broadway Garden, testified that in 1890 he paid Roundsman Price, now Captain Price, $100 a month for protection. This money, Buttner said, was for Inspector Williams. Besides this, Buttner said he made arrangements whereby he was to give Price one-half of all the proceeds of robberies in the place. Buttner said he police often got anywheres from $25 to $50 whenever a complaint was made.

Mr. Croker testified that last year he was taxed for $50,000 worth of personal property. He said he did not pay it, but swore it off, because the mortgages on his property exceeded the assessment. He could not remember the amount for which he was assessed on his East Seventy-fourth street property. He denied he was broke when he returned from England the last time.

MRS. GEORGE'S BIG FIGHT.

Revolver That Killed Saxton Accepted as Evidence—Letters Ruled Out.

Canton, O., April 18.—Former Police Sergt. Haslock, who found the revolver with which George D. Saxton was killed, was rigidly cross-examined by Mr. Welty at the trial of Mrs. George. He again denied that he had sought to have a reward offered for the finding of the weapon. The Court ruled out all testimony previously offered tending to show that Mayor Rice had been counsel for Mrs. George. The revolver was offered and accpted in evidence. The threatening letter identified by Postoffice Clerk Barr was offered and ruled out for the present by the Court on the ground that it had not been shown that the accused put it into circulation or gave it to any one.

Soldiers Sick of War.

Washington, April 18.—Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, has written a letter to the President requesting the return of the South Dakota Volunteers now in the Philippines. He says that under the law they are entitled to come home, and that they should not be retained against their will. The Senator says he has received requests from 119 members of the South Dakota Regiment asking to be discharged and sent home.

Orders were issued to Gen. Brooke to discharge men in the regular army in Cuba who had enlisted only for the war with Spain. Much complaint has been made because these men were not allowed to return home. Under the law increasing the regular army for the war with Spain there was a provision that the enlistment should be only during the war.

Minnesota Demands Return of Soldiers.

St. Paul, Minn., April 18.—Gov. Lind has sent a message to the Legislature urging some action looking toward the speedy return from Manila of the Thirteeth Minnesota Volunteers. He states that all appeals to that end addressed to the President and the War Deparment have been ignored save in a few individual cases. He asserts that the volunteers are being held contrary to law, and that he has been notified by Col. Ames that the regiment desires unanimously to return home.

Showing Our Flag on the Amazon.

Para, April 18.—The United States gunboat Wilmington, after a cordial reception here by the Government officials, left for Iquitos. Commander Todd is under orders to proceed up the Amazon as far as he can take his ship, the object being to display the American flag where no warship has ever shown it before.

A literary man, used to the niceties of expression and fond also of the pleasures of the table, in speaking of says: "I couldn't recommend this remedy as heartily as I do if I didn't believe in it. I am not much of a medicine taker. I am opposed to medicine, on principle. There ought to be no need of medicine—just as there ought to be no poverty—but there is. If people lived right they would be well. Sunshine, air, exercise, fun, good food—plenty and not too much—are the best medicines, the natural ones; but men are tied to their desks, and women to their home cares, and both are tied to fashion. Civilized existence is artificial and needs artificial regulators. I recommend Ripans Tabules—and take them myself. I know they are both harmless and effective. (I know what they are made of.) They are the best remedy I know anything about for headaches, or indigestion, or biliousness, or any sort of sluggishness in the system. And they are in the handiest possible shape to carry in the pocket."

WILL EXTERMINATE BANDITS

Our Forces Join Cubans in Pursuit of Bold Outlaws.

Havana, April 18.—Detachments of the Seventh Calvary, led by Captain Brewer, Captain Sickle and Lieutenant Tompkins, have been sent after the bandits by Major General Lee. The calvarymen have Cubans as guides. Four bands of Cubans from the camps of General Mayia Rodriguez and General Delgado also are in pursuit.

The regular calvary detachments were sent toward Mariel, Punta Brava,

MAJOR GENERAL LEE.

Guayabal and the Toledo Plantation, where the bandits are reported to have appeared. General Delgado's men pursued a band which entered Toledo, but they were unsuccessful.

The United States authorities now recognize the necessity of stern action and of making prompt examples of offenders of this nature. Their depredations have been carried on in close proximity to many American troops, and if the outlaws are not caught, their immunity may encourage others. The Cuban army was full of hard characters. The Spanish former guerrillas also provided plenty of the material of which bandits are made. Fortunately the problem of catching these fellows is much easier than the Spanish attempt to capture Cubans under the old regime, because the country people, who suffer from brigandage, are ready to act as informers and guides. The Cuban soldiers themselves, who are much excited over the killing in Caimito, seem willing to exert themselves.

Cuban General Holds Off.

Havana, April 18.—The Cuban General Pedro Diaz was offered $150 a month and the command of 200 rural police in his province. He declined the proposition on the grouud that the amount tendered was too small.

Brigadier General Henry C. Hasbrouck, commander of the Military Department of Pinar del Rio, raised the offer to $200 a month. These figures General Diaz is considering and probably will accept. His force will be mounted, each private receiving $30 a month and providing his own equipment.

IMPRISONED AN AMERICAN.

Fireman on a Ship Put in Jail in Bluefields Despite Protests.

New Orleans, La., April 18.—The steamship Condor, from Bluefields, Nicaragua, arrived here without one of her firemen, an American named Jack Martin, who was arrested by Torres on the ground that he took part in the Reyes rebellion. According to one story Martin left the ship and walked about shore, and while on Nicaraguan soil was arrested.

To Make the Deaf Hear.

Mobile, Ala., April 18.—M. R. Hutchinson has placed on exhibition an instrument he calls the akoulalion, which enables Lyman Gould and Martin Durant, two young men born totally deaf, to hear and articulate voice sounds, which they repeated as far as they were able. In the opinion of local medical men it is the most perfect instrument invented for the purpose of enabling the deaf to hear. Hutchinson has put together a portable instrument with a small pocket battery, by means of which a deaf mute was enabled to hear the playing of a piano at a distance of sixty feet and to distinguish a voice in ordinary conversational tones.

Absorbed By the "Big Four."

St. Louis, April 18.—The frequently mooted plan to include the Cincinnati Hamilton and Dayton and Monon Railroads in what is known as the Vanderbilt system, and to operate them as part of the "Big Four" system, is said to have been accomplished by representatives of the Vanderbilts and representatives of the controlling interest in the C. H. and D. and Monon lines, at meetings held at Hot Springs and Little Rock, Ark., and only the formal transfer remains to be made. The new deal also gives the Big Four system entrance to Louisville over its own tracks. The Monon has tracks into Louisville.

Col. Dwight Chaffee Arrested.

Hartford, Conn., April 18.—Colonel Dwight Chaffee was arrested in his office in Willimantic on a charge alleging misappropriation of funds of the Natchang Silk Company, of which he was President at the time of its failure in 1895, when the First National Bank and allied concerns went into receiver's hands. The specific charges allege embezzlement and false entries in the books of the company in thirty-one counts to the sum of about $50,000. The largest sum named in any one item is $29,000.

Montgomery Sails for the West Indies.

Norfolk, Va., April 18.—The cruiser Montgomery has sailed from the Norfolk Navy Yard, where she has been for some time undergoing repairs. She is destined, it is stated, for St. Lucia. It is then stated that she will then cruise in South American and West Indian waters.

500 Gold Seekers Start For Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., April 18.—Two steamers sailing for Alaska took out 500 gold seekers, the largest number in one day this spring. Returning miners report 2,000 on the trail going in, mostly miners returning with friends in time for the spring clean-up.

MATAAFA FLEES TO HILLS.

He Retreated to Tuanga Fa After Ambushing the American Soldiers.

GUNS CAN'T REACH HIM.

Advices to German Government from Apia State Ambush Was Not on Valiele Plantation.

Reported that Great Britain Has Formally Admitted Samoan Germans Accused of Crimes Can Be Prosecuted in German Courts Only—German Cruiser Bound for Samoa Strikes Reef.

Berlin, April 18.—Advices have been received from Auckland, New Zealand, showing that the ambuscade of the Americans and British by the Mataafans on April 1, near Apia, Samoa, was not on the German Vailele plantation, but in the neighborhood of Falchima, three kilometres to the southward, near the old crater of Apia Hill, where Robert Louis Stevenson is buried.

It is stated that Mataafa retreated after the affair to the hills beyond Falchima and thence to Tuanga Fai, where he is safe from the guns of the warships.

It is stated that Great Britain has formally admitted that Germans accused of crimes in Samoa can only be prosecuted in German courts. Hoffnagel, the man who is accused of having incited the Mataafans to fight the British and Americans, will accordingly be tried by the German Consular Court after the Joint Samoan Commission arrives unless he is previously discharged on evidence of his innocence.

German Cruiser Damaged.

Brisbane, Queensland, April 18.—The German cruiser Cormoran, bound from China for the Samoan Islands, has arrived here in a damaged condition. While she was passing through the Bismarck Archipelago, to the northwest of New Guinea, she was struck by a whirlwind on March 23 and was carried onto a reef, where she remained hard and fast for six days. When she was floated it was found that she had sustained some damage to her hull. She is going to Sydney, N. S. W., to make repairs.

Resolution Rejected.

New York, April 18.—This resolution was rejected by the Mazet Committee: "Whereas it is rumored that a certain law firm in the city of New York, by and with the assistance of other persons, by corrupt methods secured the passage through the Assembly of the State of New York of the bill known as the Astoria Gas Franchise; and whereas it is said the real purpose of the Astoria Gas Franchise was to enable the Consolidated Gas Company to force a consolidation of all the gas interests in the said city, to the end that the supply of gas might be controlled and the price of the same regulated by the so-called consolidation; and whereas the price of gas in the said city is of great concern to the consumers and is a necessity to the people and almost indispensible to the householders, therefore, be it resolved that this committee deems it necessary to subpœna the following named persons, namely:

"The law firm of Tracy, Boardman & Platt, Elihu Root, the incorporators of the Astoria Heat, Light and Power Company, Hon. Thomos C. Platt, Benjamin B. Odell, L. E. Quigg, John D. Crimmins and such additional persons as may be deemed necessary."

The Appraisers Inquiry.

Washington, April 18.—The committee of three special agents of the Treasury Department, appointed to investigate the Appraiser's office in New York, left Washington last night to begin work at the Appraisers' stores today. A protest was made by certain merchants in New York against the personnel of the committee on the ground that the special agents are subordinates of Walter S. Chance, Chief of the Special Agents, who is a personal friend of Appraiser Wakeman. The Treasury Department regarded the protest as unreasonable, and refused to consider it.

Raleigh to Philadelphia Festival.

Washington, April 18.—A committee of Philadelphia Councilmen, headed by Joseph R. C. McAllister, called on the President to request that the cruiser Raleigh be ordered to Philadelphia for the ceremonies attending the unveiling of the Grant monument on the 27th inst., and that she be ordered to remain there until May 1, when Dewey's victory at Manila is to be celebrated. The President acceded to both requests.

Deaths of Soldiers From Disease.

Washington, April 18.—Gen. Brooke cabled from Havana to the War Department announcing the death on April 14 of Private Daniel Irving, 9th Immunes, at Santiago, of consumption. Gen. Henry cabled the announcement of the death of Private Howard Chadwick, Company I, 19th Infantry, of septicæmia, at Mayaguez, Porto Rico, on April 15.

Secretary Porter Resigns.

Washington, April 18.—John Addison Porter, Secretary to the President, who has been ill for two or three weeks, has informed Mr. McKinley that the condition of his health will not permit him to continue the duties of the office, and he has therefore tendered his resignation. The indications are that he will be succeeded by George B. Cortelyou, now Assistant Secretary to the President, though this has not yet been definitely determined.

Vice-President Hobart Much Better.

Washington, April 18.—Vice-President Hobart is much better. His improvement of late is all that can be expected, but he is still confined to his room.

Ohio Republicans Plan Convention.

Columbus, Ohio, April 18.—The Republican State Central Committee fixed on June 1 and 2 as the date at Columbus as the place of the Republican State Convention.

BOUND TO ABDUCT HER.

Fremlett of the Opinion That Borsa and Friends Are Determined to Run Off With His Daughter.

Mineola, L. I., April 18.—The officials of Nassau county are perplexed over the circumstances surrounding the alleged attempted abduction of Rose Fremlett, a young lady of Greenwich Point, near Freeport, and the arrest of two men said to be concerned in a plot against the young woman's family. The men are Antonio Borsa and Liber Mocara, and they were taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff John Dunbar and Smith Williams, a citizen who had been asked by Dunbar to aid him.

Fremlett is of the opinion that Borsa and his friends are determined to abduct Rose Fremlett, with whom young Borsa is said to be in love. She has secured a revolver and says she will use it if she is attacked while alone. Fremlett fears that Borsa and his friends will kill him, and he has asked for police protection.

To Proceed Against Hooley.

London, April 18.—It is reported that the Treasury intends to proceed with the prosecution of Ernest T. Hooley, the bankrupt speculator, upon charges of fraud, and hat two others will also be prosecuted.

In the Court of Queen's Bench Senor Jurado, a Spanish advocate residing in London; Sir Henry Isaac Lorego, a Spanish merchant, and a stock broker of the name of Hart brought a claim for commission for services rendered in introducing Hooley to the Spanish Government with the object of raising a Spanish loan of £3,500,000. It appeared that in 1870 an issue of Spanish bonds was taken up by the Rothschilds. In 1896 the Spaniards proposed that the Rothschilds repay this loan, which was of £3,500,000, and upon the Rothschilds' refusal advertised for public tenders.

Justice Wright said that Hooley's trustees must abide by the contract. However its introduction was needless and worthless, as he was unable to assess the amount of damages to which the plaintiffs were entitled. That must be left to the trustee.

Strike May Become General.

Bridgton, April 18.—The strike of the glass blowers of the South Jersey section may be made a general one throughout the State. It is believed by those in control of the strike that in order to effectually break the manufacturers' combine the most drastic measure should be resorted to.

The window glass blowers of the West Philadelphia section are so much interested in the success of the Jersey strike that a delegate from Pittsburg is on his way to Bridgton to confer with President Dennis A. Hayes as to the advisability of pulling out that section of the trade in sympathy and to further augment the troubles of the manufacturers.

The Bridgton works are losing money fast, without any sign of a resumption of business.

Naval Orders.

Washington, April 18.—Naval orders contain the official announcement of the appointment of the following young men from civil life to first lieutenancies in the Marine Corps: Henry W. Carpenter, Randolph C. Berkley, Arthur J. Matthews, Charles G. Anderson, Charles S. Hatch, James C. Breckinridge, Arthur T. Marix, Harry Lee and Robert E. Carmody.

Assistant Naval Constructor H. A. Evans is ordered from the Crescent Shipyard, Elizabeth, N. J., to the Navy Yard, Mare Island; Naval Constructor T. F. Ruhn, from the Mare Island Navy Yard to the Cresent Shipyard, to superintend the construction of the Florida, Nicholson and O'Brien. He will also be in charge of the construction of the Bailey, Stewart and Wilkes at Morris Heights, N. Y.

The Philippine Indemnity.

New York, April 18.—The Government has notified Spain that the $20,000,000 indemnity was ready for delivery at the Sub-Treasury of this city. It was also said that a suggestion to pay the indemnity on a telegraphic order was declined, and that the money would be transferred only on receipt of an official communication from the Queen Regent.

In banking circles it was said that the indemnity might not be paid for two weeks, or until the arrival of the Spanish order, which would be received by the French Ambassador, who would exchange it for the $20,000,000 warrant on the Sub-Treasury. The impression prevails in some quarters that the money would be withdrawn from the Sub-Treasury in instalments.

MILITARY DIVISION IN CUBA.

Six Present Departments to Be Consolidated Into Four.

Washington, April 18.—The first important result of Secretary Alger's visit to Cuba was realized when an order was issued by the War Department by the direction of the President consolidating the six military departments of the division of Cuba into four departments, the departments of Santiago, Puerto and Principe and Havana city are retained intact. The departments of Santa Clara and Matanzas are consolidated under the command of Brig.-Gen. James H. Wilson, and the departments of Havana province and Pinar del Rio are consolidated under command of Brig.-Gen. Fitzhugh Lee.

Reef in Reichstag.

Berlin, April 18.—The Reichstag has begun the consideration of the Meat Inspection bill. The statements of Count von Kalinckowstroem were much applauded by the Agrarians, especially when he quoted American papers in support of his contention that American packers had not scrupled to poison the American army, and, therefore, would have much less scruple in poisoning Germans. The impression prevails that the Reichstag bill in its present shape will not prove acceptable, as it is looked upon as favoring foreigners.

A Queer Flag Sent From China.

New York, April 18.—Consul Johnson has sent a handsome flag from China as a present from the Merchants' Association of Amoy to President McKinley. The flag has arrived here by the steamship Indrani, and combines in a curious way the colors of the English and American flags.

No Dearth of Candidates.

Although the term of Charles D. Deshler, the Postmaster of New Brunswick, does not expire until March, 1900, the Republican politicians are getting into a snarl over the appointment of his successor. A month ago there were fifteen candidates, but the fight has narrowed down to about four or five, of whom the leaders are Charles W. Russell, a coal dealer, and Henry Banker, a wholesale grocer. Russell is a Republican leader in the Sixth ward, and Banker in the Third ward politics. Both wards have returned Democratic majorities for the past four or five years. O. O. Stillman and A. L. Mundy, business men who are less actively identified with politics, are posibilities mentioned. By a curious coincidence Theodore Strong and Robert Carson, the leaders of the Republican party in New Brunswick, who have heretofore been at one upon all matters, have become identified each with a different candidate. Strong is working for Banker, while the Carson influence is exerted in favor of Russell. There is not a Republican in New Brunswick who hadn't his name upon one petition or another.

Governor Lind, of Minnesota, is urging the Legislature of that State to take some action looking to the return of the Minnesota troops from the Philippines, and the same sort of demands are coming from other western States. On the other hand Governor Voorhees is in Washington urging the President to allow Jerseymen the opportunity to enlist for service in the war with the Filipinos It is the differences of opinion and desires that even up things and makes this the greatest country on top of the earth.

It is a good thing for Elizabeth that it has a set of officials who do not propose to give away an inestimable valuable public franchise for a mere song. All that is asked in the matter of low fares and the control of the transfer system as public convenience and protection calls for in the future, and against which John Kean is holding out against in threatening mood to drop all negotiations, is right and just. The day when valuable franchises can be had for the asking and the payment of a nominal sum of money, is passed.

MISS NINA RANDOLPH.

Miss Nina Randolph, daughter of Major Norman V. Randolph, of Richmond, and representative of the well-known family of that name in the Old Dominion, has been appointed sponsor for the state of Virginia at the annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, to be held in Charleston, S. C., on May 10.

Elizabeth is looking toward a paid fire department, and as a step in that direction the City Council has adopted an ordinance providing for the election of a Chief Engineer who shall devote his whole time to the department and receive a liberal salary. From the facts gleaned during a discussion pro and con as to this move in the Council, it is evident that though Elizabeth is three times as large as Plainfield her fire department is not cared for as liberally as the one is in this city.

The Brunswick Traction Company seems to have got Dunellen on its ear as the result of the neglectful manner in which the trolley cars are run in that borough. There is a public interest in the trouble between the municipality and the trolley company officials if for nothing else than in the fact that it is the first time that such a corporation has been called to account in a vigorous manner in this section.

An Elizabeth woman has brought suit for a divorce against her husband because he sold a bicycle to buy a pair of trousers with. Well, well, the time will come, we suppose, when bicycles will be sacrificed to provide bread and butter. It is surprising what unnatural things are done in the guise of necessity.

People doing business in the borough that require a license are reminded that on Saturday last all licenses expired and unless the license is renewed at once they cannot do business in that place. Clerk Frank Rowley is the man to see to secure a license or a renewal.

The cost of running the city of New Brunswick for the coming year will be $93,000, which includes a special appropriation of $10,000 for street improvement. That is a far greater sum in proportion than it costs Plainfield to run its local government.

It is always the unexpected that happens. In the midst of all the talk in Newark about the unhealthy city water one of the biggest breweries of the city has to go into the hands of a receiver.

Chicago is to be investigated by a committee of Illinois legislators. Chicago is too late. New York holds the front seat, and besides the "windy city" hasn't got a Croker.

It is not generally known but it is a fact that William Sulzer, the New York Congressman, was born in Union county. He made his debut in Roselle some thirty years ago.

We wonder if Mr. Voorhees would defend the trusts so earnestly if it was possible for a Governor in New Jersey to succeed himself?

The attributes of goodness that Governor Voorhees gives to the sugar trust is probably "the sweetest story" that he ever told.

Mr. Croker has certainly forgotten more about certain things than other persons have known in all their lives.

There is a great deal of difference between a man's intention and his attention in looking after certain things.

Independence is dear to the mind of the Filipino. And it isn't very cheap to the treasury of Uncle Sam.

Mr. Croker's silence has, indeed, been golden to him.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Walter Martin, who recently went to San Juan, Porto Rico, in the employ of the Swift Beef Company, has mailed a copy of The San Juan News to The Daily Press. The News is printed in English, and considering its field and facilities issues a very enterprising and creditable paper. It is printed three times a week and seems to have liberal patronage from the advertisers of the city, as well as the trade announcements of several firms in the United States that cater to trade in Porto Rico.

The plumbers have been removing an old fashioned enclosed bath tub in one of J. E. Martine's houses on Prospect avenue. When the old tub was lifted off the plumbers found a strange thing. The rats and mice had dug a hold through the wood work and hidden there several quarts of spent matches. Whether the matches had been ignited there and burned out, it was impossible to tell. It showed a fondness for matches on the part of the little animals that might have had very serious consequences.

St. Drake, in his Real Estate News, which now claims Plainfield as a home, indulges in the following reminiscences:

We have studied and operated in real estate matters in this section for thirty years. We have graduated from these long years of experience. We remember when the old wagon road crossed the Central tracks fifteen times from Elizabeth to Plainfield. We remember when Laing's Hotel, Plainfield, gave a free exhibition of fireworks every Fourth of July that drew the farmers and citizens from miles around to see it. Now we see this same Central Railroad with its four tracks, the grade crossings disposed of, its Royal Blue Line, its elegant passenger service. Already mighty corporations, backed by unlimited capital, are pushing every nerve to parallel the Central with two trolley lines. These mighty plans mean upbuilding. They mean enhanced values—where a few years ago land that was worth $100 an acre is now worth $5,000 or more.

The fire which occurred February 20th last in the home of Mrs. Eliza A Vanderbeek, 940 West Front street, originated in the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Shotwell, who were then visiting at the house and caring for Andrew Vanderbeek, who was confined to his home by illness. The damage resulting from the fire was confined almost entirely to their room, which suffered severely from the effects of the fire and smoke, and although Mr. and Mrs. Shotwell had never carried any insurance on their own furniture or personal effects, the Standard Insurance Company of New Jeasey, represented by Elston M. French & Co., 163 North avenue, which carried the insurance on the dwelling and household furniture of Mrs. Eliza A. Vanderbeek, paid a loss of nearly $250 on the property owned by Mr. Shotwell. In nearly every case the fire insurance policy only covers the interests of the parties insured, but owing to the liberal form used exclusively by Elston M. French & Co. they were able to collect the amount of the damage under Mrs. Vanderbeek's policy, and the company, within five days from the date of the fire, settled and delivered through their agents a draft for the full amount of the claim.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 18.—The following, which is taken from the Waltham Evening News, of the 12th inst., will be of interest to the many friends of Rev. J. S. Braker, former pastor of the Baptist church:

The following was presented before the congregation of Beth Eden Baptist church last Sunday morning and unanimously accepted:

"Your finance committee unanimously recommend that because for the first time in five years the half-yearly interest now due will be paid by the regular contribution of the membership and congregation of the church, and in consideration of the hopeful financial outlook for the Beth Eden church next Sunday be a day devoted to thank offerings.

"The finance committee reported that the appeal made two weeks ago for a stated amount to be paid by the congregation, each week had been more than reached, and the contributions were increasing each week.

"There is another feature to the church life which is gratifying. There are two praying bands, one of the young men, another of the young ladies. On last Friday evening seven letters were received, one came before the Advisory Board for baptisms, one backslider was reclaimed, and one rose for prayers. Last Sunday at the communion services 15 received the right hand of fellowship and in the after-meeting four rose for prayers."

A number of Scotch Plains sports arranged a cocking main with parties in Long Branch one evening last week. The birds were trusted to the express company who failed to transfer them at Elizabethport. When the sports arrived at Long Branch no birds had arrived. Some others were hastily collected about the neighborhood and the main started and strange to say Scotch Plains won.

There seems to be a drag in the real estate business in town this spring and very little renting to out-of-town people has been made. There seems to be no reason for it, other than that very few people are expecting to see the trolley in town this summer. Consequently what looked to be a real estate boom a short time ago has simply fell all to pieces.

The promised work on the trolley did not start Monday morning as was expected by some of the hopeful ones.

A cold in the head vanishes immediately Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

MEN TALKED ABOUT.

On rainy days Governor Roosevelt still dons the old sombrero which he wore at Santiago and San Juan.

Joseph Jefferson is a firm believer that a man must be sick once in ten years. Since 1869 he has been ill every tenth year.

George Frederick Watts, the English artist, who is now 82, was Ellen Terry's first husband, a fact not generally known.

Bishop Potter, of New York, has a dislike of elevators, and generally walks upstairs in buildings where they are used.

President McKinley frequently does his afternoon's work in the White House library, which is now used as Mrs. McKinley's sitting-room.

Daniel Decatur Emmett, the author of "Dixie," recently celebrated his 84th birthday. He courts solitude and describes himself as a hermit.

M. Kolomon Szell, the new Hungarian premier, is a man of 56, who has been in politics since early youth. At 32 he was minister of finance.

Harlow N. Higinbotham, former president of the World's Columbian Exposition, has greenhouses in which are 50,000 carnations, his favorite flower.

M. L. Hayward, the newly-elected United States Senator from Nebraska, has had little experience in office-holding, one year on the district bench being his only service.

The rheumatism from which Cornelius Vanderbilt has been suffering is not, as is popularly supposed, a new experience for the millionaire, for he has been a victim to the disease ever since early manhood.

The house in which Robert Louis Stevenson was born, No. 8 Howard place, Canonville, Edinburgh, was lately sold for $4,000. The purchases was Caxton Dibdin, a descendant of the author of "Black-Eyed Susan."

The city of Buda-Pesth is about to erect a mausoleum over the remains of the great Hungarian dictator, Kossuth who, after living and dying in voluntary exile in Italy, lies buried in the Kerepes cemetery in the Hungarian capital.

The foreigners to whom this year congress will extend the privilege of admission to the West Point Academy are Luis Yglesias, of Costa Rica, and Andres Ponte-Ruego, of Venezuela. Ricardo Yglesias, brother of Luis, and Albert Valencia Montoya, of the United States of Colombo, will be admitted to Annapolis.

WHAT THE LAW DECIDES.

The power of a judge to suspend the execution of a sentence imposed in a criminal case is denied in Neal vs. State (Ga.), 42 L. R. A. 190, and the words suspending the sentence are held surplusage.

A policy omitting the usual suicide clause and containing an "absolutely incontestable" clause, is held, in Patterson vs. Natural Premium Mutual Loan Insurance company (Wis.), 42 L. R. A. 253, to cover a case of death by suicide.

A stipulation that a life policy is incontestable after three years from date and the payment of three full yearly premiums is held, in Massachusetts Benevolent Loan association vs. Robinson (Ga.), 42 L. R. A., 261, to be valid and applicable to a defense based upon misrepresentations or warranties, whether fraudulent or otherwise.

A contract by an insurance agent to keep a person's property insured in his company is held, in Ramspeck vs. Patillo (Ga.), 42 L. R. A. 197, to be invalid unless the company consents, because the agent cannot act in a double capacity, and this contract would require him to perform inconsistent duties and require the consent of both parties.

A provision that a life insurance policy shall be incontestable after one year is held, in Clement vs. New York Life Insurance company (Tenn.), 42 L. R. A. 247, to be neither unreasonable or contrary to public policy, but, while it is held applicable to fraud in procuring the policy, it is held applicable to the defense that the plaintiffs had procured the issue of the policy and it was therefore a gambling or wagering contract. With this case is an extensive note on incontestable life policies.

It is a wise cyclometer that shows its master an extraordinary day's run.

A soft answer turneth away wrath, but a soft tire filleth a man with evil thoughts.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

WARM WEATHER STYLES.

Attractive Novelties For the Summer Wardrobe.

Lace plays a very conspicuous part among the new gowns, as it has among those of the past season. For evening wear there are entire sleeves made of real lace and shaped to the arm, boleros of real lace and entire skirt and bodice draperies of net covered with lace applique. Turning to cloth costumes, there are tunics, yokes and boleros of cloth entirely covered with heavy net, upon which are incrustations of the cloth again, forming elaborate designs outlined with cord, which are fastened through the net upon the cloth beneath, so that all form one fabric. These are made up in combination with plain cloth to match. Large lace collars are also worn, and lace is much used upon hats.

Shirt waists of white pique are embroidered with pink, blue, lavender or black. The embroidery appears upon the body of the goods, ornamenting the plait in the middle of the front and the material at each side of it for a width of several inches; also the collar and cuffs. These are very pretty, but no prettier than some of the new waists of stamped percale, which are less expensive and quite as effective. There is a fancy this season for adding a touch of black to printed designs in light colors, and the result is often highly pleasing. Thus, a blue and white or pink and white striped madras will be sprinkled with black dots and a colored percale with a white design will have a smaller black figure scattered here and there upon it.

The picture shows a gown of green satin cloth, the skirt buttoning over at the left side with buttons of cut silver and folds of old rose velvet appearing under the edges of the green laps. The tight bodice buttons across to the left and is adorned in the same way as the skirt, and the wrists of the tight sleeves are trimmed to match. The collar and little plastron are of white surah, the belt being of old rose velvet. The toque of old rose faille is trimmed with tea roses

PREVAILING STYLES.

The Fancies of the Moment In Minor Fashions.

The fashion of circular flounces is in some respects an economical one, as it facilitates the making over of skirts which have become defaced around the lower edge or are outgrown and require lengthening. It is sometimes impossible to match goods, but the prevailing mode permits the flounce to be of another material from the skirt, provided that it harmonizes well.

The fashionable coiffure demands a high arrangement of the back hair, which is worn on the top of the head. The hair at the sides is waved and left rather loose, concealing the top of the ear, while in front it is dressed in whatever way is most becoming to the face—in pompadour style or with loose curls falling upon the brow or parted in the middle. The tortoise shell comb continues to be the preferred ornament. It is plain, carved or decorated with gold and jewels. The short locks at the back of the neck are caught up and fastened to the rest of the hair by a little brooch unless they curl, in which case they are allowed to hang loose. Plain shell or imitation shell hairpins are used almost to the exclusion of wire pins, as they are much less injurious to the hair.

A cut is given which illustrates a pretty vest to be worn under a bolero or open jacket. It is of liberty silk and has a full front, with rows of shirring at the waist, across the bust and chest and around the neck. Between the upper bands of shirring are narrow black velvet ribbons arranged to form vandykes. The collar is trimmed with velvet bands and wired velvet loops. This same idea may be attractively carried out in pale green silk with darker green velvet.

PENSION OFFICE PLAYS DETECTIVE.

Reuniting Families as a Side Issue in Its Business.

The Pension Office, besides examining into pension claims and passing on them, does an enormous amount of other business in the way of reuniting families—we find husbands for wives, wives for husbands, parents for children and children for parents. Only recently a case came under my observation which illustrates my meaning, and 'tis a sample of a number of others. An application was received from a lady who applied for a widow's pension. She gave the name of her husband, his service, company and regiment. In looking into the claim it was found that the husband was alive and drawing a pension through the pension agency at Chicago. The woman, who resides in Massachusetts, was so informed, says the Washington Star.

Immediately came a reply from her asking the address of the man, which was furnished. A correspondence ensued between them, and when they satisfied themselves that they were on the right track they arranged a meeting. The man thought that his wife had died, and at the close of the war entered the regular army and went West. The woman, not hearing from her husband, became convinced that he had been killed or had died. She was unofficially informed that he had died in a hospital, and supposed it was a fact. In the meantime she had married again. Her second husband had died, and had been dead over ten years when she applied for a pension.

Another case I call to mind is that of a soldier who originally lived at Niagara Falls. He went in the army and served under Sherman. At the close of the war he settled in New Orleans. He had positive information that his wife had died, but he was never able to get any information as to what had become of his three children, except that they had been sent to an orphan asylum. He did not know in what State the orphan asylum was located. Neither did the children know whether their father was dead or alive, though from what they had been able to pick up in the way of information from time to time they concluded that he had passed to the other side.

It happened that the daughter of the soldier not only grew up to be a beautiful woman, but had married a wealthy man. She wrote to the War Department to learn of the whereabouts of her father's grave, but there was no record of it. She then wrote to the Pension Office for the address of a man she had heard served with her father, and who at one time lived at Niagara Falls. The ending of it all was that the children found the father and the father found his children. There are hundreds of such cases, though, of course, the number of them is becoming smaller as time passes.

WOMAN IN FINLAND.

That Country More Progressive for Women than Generally Supposed.

People don't think of Finland as progressive, but in that country the women are making rapid progress. For more than twenty-five years the gymnasiums have admitted both sexes, and in the University of Helsingfors there are now 200 women students. There are two flourishing clubs of women. About one thousand are now employed in postoffices, railroad and telegraph bureaus, and other departments of the public service; more than nine hundred are engaged as teachers in schools of various grades, and it is not uncommon to see among their pupils young men of 18 who are preparing for an academic or commercial course. At least three thousand women are in business. Fifty-two of the eighty poor-houses have women superintendents, and all the dairies are managed by women.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Sunflower Seed Oil.

Dr. Wiley, the chemist of the Agricultural Department in Washington, says that, in his opinion, the coming salad oil will be made of sunflower seed. It is a perfect substitute for olive oil, and will be so cheap that it may be used on the poor man's table. His remark was probably meant to encourage farmers in raising sunflower seed, but it is likely to work the other way. Farmers prefer to raise something that will be dear, and not cheap. —New York Tribune.

Advancement.

"It's wonderful," said the man who is always earnest, "to see how they can develop the intellects of the lower animals. There is no telling how much we may be able to benefit them by systematic education."

"What suggested that idea?"

"A chimpanzee that I saw. He was once in a perfectly wild condition. Now they have by patient training taught him to chew tobacco, smoke a pipe, play cards and drink whiskey." —Washington Star.

A Natural Loss.

"Mr. Henpeck," said the doctor, after examination, "I fear your wife's mind is gone."

"That doesn't surprise me," said the poor man. 'She has been giving me a piece of it every day for ten years."—Memphis Scimitar.

A Doubtful Compliment.

"Did you read my article in this morning's paper?"

"Yes, my boy; I read it through twice."

"That's a great compliment."

"I read it twice to try and understand what it was about."—New York Journal.

All Left.

"Was there any thing left of the estate after it got through the courts?"

"Oh, yes, the heirs."—Chicago Journal.

AUK AND THE DODO GONE.

Of All Birds Extinct None Is More Interesting than the Great Auk.

Before the white man came there was a large and clumsy bird on the island of Mauritius called the "dodo." It was related to the family of pigeons. Being incapable of flight and good to eat, the species was destroyed wholesale by sailors, and the eggs and young were eaten by hogs. So it disappeared, and not a single specimen remains in any museum to tell its melancholy story. Mauritius had also a small but peculiar owl and a big parrot, a large heron with short wings, and a big rail, all of which are now extinct, as well as a good many other birds which are now only known by the stories of early voyagers and the bones found in caves on the island. Far to the eastward of Mauritius, on Rodriguez Island, dwelt a near relative of the dodo, called the solitaire. It became extinct about the beginning of the eighteenth century.

Of all birds recently extinct none is more interesting than the gare fowl, or great auk. The last two living specimens were seen and taken on a rocky islet off the southwestern point of Ireland. A single egg of a great auk was sold not long ago at auction for $1,500. And yet sixty years ago birds of this species were found on Funk Island, off the Newfoundland coast, in countless numbers. People from the mainland used to go over to the island in summer and kill them by myriads to eat and for their feathers. They were so fat that they served as fuel. Ships used to land there and get boatloads of the auks by the simple process of placing a plank between the boat and the shore, and driving the helpless creatures over it. The Smithsonian Institution has practically a corner on their bones. A while ago it sent an agent to Funk Island for the purpose, and he brought back nearly a barrelful of auk bones. If you want a skeleton you will have to send to Washington for it, and it will cost you about $600.—Washington Post.

FEATS OF HINDOO PORTERS.

Hardy Hill-Men Climb Steep Mountains Carrying Cumbersome Packs.

Darjeeling tea, said Mr. George W. Christison, in a recent lecture before the British Society of Arts, is all carried by the hardy hill-men up the steep mountain roads to the nearest railway station on the way to market. It is no unusual day's work for a coolie to carry from 110 to 130 pounds a distance of five or six miles, making at the same time an ascent of from 2,500 to 3,500 feet in sheer vertical elevation.

There can be no deception about a task like that, and we can not but have an admiration for the powers of endurance of those who perform such a feat. Of course these people are trained to load carrying and mountain climbing from their very infancy, and hence the peculiar set of muscular faculties required for them are fully developed, if not actually called into existence at a cost of others—so much so that walking on a level, after a few miles, becomes positively painful to them.

In the prosecution of their own trade, or in domestic affairs, they frequently undertake long, arduous journeys over ridges and along and across hot valleys, varying many thousands of feet in elevation, occupying many days, carrying heavy loads of from 150 to 200 pounds and over, and in addition to their food and bedding most cheerfully lighting a fire, cooking and eating their scanty meal, and going to sleep by the wayside.

There is a story still current of a Bhootean in old times having carried a grand piano up a hill to Darjeeling, a distance of fifty miles forward, and involving a rise of more than 5,000 feet in elevation by the old road. These hill tribes are a hardy people, capable of performing marvelous journeys without partaking of food, or on the most meagre fare.—New York World.

LIABLE TO CAUSE BLINDNESS.

It is Possible for Certain Kinds of Food to Endanger the Eyesight.

Few people know that some foods are very injurious to the eyesight, and, indeed, may cause total blindness. Medical men agree that defects of vision are often attributable to this cause, and warn their patients against eating certain foods.

Stale sausages, sour cream and tainted rabbit pie are injurious to the eyesight. In one instance a case was brought under the notice of an eye specialist in which the eyes of a whole family were affected by eating rabbit pie. In each instance the patient had become afflicted with a peculiar defect of vison that is technically known as "failure of accommodation."

The eating of chocolate was recently proved to be the cause in a case of weakening of the sight known as amblopia. Blindness resulting from eating tainted fish has been found almost impossible to cure, and quinine is also responsible for some persons half-blind condition. This drug affects the optic nerve in a manner that sometimes ends in blindness.—Golden Days.

A Pair of Them.

Borrowit—Say, Jack, can't you lend me a five?

Hardup—Sorry; I'm busted myself. I just had to borrow a ten.

Borrowit—Well, my eyes! You're a fine kind of hog to refuse after such luck as that!—Truth.

Mean Thing.

Miss Newwoman—Yes, our unprejudiced opinion is that man is a total failure.

Dick Rounder—Taking that view of the case, I am willing to admit that woman is his equal.—New York Journal.

Karlsruhe. Der Professor der Ingenieurwissenschaft an der Technischen Hochschule, Cosmas Sayer, wurde auf der Straße vom Schlage gerührt und bewußtlos in's St. Vincenziushaus verbracht, wo er nach wenigen Stunden verschied.—Redakteur Walter Grosse ist aus der Redaktion des „Badischen Landesboten" ausgeschieden, um wieder in der Redaktion der Berliner „Volkszeitung" thätig zu sein. Herr Grosse hat das Blatt über drei Jahre geleitet. An seine Stelle wird Herr A. Burger, zuletzt Redakteur des „Würzburger Journals," treten.

Durlach. Maurer, welche mit Bauarbeiten im Hause des Kaufmanns Philipp Luger an der Hauptstraße beschäftigt waren, stießen auf ein Gewölbe, welches eine große Anzahl von Silbermünzen enthielt; die Münzen, welche die Größe eines Thalers haben, tragen die Jahreszahl 1648, 1652 u. s. w.

Heidelberg. Wegen Urkundenfälschung erhielt ein Liebespärchen, Tanzlehrer O. Reichert und das Dienstmädchen J. Weßlein, je einen Tag Gefängniß. Im November erhielt das Mädchen ein Telegramm folgenden Inhalts: „Komme sofort heim. Deine Mutter Ida Weiß." Sie bat auf Grund dieser Depesche ihre Dienstherrin um Urlaub, erhielt denselben und reiste —frisch und fröhlich zu einem Tanzkränzchen nach Eichtersheim, wo ihr Bräutigam sie erwartete. Das Telegramm war natürlich nicht von der Mutter, sondern von Reichert aufgegeben, der sich vorher mit seiner Ida darüber verständigt hatte. Nun mußte das Paar, das demnächst Hochzeit feiert, für dieses Vergehen einen Tag brummen.

Mannheim. Die Probefahrt mit dem ersten Neckar-Personendampfer ist ungünstig verlaufen. Die Strecke Mannheim-Heidelberg beanspruchte sechs Stunden. Der Dampfer erlitt viele Beschädigungen. Die Stromschnellen sind nur schwer passirbar.

A SINGER'S ROMANCE.

The Warwick street flats were always dismal. On a bright day they looked more gloomy and grimy than ever; and when the sun beat down strong and yellow upon the dull red bricks it seemed to be crushing out the life and stifling the breath of the human beings who fought and struggled and laughed and wept inside.

In one of the flats a woman who was little more than a girl wandered listlessly backward and forward, or strummed with weary effort upon her little piano. There was a gnawing fear in her thoughts—a jarring anxiety that refused to be stilled. She had seen Ralph, her husband, growing paler and thinner day after day; she had noticed the weariness grow in his eyes, the tired look that was fast becoming habitual to his face, and she was afraid. What of, she scarcely dared own even to herself; but she knew that Ralph was working too hard, and that the summer heat was undermining his strength.

She sat down presently to practice. Somehow today her voice sounded clearer and stronger than it had ever done before. The keys seemed to fall with scarcely an effort between her fingers, and she found herself singing an old song.

Suddenly an idea occurred to her. She sprang up, with a scarlet flush on her cheeks, and with a sudden brightening in her eyes.

A few minutes later she was making her way rapidly through the narrow, reeking street, and out into the broader thoroughfare beyond.

She stopped before a house bearing a brass plate, and then the flush in her cheeks began to fade away. She hesitated a moment before she rang the bell, and then, in her nervousness, gave such a peal that the Professor, slumbering peacefully inside, started up in affright.

"Ach, Himmel!" he remarked. "Vas is it?"

The reply came in the form of a neatly dressed servant, who announced that a young lady was waiting to see him, and the Professor's curiosity overcoming his usual dignity of manner, he gave orders that the young lady should be admitted.

Nellie came in nervously. She glanced at the big, bearded man in front of her, and wished she had not been so hasty.

When she spoke, all her nicely worded sentences, all here carefully calculated eloquence vanished, and she could only stammer helplessly:

"I—I wanted to ask you," she began, "to—test my voice."

The Professor smiled—a grim, significant smile—and she felt in very truth that she was bearding a lion in his den.

"Well, well," he said at last, not unkindly, "let us see. Let me hear you sing."

She sat down nervously to the piano. The keys were indistinguishable before her eyes, and her fingers trembled weakly. For a moment her voice was beyond her control. She felt incapable of steadying it, and she could not remember a word to sing.

Then she suddenly caught sight of a song called "Daddy" lying upon the piano, and she took it up and began to play.

She sang through the first verse with all the exquisite pathos of which her voice was capable. It rang out soft and clear across the room, and the Profesor almost fancied he dreamed.

He woke with a start, to find that she had stopped and was putting back the music.

"Again," he said harshly. "Sing it again!"

She sang it through once more; and when she looked around, the Profesor was staring out of the window and the sight of his back turned toward her sent a chill to her heart.

"I was afraid I should be a failure," she said with a half sob, taking her gloves. "I am sorry I—"

He turned around at the sound of her voice. She did not know that his eyes were full of tears, and that the song had conjured up recollections of his dead wife.

"Scales!" he said abruptly. And Nellie went back obediently to the piano.

When she had finished, he came over himself and put her through a number of exercises. He tested her voice in every possible way. He took infinite pains with her—such pains that would have considerably astonished some of his pupils if they could have heard—and when she had finished, he looked up interestedly into her face.

"Your voice has been well trained," was all he remarked.

"I had a good master," said Nellie, with the chill growing at her heart, "and I have always kept up my practice. I have practised every day since I have been married."

"Good, good!" said the Profesor suddenly. "Very good; and if something should turn up, will you take it at once?"

Nellie caught her breath with a gasp of astonishment.

"Take it!" she cried. "Then—then you do think—you think I can earn some money?"

"I think," said the Professor, forgetting his dignity and his English, with a sudden frantic gesture. "I think you haf a peautiful voice—a very peautiful voice!"

That afternoon Nellie waited impatiently for Ralph to come back from rehearsal. She was burning to tell him the news, and to get his permission to look out for an engagement. The Professor had spoken so favorably of her voice—had given her so much encouragement—that she was filled with the wildest hopes.

She lay back luxuriously in her easy chair and dreamed golden dreams.

And the summer afternoon waned and passed, and still Ralph did not come. She sat up listening for his footsteps. Somebody was making such a noise on the stairs outside that she could hear nothing. Men—heavy-booted men—seemed to be tramping up with some heavy burden.

Suddenly they stopped—stopped outside her door; and then there was an ominous silence. The next moment there came a knock, and a policeman looked in.

Nellie started up with a cry.

The policeman came forward and tried to keep her back. Some other men followed him. There seemed to be quite a lot of men crowding into her little room, but she could see none of them distinctly—only one form that lay stretched unconscious on a shutter and over that form she bent, with a terribly white face, and stared wildly at the narrow stream of red blood that was oozing slowly from her husband's colorless lips.

There was no hope!

The doctor said so, but Nellie refused to believe it; and she sat by the bedside, looking eagerly into her husband's colorless face, and trying to find some sign of hope—in vain. This very day he might die or live, and the doctor had said that she must prepare for the worse. It was impossible—she could not, she would not, believe that Ralph might die.

As she sat there the nurse entered and brought her a letter. Nellie looked at it indifferently. What did letters matter now? She took it in her trembling hands and tore it open wearily. As she read a sudden red flush sprang into her cheeks and a sharp light flashed into her eyes. She read on confusedly.

Mme. Lucille, the Professor wrote, was unable to sing in the Albert Hall that night, and she, Nellie Underwood, was to take her place.

She looked at Ralph—ill, perhaps dying—on the bed, and then she turned back to the letter. Her chance had come at last! The chance that she had waited for so eagerly had come at last like a wonderful miracle, or else like a fiendish trick.

The manager regretted that Mme. Lucille had been taken very ill. He was extremely sorry, and he was angry, too, for Mme. Lucille's name on the bills had more than half filled the house, and now her place was to be taken by a little pale-faced girl, who looked hopelessly plain and unattractive.

The accompanist sat down and rattled off the opening bars of a famous old song. It was the cry of a woman for a lover she would never see again, and it was so old that people thought it was worn out.

The accompanist played on; the notes became slower, and finally ceased, and then he waited.

Apparently Nellie had not heard. The music had fallen from her hands and she was staring out with a white set face at the crowded hall before her.

"Stage fright, poor thing," people murmured.

Some of them stared at her coldly; some of them put up their opera glasses to look at her; but they could not see what she saw—a man lying tossing, perhaps dying, on a bed; they could not feel what she felt, that terrible aching at her heart and that choking at her throat.

Suddenly the mist cleared from her eyes, and she saw, with a start, the waiting audience before her and the glasses leveled to her face, and she turned to the accompanist. He understood her glance, and commenced again.

Then she raised her eyes and stared straight toward the gallery. When she opened her lips, her voice rang out clear and full across the crowded hall. It never faltered; the notes fell from her lips liquid, wonderful, and the audience suddenly became still. They ceased to stare at her; opera glasses fell—it was strange that they had become dim—and in that great hall there was scarcely a sound to be heard.

The song went on. What was there in that old-fashioned air to hold them spellbound? A girl's fresh voice calling to her absent lover. They had never heard it sung like that before.

The eyes of beautiful women became moist; strong men leaned forward to hide their faces. They scarcely realized it when the music stopped; then they looked up to see her disappearing from the stage., and for a brief moment there was a dead silence.

Then the storm began. Artificial women forgot their artificiality; wearied men woke to life again, and shouted wildly at the empty platform.

Nellie heard it faintly at the back, but her only thought was to get away to Ralph, and while she was speeding homeward in a cab a man was making profuse apologies to the audience. He was sorry Mrs. Underwood could not sing again that night, but he hoped and believed they would hear her again very soon.

When Nellie got home, the room seemed to her very dark. She saw distinctly two figures which came toward her as she entered, and then she heard a faint voice—Ralph's voice—speaking to her from the bed.

She heard neither the doctor's admonitions nor the nurse's entreaties. She knelt at her husband's side and sobbed her heart out on his pillow.

It was a long time before Ralph thoroughly recovered, but when he did there was no longer any fear of starvation staring them in the face.

Nellie's voice had driven the wolf from the door.—Answers.

LONG AGO.

I once knew all the birds that came
  And nestled in our orchard trees;
For every flower I had a name—
  My friends were woodchucks, toads and bees.
I knew where thrived in yonder glen
  What plants would soothe a stone-bruised toe—
O, I was very learned then,
  But that was very long ago.

I knew the spot upon the hill
  Where checkerberries could be found;
I knew the rushes near the mill
  Where pickerel lay that weighed a pound!
I knew the wood—the very tree
  Where lived the poaching, saucy crow,
And all the woods and crows knew me—
  But that was very long ago.

And pining for the joys of youth,
  I tread the old familiar spot,
Only to learn this solemn truth:
  I have forgotten, am forgot.
Yet, here's this youngster at my knee
  Knows all the things I used to know;
To think I once was wise as he—
  But that was very long ago.

I know it's folly to complain
  Of whatsoe'er the Fates decree;
Yet were not wishes all in vain,
  I tell you what my wish should be:
I'd wish to be a boy again,
  Back with the friends I used to know;
For I was, O! so happy then—
  But that was very long ago.

COLONEL CLITHEROE.

"Mrs. Col. Clitheroe." And with the utterance of those words the brown eyes seemed to laugh at their own reflection in the mirror, and as the prettily-curved lips parted they showed the perfect teeth. "Do I look it, John? Do I? For I am intensely anxious as to the effect which I shall produce on your friends and neighbors."

The gray-haired handsome husband shook his head with a smile.

"Hardly, I am afraid, Rose. A casual observer would be more likely to think you were a young lady spending the holidays with her grandfather. Fortunately, however, the residents in these parts know who you are. I expect they will muster pretty strong at church this morning to get a good stare at you."

"I really feel nervous. I don't want these people who have known you all your life to say I am too young and too giddy, and too altogether unworthy to be your wife!"

"Don't be anxious, child, whatever they think and whatever they say, the fact remains that we are entirely satisfied with each other."

"I am more than satisfied," and Rose spoke emphatically. "I often wonder why such happiness should come to me when many women are miserably married."

It was a rather romantic little story, as things go in these prosaic times, that story of how Rose Dysart became Mrs. Clitheroe when she was 18, and he was 46.

Rose declared that she had been in love with him all her life. Certainly at two years old she had been in the habit of assuring him, "Rosie'll marry you when she's big," whereupon he always answered, "All right, little woman, I'll wait for you."

The child's passionate devotion to the handsome officer was quite an amusement to her parents. But when his regiment was ordered off to India, and they saw the little face grow white and thin, and heard her heart-broken sobs, they laughed no longer. Even after she ceased to cry for "Rosie's Colonel," she never forgot him.

The pretty baby had grown to a tall slim girl of 13 when these two friends met again. By that time, Rose Dysart was a pupil at a small and select boarding school in the environs of Paris; and on one of the frequent visits which her father and mother paid to their darling, they came, by chance, across Col. Clitheroe, who also was spending a few days in the gay capital.

"How is Rosie? Has she forgotten me?" were among his first questions.

Mrs. Dysart laughed.

"Rose is at school at Neuilly. Come with us this afternoon, and then judge for yourself whether you have been forgotten."

The girl had not grown stiff and shy. She was immensely delighted to see her old friend again, and she told him so.

"I have grown gray since those days," he said, with a half sigh. Whereupon Miss Rose declared that she liked gray hair best.

Each seemed to please the other they seized in a moment on each other's meaning, they appeared to divine each other's thoughts.

"I shall come again," said Col. Clitheroe, when the visitors' hour was over, and study must begin. "I see that you and I shall be excellent friends, as we were eleven years ago."

However, he made no second visit to the "pensionnat" at Neuilly-sur-Seine. His uncle's illness recalled him suddenly to England, and Rose Dysart was a finished young lady and about to be introduced into society before she had the pleasure of meeting her Colonel again.

The girl's face was not strictly beautiful, but it was a charming face; she was immensely admired, both by men and women. And there must be something lovable as well as lovely in a young lady of 17, when those of her own sex express sincere admiration and can praise her whole-heartedly.

"She will certainly marry young," said elderly people; but it never occurred to any one of them to suppose that this sunny-faced Rose Dysart would refuse three eligible men, simply because she loved a middle-aged colonel.

And they were quite delighted that she should refuse her first three offers of marriage.

It was in the spring, and just before her 18th birthday, that the Dysarts left their pretty Sussex home for a furnished house in Eaton place, which they had hired for the season at a somewhat exorbitant rent.

To the great joy of Rose, Col. Clitheroe was one of the first callers. He also was in town for two or three months, having, during the previous year, buried his old uncle, and inherited the property.

"My dear fellow," said Mr. Dysart to him, with the familiarity of a friend of long standing, "you really ought not to remain unmarried. Try and remember that you are depriving some woman of an excellent house, and a still more excellent husband! A man in the prime of life—well off, good looking, retired from the army—where lies the hindrance?"

"Simply in this," replied the Colonel. "I have never been in love; and I should be afraid to marry now that I am past the age for the tender passion. You see there is no 'three years' system' in matrimony. It has to be till death us do part."

"Don't you get married, Colonel," exclaimed Rose, who was in the room. "I like you best as you are. Indeed, I think changes are almost always disagreeable. It is pleasanter for things to go on pretty much the same. I mean to remain single all my life so as never to have to leave father and mother."

"You will be reconciled to leave us when the right man and right moment arrive," said Mrs. Dysart. "You may not think so now, girls never do before they are really in love. But in all probability the time will come when, of your own wish and will, you will go away from us."

Rose shook her head.

"I can't think so, mother. However, let us talk of some more interesting subject—of my being presented, for instance. Can you picture me, Colonel, making my courtesy and kissing the hand of royalty? I hope I shan't turn awkward and shy at the last moment. I ought not, for as a little girl with a counterpane in place of a train, I have practised my manners over and over again."

They all laughed.

"No, I scarcely think you will be shy," said Col. Clitheroe. "Besides, the moment makes the man, they say—so, of course, it makes the woman."

The important day came. Rose Dysart was simply yet elegantly dressed, and her fresh young face won its fair share of notice as she waited among the crowd of debutantes.

Then followed six weeks of gayety; concerts, opera, dances, garden parties, riding in the Row; nevertheless, the girl was glad when her father decided to return to the country before mid-summer.

Everything seemed beautiful and endeared by absence. The trees had exchanged their first freshness of tender green for the ripeness of summer beauty; the hawthorn and bluebells were over and done with, but the foliage of the woods seemed lovely by the contrast with Hyde Park.

Col. Clitheroe was to be one of the after season guests at the Dysarts' country house; he followed them within a fortnight of the departure from Eaton place.

Mr. and Mrs. Dysart regarded Col. Clitheroe as a sort of venerable friend with whom Rose might be sent to walk, talk, or ride, without outraging even the narrowest notions of propriety.

"I must have been a positive nuisance to you, wasn't I, Colonel?" she said one day as they paced side by side the terraced walk, while waiting the summons to breakfast. "I know I was always running after you, yet you never seemed cross and bored."

"I should think not, indeed," and the Colonel laughed. "Your advances were so flattering. I could not reckon up the times you assured me your intention to marry me when you grew big enough. Ah, child," and now a sigh followed the smile, "I suppose one of these days I shall stand among your wedding guests—and I don't think I shall enjoy the ceremony one bit."

"You will never be a guest," and now Rose colored, yet held out her hand as bravely as when she was a child. "Colonel! I am going to do something dreadful, I suppose. Please never tell any one; and please say 'no' if you would rather give that answer. But I am big enough now, and I tell you exactly what I did when I was 2 years old: 'I'll marry you'—or I shall certainly never marry any one."

And in that moment Col. Clitheroe knew that though his hair was plentifully streaked with gray, and though his face had lines on it which nothing but the passage of years can trace, he loved Rose Dysart as a man loves only once in a lifetime.

It was only when he told Mr. and Mrs. Dysart of his good fortune that he remembered Harry Rawdon's commission.

"Never mind!" said Rose. "Your recommendation of him as a husband would not have been of the slightest use. I have loved you first and last and always—ever since I was 2."

That is how there came to be a young, bright girl who, bearing the title of Mrs Col. Clitheroe, walked by the side of her elderly husband one sunny Sunday to the accompaniment of the church bells. Snow in his hair—summer in her face, yet they were happy, with a happiness which is the portion of very few of the men and women whom the world considers well-matched.—Household Words.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS WON

DEFEATED LEAL'S SCHOOL TEAM AT BASEBALL.

Opening of the Season for the Plainfield High School Nine—Won by a Score of 18 to 4—Game Played at the Crescent Oval

The baseball nine of the Plainfield High School opened its season yesterday afternoon at the Crescent Oval by defeating its old rival, the Leal's School team, of this city, by a big score. It was practically the opening of the baseball season in the city and was witnessed by a fair crowd.

Considering the fact that it was their first game the High School boys distinguished themselves. The boys put up a creditable game in the field, making few errors and playing fairly well together. At batting they did well. Miller, the Leal's pitcher, was retired after the fifth inning when the High School boys drove his curves all over the field for seven runs. Then Aubrey Crowe tried his luck and still the High School boys had little trouble in scoring.

It was evident soon after the game started that the Leal boys were outclassed. They couldn't stop the ball somehow and juggled and foozled it and made sundry mistakes in judgment they added to the score of their rivals. As the game progressed, some of the Leal boys lost heart and what little chance they had of retreiving lost honors vanished. They kept at it, however, and managed to make an exciting game of it.

Claude Edwards was in the box for the High School team. He was in better form than last year, striking out eight men. He kept his head and the good support given him by the infield enabled him to keep the score of the opponents well down. Ray Radford was behind the bat and caught Edwards surprisingly well.

The practice earlier in the season and the coaching by A. B. Meredith had its results in the good play of the High School boys. Considering the fact that Leals defeated Pingry, at Elizabeth, Saturday morning, by a score of 23 to 9, the High School should make a good showing with the other school teams in this part of the state.

The batting order was as follows:—

LEAL'S SCHOOL.	HIGH SCHOOL.
Dupee, 2b.,	Morgan, 1b.,
Richards, 3b.,	Radford, c.,
Crone, ss.,	Fisher, ss.,
Thomas, c.,	Miller, rf.,
Churchill, 1b.,	Droll, lf.,
Cathcart, lf.,	Craig, 3b.,
Boome, rf.,	Squires, cf.,
Miller, p.,	Mason, 2b.,
Schoonmaker, cf.,	Edwards, p.

The score by innings was:

Leal's School	1	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	1—4
High School	4	0	0	2	7	1	0	4	x—18

PRESBYTERY IN SESSION

SPRING MEETING OF ELIZABETH DISTRICT IN THIS CITY.

Being Held in the First Presbyterian Church—Rev. J. N. McNulty Elected Moderator and Rev Mr. Tilden Secretary

The first session of the Spring meeting of the Presbytery of Elizabeth convened at 11 o'clock this morning in the First Presbyterian Church, and will continue until tomorrow night. The attendance this morning was not large, but other delegates and visitors have been arriving all the morning, swelling the number.

Rev. H. W. Hathaway, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church of Elizabeth, the moderator of the last meeting, called the meeting to order, and preached the sermon, a powerful one upon the necessity of being endowed with the power of God.

The Presbytery then came to order for the transaction of business. After prayer by the moderator the roll was then called. Twenty-seven ministers and sixteen elders answered to the roll call, coming from Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties

One new member was received, Rev E. M. Bliss, of the Presbytery of Morris and Orange. Mr. Bliss is doing evangelistic work in Roselle. Robert Street, of Roselle, the oldest elder in the Presbytery, who will be 93 years old in a few days, asked to be excused from attendance at this session, and it was granted.

Rev. J. N. McNulty, of Woodbridge, was elected moderator, and Rev. Mr. Tilden, pastor of Bethel Mission, of this city, temporary clerk. After Rev. C. E. Herring had outlined the services for the balance of today and tomorrow, a recess of an hour was taken during which lunch was served in the chapel.

The afternoon session will be devoted entirely to the transaction of business, and tonight a public meeting will be held at which Dr. John Fox, secretary of the American Bible Society, will speak upon that subject. Rev. R. W. Dilworth will also speak.

STRUGGLE WITH WOLVES.

School Teacher's Severe Battle in the Storm.

Miss Maggie Hart, a young school teacher at Hobbie, eight miles west of Hazelton, Pa., lately lived through a most remarkable experience during a recent severe storm.

The district in which she teaches is remote and conspicuous only for the wildness which surrounds it.

When the storm visited the Nescopeck valley the Hobbie School closed on Monday. On Tuesday Miss Hart decided to resume, storm or no storm. She managed to reach the building, but before the day passed the few children who had braved the elements were either taken home by their parents or friends, leaving Miss Hart alone in the building.

The storm increased in intensity and by night it had reached such proportions that the teacher considered it safer to remain for the night. The heavy snowfall during the preceding days had already had its effects upon the mountain animals and was driving many to the valley.

During the night Miss Hart was startled by the growling of wolves at the schoolhouse door. They saw comfort within and seemed to be goaded by the blasts of wind which swept through the forest surrounding the school.

In their efforts to secure shelter they gained the windowsill and broke a pane of glass.

It was then that the plucky schoolmarm's nerve asserted itself. Securing her rifle, which she carried, a dead wolf fell across the sill. A pack of hungry animals quickly tore the carcass to pieces, then made another attack on the schoolhouse. Again and again the rifle rang out, and the maddened animals were forced to retreat. The next morning the bones of two wolves were found near the window, and it is certain that many of the others were wounded. Miss Hart is now the heroine of Hobbie.

Amber Bowls.

Amber pipes are the newest and the most beautiful. The amber pipe bowl, is merely the outer envelope, so to speak, in which the real tobacco receptacle, which is of meerschaum, reposes. But one smoking such a pipe seems, to an onlooker, to be inhaling his smoke from tobacco actually burning in amber.

The theory that our ancestors of one hundred and more years ago were altogether more luxurious in their smoking and snuffing utensils is one which writers on such subjects appear to be fond of circulating. These gentlemen tell marvelous tales of snuff boxes presented by kings and queens to ambassadors, papal nuncios and other high and mighty personages with whom it was their temporary interest to stand well. I have seen some of the finest of these historic snuff boxes and they never impressed me as being either very costly or too highly artistic. However, let that be as it may, I maintain that the rich tobacco lovers of our own time are far more extravagant than their forefathers. Several jewelers' shops on Broadway and Fifth Avenue have windows in which there is always a liberal display of gold-mounted pipes, cigar and cigarette cases, many of which are adorned with diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires. There must be a steady market for these high-priced goods, else the jewelers wouldn't make them.

WAITER WITH A RECORD

FORMER VIRGINIA LEGISLATOR NOW A WAITER IN A RESTAURANT.

Hon. Horace Ash, who is Employed Six Months a Year as a School Teacher, is Filling in His Vacation in McVey's Hotel

It is not very often that a local restaurant is able to employ as waiter an ex-member of a Legislature, but this is a fact in the establishment of J. H. McVey, the North avenue hotel keeper. Mr. McVey's new waiter is Hon. Horace Ash, of Lowden County, Virginia, and is a well educated man, with refined manners. He is principal of a school at his home in the south, whose sessions continue for six months in the year. During the balance of the year, which is during the warmest weather, Mr. Ash generally comes north and seeks employment to keep himself and wife, for he can scarcely live twelve months on a salary of $35 a month for half a year, hence his employment in this city.

Mr Ash was born in slavery, his father dying when he was but two years old and his mother passing away when he was about 9 years of age. At this early age he was obliged to get out and hustle for himself. When he was old enough he secured admission to the Normal School at Hampton Roads, and it was there that he completed his education that was to fit him for serving his state in an official way.

Mr. Ash engaged somewhat in politics in 1881, when he announced himself a candidate for the county clerkship on the Republican ticket. He soon learned that he would not secure the place, and immediately gave way to his opponent. The following year he was nominated for Member of Assembly, and much to his surprise his opponent in the election the year previous turned in and helped him, and through his efforts he had no opposition. He secured the place with a handsome majority, and together with six other colored men served their constituents for a term, two years, in the lower House.

For three months Mr. Ash was a butler in the home of former Secretary of Treasury Carlisle at Washington, and has seen a great deal of public life in his travels.

RUNAWAY DID THE TOWN.

Horse Ran Around for a While, Then Went Home, Leaving Wagon Behind.

Edward Moore, of Smalleytown, tied his horse at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, this afternoon

At 1:30 o'clock, a trolley car passed and frightened the horse. The animal plunged and the bridle gave way. Then the horse with the road wagon attached, ran out Park avenue to West Fifth street, thence to Plainfield avenue and to West Front street.

The horse ran down West Front street to Somerset street and started homeward, having successfully passed all the vehicles in the streets. Near Craig place the wagon collided with Rickett's truck and was somewhat damaged. The horse went home leaving the wagon behind.

MINISTERS SHOULD NOT WED DIVORCED PERSONS

So Committee Reported to Presbytery of Elizabeth.

A DISCUSSION THIS P. M.

SESSION OF THE PRESBYTERY CONTINUED HERE TODAY.

Public Meeting Held Last Night—Work in the New Possessions Described—What is Being Done in Northwest—Licences to French Granted to Two Candidates—Routine Matters Discussed

At 2 o'clock yesterday the afternoon session of the Presbytery of Elizabeth came to order in the First Presbyterian church for the transaction of business. The narrative of the state of religion, showing the spiritual condition of the various churches in the Presbytery, was read, and showed that Elizabeth and Rahway were the only churches making much special effort along the lines alluded to.

All the churches seem to be giving statedly and systematically to the various boards of the church. An obituary notice on the death of Rev. John Gilleskie, of Elizabeth, who died February 16th, was read by Rev. John T. Kerr, who was appointed to draw it up.

The committee appointed to report on ministers marrying divorced persons of either sex, read their report in which they condemned the practice, but the discussion on this subject was laid over until the morning session.

The delegates were entertained at supper, and a few who remained over night were taken care of by the members of the First Presbyterian church.

The evening service was a public one and was addressed by two men interested in missions, Rev. Dr. John Fox, the newly elected secretary of the American Bible Society, and Rev. Mr. Dilworth, a home missionary.

Dr. Fox spoke of the work of the society in America, and told something of the work being done in our new possessions, Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippine Islands. Rev. A. J. McKee is now in Porto Rico, and during the few months he has been there two churches have been founded and three Sunday-schools established. Mr. McKee was formerly in Cuba and did good work there.

The bible has been translated into several of the languages used by the natives in the Phillipines, and there is an agent all ready to sail for those Islands to preach the Gospel. Soon after the war the Chinese agent, Rev. John R. Hykes, took a trip to the Phillippines, and published his report in a little pamplet, which Dr. Fox had with him last night.

Mr. Hykes says that Spanish priests virtually rule the people. The friars are impure and evil to a frightful extent, and compel the islanders to obey their whims and caprices altogether. While at Manilla the agent had talks with Admiral Dewey, General Otis and also with Aguinaldo, and all express themselves, the report says, in favor of the missionaries.

Mr. Hykes goes on to say that "it would be monstrous to turn the Philippine Islands back to Spain. It would be a great blunder to grant them independence. The only thing for the United States to do is to keep the whole archipelago, and grant the people good government and religious liberty."

Mr. Dilworth has been a missionary in Oregon, and lived for some time among the woods and along the shores of Puget Sound, in that state. He described the missionary's life in that country, and had such a humorous way of telling his story, and told things that Eastern people never dreamed of happening to a missionary, that his address was one of the best addresses on that subject that could have been given. He was a second Mark Twain in his stories of Western life, and running through all he said was a touch of sadness, for this faithful man of God lost his health, his contact with cultured people, and even his family in his work for the master.

The business transacted this morning was of a routine nature, and the discussion on the divorce question did not come up. The meeting will close early this afternoon, and some time before adjournment the matter will be considered.

James E. Lowe, of Dunellen, complained to the Presbytery because the session of the church there refused to accept the resignation to an elective office, and a committee was given this matter to consider. They concluded it would be best to lay it over until the fall meeting.

William B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, and John F. Dobbs, of Liberty Corner,

TO PAY WAGES IN CALICO

INDUSTRIAL PROJECT OF MR. AND MRS. BOOTH, MISSIONARIES.

They Propose to Start a Coffee Plantation in Africa in Connection With Evangelizing the Natives There.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Booth sail today for England en route for Africa, on the American liner City of Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Booth are being sent out as missionaries by the Sabbath Evangelizing and Industrial Association, which has headquarters in this city.

It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Booth to purchase 500 acres of land in the Dark Continent and start a coffee plantation. They have taken along $500 worth of calico with which to pay the natives for their labor, and soon expect to make the plantation self-supporting.

The evangelical work among the natives will be done at the same time, and in this way they hope to do good work. The colony will be a Seventh Day Baptist one and will observe the seventh day of the week as their Sabbath, just as the members of the denomination here do.

FUNERAL OF MRS. FOX.

Held Yesterday Afternoon — Interment was at Scotch Plains.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Phebe Fox, aged ninety-five years, who died Saturday evening last, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Gray, Elmwood place, and were well attended by relatives, friends and neighbors.

Rev. Mr. Shott, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, where the departed was a member, officiated. He dwelt at some length upon the exemplary Christian life and character of the departed. In the course of his remarks he stated that a strange coincidence was that the first funeral service he had in New York was that of a relative of Mrs. Fox, and the first service he held since coming to this locality was that of Mrs. Fox.

There was a beautiful display of flowers from relatives and friends. The interment was in the Baptist cemetery at Scotch Plains, and those who served as bearers were Amos Gray, Herbert Overbaugh, Walter Overbaugh, of this city, and Mr. Dow, of Elizabeth.

Results of Benefit.

The efforts of the members of Stone Square Lodge, F. and A. M., to aid their fellow Mason, James Walker, who has been in the Muhlenberg Hospital so long, have met with success. At the benefit, held in Washington Hall, last week, the gross receipts were $72.15. The expenses were $32.15, leaving a balance of $40. A donation of $11 was made for the same object by the Mt. Olive Baptist church. The total sum of $51 will be turned over to Mr. Walker at once.

Interesting Young People.

As the time draws near for Evangelist Taylor to end his work in this city, the interest in the meetings at Hope chapel increases. Last night was no exception to the rule, and the services was one of the most spiritual yet. The Evangelist still keeps the attention of the young people, and is doing much good among them. It is the opinion of those who have these meetings in charge that they are the most successful ever held in the chapel.

To Buy Their Own Property.

The Independent Shooting Club are tired of leasing grounds to be used for range shooting, and have decided to purchase a piece of property for their own use. A committee was appointed at the last meeting of the club with instructions to look about for a suitable piece of ground, and open negotiations to purchase it. The committee have the option on a piece of property in Washington Valley, which will probably suit them, and a report will be made upon it at the next meeting.

A Solitary Offender.

There was a solitary offender before City Judge Runyon this morning. He gave his name as Michael Fields and was arrested by Patrolman Higgins last night for being drunk and disorderly. He explained to the Judge that he had met a friend whom he had not seen before for eight years and they celebrated the reunion by a too frequent visit to the cups. As he was usually a peaceful citizen, the Judge suspended sentence.

To Attend a Smoker.

At the meeting of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, held last evening, an invitation was received and accepted to attend a smoker to be given by the Sons of Veterans of New Brunswick next week. A report of progress was received from the soldiers' monument commitee —Housekeepers should take advantage of the reduction of fifteen per cent in the prices of all high-grade canned goods at Neuman Brothers.

ENJOYED A SOCIAL TIME.

PROTECTIVE CONCLAVE, ORDER OF HEPTASOPHS, HAD A GOOD TIME.

William A. Westphal in Charge of Ceremonies—Supreme Lodge Officers Unable to be There—There Were Other Speakers.

Protective Conclave, No. 505, Improved Order of Heptasophs, entertained their friends last evening by giving a social entertainment in their rooms in Exempt Firemen's Hall on Park avenue. There was a good-sized audience present, including a large number of women. William A. Westphal, as chairman of the affair, was in charge. He welcomed the guests in a neat speech, and announced that he regretted very much to say that Messrs. Jones and Hipp, Supreme Lodge officers, could not be present on account of illness, but that there were officers of the home lodge present who would have something to say regarding the objects of the order.

The programme opened with several selections on a phonograph given by Fred Sebring, and during the evening this formed an appreciative feature of the affair. There were remarks by V. W. Nash, F. C. Lounsbury and Wm. Newcorn, in which they set forth the excellent objects of the Heptasophs, and told of the many advantages to be derived in being a member. Other features of the programme were recitations by Ada Westphal and Nellie LaRue, while Ethel Reynolds gave a pleasing vocal solo.

After the presentation of the programme the committee in charge served refreshments. The affair was of the best and the hospitality of the members of the lodge was greatly appreciated by the guests who accepted of it.

RECEPTION TO THE PASTOR.

Informal Affair In Vincent Chapel in Honor of Return of Rev. Dr. Snodgrass.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass will continue in charge of his flock at the First M. E. church for another year. Last night, there was a rallying of the members of the congregation for a general hand-shaking and congratulation over his return. It took the form of an informal reception, held in Vincent chapel, last evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The announcement was only given out Sunday, and, as it happened to be rainy, there were many who did not know of the reception. Consequently, the attendance was not as large as it would have otherwise been. There was quite a crowd out, however, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Snodgrass, Miss Persis Snodgrass, Miss Lillian Snodgrass and Rev. Orrin W. Snodgrass, of Westbrook, Conn., were all present, the other members of the family being absent from the city.

There was no programme. Miss Mulford, of East Orange, sang several solos, and refreshments were served by the members of the Ladies' Aid Society.

JUBILEE SINGERS ENTERTAINED.

Successful Entertainment at the Monroe Avenue Church Last Evening.

The Jubilee Singers, four colored women and a little colored child, gave a very enjoyable musical programme at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last evening. The affair was the first entertainment held by the circle of King's Daughters at the church. The programme included solos and choruses and included a number of the famous old jubilee songs. They were well rendered and much enjoyed by the audience.

CHANGE ON THE CENTRAL.

Carpenter Shops to Be Moved From Jersey City to Somerville.

The Central Railroad Company has decided to remove their carpenter shops from Jersey City to Somerville, using a part of the long building opposite the station for their workshop and office, and the adjoining ground for their lumber yard. Their present superintendent, G. Q. Dolliver, will be retained and continue to serve the company as in the past.

The Sword for Sampson Not Chosen.
(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, April 19.—There is friction between the members of the commission appointed by the Legislature to buy a sword for presentation to Rear-Admiral Sampson Governor Voorhees and Senator Ketcham dislike the design of the sword furnished by a Philadelphia house, and favor a design submitted by Tiffany & Co., of New York. The commission met today, and there was a deadlock on the award of the contract. The commission will meet again next week and try to settle the matter. The sword chosen will cost $2 000.

To Assist Relief Association.

Friday evening a literary and musical entertainment will be given in All Souls church, Park avenue, for the benefit of the Plainfield Relief Association

THE LOST IS FOUND; PASTOR WILL MARRY.

His Affianced Bride Went to His Sister's Home.

AND DIDN'T NOTIFY PASTOR.

GEORGE VOEHL FOUND HER THERE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

This Afternoon Mark Pastor and His Bride, Miss Georgina Mongionetto, Just Arrived From Italy, will be Wedded in New York—Great Rejoicing When the Missing Young Woman Was Found

Mark Pastor's hopes are soon to be realized. Unless some sudden obstacle intervenes he will be married to the young woman of his choice this afternoon. They would have been married Monday only the young woman mysteriously disappeared and was not found until last night.

The circumstances of Pastor's hopes and the disappearance of his affianced bride was related exclusively in yesterday's Daily Press. Pastor is a driver for George Voehl, the West Front street baker, and was expecting Giorgina Mongionetto on the French liner La Touraine. She reached the harbor in safety but in his attempt to meet her at the immigrant depot at Ellis Island, they were separated in the rush and hurry and she left without meeting him.

Before departing she had told the agent that she was going to Plainfield. So he told Pastor when the latter inquired for his expected bride. But she didn't come to Plainfield and Pastor hunted for her in vain.

Yesterday afternoon, Pastor and his employer went to New York with the intention of informing the authorities there. Now Pastor has a married sister who lives in East Orange. Miss Mongionetto knew her and where she lived. Mr. Voehl suggested that it would be well to look there before reporting the matter. He went to East Orange yesterday afternoon and there, sure enough, was the young woman, wondering why Pastor was so slow in coming to meet her.

There was a time of great rejoicing when Pastor found that the young woman was not lost in the wilds of New York or Hoboken. This morning he went over to East Orange and the marriage will take place this afternoon or evening, probably in New York.

PAID FARE WITH HIS LIFE

TRAMP KILLED IN A WRECK ON THE CENTRAL.

Train Broke In Two Near Lebanon and When Two Sections Came Together the Cars Were Badly Wrecked and Strewn.

A wreck occurred on the Central Railroad at Lebanon Monday night about 11 o'clock, which delayed travel on the freight and coal tracks for a few hours. An East bound coal train, drawn by engine No. 392, and in charge of Conductor Stewart McBurth, of Phillipsburg, and Engineer George B. Martin, broke in two just west of the station, because of a bad axle, and piled up the wreckage in a great heap on the outside tracks.

Just east of the station the rear end of the train came crashing into the forward end, and piled up some more cars. It was several hours before the debris was cleared away.

Three tramps were riding in one of the cars, and one of them was instantly killed. He was apparently a German, although he was so mangled and crushed that his features could scarcely be seen. From one of the others it was learned that he was about twenty-one years of age, and had only been in this country a few months. The remains were turned over to the county, and buried yesterday.

BOY RETURNED HOME.

Little Oliver Peel Agrees to Go to His Mother.

Little Oliver Peel, the ten-year-old boy who ran away from home and was subsequently turned over to the police and brought before City Judge Runyon Monday morning, has returned to his home once more. When the case was brought to the attention of City Judge Runyon he put it in the hands of Overseer of the Poor Hansen. The latter found a home for the lad, where he was to go yesterday.

Meanwhile the mother of the child saw the authorities and the lad expressed a willingness to return to his home again and resume his old duties. Deeming home the best place for him Judge Runyon sent the boy there.

Bishop to Officiate.

Right Rev. John Scarborough, the Bishop of the diocese, will officiate in the Church of the Heavenly Rest Monday evening next at 8 o'clock.

RAILROADED TO ASYLUM

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN'S PLIGHT AROUSES INDIGNATION.

Suddenly Taken From His Business and Sent to Asylum—Friends Believe He is Sane—An Investigation to be Made.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 19.—Peter Jones, a fish dealer, of Easton avenue, has been taken into custody by Constable Townsend on a warrant or commitment of Judge Strong and taken to the insane asylum at Trenton. The case has aroused the most intense excitement among the residents of the vicinity, and strenuous efforts are to be made to secure the release of Jones. His friends declare that he is sane, and that there are no grounds whatever for his commitment to the insane asylum.

A number of prominent people of the city who have been customers of Jones have interested themselves in the matter and the affair will be brought to the attention of the courts and of the management of the asylum. Jones is a man of middle age and has been considered somewhat eccentric. It is claimed that this was due to domestic trouble.

He was at work in his shop when the constable entered, placed handcuffs on his wrists and took him to Trenton on the next train. Jones protested loudly and created a scene. Investigation of the matter discloses the fact that Freeholder Michael McFadden indorsed the application for a commission of physicians. The application was made by relatives of the man. Drs. Skillman and Meacham examined him and on their evidence Jones was committed by Judge Strong.

Dr. Meacham said that the examination had been brief and that the commitment was a probationary one While Jones is at the asylum an expert examination will be made, and at the end of ten days he will be either released or permanently committed. Dr. Atkinson, of Hardenberg street, has interested himself in the matter, and he and a number of others are working to have Jones released.

FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Martell and Friends Had a Pleasant Time.

A pleasant event occurred in the borough last evening when Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Martell, of Craig place, celebrated the first anniversary of their marriage. The house was appropriately decorated for the occasion with choice spring flowers and roses.

A happy diversion from social chat was the appearance of John H Carney, who entertained the guests with some of his best selections. Another feature was the instrumental music by Wm. Smith, of Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Martell were well remembered by their relatives and friends, who brought them many handsome and useful presents as reminders of the happy event. There were present guests from New York, Brooklyn, Connecticut, Plainfield and the borough.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL

Evangelist Taylor Closed His Meetings at Hope Chapel.

With last night's service the evangelistic meetings in Hope chapel closed. Today Evangelist Taylor leaves for Newark, and later for Colgate University, where he will finish his studies. The ten days' meetings have left an impression upon all those who have attended them, and more work has been done in a quiet way than is really known about.

Over fifty young and middle-aged have risen for an interest in the prayers of the evangelist and the pastor, and there are many more who are feeling deeply on the subject of their soul's salvation. It is said by the officers of the chapel that this has been the most successful revival ever held there, and the results are looked for in the future.

NO INDICTMENT AGAINST LEHIGH.

Grand Jury Takes No Action on the West Dunellen Wreck.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 19—The Middlesex county Grand Jury of the April term ended its session and handed in its indictments yesterday afternoon.

It is understood that no indictment was found against any of the employes or officials of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and no presentment was made relative to the fatal wreck on that road at West Dunellen in January last.

SUICIDE AT SOMERVILLE.

FRANK GOERNER SHOOTS HIMSELF IN HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S CAFE.

His Wife Had Supper Waiting for Him When Told of the Desperate Act—Employed as a Special Insurance Agent.
(Special to The Daily Press)

Somerville, April 19—Frank Goerner, aged fifty, a well-known resident, committed suicide at Kuhn's Waldorf Cafe last night by shooting himself. Mr. Goerner arrived from New York on the 6:05 train and went immediately to the Waldorf, which is kept by his brother-in-law, Lenus Kuhn. He went to a rear room, and a moment later the bartender heard a shot. He found Goerner sitting upright with a revolver in his right hand. The bullet had penetrated his right temple and had killed him instantly. Financial difficulties had led to it.

Goerner was formerly connected with the Appleton Publishing Company, in New York, but had recently been a special agent for the Prudential Insurance Company, of Newark, with headquarters at Elizabeth. When his wife was informed she had the supper table set for him.

NO TRACE OF DR. TRACY.

He Did Not Go to the Summer Lodge in Canada, as Was Supposed.

Dr. Robert S. Tracy, the missing son of J. Evarts Tracy, of this city, has not yet been found. It will be remembered that he disappeared from a sanitarium at Saranac Lake, N. Y., last week Wednesday. A telegram was received yesterday stating that he had been seen near a cabin on the road to Lake Placid, and the searching parties hastened to that place to ascertain if he was there. Investigation disclosed the fact that the story was untrue. There was also a telegram received from Toronto, which gives the family assurance that the missing young man has not been to the summer lodge owned by his father and located in Canada.

E. C. Perkins, of this city, a member of the searching party, is expected to return home this evening, and it is to be hoped that he will have some news. Outside of this there are no new developments in the case.

An Interesting Evening.

"An Evening of Reading and Music," to be given at All Souls' Unitarian church Friday, April 21st, promises to be an entertainment full of interest. The elocutionist, Miss Elizabeth Lord, of the Emerson School of Oratory in Boston, will be heard for the first time in Plainfield, and the programme will include also some of Miss Caroline Minturn Hall's charming French recitations, and vocal and violin music by Plainfield musicians who are rarely induced to appear in public. The proceeds of the entertainment will be used for the benevolent work of the Women's Alliance, which is at present interested in aiding one of the charitable societies of the city in some practical details of its work.

At the Christian Church Fair.

The fair in the Christian church was continued last night and was better attended than on the opening night. There was a pleasing programme presented, consisting of piano selections by Prof. Carpenter, vocal solos by J. W. Turner and Miss Etta Raybert, and other attractions. Among them was the roly-poly game, for which prizes were awarded. Tonight the breach of promise case will be tried. Law students Nash and McCann are on one side, and Doliver and Linbarger are on the other.

TROUBLE IN PAYING STATE VOLUNTEERS

Quartermaster-General Donnelly is Kept Busy.

DIFFICULTY OF SAILORS.

NAVAL RESERVES' PAPERS ARE DELAYED AT WASHINGTON.

No Way Has Been Devised by Which the Sailors Will be Able to Draw State Pay Until They Can Present Their Discharges—A Great Deal of Work Before the Many Checks Can be Sent Out.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 19—Quartermaster-General Donnelly, acting as Paymaster General for the payment of the extra compensation of the New Jersey volunteers, is having his own troubles these days with the demands for money which are pouring in on him by every mail. The General has a force of clerks at work and has occasional help from the office of the Adjutant-General, and they all find enough to keep time from hanging on their hands.

Despite the published announcements, many of the former soldiers seem to think that they should receive their money without delay now that the money has been set aside for the payment. Every mail brings to the General requests by the dozen for the money, and only a few of the men comply with the requirements that their discharges shall accompany the letters.

Meantime the clerks in the General's office are busy looking up the record of the claimants and figuring out the amount that is due to each. When this work shall have been finished the checks will be made out and forwarded to the addresses given in the letters. It will probably be well on toward the end of the week before the checks shall be sent out, even to those of the soldiers whose discharges were sent in early.

The matter of paying the members of the Naval Reserve presents a rather more difficult problem, owing to the fact that the sailor men sent their discharges to Washington several weeks ago in order that they might receive the two months' extra or furlough pay allowed by the National Government for their services in the late war. Until the discharges are returned from the National capital the bluejackets will be unable to comply with the requirements of the State authorities in the matter of filing their discharges with Gen. Donnelly.

The General is in receipt of a number of letters from the sailors asking him to devise some way in which they can get their money without having to wait for the National authorites to return the documents, but up to date the acting paymaster has been unable to solve the problem, and the sailormen are likely to wait until they can furnish the official evidence of their services in the late war.

TO APPRAISE LAND VALUE.

Trouble Between Rahway Man and Pennsylvania Railroad.

Former County Clerk John L. Crowell and Receiver of Taxes Charles E. Reed, of Rahway, together with former City Treasurer John W. Whelan, of Elizabeth, have been appointed a commission by Judge VanSyckel to determine the value of a piece of land on Irving street, Rahway, belonging to D. B Dunham, a carriage manufacturer, and which the Pennsylvania Railroad took possession of in 1882 for its fourth track, and would not relinquish claim to it until beaten by Mr. Dunham in an ejectment suit brought by him against the railroad in the Union county court. Surveyor Clark, of Rahway, who died yesterday, was the chief witness for Mr. Dunham, and his testimony decided the case against the railroad company. The commission will meet next Monday morning at the Hotel Wilson and assess the damages.

WOULD SUE FOR PEACE.

The State Department Confident the Filipinos are Ready to Quit Fighting

A SPEEDY SETTLEMENT.

General Lagarda Has Declared That a Committee of 22 Has Been Appointed to Confer.

Purposes of Committee to Secure as Large Autonomous Rights as Possible—Staff of a Peaceful Settlement, and Insist That Offices Be For Americans and Filipinos Only—Arevalo in Manila.

Washington, April 19.—The State Department is confident that a committee of Filipinos will make propositions for peace. The report that General Lagarda has declared that a committee of twenty-two has been appointed to confer with the Peace Commission is regarded as indicating that a speedy settlement is at hand.

The purposes of this committee are said to be to obtain as large autonomous rights for the Filipino people as possible; to bring about peaceful relations between the insurgents and the American authorities, and to insist that Americans and Filipinos shall occupy public offices.

It is known that Arevalo, a former aid to Aguinaldo, is now in Manila. He said in an interview that if the Americans send emissaries to Aguinaldo now he thinks a peaceful solution of the present troubles is probable.

On the other hand influential Americans in Manila think that this commission, which is composed of rich Filipinos, is eager to protect property and has little influence with the insurgents.

International considerations are behind the determination of the President not to call for the 35,000 volunteers authorized by the Army Reorganization law.

These considerations may have to yield, however, to the pressure being brought to bear from all parts of the country to have him authorize the enlistment of the additional force. Governor Voorhees of New Jersey, accompanied by Captain Gilmore, of the Fourth New Jersey Infantry, yesterday urged the President to take such action, saying that in case the volunteers were required, New Jersey stands ready to furnish a regiment.

The President, however, feels that the effect on the situation in Luzon from an international point of view would be bad, as showng that this government had underestimated the strength of the insurrection. Besides there is a strong feeling in army circles that the regular force should be utilized in putting down the rebellion.

The Chicago Sails For Africa.

New York, April 19.—The protected cruiser Chicago has sailed from the Brooklyn Navy Yard on a voyage that will carry the American flag into strange, old-fashioned ports that once were visited by the Yankee cutters, but where the Stars and Stripes have not been seen for years.

It is estimated that her log will show fully 20,000 miles, or knots, when she returns to New York, which is expected by next October.

The Azores will be the first land touched. Thence Gibraltar will be touched at, and the Mediterranean traversed to Port Said, pass through the Suez Canal, stop at Aden, and then sail down he east coast of Africa to Mozambique. From Mozambique the cruiser will proceed to Cape Town, and from there to St. Helena. From St. Helena she will cross the Atlantic to Rio de Janeiro, and from there will return to New York, touching at the Barbadoes.

Rear Admiral Howison's flag will be carried, though Captain P. H. Cooper is in command. The Admiral's staff is: Flag Lieutenant, H. C. Poundstone, Flag Secretary, Lieutenant Whittlesey; the other officers are Lieutenant-Commander, N. R. Harris; Lieutenants, W. W. Rose, W. S. Benson and Thomas Menefee; Surgeon, Howard Wells; Paymaster, R. T. M. Ball; Chief Engineer, R. Denig; Lieutenants, H. P. Jones, Philip Williams and W. H. Buck; Passed Assistant Engineers, J. S. Patton and John Rice; Passed Assistant Surgeon Whiting, Pay Clerk, Spratley; Naval Cadets, Helm, Woods, Evans, Combs and Thomas.

While the Chicago is the oldest of her class in the navy, in point of construction, her equipment is probably the most up-to-date of any warship in our navy, taken all in all.

For three years or over, including the period of the Spanish war, she laid in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, being rehabilitated as to almost every portion of her interior, including even her decks, and extending to her masts, one of which has been fitted with a modern fighting top.

Reed May Become a New York Lawyer.

New York, April 19.—Speaker Thomas B Reed may become a New York lawyer. He has been asked to become the head of a law firm in this city, and is considering the offer. As an inducement a guarantee of $50,000 a year has been made to him.

Many Indians Die of Smallpox.

Guthrie, Okla., April 19.—The Sac and Fox Indian tribe is being rapidly depleted by smallpox. There were 300 members in the tribe, and since Feb 1 132 of them have died of the disease.

Will Not Quit Subsidizing Steamers.

London, April 19.—Mr. Goshen in the Commons said the Admiralty did not intend to abandon steamship subsidies.

Four runaway accidents, in which seven persons were injured, one probably fatally, occurred within five minutes of each other in three funeral processions at Cavalry Cemetery, St. Louis. The following were injured: Miles J. Bradley, cabman, internally and probably fatally; Mrs. Meagher and young son, Miss Nellie Conway, Mrs. Ellen O'Shea and Mamie and Ralph O'Shea.

Rufus King, a prominent lawyer of Chicago, died suddenly of congestion of the brain. He was born at Ithaca, N. Y., December 24, 1822. He was the father of Gen. Charles King. In the Civil War he was a Brigadier-General of Volunteers.

New York, April 19.—The will of the late Charles E. Tillford, of the firm of Pork & Tillford, was filed for probate in the Surrogate's office. INJUNCTION GOES AT WHEELING, W. VA.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 19.—Government by injunction has its most advanced exponent of Judge Jackson of the Supreme Court here. A week ago, upon the application of the Wheeling Street Railway Company, he granted an injunction against "John Smith and others unknown" from obstructing or damaging the cars of the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs claim the protection of the United States Court upon the plea that they are carriers of mails and were engaged in interstate commerce. It was on these grounds the injunction was issued.

Washington, April 19.—The War Deparment authorities have decided to make a material reduction in the military strength in Porto Rico. There are now about 5,000 regular troops on the island, and it is believed that not more than 3,000 are needed. Although not finally settled, it is more than likely that the Eleventh Infantry Infantry and two or more batteries of the Seventh Artillery wil be relieved from further duty.

BEEF REPORT WILL EXONERATE CONTRACTORS.

Washington, April 19.—The Army Beef Court of Inquiry will throw the responsibility for unfit rations when delivered to the troops upon those officers of the army who had charge of their transportation and care after receipt from the contractors.

THE SAMOAN COMMISSION

Bartlett Tripp, the American Member Arrives in Washington From So. Dakota.

WILL HAVE UNIT RULE.

Arrangements for Trip Across the Continent Have Not Yet Been Completed.

Terms of the Convention Make the Commissioners Not Only Judges But Governors—Supercede All Former Authority—Mr. Tripp Anticipates No Difficulty in Effecting an Agreement.

Washington, April 19.—Bartlett Tripp, the American member of the Samoan Commission, called at the White House and received his instructions from President McKinley and Secretary Hay. Some aditional instructions may be given, but they will be verbal. The condition of affairs in Samoa was discussed to some extent. Secretary Hay entertained the three Samoan Commissioners, Mr. Eliot, Baron von Sternberg and Mr. Tripp, at luncheon.

The arrangements for the journey across the continent have not been completed yet, but it is expected that the Commissioners will leave at different times and meet at San Francisco. In speaking of the Commission and its duties, Mr. Tripp said he anticipated no difficulty whatever in settling the Samoan matter in manner satisfactory to all the nations participating.

"The question of the unit rule," he said, judging from the reports in the newspapers, has been somewhat misunderstood. It would be very difficult to have a tripartite government without a unit rule, for if two of the governments were to hold the balance of power and their decision should prevail, the tripartite government would immediately fall and become a majority government. In asking that the unanimity feature of the Berlin treaty should be preserved in the dealing of the Commission Germany made no unreasonable request, and when the American and English Governments assented they did not make what could be strictly caled a concession. They simply agreed to continue the arrangement under which the tripartite government had been formed and conducted up to the present time. Any other arrangement would have been an abrogation of the Berlin treaty, and would have called for a new convention between the Governments.

"I do not think that any of the three Commissioners have ever visited Samoa and we will go there with unprejudiced minds, something very necessary in this case as judges should have no bias.

"I was somewhat surprised to learn that by the terms of the convention providing for the Commission we are not only to be Judges, but Governors. From the moment we land the government made by the Consul-Generals ceases and we supercede all former authority. This will render our task much more difficult. Our decrees will be the supreme law of the land. This is another reason for the preservation of the unity rule. It does not follow, however, that because of the unanimity clause one Government shall prevail against the other two, any more than the wishes of any two shall be paramount. It must be give and take on all sides, as in any tripartite or dual government. A man's household is a good example of this, where the man and his wife form the dual government and without allowances on both sides there can be no harmony."

Mr. Tripp said he had no idea how long the Commission would be gone or what the extent of its labors would be. The Commissioners hope to establish a suitable government and arrange matters so that there would be no cause for future trouble. Speaking of a division of the islands he said this question rested on the possibility of dividing the islands so that each nation would be satisfied with its allotment.

King and Queen in Peril of Death.

Rome, April 19.—The King and Queen of Itay escaped death by a narrow margin. The faling of a railway station roof at Cagliairi, Sardina, was the cause. King Humbert had not many minutes before taking his seat in the royal train, after handing Queen Margharita into the railway carriage when the roof of the train shed fell in An employe of the railway company was caught in the falling mass of girders and roofing and crushed to death. A number of persons who had gathered to see the departure of the King and Queen were seriously injured.

Candidate for Governor Under Arrest.

New York, April 19.—Henry W. McDonald, candidate for Governor on the free silver ticket at the last election, was a prisoner in the Centre Street Police Court charged with passing worthless checks. The complaint was made by Irving J. Waldron, of No. 149 Broadway. He alleges that McDonald gave him a check for $50 on the Improvement & Investment Company, at No. 31 Broadway, and that it was found to be bogus.

Wheeling's Railway Strike.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 19.—The strike of the trolley men on the Wheeling railway lines appears to have settled down to a permanent basis. The last strike lasted three months and resulted in bloodshed and much trouble. Thus far no very great disorder has been stirred up. One of the features of the fight is the effort of the company to operate its cars under the protection of United States marshalls.

Cuban Bandits Captured.

Washington, April 19.—An interesting story reached the War Department from Santiago about a hand-to-hnd encounter between Major Duncan B. Harrison of the Ninth Immunes and Prudencio Breal, a notorious guerrilla chief, commonly known as Trocon, or Big Stump. Breal's gang of bandits had killed Andrew Gattshalk, a teamster, and Major Harrison, with seven men, was sent to capture the gang. The Americans mounted on mules, overtook the gang near Santa Ana after two days' trailing. In the fight which occurred two bandits were killed and three wounded. The rest fled, but Harrison and his men caught Breal and some others. Breal showed fight. He is a negro, 6 feet 7 inches tall. He clinched with Harrison, who is something of a giant himself. Harrison bore the bandit to the ground and bound him, with the assistance of others. It was found that Harrison had been shot in the leg and he suffered severely during the ride on a mule's back to Santiago, seventy miles distant. On the return trip two of the captured bandits were identified as the men who had killed Gattshalk. They attempted to escape and were killed. Breal is known in Santiago province as the executioner. He boasts of having killed 103 Spaniards and several Americans.

THE HARRISBURG CONTEST.

Magee Heads a Break to Jones of Pittsburgh for Senator.

ANTIS HOLD CONFERENCE

Seventy-Eighth Ballot For Senator Shows Defection of Fourteen Votes From Quay's Ranks.

In the Trial of Former Senator Quay For Conspiracy to Defraud the People's Bank Judge Stops Testimony of Alleged Operations Before 1896—Statute of Limitation in Force.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 19.—The general conferences of all Republican members favorable to the breaking of the Senatorial deadlock by the election of any Republican other than M. S. Quay was held in the Senate Chamber Tuesday morning. Senator Scott of Luzerne and Representative Hosack of Allegheny were elected Chairman and secretary respectively. Both have been steadily voting for Quay. Resolutions were adopted expressing the sense of those present that a Senator should be elected and that the interests of a party were paramount to the interests of any man.

Contrary to their usual custom, they had not agreed upon a candidate to be voted for and entered the conference open handed, agreeing to support any Republican except Col. Quay. It was Senator Magee who moved that in the interest of harmony the vote of those present be cast for B. F. Jones of Pittsburg, former Chairman of the Republican National Committee. This was adopted without a dissenting voice, and the meeting adjourned to reconvene at the call of the Chair.

Col. James M. Guffey, the leader of the Democrats arrived here. He has troubles of his own. Suddenly, as in a night, strong opposition has arisen to his leadership

The fifty-six members of the Legislature who have been opposing the reelection of ex-Senator Quay held a meeting Tuesday morning which proved one of the most pleasant of the many daily sessions of the anti-Quay organization since the beginning of the Legislature The principal feature of the meeting was the presentation by the members of the organization of a handsome silver, gold-lined, loving cup to Senator William Flinn, who is popularly known as the Chief of the Insurgents. The presentation speech was made by Gen. William H. Koontz.

Senator Flinn was taken completely by surprise that indicated that he appreciated the sentiment of the gift most thoroughly.

The defection from Quay was as follows: Senators Crawford, Losch, Magee, and Scott, and Representatives Clark, Hosack, Klumpp, McFarlane, McLarn, McWhinney, Nisbet, Robinson, Shaw, Srodes. A total of 14.

The ballot resulted as follows: Quay 83; Jenks, 85; Jones, 69; total, 247. Necessary to elect, 124.

It is estimated that there will be a further break from Quay Wednesday, but it is doubtful whether or not his vote can be reduced sufficiently to make him the minority candidate. The present programme is to take several ballots each day, but the Quay men and Democrats may defeat any move to change the rule which provides for taking only one ballot daily.

The Quay "Conspiracy" Trial.

Philadelphia, April 19.—In the trial of ex-United States Senator Quay, the defense confined Mr. Goldsmith to the regular books of the bank and he said $52,505.12 was the total loans charged against Mr. Quay.

Mr. Shields claimed that the witness had no right to charge against Senator Quay certain purchases of stock since they were bought through a local Stock brokerage firm and carried by them on margin, and that not a dollar was loaned by the bank on the transactions.

Mr. Shields brought from the witness the admission that the apparent loan of $57,505.12 should be reduced $14,..50 received through the closing of a deal in United States Gas stock; that the books that show a further loan of $5,000 charged to Senator Quay was paid by a man named Andrews; that a loan of $18,955 charged to Senator Quay was apparently a loan to Gov. Hastings; that an item of $3,200 in Senator Quay's loan account was an obligation of a man named Ahern; that other items aggregating $15,500 charged to Senator Quay were obligations of other people.

These successive admissions of the witness, Mr. Shields argued, showed that Senator Quay was an indorser and therefore only a tentative debtor of the bank.

Liggett & Myers Sell to the Trust.

St. Louis, April 19.—President Wetmore, of the Liggett-Myers Tobacco Company, who has persistently denied that the Trust would buy its factory, acknowledges that the sale has been closed, that he has resigned his position and sold his stock, and that the new owners will elect a new Board of Directors. The consideration is $12-500,000, although Mr. Wetmore says he received $15,000,000 for his stock. There is now only one independent tobacco factory in St. Louis, that of Christian Pepers which is doubling its capacity to put up a fight against the Trust.

Gomez Deserted By Another General.

Havana, April 19.—General Nodarse has joined General Rodriguez in his revolt against General Gomez. Nodarse had been relied upon by General Lee to organize a rural guard in Havana province. Gomez advises the speedy organization of the rural guards, as the brigandage has hurt business in the island.

Can't Show Freaks.

Chicago, April 19.—The dime museums in this city are in despair over the new law prohibitng the exhibition of freaks in public.

The freaks themselves are not so much worried, except those with superfluous limbs and bodies and the ossified men.

It is believed that the freaks can be still made legal exhibits by assigning them lightt asks about the museums.

ARMED CRAZY MAN ON TRAIN

Fires Four Shots at the Passengers But Hits No One—Is a New Yorker.

Kansas City, Mo., April 19.—A crazy New Yorker, with a big revolver, created great excitement on the fast Rock Island train from Denver He shot a hole through the hat of a deputy sheriff and fired at the passengers, but injured no one. He was turned over to the authorities at Topeka. Papers in his pocket showed him to be William Hennessy, of New York. He had a ticket from Denver to Kansas City.

The train was in charge of Conductor James Martin. Hennessy had attracted no attention until just before daybreak, when he arose from his seat in the chair car, walked to the door and jumped off. Conductor Martin saw him and pulled the signal to stop. As the train was slowly backing up the trainmen saw the man get up and scramble through a big barbed wire fence and start running across the prairie. Conductor Martin and half a dozen passengers gave chase. After running half a mile the trainmen came up to Hennessy, who had fallen. He was carried back to the train and complained greatly of pains in his back and sides. He appeared quite rational. Hennessy asked the officer to get him a drink. As the officer walked back after the drink, Hennessy slipped the cartridges into the pistol, and walked hurriedly to the front end of the coach. The officer started after him, but Hennessy swung the big pistol and ordered him to stand back. The officer supposed the pistol was unloaded and started to get him. Hennessy fired and the bullet tore a big hole in the officer's hat and lifted it off his head. The coach was nearly filled with passengers, who slid down in the seats. Hennessy fired three shots more. One bullet hit the far end of the coach and bounding back fell into the coat pocket of a shoe salesman from St. Louis, who was cowering behind a seat. The shoe man shouted as the bullet struck him, and said afterwards that he thought it had gone through him.

Hennessy stood there snapping the pistol as Conductor Martin came in. Then he handed him the pistol and becames submissive. At Topeka he was was turned over to the officials. It is believed that he was badly hurt by his jump from the train.

May Upset the Glass Trade.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 19.—One powerful branch of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union—the flint pressed chimney makers—and the trade itself are at a loss to devise plans to stem the demoralizing influences of a simple little invention, a chimney-making machine. The trade is undergoing a revolution, and the prospects are so unpromising for thousands of chimney workers that the organization has issued a circular asking all of its locals to come to the rescue. The new machine has disconcerted the manufacturers whose plants have been equipped at great cost with the old machinery.

The new machine turns out at a shop cost of about $10.56 1,500 chimneys of the largest size. To operate the machine three gatherers and two small boys are necessary, and it does the work of two dozen highly paid blowers. Five moulds are aranged on a revolving table. Two moulds are skipped at each turn, thus giving the empty ones an opportunity to cool before being used again.

The manufacturers who are in a position to do so are preparing to introduce the machine into their factories.

It remains to be seen what course others wil pursue. The life of the glass workers' organization is threatened, because already the machine has been tested in the moulding of other ware. Within the next few weeks there will be some effort on the part of the workers to minimize the efforts of the invention. They are considering the subject in every local organization in the country.

[illegible] Buy [illegible] Rifles.

New York, April 19.—An order for 32,000 military rifles of high power has been placed by the Mexican Government in this city. This order was the largest one placed in this city by a foreign power in the last twenty-five years. Among ordinance men it is attributed directly to the results of the Spanish-American war.

The contract for manufacturing the new arms has been made with the Remington Works at Ilion, N. Y. Two officers of the Mexican artillery, Col. Sarvin and Lieut. Jiminez, have been detailed, it is announced, to superintend the work of manufacture for their Governmnt.

The arms called for by Mexico will be of the single shot, small-calibre type, capable of long range. They are intended for the use of the infantry. The action of Mexico in taking up with a non-magazine gun is a surprse to ordnance men here.

Roger Williams May Return.

Boston, April 19.—The Massachusetts Legislature assigned to the General Court the petition praying that the sentence of banishment from Massachusetts against Rodger Williams be revoked. Roger Williams was banished from Massachusetts in 1635 and the sentence as imposed shut him out from ever returning to the State. The petition which asked for a relief from this sentence was drawn up at a Baptst conference in this city.

Capt. O'Neil's Body Found.

Washngton ,April 19.—Col. Moore, of the Quartermaster's Department, received word from Cuba that the body of Captain William O'Neil, of the Rough Riders, who was killed in the charge of San Juan Hill in the fight before Santiago, has at last been found. Captain O'Neil was Sheriff of Prescott, Ariz., his home, and resigned at the outbreak of hostilities to take a commission in the Rough Riders.

Snyder Canal Case to Next Grand Jury.

Little Falls, N. Y., April 19.—The case of former Canal Superintendent Snyder, charged with malfeasance in office, will be precented to the December Grand Jury in Herkimer County. The present Grand Jury, which has been considering the case, failed to find an indictment.

Herr Pollack, engineer and electrician, has discovered, says a Vienna correspondent, a means of telegraphing 60,000 words over a single wire.

Need of More Carriers.

There is no public institution which has such direct and constant dealings with everyone in the community as the postoffice and therefore it is little wonder that complaint is heard frequently as to the postal service. The use of the mails is closely linked to both the commercial and social worlds, and is so important and essential an adjunct that any deviation from the ideas of what one person thinks should be maintained immediately causes a grumbling disposition from those effected. As a rule every person looks at the postal service as it concerns their personal needs and convenience, but the officials in charge can scarcely consider it from that standpoint. They must administer in the application of axiom "the greatest good for the greatest number" with the facilities at hand. And it is in this spirit that Postmaster Bird is conducting the local postoffice. Mr. Bird, however, is frank to acknowledge that the service is not such as Plainfield should have. He recognizes that one of the important needs of the local office is a larger staff of carriers.

But Mr. Bird is grappling with this difficulty in the best manner that is possible. As stated in the Daily Press Monday he visited Washington in company with Congressman Fowler and had a long personal interview with the official who has charge of the carrier force of the service. According to the ratio of carriers allowed to population Plainfield has its quota, but in some instances it is not right to hold too closely to an established rule, and this is one of them. Mr. Bird pointed out the defects of this system as applied to Plainfield. The city and borough, both of which are served from the one office, are spread over a vast amount of ground—much greater, in fact, than the cities with about the same population. The Department figures that every carrier should serve 2 000 people, but considering the topography of Plainfield it is impossible for the local carriers to do this successfully.

What is needed in Plainfield is the formation of three or more new districts, and the appointment of that many more carriers to serve them. That would allow a reduction in the size of the biggest routes now and would result in giving Plainfield the postal service that has long been desired.

Mr. Bird is doing his best to bring about such a change and it is to be hoped that his efforts will be crowned with success

THE GRAVE OF HANOVER.

Hanover, the king of race horses, is buried on a gently sloping hillside within a few rods of McGrathiana mansion, near Lexington, Ky. This magnificent horse died on March 23 and hundreds of turfmen and lovers of horses have visited his grave this spring. Mr. Young, who owned the horse, and Frank Sanders, his groom, talk feelingly about the noble animal who has for years held a front position in horsedom.

No Need Of It.

James. Sisser has applied to the Somerset county court for a saloon license to be put in operation in the vacant store on the Somerset street bridge. The proposed location of this new saloon is ten feet inside the county line. With proper judgment and discretion Judge Bartine laid the matter of granting or refusing it over for a few days in order to learn the sentiment of the residents in the vicinity in reference to the matter.

Inasmuch as there are already two licenses operating within fifty feet of the location of the proposed saloon—one in the city and one in the borough—it is obvious to those who know the situation that another one is not needed. In fact, it would be decidedly bad policy to have a saloon established in this vacant store for several reasons.

There is no need of another saloon in the borough, and especially at this particular point. Judge Bartine will do well to refuse the application.

According to the Bound Brook State Centre, "the Democratic leaders figure on capturing a majority of the counties next Fall. Senators will be elected in eight. They are Essex, Monmouth, Union, Somerset, Gloucester, Salem and Camden, represented by Republicans, and Warren, represented by a Democrat. The Democratic leader believe it is possible to capture Essex, Monmouth, Somerset and Salem from the Republicans. That will give the control of the Senate. With the Essex Senator will go the eleven members; that gives them the house. At the next session of the Legislature a State comptroller and a State treasurer are to be elected. The present incumbents seek another term. The Democrats understand that to capture the Legislature gives them these two offices, which are the most desirable of all in the State House from a political point of view."

The Philadelphia Record has the following to say of the auxiliary cruiser Badger, on which the New Jersey Naval Reserves, including several Plainfielders, served during the war with Spain:

The auxiliary cruiser Badger, which brought the body of Rear Admiral Spotts from the Falkland Islands to San Francisco made the 14,000-mile voyage from Hampton Roads in seventy-four days—rather a noteworthy achievement for a single screw steamer with engines of only 3,200 indicated horse power. Like the Oregon, the Badger has evidently a large reserve of power over and above the calculations of naval engineers and constructors.

Here is a pointer for the officials of Plainfield: The city of Manchester, England, has added to the numerous other enterprises conducted under municipal direction for the benefit of taxpayers, manufactories of soap, tallow, oil glue and fertilizer. These industries are operated in connection with the garbage and sewerage departments.

"Only the Faithful Few"—that describes the attendance at the last meeting of the Board of Trade. What a pity it is that Plainfield cannot maintain a live Board of Trade? There is not another city in New Jersey that presents more natural advantages for increasing in size and importance, commercially, than Plainfield.

Mr. Croker has taken considerable force out of the work of the investigating committee of the New York legislature by suggesting that Senator Platt would make an interesting witness in replying to the same line of questions which have been applied to him.

If necessity requires it all Jerseymen will be glad to think there is a regiment of State soldiers who are ready to go to the Philippines to fight for their country, but it would be much better for all concerned if the necessity does not present itself.

The first Common Council of Summit under the new city charter has been organized with a Republican majority, who named Councilman-at-large Charles S. Day for president. That makes Day a bigger man, for he will be a year there.

Mr. Croker can hardly be expected to stop to have his right arm cut off while he is engaged in washing his hands of the charges made against him.

The position which Gov. Voorhees has assumed in reference to State aid and protection to trusts shows that he is a political trimmer of the first class.

When it comes down to a fine point there is not a city in the country that could show an absolutely clean hand if it underwent the Mazeting process

The Newark Advertiser speaks of Governor Voorhees as a "trust-ridden Governor." Perhaps it may be a case of trust-bidden.

Alger sticks well.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Inasmuch as the flower season is now on and these attractions are seen in large numbers on the hats of the fair sex, it is to be hoped that the women will continue to have some regard for the persons that sit behind them in public gatherings. At the Y. M. C. A. entertainment last Monday evening this rule was not observed and many persons were inconvenienced greatly.

The will of Colonel John P. Dameron, of Randolph county, Mo., who died recently leaving property valued at $20,000, contained the following singular provision: "I have no wife or children, but if any come forward and lay claim to my property they will be given $25 each on establishment of that fact."

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The French stage has given us much that is unclean or else inane in the abused name of "art." It has also given as much that is admirable. If it has insulted us with the noisome "Camille," it has endowed us with "Diplomacy." This play is one of the comparatively few modern works that seem assured of classic rank. Its excellent construction, its fine blending of humor and pathos, its impressive "situations," its unerring denotement of both the frailties and the heroism of human nature—these and other qualities unite to make it a work of universal and perennial interest. The cast which will give this play in Music Hall Saturday evening, April 29th, has been chosen well in this case, and the capability of each member will be developed to its utmost, and those who attend may look for a creditable performance.

The vaudeville performance announced for Saturday night at Music Hall by the Manhattan Vaudeville Entertainers will be one of much interest and delight to all amusement seekers. Every member of the organization is a recognized artist and all have, prior to their engagement with this particular company, appeared at all the leading vaudeville houses in New York, and the majority now are booked for reappearance there at the conclusion of their present tour. The knowledge of this fact and the endorsement which this gives is guarantee of their standing and ability, and an entertainment of high merit may confidently be expected.

Report of Committee upon the Business of the Real Estate News Publication Co. of Bound Brook, N. J.

The undersigned committee appointed at a meeting of the Citizens, held at the office of the above Company on Monday, Feb. 6th, beg leave to report as follows:—

Our committee met at the office of the Company on Saturday afternoon the 11th inst., according to arrangement, and after a careful investigation of the books of the above Company, and careful consideration of the assets and liabilities, found that the statement made by A. G. Drake, Sec'y., of the Company, at the Citizens' meeting was in every respect true and correct.

We believe FIRST that the publication should be kept in Bound Brook for the good it can do for the Borough at large. SECOND. We find the good assets to be $855.00 as stated by Mr. Drake, and that is in excess of all liabilities, including the amount of capital stock paid in. Also that the earnings have been so far in excess of the expense that the 10 per cent dividends have been safely declared and paid.

THIRD. We believe the stock of the Company is a fair investment, and see no reason why the business should not do as well from a business point of view in the future as in the past, and even much better.

Respectfully submitted,
GAINS HOFFMAN

TAILOR MADE COSTUMES.

They Are Less Severe Than In Previous Years.

The tailor made gown is becoming less masculine not because it is less carefully constructed, but because fashion has decreed that it shall be more ornamental. Brightly colored material is employed, and there is a more or less elaborate decoration of stitched bands of silk or cloth. Jackets and little coats accompanying tailor made gowns are short, and turned down collars have the preference.

The new bolero, which terminates at the waist line, is very tight at the back, but falls straight in front, where it is opened or closed according to fancy.

The skirt opening at the side will be the favorite during the coming season, and the opening is either skillfully concealed so that it does not appear at all or is else rendered ornamental by some arrangement of buttons, galloon, passementerie or embroidered motifs.

The illustration given today depicts a tailor made gown of heliotrope cloth. The skirt is trimmed with applications of black passementerie simulating a redingote. The bodice is tight and has short basques sewed on at the waist line. The trimming, like that on the skirt, consists of applications of black passementerie outlining a sort of corselet and designing motifs upon the upper part of the sleeves. There is a scalloped valois collar, and the sleeves have flaring cuffs, sewed on. The hat of black chip is trimmed with velvet roses.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

BOLEROS.

They Are In the Van of Spring Fashions.

Bolero costumes take the lead this spring in tailor made and other styles. The skirt is of the already accepted flowing fashion, rippling around the lower edge, tight around the top, with the addition of trimming or a tunic, according to taste. The bolero, however, shows more variety, being open or closed, single or double breasted, straight in front or with darts, made with large or small, double or single revers. Every degree of elaboration is seen, from the plain bolero of cloth, finished with stitching and a coat collar and revers, to one covered with applications, embroideries and ruches. A chemisette is, of course, the essential accompaniment of such gowns, and the wearer may choose a simple percale shirt waist, a waist of fine nainsook with tucks, valenciennes lace and embroidery or a silk bodice adorned with all sorts of frippery. There are pretty mannish vests also to be worn under the bolero, with a little plastron showing at the top, like a man's shirt bosom.

Beside the bolero the usual jacket costumes appear, in which the upper garment has a more or less long basque. A hybrid between the jacket and the bolero is also seen, in which the bolero ceases to be one, in virtue of an apology for a basque about an inch long.

A cut is given which shows a gown of mauve cloth. The skirt is trimmed with three bands of pansy velvet with mauve spots, the bands being bordered by stitched straps of cloth. The open bolero has long fronts, with small gold buttons at each edge, and the collars and revers are of the dotted pansy velvet. The close sleeves have cuffs to match the revers. The plastron is of mauve taffeta horizontally plaited, across which is a sort of short vest of white cloth embroidered with gold. The hat of mauve straw is trimmed with pansy velvet and pansy ostrich plumes.

SOME MEXICAN WAYS.

They Would Seem Hardly the Proper Thing to a Yankee Housewife.

An American woman would grow gray-headed in a month if she attempted to keep house in Mexico on the same plan pursued by the native housewives. There are no water mains in the average town, and water for domestic purposes is drawn from the public fountains and sold from door to door by leather-aproned venders, who carry it in picturesque vessels of hide or pottery. Pulque and milg are brought to market in skins of sheep, pigs, and goats, which are stripped off the carcass by cutting only the neck and legs and turned inside out, all the openings but one being tied up securely. The natives do not object to the flavor of goat hide and swine skin in the milk, but visitors do.

The washerwomen have no faith in modern methods. They get 25 cents a day and are satisfied. The washerwomen all do heir work beside an open stream of water in a trough or stone or wood, a piece of home made soap and their strong hands. No hot water is used.

The average Mexican cook is as primitive as the washerwoman. No matter how many times the use of a modern cook stove were explained to her, it is probable that she would build the fire in the over and put the bread to bake in the fire box. What she would use is called the brasero. Among the poor this is an urn-shaped affair of pottery with a hollow base, where a tiny charcoal fire may be kept alive by constant fanning, the whole being not much larger than a common flower pot. In the homes of the upper classes the brasero is built in of brick, mortar, and piles, its surface as high as an American cook stove, with holes a foot square, under each of which a charcoal fire is kept burning. Some of these stoves have twenty-five or thirty evens and the operation of cooking is so laborious that the cook has a relay of assistants to prepare the vegetables, wash the dishes and attend the fires. FRATERNAL ORDER 500 YEARS OLD.

King Humbert a Member—Formed from All Classes of Society.

It is more than five hundred years since the fraternal society known as the Florentine Brothers of Mercy was organized in the beautiful Italian city of Florence. The chief object of this strange body of men is to relieve the sick and injured of their native place. These benevolent workers are called collectively La Misericordia. They are not priests, as has frequently been erroneously said and written. The Society is formed of men from all classes—aristocrats and common folk. They give their services gratuitously. Any Florentine who is an honorable man may belong to the hooded brotherhood. King Humbert of Italy is an honorary member. La Misericordia does not believe that the left hand should know the good deeds of the right. Only in one way can a Florentine know anything of the identity or social standing of one of these brothers, and that is by his boots. Often in a long processions the heavy boots of the workman are seen beneath his robe next to the polished ones of a gentleman. They are heavily cowled, cloaked and masked, and their presence suggests death. Their headquarters are in the Chuch of the Misericordia. When an accident occurs in Florence or a man or woman falls ill upon the streets the bell in the steeple of this church tolls twice. Three strokes of the bell means the accident was fatal. This masked fraternal order was founded early in the fifteenth century. It has always been a mysterious body and one of the best conducted societies in all Italy.—New York World.

A PERILOUS REMEDY FOR PEARLS.

A Necklace of the Jewels Immersed in the Sea to Restore Their Color.

As a rule crowned heads do not voluntarily cast their court jewels into the sea. Yet this is exactly what the Empress of Germany has recently done.

Among her jewels was a very fine necklace of large pearls, exceptional in size and re markably pure in color. For some time it had not been called into use, but had lain in its dark case shut away from the light and air. One day, however, the empress had occasion to call for the gems. To her surprise and horror, she found that the color of the pearls had faded away, all their life and beauty departed. The court jeweler, when consulted, gave it as his opinion that nothing would restore the pristine purity of the stones save a very long immersion in the sea. Accordingly, a glass case was made, with holes to admit the water, the necklace was placed therein, and the treasure sunk "full fathoms five" in the waters of the North Sea. The spot is near the shore, and is watched night and day by sentries. In the meanwhile the empress is obliged to "possess her soul in patience."

Practically Intact.

The populist orator dragged himself out of the railway wreck and took account of damages.

One foot was twisted out of shape, something was the matter with his right hip, his left elbow refused to work, one of his shoulder blades appeared to have slipped over the other, his left knee was bruised and swollen and part of his scalp was gone.

He emitted a loud groan.

Then his face brightened.

"Thank heaven!" he exclaimed. 'My voice isn't injured! "I'm all right!"—Chicago Tribune.

Groober—"Was it Joglin's ability that got him that five thousand dollar position?"

Hoover—"Yes; his ability to get it."

REALIZED A FORTUNE

AN EASY METHOD OF MAKING MONEY.

It Was Discovered by a Frenchman—Warning to Collectors—Birds Eggs that Seem of Little or No Value—Some Finely Marked Eggs.

A sparrow's egg seems of little or no value, and yet there is a man in Paris who can trace his fortune to it and who is a prize relic worth his weight in gold. Indeed, this humble egg has served as a very handsome income through its skill in coloring fake eggs and to the legitimacy of his business the reader can judge for himself.

A few years ago this wideawake Parisian was an assistant in a provincial museum of natural history, and while there he learned and saw a great deal which has since been of much use to him. So much, indeed, did he learn that when he lost his position he went to Paris and determined to start in business for himself. His apprenticeship at the museum had shown him the value of birds' eggs, and he promptly decided to make a living by dealing in rare eggs. True, he had only a very small collection of eggs with which to start business, but this was a trifling obstacle to a man of his versatile genius. He knew that there were many collectors in various countries who were willing to pay fancy prices for eggs, and he resolved to supply their demands, no matter how extravagant they might be.

Of course, not having many rare eggs and lacking the necessary facilities for procuring them he could not supply them unless he manufactured them, and this he did. For example, if a collector wrote to him for a penguin's egg, he would make out of gypsum a shell exactly resembling that of a penguin's egg, and he would forward it to his customer, who would never dream that a penguin had not laid it. As a rule, however, he uses the shell of some common egg, his sole care being to see that it corresponds in size with the desired egg. The eggs of the common fly-catcher are very cheap, and by coloring them properly they can be made to resemble much costlier eggs. Again, a duck's egg costs very little, and yet our ingenious French gentleman could easily transform it into an egg worth from forty to sixty francs. Pigeons' eggs are also very useful for a similar purpose, since they are of exactly the same size as many very rare eggs. Any one with a knowledge of chemistry could change them so that the pigeons themselves would not recognize them.

Almost every collector of birds' eggs desires to have one or two finely marked nightingale's eggs, and is willing to pay a high price for them. The Parisian dealer was well aware of this little weakness, and, larks being more abundant than nightingales, he found no difficulty in getting larks' eggs and coloring them so that they were exactly like the genuine article as deposited in remote places by the timorous nightingale.

It can be seen that this is a very profitable business and a little consideration will show that there is not much risk of detection. True, the tricky methods of this Parisian dealer have been brought to light, but the discovery was apparently made more by chance than by any suspicion on the part of his customers that they were being swindled out of their money.

The average collector, no matter whether he has a passion for autographs, postage stamps, coins or birds' eggs, is inclined to be gullible, and this seems to be especially the case with collectors of eggs. They know that certain birds lay eggs of a certain size and color, and if they can get eggs that seem to be faultless in these respects they are satisfied. The thought that the coloring may not always be natural does not seem to enter their heads. At any rate, such has been the experience of this Parisian dealer. He has forwarded specimens of his skill to collectors in all countries and it does not appear that any of them ever discovered that he was a fraud. Hereafter, collectors will probably be more cautious about buying eggs, especially from foreign dealers.

The Counterglow.

Not the least interesting of astronomical puzzles is the Gegenschein, or counterglow, a faint light twenty degrees or thirty degrees in diameter, that is seen by the naked eye only in the zodiac and always exactly opposite—or 180 degrees from—the sun. This little observed phenomenon is as great a mystery as the zodiacal light. A late suggestion is that it is due, like the luminous redness of the eclipsed moon to the refraction by the earth's atmosphere of sunlight, which is made to converge in the shadow of the earth and reflected—in the one case by the moon and in the other by the dust of space. Spectroscopic evidence tends to show that the zodiacal light is sunlight reflected from a dust ring accompanying the earth.

The Bridge of Lions.

The largest bridge in existence is not, as one would imagine, the work of some famous English or French engineer. This bridge, comparatively little known, was constructed long ago, in China, in the reign of the Emperor Keing Long. It is situated near to Sangang and the Yellow sea, and measures not less than eight miles and a half. The bridge of Lions, as it is called, is supported by 300 immense arches and its foundation is 21 meters under water. On each pile of this wonderful bridge is a marble statue of a lion, three times larger than life size. The view of these 300 enormous lions, each one supporting an arch, is stupendous in its magnificence.

RED LAKE.

It Becomes that Color About Two or Three Times Every Ten Years.

Lake Morat, in Switzerland, has a queer habit of turning red about two or three times every ten years. It is a pretty lake, like most of the sheets of water in that picturesque country, and its peculiar freak is attributed to a disposition to celebrate the slaughter of Burgundians under Charles the Bold, on June 21, 1476. But the French say that it blushes for the conduct of the Swiss, who in that battle gave the Burgundians no quarter. The old fishermen of the lake, who catch enormous fish called silures, that weigh between twenty-five and forty kilograms says when they see the waters of the lake reddening, that it is the blood of the Burgundians. As a matter of fact, some of the bodies of the Burgundians killed in the battle were thrown into the lake, while others were tossed into a grave filled with quicklime. This historical recollection angered the Burgundian soldiers of the victorious armies of the republic of 1708 so much that they destroyed the monument raised in honor of their compatriots who fell heroically in that battle, and Henri Martin very justly reproached them for that piece of vandalism. It would hardly do to attribute the reddening of the waters of the lake to the blood of the soldiers of Charles the Bold. The color is due simply to the presence in large quantities of little aquatic plants called by naturalists Oscillatoria rubescens. The curious thing about it is that Lake Morat is the only lake in which this curious growth is developed, and the peculiarity is beginning to interest scientific men.

NEW DEFINITION OF VERACITY.

A Jersey City Witness Says It's a Bad Thing to Carry Around.

Richard Welling was a witness at the trial of Rachel Schreiber in the General Sessions Court in Jersey City the other day for larceny and receiving stolen goods. Maggie Werner, the 14-year-old neice of the defendant's husband, was the principal witness against her, and the defence tried to prove by the testimony of Mr. Welling and others that Maggie's statements could not be relied upon. Mr. Welling took the witness stand with a confident air and testified that Maggie's reputation for truth and veracity was bad.

"What is the meaning of veracity?" asked Assistant Prosecutor Noonan sharply. The question came so suddenly as to confuse the witness, and he hesitated about answering.

"It's a pretty bad thing to carry around with you, isn't it?" continued Mr. Noonan.

"Yes, sir," answered the witness, looking very much relieved.

"You wouldn't like to be accused of veracity, would you?"

"No, sir; I would not."

"I move the testimony of this witness be stricken out," said Mr. Noonan, addressing the Court.

"Strike it out," ordered Judge Hudspeth, and Mr. Welling looked as if he did not know where he was at. Mrs. Schreiber was acquitted.—New York Sun.

HER DESIRE MODEST.

And She Received All that Her Advertisement Called For.

Here is a good story. A woman once sent the following advertisement to a London paper: "A lady, in delicate health, wishes to meet with a useful companion. She must be domesticated, musical, early riser, amiable, of good appearance, and have some experience of nursing. Total abstainer preferred. Comfortable home. No salary." A few days after the advertiser received a hamper labelled: "This side up, with care—perishable." On opening it she found a fine tabby cat, with a letter tied to her tail. It ran thus: "Madam: In answer to your advertisement, I am happy to furnish you with a very useful companion, which you will find exactly suited to your requirements. She is domesticated, a good vocalist, an early riser, possesses an amiable disposition and is considered handsome. She has had a great experience as a nurse, having brought up a large family. I need scarcely add that she is a total abstainer. As salary to her is no object, she will serve you faithfully in return for a comfortable home."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Stratagem of War.

A certain American in the war of 1812 played a mean trick upon the Admiral of the attacking British squadron. The Britons were entirely too strong for the Americans, so stategy became necessary. Accordingly, one clever young man spread the report that he had invented a fearful machine of war which he would send among the British boats and explode at the proper moment. Then he filled a barrel with sand and a little gunpowder, and towed it near the British ships. A fuse set the powder off. There was an explosion, and to the amazement of all, the British ships put to sea, fully convinced that a new infernal machine had been invented.

How a Great General Slept.

A good story is told of the Duke of Wellington. The French, with a fresh force double that of the duke, were closing in upon his jaded troops one stormy night in Spain. Wellington completed his preparations, and then, turning to a scout, asked: "How long will it be before they can reach us?"

"Half an hour," was the reply.

"Then I can go to sleep," he said; and wrapping his cloak about him, he dropped where he stood in the muddy trench, and in an instant was asleep. He awoke when the bugles of the enemy sounded in his ears.—Weekly Telegraph.

WEDDING GIFTS.

I was in an insurance office—fire insurance, not life insurance—and when I had communicated to Aggie the news of my recent promotion she had promptly declared in the face of her family's unaccountable preference for Henry Walker (who was not as good a fellow as I by any manner of means) that to be Mrs. Joseph Lounsbury and live in a small house on a very small income and bliss was precisely her ideal of existence. So we were not married as a speculation; nevertheless, since marriage comes so seldom in one's life, we had hopes that our moneyed relatives would do the handsome thing.

They did. First came a complete set of knives, forks and spoons in a polished wood case. They were from the cousin Aggie had been named for.

"Such a sensible present!" said her mother; "they will last a lifetime."

"Yes," said I, "it will take us a good while to wear all those out two at a time."

"Don't you suppose we're ever going to entertain any company, Joe?" asked the girl of my affection, tapping me on the cheek with one of the forks.

This was the beginning of an avalanche of spoons—charter oak spoons—nutmeg spoons, soldiers' monument spoons, bust spoons, portrait spoons (I called these last our picture gallery, and suggested that they should be framed in ribbons and hung up in the parlor.) One of our friends sent a pair of salted-almond spoons, hoping that we would exchange them if they were duplicated, but it turned out that those were the only ones we had. The sugar spoons were all marked. There were five of them.

As the days went by and pieces of silver piled up on us I was more than once reminded of the couple whose courtship was conducted in Browningese, and who were fitted out by their admiring friends with a Browning tea set, with quotations around the edge. "Oh, the little more, and how much it is!" The Fords' had a run on china, but a good deal of it got broken the first year. The Smiths' specialty was etchings; they had enough for every room in the house—only, they never had a house; they have boarded ever since they were married. Finally the climax came when my old Uncle John sent us a solid silver tea set. I hadn't expected anything from him, unless perhaps a Bible or a Webster's unabridged, for he didn't enjoy giving anything away. Aggie was getting too tired to be very enthusiastic, but her mother was delighted, and it was no use thinking that I would just as soon have had the money.

"This makes one hundred and three, dear—nine more than Susie Fish had," said her sister.

"One hundred and two," said Aggie.

"No, dear, one hundred and three—one hundred and two came this morning."

"Oh, I know I never shall get this list right!" exclaimed Aggie, diving for her blank book.

"Look out, or you'll be handing that book to the parson for a prayer book," said I.

"Wouldn't be a bit surprised," she answered, smiling; Aggie could see when she was tired.

Well, we were married. A man breathes easier when it's over.

"But, Aggie," I said, as the carriage door slammed on us, "if it ever happens to us again, let's leave out the heathen superstitions."

"I know it," said Aggie. "I leave them not, but they would strangle some in. See any in my hair?"

"Some in your hat brim."

I brushed her off, and she seized the newspaper I had carefully brought along to look like an old married man, and conjured with it a minute, heading it out by an improvised handle.

"Here," she said, "the very children in kindergarten know how to use paper dustpans—now brush the carriage seat."

When we got out I gave the hackman a dustpanful of rice with a bill on top.

We began housekeeping in a cheerful way in a little house on a new street. It was startling like to come home to one's own dinner table. We had so much silver that it looked funny with our plain china—nobody had given us a lot of ice-cream sets and things. I tell you marriage is a lottery when it comes to wedding presents. I liked seeing Aggie's face in the sugar bowl, though. Every night the little maid (imported, to live up to the spoons) brought them and all the rest up-stairs on a tray and we packed them away in the chest we had made, and a pretty penny it cost, with its combination lock, which went into the end of the closet where nobody could get at it. One night we came home at twelve from a reception, and as we stole upstairs not to wake the sleeping handmaiden, Aggie so sleepy herself that she tripped on her wedding gown and I had to hold her, we came upon the whole array on the floor outside our door.

"Isn't it imposing? so safe!" said I.

"I shan't care anything about going out evenings any more if I've got to put that silver away after I get home," said Aggie, desperately.

"Let it stay there."

"Oh, I can't. Mamma thinks we're so careless. We don't appreciate things enough. She says, if any one had given her such elegant things when she was married she wouldn't have dared to close her eyes!"

"Take more than that to keep my eyes open."

But I helped Aggie shove the tray under a chair, and drape the train of GALLEY (TWO of story No Dupe.... her wedding dress over it.

"What on earth are you doing, Aggie?" I asked, on coming in for dinner one day. All I could see was one foot and a skirt ruffle in the closet.

Aggie scrambled up enough to catch me round my knee.

"Oh, Joe, I'm so glad you've come!"

"What is it? You're ready to cry."

"That's what I like about you; you don't have to be explained to. Henry Walker wouldn't have known I felt like crying if I'd screamed at him!"

That made me feel pretty good. (though dinner wasn't ready.)

"But what—"

"It's the silver! I came up to change the forks and spoons so they should get worn alike, and I've shut the paper with the combination in the chest, and I can't remember what it was!"

I got down beside her. It was hotter than Mexico in that closet. I turned and tried the lock.

"Do keep the dresses out of the way, they tickle the back of my neck." No good. "Well, I guess we'll use the old forks to-day," said I. "I don't believe they'll fade away yet awhile."

"Oh, I'm so sorry—but—they're every one shut up in that chest."

So we laughed. What else was there to do? It was funny when Deming came home with me to tea—we'd asked him some days before. It wouldn't have been funny with some girls. The table looked principally white china, and the kitchen knives and forks didn't go round. Ever cut omlet with a pewter spoon? It is great.

"Don't tell mamma!" pleaded my wife. I began to think I should have to call in a locksmith, when one evening Aggie startled me by jumping out of bed crying, "I've got it! I've got it!"

"Got what—a nightmare?"

"I've got the combination! I've been working on it all the time, and it just came to me in my sleep. Get right up, Joe, and hold the light, and mind you don't set anything on fire." In another two minutes the front of the chest fell down, and behold our household gods! "If anybody wants to steal them between now and daylight, they can, that's all," said Aggie; "but I'm not going to shut that lock again tonight for anybody!"

In the fall there was a burglar scare about town, and Agnes' mother came over and gave her a lecture upon locking the windows. She said we really ought to have a burglar alarm. To please her, I had one put in. Election night I went down town, telling Aggie not to sit up for me, for I should wait for the returns. It was one o'clock when I opened the front door very softly, not to disturb Agnes. Br-r-r-br-r-ke-plunk! I had forgotten the alarm.

Before I had time to say a word or even turn down my coat collar, my wife appeared at the head of the stairs. She pointed a pistol at me. Her hair hung loose, and she was in her—well, never mind; but she looked distractingly pretty.

"If you come one step further I fire!" she cried.

"It's Joe, Agnes," said I, meekly.

"I don't believe it! Take off your hat!"

I took it off, and make her a bow.

"Don't shoot your husband, he's doing the best he can."

Agnes laughed hysterically.

"Oh, Joe, I was so frightened."

"Well, this ends the watchman burglar alarm business," said I. "We've had about as much of it as we want. To-morrow we'll decide what silver we want to use every day, and the rest shall go down to the bank."

We are able to breathe now. The silver stands on the sideboard and as yet nobody has carried it off; if they do, Agnes' mother will say she expected it, for we aren't the careful people they used to be in her generation. Once in a while Aggie quarrels with me because some dish or other that would make a show for company is at the bank, and I don't see my way clear to bring it home under my arm.

"You can have them all home and trust to luck if you'd rather," I say.

"I'd rather they were at the bank, because then I should have them, you know."

"Don't see it," said I; "but it's just as you say."

When our anniversary came around we had a present and a note from one of Agnes' elderly friends. The note ran this way:—

"My dear Mrs. Lounsbury:—We send you our best congratulations on your anniversary; My husband will have his little joke, you know; and, as some one told him that the Lounsburys had so much silver given them on their wedding that it was a positive embarrassment to them, he says you ought to be ashamed of being such plutocrats at your age, while the older generation has not even accumulated souvenir spoons, and sends you this little gift to remind you of the fact."

"Oh, Joe! it's silver!" for I had punched a hole in the paper. "No it isn't, no it isn't, it's plated. We can keep it. It's a pudding-dish, or for oysters, you know. How kind. And plated, too. It didn't cost much, Joe, did it?"

"A few dollars, I should think."

"How good! Perhaps even less, Joe?"

"Perhaps so; it's rather light weight."

"Isn't it delightful? We'll have some oysters in it to-morrow night, and ask them over to tea. I should feel dreadfully to have that taken," I heard her murmur that evening.

"What for?"

"Because it's such a comfort to have one thing that you don't care whether it's stolen or not."

"You're getting sleepy, Aggie. But I know one thing that 'goes on, goes on forever.'"

"What?"

"Our storage rent. I reckon in a few years we'll have paid for the whole outfit, and then we'll fetch it home and keep open house for burglars with a clean conscience."

"Don't be ridiculous, Joe," said my wife.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces (one-quarter of the small size cake) of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar.

Honored Pastor's Return.

Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Gardner, of the borough, returned home last evening and took possession of the new Grace M. E. church parsonage. A pleasant feature of their return was the informal reception awaiting them. Some of the young people of the church knew of their coming and they had supper prepared for them when they arrived. After partaking of a bountiful repast the young people remained and passed a very pleasant evening with the pastor and his wife.

applied for licenses to preach, and after an examination upon the necessary topics, were granted them. Lewis G. Leary, of Elizabeth, was also taken under the care of the Presbytery and will soon apply for license.

Rev. Charles E. Herring and Rev. Joseph McKelvey were the ministers appointed as delegates to the National Assembly which meets in Minneapolis this June, and John A. Powelson, of Pluckamin, and William E. Wells, of Rahway, were the elders chosen.

The temperance committee recommended that Temperance Day be observed in November, and that the church take up a collection for this cause. This was carried. The Presbytery also decided to endorse the Twentieth Century movement, and recommended it to the churches and Sabbath schools in the district. This is a movement to obtain 1,000,000 new Sunday-school pupils before the beginning of the new century.

Co-operative Applause.

Sarah Bernhardt was playing Fedora to a crowded house. The poison scene, as usual, elicited a tempest of applause from the audience, but ere the clapping of hands and the stamping of feet had completely died away loud peals of laughter burst forth from the upper part of the theatre. The sober-minded people in the boxes and stalls gazed reproachfully at the boisterous "gods," but in a moment, they, too, began to laugh, for in the front row of the balcony and in full view of all stood two one-armed men, who, unconscious of the amusement which they caused, were energetically co-operating to prolong the applause by clapping their remaining hands together.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FIREMEN READY TO REVOLT.

Members of the Elizabeth Department Angered at Interference.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 19.—The firemen of this city are up in arms against the proposed movement on the part of the City Council to elect a Chief Engineer of the fire department for three years at a salary of $900, thus taking this privilege away from the members of the fire department, who want to select their own Chief. The firemen threaten to refuse to pull the apparatus to fires or obey any orders from a Chief selected by the City Council, and as the department is a volunteer one, this puts a serious aspect on the situation.

Some of the heavy property owners declare the city is not yet able to support a paid fire department, and say the City Council will only precipitate this issue if it gets into a quarrel with the volunteer firemen. The latter threaten to relegate to political oblivion the Councilmen who are pushing the obnoxious ordinance.

MINISTER IS OPPOSED.

Rev Mr. Dorward Against the Granting of a License.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 19—The application of Michael Heary for a license to sell liquor at the track of the New Brunswick Driving Association is bitterly opposed. Monday when the application was considered in court Rev. W. T. Dorward, a Stelton minister, appeared to oppose it He is the president of the county Christian Endeavor Union.

He catechised Judge Strong as to the names of the men who had signed the application, what their standing was and similar questions. Judge Strong answered them all gravely. He finally adjourned the matter for two weeks.

When Heary's counsel, Robert Arain, remarked that Mr. Dorward made a queer showing in court, Judge Strong remarked that the reverend ghntleman did quite as well in court as Mr. Adrain would do in the pulpit.

POLLUTION AT ROSELLE.

State Board of Health to Investigate Charges Made.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, April 19.—The Boards of Health of Union Township and Roselle Borough are at loggerheads over the alleged pollution of the brook at this place. The Roselle board claims that the brook is being polluted by drains emptying into it in Union Township, and has asked the Union board to abate the nuisances. To this request the Union board has paid no attention.

In order to compel attention to the demands, the Roselle board has taken the matter before the State Board of Health. The inspector of the State Board is expected to visit Roselle some day this week, and inspect the sanitary condition of the brook. His report is awaited with considerable interest.

Elizabeth, April 19—The County Board of Elections met at the Court house Monday. The Board of Registry from the Second ward of Summit was summoned before the county board. The Registry Board then revised and corrected the returns from that ward as previously sent by them to the County Board of Election. This leaves the result the same as canvassed by the election officers of the ward at the close of the voting last Tuesday, and makes no change in the election. Had it not been for this revision two school commissioners rightfully elected would have appeared on the face of the returns as defeated.

THE BRIDE WAS MISS JESSIE ADAMS KENNARD, OF JEFFERSON AVENUE.

She Was the Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Kennard—A Pretty Ceremony—The Bridal Party—Many Guests Present—Reception Followed Ceremony—Couple Gone South.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Brooklyn, April 20.—A very pretty home wedding was that of Miss Jessie Adams Kennard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Kennard, of this city, to Alexander Milne, of Sycamore avenue, Plainfield. The marriage took place at 8 o'clock, last evening, at the home of the bride's parents, 251 Jefferson avenue.

The prevailing color of the decorations was pink. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Robert Bruce Hull, pastor of the Greenwood Baptist church, this city. The bride was given away by her father. She was gowned in white satin and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of-honor was Miss Mabel E Rae, of Brooklyn. Her gown was of pink organdie over white satin and her bouquet pink roses. The bridemaids were Miss Susie Milne, of Plainfield, a sister of the groom; Miss Lena Woolworth, of New York, and Margaret Collins, of Brooklyn. They were all gowned in white organdie over white satin. Their bouquets were of pink roses.

The best man was F. W. Henderich, of New York. The ushers were E. T. Kennard, of Brooklyn, F. M. Norton, of Brooklyn, and Charles Buek, of New York.

The house was crowded with relatives and friends from Plainfield, New York, Brooklyn and other cities. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the house, after which the bridal couple departed amid a lively shower of rice.

The honeymoon will be spent in the south and then the young couple will return to Brooklyn, where they will reside at 295 Monroe street.

The groom formerly resided in this city, moving to Plainfield several years ago. He is employed in the office of one of the leading architects.

ROYAL ARCANUM WINS.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES EXPULSION OF CONVICT IS LEGAL.

Justice Gummere Decides That a Member Who Becomes a Convict is Not Entitled to Receive the Benefits of the Order.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, April 20.—Justice Gummere has filed the opinion of the Supreme Court in the suit brought by Cornelia Berkhout against Supreme Council, Royal Arcanum. The case was tried in the Essex Circuit Court, the decision there being in favor of the Royal Arcanum. This decision of the Supreme Court sustains. Mrs. Berkhout sued to recover $3,000 for a death claim of her husband who was a member of Roseville Council, No. 992, Royal Arcanum, but whose membership was forfeited by his conviction of grand larceny in New York State.

Mrs. Berkhout was represented by Frank M. McDermit and the Royal Arcanum by J. Franklin Fort. The case was argued before Chief Justice Magie, and Justice Dixon, Garrison and Gummere, of the Supreme Court.

The decision recites that at the time the deceased became a member of the order the following section of the bylaws governing members had been adopted: "The certificate of a court of record that a member has been convicted of a felony, and finally sentenced shall be evidence sufficient to justify the expulsion of such member by his council upon the report of the inquiry committee, without the usual trial; provided that proceedings for the reversal of such sentence shall not be pending and undecided; that on April 13th, 1891, the said Jacob Berkhout was convicted upon his open confession by a court of competent jurisdiction of the State of New York of the crime of grand larceny of the second degree, and was sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor in the State Prison for a term of four years. That on May 14th, 1 91, at a meeting of Roseville Council the record of his conviction was produced and charges preferred thereon, which were referred to the inquiry committee; that the inquiry committee reported sustaining the charges and Berkhout was thereupon expelled from the order.

"Where it appears that the accused member, by his own act, has made it impossible that he should attend before the tribunal of the society if notice had been given to him, and it is admitted that the charges against him are true, and that he has no defence to make against them, it is not perceived that he can be in anyway injuriously affected by expulsion upon such charges, without notice and without hearing."

The judgment of the Circuit Court should be affirmed with costs to the defendant.

NO BANN WAS PUT ON MARRYING DIVORCEES.

Presbytery Decided Not Discuss the Delicate Points.

SIMPLY ACCEPTED REPORT.

PROSPECTIVE MINISTERS EXAMINED AS TO QUALIFICATIONS.

One Young Man Failed to Pass in Some Studies and Will Devote More Time to Them—Report Condemning Marriages of Divorced Persons Was Not Acted on—Other Church Business was Finished up

Business was rushed through yesterday afternoon at the closing session of the Presbytery of Elizabeth, meeting in the First Presbyterian church, and before 6 o'clock the matters brought up for action had been disposed of, and the delegates were on their way home.

The two applicants for licenses to preach, William B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, and John F. Dobbs, of Liberty Corner, were examined again in other branches during the afternoon, and their case finally settled.

Mr. Hamilton was considered entitled to his license, and he was accordingly granted one. The ceremony of licensing a cadidate is simple but impressive. It was suggested that the Presbytery proceed to ordain him at once, and had it not been for the lateness of the hour and the desire of most of the delegates to reach their homes, Mr. Hamilton might have left the room a full fledged minister. As it was the ordination will come up at another meeting of the Presbytery, probably in the fall.

Mr. Dobbs, much to the regret of all present, failed to pass in a few branches—Hebrew, Latin and the popular lecture, which each of the candidates are required to give before the ministers and elders assembled in session once more before the Presbytery with better chances of passing. The first named applicant is well known to the Christian Endeavorers of Union county, on account of his interest in evangelical work. He is an earnest young man, with hair turned prematurely gray, and much is expected of him in the ministry.

The committee, through Professor Martin, of Princeton, brought up their report on ministers marrying divorced persons, and after a little discussion the report was accepted and laid on the table. The Presbytery did not express itself as in favor of a rigid adherance to the rule not to marry a divorced man or woman, but it was rather left to each individual preacher to act as his conscience dictates in the matter. It is likely that the subject will be considered at length at the National Assembly which meets in Minneapolis this summer.

A resolution protesting against the seating of Senator Roberts, of Utah, in the National Congress, was presented, but no action was taken on it at this time. After ordering the payment of necessary bills and other expenses, the Presbytery adjourned, leaving the place of next meeting to the stated clerk, John A. Powelson, of Pluckamin, who will notify each member in a few weeks.

WHIST CUP STAYS HERE.

RIDGEWOOD CLUB UNABLE TO WIN IT FROM THE PARKS.

Rivalry Was Keen and Both Clubs Were at Their Best—Four Rounds Necessary—Total Score Was 21 to 20.

The Park Club and the Ridgewood Club fought over the State challenge whist trophy last evening until nearly 2 o'clock, then the Parks came out just one point ahead and the coveted cup still stands undisturbed in the Park Clubhouse.

The Ridgewood Club was represented by Messrs. Bruck, Dunbar, Wynans and Roderegoes. The "pony" team of the Park Club, Peter B. Matthews, Albert Woltmann, Arthur A. Freeman and Fred H. Freeman, represented the holders of the trophy. The match was played in the Park Club house.

The playing was careful on both sides but there was nothing slow about it. The rivalry was keen and both teams were at their best. The first round was in favor of the Parks by a score of 6 to 3. The second gave the lead to Ridgewood, the latter winning 9 to 4. In the third, the Parks were again victorious, 5 to 3, tying the total score, 15 to 15.

It therefore became necessary to play a fourth round which was done. The play was very close and it looked like another tie but the Parks finally won out by just one point, 6 to 5. The total score was then 21 to 20, in favor of the Parks, giving them the match and trophy for another week.

Next Wednesday night the New Jersey Whist Club, of Newark, will come to Plainfield to play for the cup.

New Brunswick, April 20.—After being buffeted about in the world of journalism, and indulging in the horrors of war for a time, William F. Ford, of East Fourth street, Plainfield, has decided to settle down and enjoy the blessedness of a married life.

The happy event took place last evening at this place, and the bride was Miss Amy G VanHorne, daughter of D. J. VanHorne, the well-know contractor. HOLY CROSS CHURCH TO LOSE ITS RECTOR

Rev. T. Logan Murphy Resigned on Account of Ill Health.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

WAS PRESENTED AT SPECIAL MEETNG OF VESTRY LAST NIGHT.

Rev. Mr. Murphy Has Labored in the Borough for Over Twenty-Two Years—He Will Retire from the Rectorship June 30th—Will Then Spend Several Years Abroad With Wife and Daughter.

After twenty-two years of service as rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, Rev. T. Logan Murphy offered his resignation to the vestry last evening, and it was finally accepted with much regret. Ill health compelled Rev. Mr. Murphy to give up his labors in the borough and it is now his intention to retire permanently from parochial work. The next few years of life will be spent in foreign travel.

While many of his parishioners knew that Rev. Mr. Murphy's health had been poor of late, the news of his resignation will be a complete surprise. He has been considering the advisibility of resigning for some time, but the present state of his health seemed to demand immediate action. So he called a special meeting of the vestry at the rectory last evening.

When the wardens and vestrymen were present Mr. Murphy explained the situation and presented the following formal letter of resignation:

To the wardens and vestrymen of the Church of the Holy Cross, North Plainfield, N. J.:

I herwith tender my resignation as rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. It is my intention to retire from parochial work.

During the past year I have not been as well as usual. I realize that the time has arrived when it is necessary for me to seek recuperation and strength.

In resigning my rectorship I am conscious of severing very pleasant relations with you all. I shall never forget your friendship, loyalty and earnest co-operation in my parish work which you have shown in the past. My resignation is to take effect on June 30, 1899.

It is my earnest prayer that the church will be prosperous, and that God's blessing may rest upon the parish and upon you all individually.

Very sincerely,
April 19, 1899. T. Logan Murphy.

The resignation was a complete surprise to most of the vestry, and they tried to persuade their rector to change his mind, but he was firm in his decision. They proposed that he should take a vacation of a year or two if necessary and return afterwards to his charge. Mr. Murphy was firm, however, in his belief that he should retire permanently from the work and the resignation was finally accepted, and the following formal letter of acceptance of his resignation was prepared:

To Rev T. Logan Murphy, Rector of the Church of the Holy Cross.

Reverend and Dear Pastor:—It is with sincere regret that we, the Wardens and Vestrymen of the Church of the Holy Cross, have accepted your resignation as Rector of this Parish in which you have so faithfully and zealously fulfilled all your duties as Pastor for the term of your incumbency covering a period of 22 years. In accepting your resignation we accede your request, actuated solely by a desire to see you regain the health you have imperilled by long and arduous duties among us. We realized that in your departure the Parish sustains a great loss and we pray that God's blessing may always rest upon you.

John H. Carman,
Horsley Barker,
Wardens.
Arthur A. Gallup,
Wm. A. Westphal,
Thos. E. Warman,
John D. James,
Clarence L. Murphy,
Vestrymen.

Rev. Mr. Murphy came to the Church of the Holy Cross twenty-two years ago February 14th, after having labored in Tamaqua, Pa, Newport, R. I. and Fitchburg, Mass. He has a host of friends in this city and borough who will be sorry to learn of the necessity of his resignation.

It is his intention to spend a year or two in travel abroad, accompanied by his wife and daughter. His rectorship will end on June 30th and July 5th, he expects to sail for Europe on the White Star Line. His sons will remain in Plainfield and continue to make this city their home. Rev. Mr. Murphy will first go to London and afterwards to Paris and then make such other plans for travel as he may then decide.

LITTLE TOTS RAN AWAY.

AND ROUNDSMAN FLYNN WAS CALLED INTO SERVICE.

They Were the Children of Charles Trotter and Thomas Brown—Found Playing on on the Road Near Scotch Plains.

Yesterday afternoon, the four year old son of Charles Trotter and the three year old son daughter of Thomas Brown went down to the fields near Giraud avenue to play. At three o'clock they were not to be found there. After the families had hunted the matter was reported to Patrolman Flannagan who notified Chief Grant and Roundsman Flynn. Flynn went out to look for the youngsters.

He traced them to town and out East Front street where several had seen the two little tots go, hand in hand. On his wheel the officer made rapid progress in the chase and finally found the little ones nearly to Scotch Plains. They had halted by the "Gables," the residence of A. D. Shepard. There some other children had found them and, thinking that they belonged in Scotch Plains, had headed them in that direction.

They were soon comfortably cuddled up in one of the big delivery wagons of Paul T. Norton and Company, which was going toward Plainfield and which Flynn pressed into service.

They were finally turned over to Mrs. Brown who took them home while they told her of the nice ride they had had with that big man with the brass buttons on his coat.

Held in the Camera Club Rooms and Attended by an Appreciative Audience—Programme was Rendered Creditably.

The choir guild of St. Stephens P E church, Netherwood, gave a very creditable entertainment last evening in the rooms of the Plainfield Camera Club, Babcock building. There was a large and appreciative audience in attendance.

Corle, a vocal solo by Miss Nan Randolph, a piano solo by Miss Mildred Ulrich, Miss Mabel Jamison, of Dunellen, gave a vocal solo, accompanied by her sister, Miss Ethel Jamison. The Ideal Banjo Club, of Dunellen, also appeared and gave some of their best selections. The club was accompanied by Miss Dealaman on the piano. The last number in part first was a vocal solo by Harry Messersmith.

In part second Miss Jamison gave another vocal solo and Mrs. George S. Saums rendered on the violin "Il-Trovatore," and the Ideal Banjo Club gave a selection, "On the Mill Dam." The last number was a vocal solo by Miss Nan Randolph, entitled "Happy Days," with violin obligato by Mrs. George S. Saums.

The entertainment was given under the direction of the following ladies: Mrs. Buckley, president; Mrs. Guion, secretary; Mrs. Wheeler, treasurer; Mrs. Knox, Mrs. Finch, Mrs. Beal. Mrs. Buckley presided at the piano and she deserves credit for the very excellent entertainment. Every one who appeared on the programme did well. David E. Titsworth and Elmer E. Runyon were to appear, but they failed for some reason.

GRAND ARMY MEN TAKE A HAND

Jones' Commitment to Insane Asylum to be Investigated.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 20.—The members of the local Grand Army posts have taken up the case of Peter Jones, the Easton avenue fish dealer, who was taken to the insane asylum Monday in a manner that is alleged to have been too summary. As a result of a special meeting held last evening, James Forman went to Trenton this morning as a representative of the two local posts to interview the asylum authorities and request an immediate expert examination of Jones and to insist upon his immediate release if he be shown of sound mind.

Jones' friends are vigorous in maintaining that he is sane and that his incarceration in an insane asylum is an injustice.

SHOULD THE Y M C A. TAX BE CUT DOWN?

W. D. Murray Appears Before State Board of Taxation.

CITY OPPOSES REDUCTION.

CORPORATION COUNSEL MARSH ARGUED AGAINST REQUEST.

Mr. Murray Contended That the Building Should be Exempt — Property Cost $52,000, But Not Worth One-tenth That Sum, According to Mr. Murray—Called a High-toned Club.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, April 20. — Appeals from the amounts assessed on property by local taxing authorites in various parts of the State were heard by Chairman Carl Lentz and his collegues of the State Board of Taxation at the City Hall yesterday. The committee room in which the Board sat was crowded by applicants, each primed with a series of arguments to show that the amounts originally assessed are extravagant and should be reduced.

Wm. D. Murray, formerly President of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, came before the Board in an effort to have the assessment on the association's property and building cut down from the amount fixed by the local assessors. Mr. Murray stated that the association's property was assessed at $18,000, and he contended that under the law of 1894 the building should be exempt, on the score that it was used for religious and charitable purposes. He cited a decision of the Supreme Court of the State in the case of a branch of the Little Sisters of the Poor, in which the property of the order was exempted. Mr. Murray said while the building and property originally cost $52 000, the whole would not bring, at public auction, more than one-tenth of that amount.

Craig A. Marsh, counsel for the city, opposed the reduction and called attention to the fact that in the case of the Little Sisters of the Poor the Court had decided that the institution conducted by the order was a purely charitable one and that there is no returns from membership dues or other such sources. He compared the association to "a sort of high-toned social club, with gymnasium attachment," and said that the business of the organization had a balance over all expenses. He strenuously opposed the application to reduce the assessment, and the Board ordered both sides to submit briefs.

Application was made for a reduction of the amount assessed for on the John L. Deen farm of 196 acres in the township of New Providence, which had been assessed for $8,000. The owners of the farm want it reduced to $5,750. The Assessor of New Providence, who owns an adjoining tract, testified that the Deen tract which is worth $15,000. His own tract which is valued at $6,000 is assessed for $2,000 and the Assessor stated that the basis of assessment in the township is about one-third. The board decided to allow the reduction.

The second case was in the appeal of the Consolidated Traction Company against the city of Elizabeth, in which the company set up the claim that the valuation of $200,000 was too high and in which the traction people sought to have the amount reduced to $100,000. This matter was settled between the company and the city, the latter agreeing to throw off $25,000, making the amount $175,000.

ROBBED BY THREE HIGHWAYMEN.

Sparks Lost a Watch and $16 While Passing Through Westfield.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, April 20—Richard Sparks, who says his home is in New Brunswick, was set upon Tuesday night by three men, presumably tramps, after being severely beaten was robbed of a silver watch and $16 in money.

The scene of the robbery was on North avenue, near the Graceland depot. Sparks says he was walking along the road, when the three men sprang from the roadside and set upon him. It was bright moonlight, but not sufficiently light to identify the highwaymen. Sparks had 60 cents left, which the thieves overlooked, and he decided to finish his journey to Newark, his destination, on the train.

MAKE IT PUBLIC

Publicity Counts—That's What the People Want—Plainfield Expression on the Subject.

Make it public.
Tell the people about it.
Gratitude promotes publicity.
Grateful citizens talk;
They tell their neighbors, tell their friends.
The news is too good to keep.
Everybody should know about the "Little Conqueror"
Bad backs are numerous.
So few understand the cause.
Plainfield people are learning.
And better still, they're being cured.
Lame backs are lame no more.
Weak ones regain their strength.
This is every day labor in Plainfield of Doan's Kidney Pills.
Our citizens are making it public:

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 752 West Third street, says:—"For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store, and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend, and when I had a cold or overexerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got but little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back. My experience with them has been very satisfactory and I do not hesitate to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney troubles."

REED OUT OF POLITICS.

Decides to Take Up the Practice of Law in New York City.

GOSSIP OF SPEAKERSHIP.

Reed's Decision to Enter the Firm of Thacher and Barnum Starts Guessing to Name His Successor.

Among the Republicans Mentioned Most Prominently Are: Bremner and Payne of New York; Grosvenor of Ohio; Hopkins and Cannon of Illinois and Henderson and Hepburn of Iowa.

New York, April 20.—It is announced that Speaker Reed has decided to enter the law firm of Simpson, Thacher & Barnum, 10 Wall street. Mr. Reed will soon sail for Europe for a long stay there, and on his return he will begin practicing law in this city. It is understood that Mr. Reed will resign from Congress and become a citizen of this State.

One reason advanced by the friends of Mr. Reed for his action is that it is about time he was making some money. In the long course of his public life he has had but comparatively little time to practice his professon.

There is much speculation as to who will succeed Mr. Reed in the Speakership. Among those mentioned are James Schoolcraft Sherman, of Utica; Sereno E. Payne, of Auburn; General Charles Henry Grosvenor, of Ohio, Albert J. Hopkins and Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, and David Bremner Henderson and William Peters Hepburn, of Ohio.

The Speaker has many personal and political friends in this city who would be glad to see him take an active part in politics when he becomes a citizen of New York. They understand, however, that the offer made to Mr. Reed carries with it a condition that he devote his entire time to the practice of law. He may occasionally appear in public and serve as a delegate to conventions, but he will take no active part in State politics.

Washington, April 20.—The reports of Speaker Reed's intended retirement from Congress has caused a flood of gossip respecting the succession to the Speakership. From the fact that Representative Sherman, of the Utica district, recently declined the office of member of the Board of General Customs Appraisers, to which he was appointed just before the Fifty-fifth Congress expired, it has been assumed in some quarters that he will enter the contest for the Speakership to preside over the Committee of the Whole House.

But the result of the elections last fall put a different phase upon the matters in the House. The New York delegation, instead of standing twenty-eight Republicans and six Democrats, as was the case in the Fifty-fifth Congress, consists of eighteen Democrats and sixteen Republicans, so that the support Mr. Sherman could receive from his own State is greatly decreased by reason of Democratic gains therein. On the other hand Republican gains in the West were all that saved Republican control in the House, and representatives from that section will doubtless insist that the honor of Speakership rightly belongs to it, thus precipitating a contest that may defeat an Eastern candidate. A large number of the Western members in the Fifty-fourth, and especially in the Fifty-fifth Congress desired a Speaker from their own part of the country, resenting what they termed Reed's dictatorship. But they were never able to summon enough support to make a successful contest, and Mr. Reed was nominated by the Republicans both times without opposition.

But with a free field Western candidates would not be lacking. In the last Congress the "Reconcentrados," as they were called among the Republicans, looked to Representative Hopkins, of Illinois, for leadership, and he would doubtless have the support of many of the Western men. But he is in the fight for the nomination for Governor of Illinois next year, and it is question if he would care to abandon that to enter the Speakership contest. Next to Hopkins, Representative Hepburn, of Iowa, is most prominent among he Western members talked of for the Speakership.

Both have frequently served as Chairman of the Committee of the Whole and temporarily in the Speaker's chair, and are able parliamentarians. Mr. Hepburn has led the only fight that has been made on the Republican side against the present rule of the House, but he made no headway, although he has had the sympathy of a large number, if not a majority, of his political associates.

If Mr. Sherman should not be a candidate, Representative Payne, of the Auburn district, the dean of the New York delegation, leader of the Republican side on the floor, having succeeded the late Representative Dingley as Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, Speaker pro tem by formal action of the House, and an experienced parliamentarian, doubtless would be a candidate for the place.

DARING BLACKMAILING SCHEME REVEALED.

New York, April 20.—A daring blackmailing conspiracy, in which several millionaire citizens are said to have been victims, has just been disclosed. The plot includes the use of a camera, with which photographs of the victims were taken, and they were then paid a heavy price to have them suppressed. The plot was unearthed by Anthony Comstock and his agents, who found that the men in the scheme had rented elegant apartments where their victims were enticed and the photographs taken. District Attorney Gardiner is authority for the statement that such a scheme has been going on. The office of the District-Attorney is at work on the case, and some startling disclosures may be made after their investigations are completed. When the evidence is complete it will be presented to the Grand Jury, though every effort is being made to keep secret the names of the men who have suffered at the hands of the conspirators. TRIAL OF MATTHEW QUAY.

POINTS FOR DEFENSE.

Goldsmith Admits Books Show No Direct Evidence that the State's Money was Used by Quay.

Deadlock in the Quay Senatorial Fight to the End—Last Day of Pennsylvania Legislature Offers No Solution to the Problem on the Joint Ballot—Talk of an Extra Session.

Philadelphia, April 20.—Cross-examination is said to be Lawyer Shield's "long suit" and the prospect that the defendant's lawyer would continue to question expert accountant Meyer Goldsmith on his testimony against ex-Senator Matthew S. Quay brought a large crowd to the court room. Goldsmith is the witness on whom the prosecution chiefly relies to prove its case by the books of the People's Bank and certain letters and documents admitted into evidence; and Mr. Shields, of Quay's counsel, put him through a raking examination and elicited several admissions which, it is contended shook the witness's original testimony.

MATTHEW S. QUAY.

The purpose of the questions asked by Mr. Shields was to show first, that two years before the indictment was found against Quay for conspiracy to use unlawfully State funds deposited in the People's Bank, the bank was indebted to Quay; second, that during these two years the statutory period, Quay was not a borrower from the bank, and that he had carried on his stock transactions with his own money; third, that it could not be shown that any interest on State funds was paid to Quay or that any State money was set aside for his use.

In regard to the first point, the witness admitted that if Quay had been entitled to the proceeds of a sale of U. G. I. stock on Nov. 9, 1896, and that if a certain item of $1,500 could be proved to be an obligation of Richard R. Quay's, then the bank was indebted for about $1,200 to M. S. Quay at the beginning of the statutory period. As to the second point the most important admission made by the witness was that the bank never paid out any money in response to the request in the "plum tree" telegram, which asked Hopkins to "buy and carry 1,000 Met." The expert said that $10,000 was paid on Mr. Quay's personal account on the date that the message was sent, but he admitted also that Quay had deposited $45,000 in the bank on that day, and that at the close of the day he had a balance to his credit of $61,853.

Goldsmith said that there was nothing in any book which said in so many words that $200,000 was set aside for Quay, and that for the period in question there was nothing on the bank's books to show that Quay ever received any interest on State funds.

Mr. Rothermel, referring to a paper which the witness said had helped him in ascertaining to what persons the initial in the call loan book belonged, said: "This paper has been identified as in the handwriting of John S. Hopkins. I offer it in evdence as an act in furtherance of conspiracy. It contains part of calculations to raise the fund from the interest payments of call loan borrowers to pay the interest on the State deposits." The Judge admitted it.

No Successor to Quay.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 20.—The last full day of the present session of the Legislature opened gloriously. On the surface all was lovely, but there was deep resentment in the hearts of many who were outwardly calm. The failure to elect Quay's successor is a bitter disappointment to those who have thought for ten days that some such friction of their labors would be brought about.

There is still talk of an extra session but it will probably end in talk. Among many of the Anti-Quay Republicans, however, there is no disposition to listen to suggestions of party policy and party danger. Every inch of ground is to be bitterly contested. Quay men defy their opponents. They declare that the coming State Convention will be absolutely in their control and as one-sided as the handle of a jug.

The joint ballot, the last one to be taken at this session, resulted: Quay, 93; Jenks, 85; Jones, 69—no election.

Bubonic Plague's 250,000 Victims.

Bombay, April 20.—According to statistics gathered regarding the bubonic plague, it is estimated that there have been 250,000 deaths in India since its beginning. These figures, however, are undoubtedly far below the actual total, as the natives are known to have concealed a number of deaths.

Safe Blowers Defeated.

Haydenville, Mass., April 20.—Burglars attempted to blow open the vault of the Haydenville Savings Bank with nitro-glycerine. The fact was discovered when Charles Stiles, a clerk, arrived at the office. Neighbors heard the explosion, but stayed in their homes.

"Having occasion, one day, to dictate to a stenographer in the business office of one of the great Philadelphia newspapers, I remarked that his duties must be tiresome and difficult from being obliged to write down notes of what so many different persons said and, therefore, compelled to accustom himself to all sorts of articulation. "Yes," was his reply, "very few people realize the exacting labor such a position entails. A clear head is absolutely necessary and the least illness often seriously affects the correct performance of my work. For instance, I at one time suffered from a stomach trouble brought on, I suppose, by eating cold lunches hastily, as is necessary with me, and I finally felt that the trouble would break me up. You know a disordered stomach is invariably the root of any head trouble and of all things a stenographer's head must be clear. I finally found an effective remedy in RIPANS TABULES which I saw advertised in our paper. They are magical in their effects, and, by the way, did you ever see anything of the sort put up in such superb shape? I have found that they seem to rectify nearly every ill, for several of my friends have taken my prescription of a Tabule now and then with results for which they have heartily thanked me. The dull, heavy headaches I sometimes had are all gone now. If I take dictation from a man who annoys me and makes me nervous I always take a Tabule at the time, and if his breath is not sweet I give one to him."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in paper cartons (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low priced size is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) will be sent by mail upon receipt of forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York; or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

QUEER FILIPINO YARN.

Say That Lawton Lost 140 Soldiers on His Dash From Manila.

London, April 20.—The Filipinos European Junta claims to have received a cablegram from Gen. Antonio di Luna, "commanding the Manila district" direct from Manila on Friday, declaring that Gen. Lawton, "whose object was to proceed to Baler and effect a junction with the Yorktown," was inveigled by the Filipino tactics into perilously extending his line, with the result that a column, consisting of 140 officers and men, on reaching a place called Binangonam, was ambushed by a large Filipino force, communication with the main foce was severed and the entire column was captured."

The Filipino advices further assert that Gen. Lawton, who was at Laguna de Bay, on hearing the news "retired to Manila, stating he had been recalled by Major-Gen. Otis, on the ground that a native uprising in Manila was imminent."

The foregoing is said to be a separate affair from the disappearance of the boat's crew of the Yorktown in the vicinity of Baler.

The Filipinos also claim that they have occupied the town of Zamboanga, in the southern part of the Island of Mindanao, which was recently evacuated by the Spaniads, only a few of the latter remaining to hand over the place to the Americans.

The Filipinos are also said to have captured 7,000 Mauser rifles, all the ammunition and several Spanish gunboats, which the rebels say they have navigated up the Rio Grande and out of reach of the Americans.

The capture of Spanish gunboats in all probability refers to the gunboats purchased by Francisco Reyos, of Manila.

RELIGION THE CAUSE.

Lloyd Osborne Writes to Labouchere That Missionairies Caused It.

London, April 20.—Lloyd Osborne writes to Labouchere from Funchal that a long residence in Samoa and his formal official relations with the United States Government justify him in claiming to speak with authority on the causes of the present troubles in the islands.

The essential cause, he says, is the fact that the London Missionary Society will not tolerate a Roman Catholic King.

This, he declares, is the reason he Americans and English are supporting with guns and men a divinity student, Tanu, against Mataafa, the old King, with the old country behind him. Tanu was educated at the Protestant Mission.

Osborne's estimate of Chief Justice Chambers are that his views are of the narrowest evangelical stripe.

He has been altogether in the hands of the Missionary Society during the whole of his term of office as its Land Commissioner. He has lived at its mission house in Apia and taught its Sunday school.

Mr. Osborne concludes by saying emphatically that in this affair Germany is in the right.

He says that the attitude of Consul Rose has been commendable throughout and that "we Americans and English are cruelly, brutally wrong.

Porto Rico's Demand.

Washington, April 20.—Dr. J. Julio Henna and M. Zeno Gaudia presented to the President a memorial drawn up by them, as commissioners for the people of Porto Rico, asking that exclusive military control over the island be withdrawn. They asked that matters relating to the civil government of the island be turned over to the control of the departments in Washington; that the troops in the island be reduced to the number necessary to garrison the forts and military ports; that the people of the island be granted all the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States; that the people of the island be granted a territorial form of government temporarily, or the executive authority should be placed in the hands of commissioners like those exercising similar authority in the District of Columbia; that the legislative authority of the island be vested in a council consisting of two members from each of the departments of the island; that a census be taken so that Congress can intelligently decide upon the future of the island.

This sum will make about $2,550,000. Mr. Carnegie will have contributed to the institute for buildings alone.

Boardman, counsel for the Commission, to talk over rapid transit matters with Governor Roosevelt, believe that the rapid transit bill now before the Legislature will be passed.

THE DETAILS OF CAPTURE.

Information Concerning the Disappearnce of Lieut. Gilmore Arrives.

THE CUTTER DISAPPEARS

Give Hope That Americans Are Still Alive but Lend Additional Mystery to Strange Capture.

President McKinley Has Sent Instructions to Admiral Dewey to Open Negotiations at Once for Exchange of Prisoners—Natives Near Baler Said to be Particularly Vicious.

Manila, April 20.—Further details concerning the capture of Lieutenant Gilmore and fourteen men, while trying to rescue a beleaguered Spanish garrison at Baler, have become known. They read like a chapter from a novel by Robert Stevenson. While they give more hope that Lieutenant Gilmore and his brave men are still alive, they lend additional mystery to the remarkable disappearance.

The gunboat Yorktown on April 12 visited Baler, which is on the east coast of the island of Luzon. An attempt was made to communicate with the Spanish garrison of fifty men and three officers, who had been resisting the insurgents surrounding them for a long time, and were, in fact, ignorant of the existence of war between Spain and the United States.

The Yorktown sent a cutter with fourteen men, commanded by Lieutenant Gilmore. The cutter landed at night, and Ensign Stanley and a quartermaster who climbed the hill say that the Spanish flag was flying from the church in the town.

Lieutenant Gilmore, with the cutter, entered the river, taking the soundings as he proceeded.

In the morning Ensign Stanley returned and reported that he had heard three volleys of musketry, accompanied by cheers, but had heard no fire from the colt gun on board the cutter.

Nothing has since been seen of the cutter, nor has anything been heard of Lieutenant Gilmore and his companions, but it is possible that they were rescued by the Spaniards of the Baler garrison.

Later boats were sent ashore to search for the missing party, but the Filipinos twice fired on their flags of truce and refused to have any communication with the Americans.

The native force around Baler is estimated at 400 men.

TRYING TO SAVE THEM.

Washington, April 19.—President McKinley has sent instructions to Admiral Dewey to open negotiations at once for the exchange of our sailors who were captured by the Filipinos.

The power is also given to the Admiral to ransom the men if Aguinaldo refuses to make exchange. No limit is given to the sum that Dewey is authorized to pay.

No news of the fate of Lieutnenant J. C. Gilmore and the rescue party that he headed has been received by the Navy Department, and the officers are very much alarmed because the natives of the section where they were made prisoners are known to be particularly vicious.

It will take about twenty days for the Baler insurgents who hold our men to communicate with Aguinaldo. There is an unconfirmed rumor afloat that the President had authorized Ambassador Choate at London and Henry Vignaud, Secretary of the American Embassy at Paris, to treat with Agoncillo for the ransom, naming $3,000,000 as the sum.

The President has been reluctant to open negotiations wth the rebels, but the taking of Gilmore and his men left no alternative in his estimation. There is little hope that an exchange will be agreed to, although Dewey may offer any reasonable number of the 2,000 Filipinos held captive by the American forces.

Pardon Sets Innocent Man Free.

Provo City, Utah, April 20.—Edward F. Haynes, who has been in the jail here four years under sentence of life imprisonment, has been pardoned. He was convicted of murdering his two step-sons and their cousin. He was sentenced to be hanged, but the sentence was commuted. Evidence has since been found indicating that George Wright, a neighbor, committed the murders. He disappeared soon after. Mrs. Wright furnishes the evidence to clear Haynes.

Junkman Is Rich Now.

New York, April 20.—Thomas Leggett, a junkman of First avenue and Sixteenth street, has just received a legacy of $50,000 through the will of his brother, who was a gambler known as Blanchard, and who ran a place on Forty-second street, near Broadway. A negro woman who laid claim to the estate as Blanchard's widow, is now in prison for perjury. Leggett still continues his old rag and bottle business.

Indians Don't Like It.

Guthrie, O. T., April 20.—Five thousand Indians, dissatisfied with conditions existing in the reservations in the Indian Territory, have started in a body for Mexico to establish a union reservation on a large tract near Guadalajara. The emigrants belong to the Cherokee, Creek and Delaware tribes. They are said to have a capital of $425,000.

$75 For Each Cuban Soldier.

Havana, April 20.—The Cuban army lists are being examined, and out of the total of 42,172 privates and noncommissioned officers, 2,242 have been eliminated, 1,573 as having enlisted since the surrender of Santiago and 669 as Government employes. The remainder will share the $3,000,000. This will give to each about $75.

Ask Judge To Get Out.

Cleveland, O., April 20.—The Common Pleas Judges at a special meeting unanimously adopted a resolution asking Judge F. E. Dellenbaugh, who has been found guilty of accepting fees, to retire from the bench until his disbarment case is decided by the Supreme Court.

MAN IN GEORGE CASE.

Defence Trying to Prove That Saxton Was Murdered By Him.

Canton, O., April 20.—The defense in the trial of Mrs. George for the murder of George Saxton began to introduce evidence to connect "the mysterious man" with the crime, in pursuance of the attempt to prove that Mrs. George had no hand in it.

James Adams, a laborer, testified that at 6 o'clock on the evening of the murder he met in Lincoln avenue, between Third and Tuscarawas streets, a man unknown to him. Near Derby avenue, on Tuscarawas street, witness met Saxton riding on his bicycle. Witness walked two blocks further and then heard the shots fired by the person who murdered Saxton. Cross-examination did not shake Adams's testimony.

George Rex, in contradiction of Mrs. Eckroat, who testified that she saw Mrs. George shoot Saxton, and that no trees obstructed the line of vision from her house testified that he investigated and found that a cherry tree was in the direct line of vision and obstructed the view of the Althouse steps. The person who did the shooting was supposed to stand just south of the steps. The witness testified it was imposible to see the steps of the Althouse house.

Edward Romberger testified the cherry tree was on the direct line of vision, but on cross-examination he said if a person extended his head far enough through the window he could see the entire steps.

Yukon Ice Breaks; Many Drowned.

Victoria, B. C., April 20—Men just arrived from the Klondike say that the Yukon is already breaking up and is flooded from Marsh Lake up. Four men, headed by Stuart, of Shohomish, Wash., went through the ice near White Horse on April 2, and were drowned with their dogs. While the Litkie party, now here, were crossing Summit Lake last Saturday John Dolanu went through the ice, nd was rescued with difficulty. Grave anxiety is now expressed for those now on the trail.

A tangle in titles is reported from Atlin, where many Americans located last year, only to be ousted by the passage of the anti-alien law of this Spring. Claim jumping by the wholesale has been going on and there are three or four disputants for every claim on Spruce and Pine creeks. Some of the Americans are taking British partners to hold their property.

NEW CHIEF FOR HAVANA.

Rodriguez, Gomez's Chief of Staff, Succeeds Menocal—Must Not Mix in Politics.

Havana, April 20.—Alejandro Rodriguez has been appointed chief of police of Havana to succeed Mario Menocal, who has resigned. Rodriguez holds the rank of major general in the Cuban army and is chief of staff to General Gomez. He is considered second to Gomez alone in the affections of the Cuban soldiery. He is not related to General Mayia Rodriguez.

The new nomination is approved of by Cubans and Spaniards alike. The United States military authorities think they have at last found a man strong enough to discipline the force and to make it strong. The new chief understands that he must not mix politics with police work.

To Buy N. Y. Baseball Club.

New York, April 20.—According to a Chicago despatch, a syndicate composed of National League magnets is now negotiating with Andrew Freedman for the purchase of his interest in the New York Baseball Club. If consummated, the purchase will include the long-term lease of the Polo Grounds and the Manhattan Field, a National League franchise and control of all players now under contract to the club. The syndicate is composed of John T. Brush, of Indianapolis and Cincinnati; Albert G. and Walter Spalding, of New York and Chicago, and Arthur Soden, of Boston.

Chairman Jones Too Sick to Serve.

Washingon, April 20.—It is positively stated that Senator James K. Jones will resign the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee within a few days. Continual ill health is the reason. His resignation will go to Secretary Walsh, of Iowa, who will notify the members of the Executive Committee that Chairman Jones's decision was made after mature deliberation and is necessitated by the precarious state of his health.

Milwaukee, April 20.—An effort is being made through the Catholic churches in this and other cities in the State to find homes for some of the 2,000 orphans that are reported to be in the care of New York City Sisters of Charity, for whom places are sought in the Middle West.

Elizabeth Should Not Give In.

The Elizabeth Journal apprehends that if the Aldermen of that city still hold to their position of making a 5-cent fare between Elizabeth and Cranford, and of leaving to the Board of Aldermen the right to establish certain transfer regulations between the petitioning corporation and other companies, if public convenience and policy should warrant it in the future, then Elizabeth and the suburban territory which Mr. Kean plans to tap will be left without trolley facilities.

Senator Kean holds a franchise in Elizabeth for a dilapidated horse car line that isn't worth a red cent to him, unless the Aldermen of Elizabeth will authorize a change of motive power. But in doing this Mr. Kean would become the possessor of a public right of inestimable value. Mr. Kean agrees to spend some $56,000 in street improvements for this favor.

The question naturally arises, is it enough? In the light of recent developments in the granting of public privileges it appears that it is not. The Journal holds forth the argument that it it more than the city has ever before received for similar rights. Undoubtedly this is true, but in the guise of "precedent" many a public right has been relegated for the benefit of private gain. In considering what the city should receive in benefits and conditions for the granting of this valuable privilege Mr. Kean is asking for the errors—for errors they were when franchises of all sorts were given away for nothing—of the past should not be taken into calculation as determining what the future value will be.

The plea that the project will be abandoned if the Aldermen do not accede to Mr. Kean's demands has this much substance: Mr. Kean says he will do it. Among corporations asking for public rights there is a wide latitude between what they say they will do and what they will do. In Plainfield we have had plenty of this experience the past winter in dealing with the Plainfield Street Railway Company. It is our candid belief that Mr. Kean will not do one half of what he threatens he will if refused his requests. This project of converting the old horse car line into a modern electric railway is the pivotal point in all of Mr. Kean's trolley plans in Union county. Some one is going to build trolley railroads in Union county and make money out them. Mr. Kean is a sagacious business man and he appreciates the fact. Can he afford to throw up his plans over the comparatively insignificant things asked of him by the Elizabeth officials? We do not think he will. He may hem and haw and procrastinate for awhile, but eventually he will accede to the demands of the Aldermen if they insist and are determined.

THE PRINCESS SALM SALM.

Princess Salm Salm is a native of this country and was prominently identified with the Union cause during the civil war. The governor of Illinois gave her a captain's commission. She is the widow of Prince Salm Salm of Germany. Her husband, as a soldier of fortune, was on Maximilian's staff in Mexico, and through his wife's influence, was made colonel of the Eighth New York during our civil war. The princess will restore the regimental colors to the Eighth during her present stay in this country.

When the free delivery of mail was instituted in Plainfield the population was one half of what it is now. Yet with a force of nine carriers at the start, the present force is only increased two over that number. Considering the fact that since that time the Netherwood office has been abolished and the free delivery extended to that district of the city, which engages the attention of one of the carriers, the increase in the carrying force has been out of all proportion to what might naturally be expected. Plainfield is in need of more mail carriers, and the department should recognize the fact with the commencement of the new fiscal year, July 1st.

The Pennsylvania Legislature adjourned today without electing a United States Senator to succeed Mr. Quay, and this will necessitate the second State of the Union having only one-half the representation in the highest legislative body in this country that it is entitled to and which it should have. It forms another emphatic argument for the election of Senators by the people.

Some of our State contemporaries, says the Newark Advertiser, think that the Government ought to, as a compliment to the State, give the contract for the new battleship New Jersey to a New Jersey concern. There is, we believe, not a plant in the State large enough to build a 12 000 ton battleship, and if there was the contract could come to New Jersey only by virtue of the lowest bid.

An effort is being made to get all the Republican politicians of Hudson county into one fold. It may succeed, but those who are engaged in the undertaking will find it much easier for politicians to fall outside the breastworks than for them to climb back after once being out.

In concluding an editorial about The Daily Press, the Real Estate News says:

The editor of this paper can recommend the Plainfield Press as a clean, up-to-date family newspaper, a credit to Plainfield, its proprietor and employes.

Thanks, Brother Drake, may your judgment never grow less

It is said that a man's friendship or enmity towards a trust is usually determined by the matter of either being in or out of it. As Governor Voorhees is not a member of any trust—unless it be that concerned in holding office—he comes under the classification of being an unusual man.

In considering what is needed to boom Plainfield Silas D. Drake says in his Real Estate News: "This paper will do some loud talking, and it will get other people to talk, and then the outside world will know where Plainfield is." Hurrah for Silas.

Mayor Harrison comes out open and above-board in favor of the nomination of Col. Bryan for President by the Democrats in 1900. That does not look as though the doughty Chicago Mayor had made an alliance with Tammany.

Dr. Parkhurst speaks of the Tammany chieftain as "Brother Croker" in criticising the partisan spirit of the Mazet committee. Even the worst of enemies sometimes agree.

Considering the grave problems that confront Newark in its endeavor to get good water the Prohibitionists can not be getting along swimmingly.

In the dealing of the political cards the people of New Jersey do not consider Governor Voorhees' defense of the trusts as a little joker.

Mr. Moss must look to the Legislature for his pay for acting as inquisitor. Boss Croker is not giving him any tips.

The Filipino Junta in London is telling some big stories for its little men.

Aguinaldo seems to be a hard nut to crack.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Governor Voorhees gravely informs the world that the trusts now being plastered upon the people are not the same as the trusts that were formerly created, and that the new trusts mean cheaper prices. He cites the cheaper price of oil and sugar. It happens, though, that the Standard Oil monopoly and the Sugar Trust both belong to the old order of trusts. Moreover, everybody knows why oil and sugar has been cheapened in cost for the consumer. As to oil, the abundant supply, the small cost of production, reduced cost of transportation and improved processes of refining explain the phenomenon of cheaper price. That oil could be sold at lower rates is plain enough when we look at the enormous fortunes of the oil kings. As for sugar, the change in the tariff, and foreign competition brought about the price reduction. Sugar would be still cheaper for the consumer if no trust existed, and the millions of profit that go every year to the sugar barons would be kept in the pockets of the people.—Newark Advertiser.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

—The Mizpah Sewing Circle met last Tuesday afternoon and made considerable progress on useful garments.

—M. J. H. Ferris, attorney and counselor for the Salvation Army, will address the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon.

—Neuman Bros. are selling the celebrated Star and Crescent canned fruit at 18 cents per can, three cans for 50 cents.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion, effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 20.—It is probable that the Brunswick Traction Company will put on an open car in a day or two, according to a proposition submitted to the council Saturday night. The Company offered to put an open car in service, but could not run another closed car, because they have none. The proposition was not accepted at the time because the weather had not been warm enough to warrant it, but if the fine weather continues the car may be put on. Then the service will be improved, and cars will be run more often than every three-quarters of an hour.

The trial of the case of the Township of Fanwood against the New York and Philadelphia Traction Co. will take place tomorrow afternoon before Justice Warden. The case has been postponed so many times that the lawyers are determined to have the case tried on the date set.

W. L. Johnson, champion pool player of Connecticut, will meet J. W. Carrell, of Plainfield, next Tuesday evening, and the two will play a game of 250 points. The playing will take place in Smalley's pool room.

The public school children will give an entertainment tonight, the proceeds to go towards the new library. A little drama, entitled "Cinderella in the Flowers," will be presented. The entertainment will be given in the Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Todd and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Richardson drove to Martinville yesterday, and spent the day with relatives there. They returned at night, and enjoyed a drive by moonlight.

The Washington Avenue Card Club have determined on holding a reception this year, and the date has been fixed for April 28. The reception will be held in Apgar's Hall, and will be a swell affair.

Mrs. E. Herlich is the possessor of a new bicycle.

Chronic Nasal catarrh poisons every breath that is drawn into the lungs. There is procurable from any druggist the remedy for the cure of this trouble. A small quantity of Ely's Cream Balm placed into the nostrils spreads over an inflamed and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflamation, cleanses, heals and cures. A cold in the head vanishes immediately. Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1.00, every bottle guaranteed.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The boys of the Plainfield High School have a new yell in which to give vent to their superflous energy on the occasions of base ball games and like affairs. The yell is as follows:

"Bow-wow, tin kettles, ka-i, ka i,
Bow-wow, tin kettles, ka-i, ka i.
What's the matter with the Plainfield High,

* * * * *

A Washington correspondent says that President McKinley calls upon Vice-President Hobart every afternoon, and Mrs. McKinley sends him a basket of flowers from the White House conservatory every morning. It is only three minutes' walk across Pennsylvania avenue, and the President generally goes alone. Sometimes he stops at the house while returning from his afternoon drive. On these occasions he simply inquires at the door, but usually when he walks over he chats a little while with the distinguished sick man, who is still in bed, but feeling better.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ACCESSORIES.

Dainty Bows and Ruches and Pretty Millinery.

Bows and big ruches are so becoming that fashion will not relinquish them, but continues to devise new models. A boa and muff to match frequently accompany expensive hats, and the elegant woman has a variety of such articles to harmonize with her different gowns. Although the collar of bodices and wraps is diminishing in size, the boa remains fluffy, and now that the season for fur is past ruches, choux and coquilles of lace, gauze and tulle, bows of ribbon, knots of flowers and detached petals are combined to compose attractive neckwear. One design consists of five immense rosettes composed of wide mauve ribbon, each rosette being held in the middle by a gold buckle. The five, placed side by side, just go around the neck. At either end, in front, is a cluster of five ends of ribbon of unequal length. This is a more substantial style of boa than those made of mousseline and flowers.

Among the new millinery designs may be mentioned little capote shapes entirely covered with hyacinth bells set close together. One covered with deep blue hyacinths has an aigret near the front of two or three pink rosebuds with silvery foliage. These floral bonnets are fragile and short lived, but are pretty while they are fresh. Little moss rose buds are used in the same way as the hyacinth bells, as are also violets and cowslips. The brim of a large and striking hat was entirely composed of the last named flowers.

COAT BODICE.

The illustration given today shows a short, tight coat bodice of beige cloth. It is double breasted and fastens invisibly. There are revers and a collar like those of a man's coat and two small breast pockets. The coat is edged by many lines of heavy stitching, and the wrists of the sleeves are finished in the same way. The coat is lined with beige satin.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THIN GOODS.

Sheer Fabrics and Dainty Trimmings to Accompany Them.

Swiss muslin, our grandmothers' favorite and the conventional garb of all heroines of old fashioned novels, has been gradually coming to the front again after a long season of neglect, and this year it occupies the first rank among summer goods. Charming gowns of it are shown, and not only in white, but in lavender, violet, pink and all bright and delicate shades. Valenciennes or thread lace, either white, cream or black, is the favorite trimming, and wonderfully complicated arrangements are made with narrow insertions. Even underwear is shown which is made of swiss muslin or of nainsook so thin and sheer as to be indistinguishable from it. As this variety of petticoat is as profusely adorned with insertion as are the gowns, it is probably designed for wear beneath transparent costumes.

The finest of embroidery and incrustations, with real antique lace or its best modern imitations, is used upon underwear. Yellow lace or guipure is combined with white batists or lawn with novel effect. All trimming, however rich, is kept flat, since costumes must be close fitting and fullness of decoration underneath causes a visible bunchiness in the gown.

CLOTH COSTUME.

The cut shows a costume of flax blue satin cloth. The skirt has several lines of silver soutache about the foot. The princess tunic, which is also bordered with silver lines, fastens at the left side with silver buttons. The bodice has revers of blue velvet, adorned with silver buttons and silver cords, and opens over a full chemisette of white mousseline de soie. The sleeves are plain, with small silver buttons at the wrists. The collar is of white mousseline de soie. The hat of fawn straw is trimmed with plumes and ribbon of the same shade and a gold buckle.

THE LEPER COLONY.

STORY OF A VISIT TO THE HAWAIIAN LEPERS.

The Colony on the Island of Molokai—Some of the White Victims—Kanaka Servants Responsible For the Spread of the Disease.

"While we were in Honolulu," said one of the young men who went to Hawaii as an attache of the Hawaiian commission, "there was a lot of excitement among the white population of the city over the discovery that two well-known white citizens of Honolulu were lepers. They were both sent to the leper island of Molokai. One of these unfortunate men was a wealthy German merchant who had passed the greater part of his life on the islands, having left Germany for Honolulu in his early youth. He was about seventy years of age. For some months before it was discovered that he was a victim of leprosy he had been complaining of violent pains in his head and numbness in his members. His family physician was puzzled over the case, and finally called into consultation a physician who had spent a period of study among the lepers at the Molokai colony. The old gentleman became violently insane when he was informed that he was a leper and would be compelled to go to Molokai. It was necessary to place him in a straight jacket, and, thus secured, he was carried aboard the leper steamer Kilauea Hou, together with over a dozen Kanaka and Japanese lepers, and transported to the leper island. Within a week after the announcement that her husband was a leper the unfortunate old gentleman's aged wife died of grief.

"The other white victim of the disease was the signal telegrapher stationed on Diamond Head to report the arrival of steamers to the people of Honolulu. He was a comparatively young man, still under forty, and was known as a first-rate fellow by most of the white people of Hawaii. He took the announcement that he had the disease quietly saying that he had suspected for some time that he was a victim, and had contemplated so informing the Board of Health. His nerve under the circumstances was really admirable.

"As soon as the discovery of these two cases was made the Kanaka servants in the household in which the two men lived were subjected to careful examination. The telegrapher had lived alone in a small house out at Diamond Head, with a Kanaka youth as his only servant and attendant. The youth was found to be in the secondary stage of leprosy, and was sent to Molokai along with his master. The establishment of the old merchant was a very large one out near Waikiki, one of Honolulu's suburbs, and was cared for by over a dozen Kanaka servants. One of these, an old washerwoman, was discovered to be a leper, and she, too, was sent to the leper colony.

"The alarm of the white population of Honolulu, all of whom employ Kanaka servants, over these discoveries may be pictured. The Board of Health was swamped with applications for the immediate examination of household servants and was utterly unable to cope with the task at the outset. The work, I understand, is still going on. Meanwhile the discovery played excellently into the hands of the Japanese and Chinese, who were sought as servants all over the islands. It is exceedingly rare that a leper is discovered among the Japanese or the Chinese living in Honolulu, although cases are frequent among the two races on the other islands, especially on Maui, the great sugar island. In the course of the examination of household servants a number of cases of incipient leprosy were found and the victims packed off to the leper colony. The people employing these lepers were themselves rigidly examined by physicians able to detect the very slightest evidences of the disease, but none of them was found to be affected.

"There are now, I understand, eight men of American birth at the leper colony on Molokai, all of them, with the exception of the two recently sent, sailors who deserted their ships at one or other of the island ports and contracted the disease either by mingling or marrying among the Kanakas. There are also three Germans and five Englishmen, also sailors, who contracted the disease in the same way. The white lepers are said to give more trouble through constantly complaining than all the thirteen hundred Kanaka, Japanese and Chinese lepers put together. The white leper, it seems, is not able to accept the burden laid upon him with the same degree of fortitude exhibited by the native. The only cases of suicide since the colony was established have been those of white men."

A Disappearing Coin.

One of the oldest coins of Europe will shortly disappear. The Austrian "kreuzer" was withdrawn from commercial circulation on June 30, in accordance with the convention establishing a copper currency of equal value for all parts of the Empire. It will be received at public banks in payment or in exchange for new money until December 31, 1899, but from the first day of the coming century it will no longer be legal tender. The "kreuzer" has been in existence since the fifteenth century, taking its name, of course, from the cross which it bore in common with many other coins. It circulated freely in North as well as South Germany at one time, but for some twenty-five years has not been current beyond the Austrian frontier.—London Chronicle.

THE OFFICE BOY.

How He Helped the Minister Out on the Telephone.

A local clergyman was downtown one of the recent ultra-zero mornings, and, desiring to call upon a parishioner whose place of business is on Water street, he stepped into the office of another parishioner on the avenue near Erie street, with the intention of calling up the Water street man by 'phone and finding out how long he would be in his office, the pastor not relishing the idea of the long walk in the piercing cold.

The avenue parishioner was not in. His office boy had the big room all to himself.

"My lad," said the pastor, "I wish you would call up Mr. Dash, main 'steen-naught, and ask him how long he will be in his office, and if he isn't there find out when he will be in. My fingers are so cold I don't think I could hold the receiver."

"Yes, sir," said the polite boy. "Who shall I say wants to know?"

"Rev. Mr. Blank," replied the pastor, as he drew up a chair beside the steam radiator.

Pretty soon he heard the boy say:

"Is this main 'steen-naught?"

There was a brief silence. Then the boy went on:

"Yes, yes, I've got 'em—Hullo! Is the boss in?—what's that—Who's this talking? Why, it's the Rev. Mr. Blank No. Blank, Blank—What's the matter with you, Lizzie? This is the Rev. Mr. Blank! Got it? Don't get funny girlie. What do I want to know? Say I asked you that half an hour ago. Is the old man in? Who is it talking? Well, I'll be jiggered! Now, take off your earmuffs, Mabel, an' do a little listenin' act. This is the Rev. Mr. Blank! Oh, you've got it now, have you, birdie? So kind of you—yes, yes I'll forgive you this once. Now agitate your Cinderellas into the old man's office an' see if he's there. Yes, tell him the Rev. Mr. Blank is at the 'phone and wants to know if he is out. Don't be idlin' round when there's souls to save. Get a hustle on you."

At this point the pastor got so fidgety that he walked over to the 'phone.

"Just hold on a minute, my boy," he beseechingly cried.

But the boy waved him aside.

"I'm getting him," he said.

Then he turned back to the 'phone.

"Who's this?" he cried. "Who? Mr. Bunner? I don't want you—yes, this is the Rev. Mr. Blank. Mr. Blank, Blank. Who's swearing? Don't get fresh, Bunny. Yes, Rev. Mr. Blank. Yes, Reverend, Preacher, you know; be good—go to church—Friday evenin' prayer meetin's. Got it? Yes, this is him. Is old Dash in? There, don't get gay. What's that? Won't be back for three months? You ain't kiddin'? Well, that's all. Yes, it's quite enough Funny Bunny. Byby."

And the boy slammed the receiver into its hooks.

Then he turned to the perspiring clergyman and defferentially remarked:

"Mr. Dash has just stepped out, sir, an' won't be back for three months!"

After this the worthy pastor will endeavor, whenever possible, to do his own telephoning.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

He Knew of One.

It was in a Duluth court, and the witness was a Swede who was perhaps not so stupid as he seemed to be.

"What did you say your name was?"

The cross-examining attorney was a smart young man, whose object was to disconcert the witness and discredit his testimony.

"What did you say your name was?" was the first question.

"Yahn"—very deliberately—"Petersen."

"John Petersen, eh? Old man Petersen, I suppose. Well, John, Where do you live?"

"Where Ah live? In Dulut'."

"Now, Petersen, answer this question carefully: Are you a married man?"

"Ah tank so. Ah was married."

"So you think because you got married you think you are a married man, do you? That's funny. Now, tell the gentlemen of this exceptionally intelligent jury who you married."

"Who Ah married? Ah married a woman."

"See here, sir! Don't you know any better than to trifle with this court? What do you mean, sir? You married a woman? Of course you married a woman. Did you ever hear of anyone marrying a man?"

"Yas. Mah sister did."

FAITH AND SCIENCE.

BISHOP MONTGOMERY ON "THE END OF CONTROVERSY."

Instead of Being Antagonistic, Faith and Science Must Finally Amalgamate, as Faith Itself Is the Highest Science, the Science of God.

The Right Rev. George Montgomery, bishop of Monterey and Los Angeles, recently delivered an able address on "The End of Controversy," a part of which follows:

It is needless to say that the century just drawing to a close has been one of extraordinary activity. With all this energy in the industrial, commercial and intellectual world in no pursuit or business or line of knowledge has that activity been greater than in the religious questions that affect man's everlasting happiness. Many false principles have been evolved, and some antagonisms to religion have been developed, but even these show that the religious questions of life have a hold on the human mind that nothing can supplant. The church in this, as in all ages, stands before the world as the most conspicuous object and the most complete organization in it, and she is now, as always, equal to the work that God gives her to do. The church being by her nature and her divine commission the teacher of men, her relation to this activity is largely one of controversy, for the expansion of divine truth provokes controversy.

The object of all controversy ought to be to arrive at the truth in the question in dispute. Can there be found a principle that would put an end to controversy? I do not pretend to be able to suggest a principle that would stop us poor mortals from disputing, for upon many questions we will dispute to the end of the world; nor is this an evil when it concerns the material world, for it is by divine arrangement that it should be so.

The wise man tells us "Almighty God hath made all things good in their time. He hath delivered them over to the consideration or the disputations of the sons of men, so that men cannot find out the walk that God hath made from the beginning to the end." In the physical world man's natural reason has a clear field. God has given him wonderful powers of mind and has set him in the midst of these things to make what he can out of them. He can do little more than penetrate the crust. If he cannot fathom the depths of the natural order with his natural reason, still less can be solve the problems of the supernatural with this same unaided reason. We must have an interpreter like the truths themselves, supernatural, called a divine authority.

There is such an order of truths. Their right interpretation is essential to our supreme good. Reason unaided cannot interpret them. God has given us somewhere that interpreter. The end of controversy, then, in religious matters is a living, visible, speaking divine authority.

In natural things the wisest men have had to abandon reason alone and adopt the principle of authority. The law and the court's interpreting it are the recognized authority to settle disputes and adjust conflicting interests. There is always a court in every civilized community whose decision is final and from which there is no appeal. This principle is of absolute necessity to stop internecine confusion and to ward off social anarchy. All debate presupposes a judge outside the debaters, else there is no end to the debate. Is it not strange, then, that men should say that the only place where we need no such authority is an order of truth confessedly supernatural? In supernatural things mistakes impair our supreme, our future and eternal welfare.

Can we look forward to a time when reason and revelation shall be what God intended they should be, the complement of each other, guiding man to the possession of a perfect knowledge? I believe the time will come, and I believe it will come through the very source whence some of the enemies of the Catholic truth look for its overthrow. It will come from the enlightened and intelligent men of the world. The great retarding causes in the way of its accomplishment are wealth, luxury and business. They crowd God out of the mind. Men do not deny God. They simply ignore him.

Men admit that in all denominations of religion and in all ages mistakes have been made, but there is truth in all denominations. Take this sum total of truth, and you have the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, believed and practiced by God's people, and in so believing you have that unity of faith of which Christ speaks. But reverse the argument, and you have exactly a contrary conclusion. Admitting that each holds some fundamental truth, it is a fact equally true that there is not one denomination that does not deny some truth that some other denomination holds to be fundamental. Then take all the negations as you took the affirmations, put them together, and you will find that the sum total of the negations is the denial of every fundamental truth held by any denomination, unless it be that there is a God. You have the same aggregate body of Christian believers denying and affirming the same thing at the same time. This is intellectual anarchy in religious thought.

In late years the scientist has done much for true religion. He is showing more and more the real relations between true science and true religion; between the natural and the supernatural. If he continue in the proper road, he will soon understand that God stands behind the natural and the supernatural: that he has made to man a revelation through both: that as the God of truth he has not contradicted himself.

The old church stands out from all others. She is a city seated upon a mountain. When in the course of his analysis the scientist sees outside the church the contradictions, self confessed to the world, he will turn to the old church as the logical and historical church of the ages, and she will appeal to him as the counterpart and complement of nature. For this we should pray, for this we should labor. Then shall faith and science meet, faith enlightening science, science strengthening faith. Rather it will be said that faith itself is science, the highest science, the science of God.

THE SCRIPTURES.

Private Interpretation of the Bible Incompatible With Catholicism.

The Rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs, who left the Presbyterian church after having been tried by that body for heresy and who is soon to become a minister of the Episcopal church, said in a recent address:

"If the Roman Catholic will recognize the authority of the Bible as he ought to and Protestants will recognize the authority of the church as they should, they will not have so much objection to one another. Whatever differences there may have been will eventually disappear."

Commenting on this utterance, The Sacred Heart Review of Boston says: "Of course Catholics can never recognize the Protestant notion of the Bible, and the Bible alone, without note or comment, and the doctor knows that perfectly well. He knows that the authority of the church to which he exhorts his fellow Protestants is perfectly incompatible with the right of private interpretation of the Scriptures. They can no more coalesce than oil and water. If you claim the right of private interpretation, you discard authority. If you choose authority, you necessarily discard private interpretation. Unity without authority is impossible. There can be no compromise, and Dr. Briggs knows it, if he only had the consistency and the courage to acknowledge it."

SUNDAY RECREATIONS.

Innocent Pleasures Not Forbidden by Our Holy Mother the Church.

Our holy mother the church does not forbid innocent recreation, not even on Sunday. Our Christian Sunday is by no means the Jewish Sabbath of old nor the Puritan Sabbath, as some of our Protestant brothers understand it. Our Sunday is a day of joy. We should on that day be cheerful without dissipation, grave and religious without sadness and melancholy.

And as Sunday is a day consecrated not only to religion, but also to relaxation of mind and body, we are not forbidden to spend a portion of it in innocent recreation. Hence Catholics are not of the opinion that spending the day in absolute quietude and idleness and sitting in a rocking chair with a sour face are the correct manner of spending the Lord's day.

But every Catholic knows that the great and main duty imposed on us on Sundays and holy days of obligation is to assist at the holy sacrifice of the mass. We know that all those who can go to holy mass must do so under pain of grievous sin. Moral impossibility is the only excuse. Pleasure of all kinds must at all times be sacrificed to duty. —Rev. Father Vanhoomissen.

Charity.

Charity is the very breath of God. Charity gave birth to Jesus and nerved his soul to endure the anguish that is winning human redemption and shaping human civilization. Charity touches each dawn and sunset with roseate and radiant glory. Charity makes all human duty more beautiful than morning, though said duty be lonelier than death and has at first only a scaffold for its reward. Charity so molds the hearts of men and nations that the victories of its own greatest heroes are secured. Charity is slowly turning all hells of hate and crime and darkness into eternal homes of joy. Charity is the only force in all the infinite universe that does not exhaust itself by service and action, but increases its power in the precise measure of the purity and energy with which it is exercised. Let us seek it. Let us live it and so make our lives divine.

Their First Pilgrimage.

The Athenian Catholic paper Harmonia writes: "There is no Catholic nation that has not repeatedly passed before the eyes of the aged pontiff, who is surrounded by undying glory and whose head is crowned with imperishable laurels. Day by day almost numerous bodies of pilgrims, even from the most distant lands, come to the Eternal City. The Catholics of Greece alone have not yet enjoyed this happiness. We therefore hasten to publish the following good news: At the proposition of Mgr. Gaetano Maria de Angelis, O. M., a pilgrimage to Rome has been decided upon for an early date. It will carry from all parts of Greece the tribute of our gratitude, veneration and loyalty to our supreme pastor, Leo XIII."

The Mother of God.

Mary, thou art the book in which the rule of our life is written, or rather thou art the book which contains the wisdom of the Eternal Father!—St. Catherine.

Inconsistency.

In the ancient cathedral of Lubeck, in Germany, there is an old slab with the following inscription:

Thus speaketh Christ our Lord to us:
Ye call me Master and obey me not,
Ye call me Light and see me not,
Ye call me Way and walk me not,
Ye call me Life and desire me not,
Ye call me Wise and follow me not,
Ye call me Fair and love me not,
Ye call me Rich and ask me not,
Ye call me Eternal and seek me not,
Ye call me Gracious and trust me not,
Ye call me Noble and serve me not,
Ye call me Mighty and honor me not,
Ye call me Just and fear me not.
If I condemn you, blame me not.

INSECTS IN CUBA.

MEN BATTLED FOR A WHOLE DAY WITH THEM.

Venomous Spiders Make Their Homes on Fruit Steamers—Don't Go Looking for an Angry Tarantula—Help Comes to the Rescue.

Joseph Mabry, who has papers to show that he was a member of a Georgia company during the Spanish war and that he was in Cuba, tells the story:

"I joined a company of Georgia volunteers and went off to camp. We did not get to go to the front, and after the protocol was signed I and a friend of mine from Kentucky decided that if we could get over to Havana we would probably be able to get in on the ground floor. We got our discharge and we went to the coast, taking a boat for Havana. We wore our army uniforms, and as soon as we reached Havana we were told that we must leave. We were laboring under a grave mistake, thinking that the United States had some authority there in the fall before the peace treaty was signed. We were put under a guard and ordered to leave on the first boat, as our presence in Havana might be dangerous to the peace and safety of the community.

"A British boat touched at Havana bound for New Orleans with a load of tropical fruit. We tried to get passage on the boat and were refused point blank, as the boat did not carry passengers. Our guards gave us to understand, as we thought, that we must leave or go to jail. We decided to leave. Before the boat sailed we managed to slip aboard by bribing a couple of sailors. We were told that we could climb into the bins where bananas were stored and that the sail would be a short one to New Orleans. The sailors promised to smuggle food to us on the journey, and they fastened us up in the bins of bananas, closing the hatchway. We turned in on a pile of straw and slept soundly till nearly morning of the following day, when I was awakened by my friend calling to me.

"'What is that?' I heard him ask.

"The light was dim, and I could barely see the outline of his form near me.

"'I do not see anything,' I replied.

"'I thought you were tickling me with a bundle of straw,' said he.

"'I did not wake till you called to me,' was my reply.

"'I guess it was a rat,' said he, and we both dozed off.

"Shortly afterward I was awakened by a shriek from my friend. He had jumped up and was staring at a black, fuzzy object in the straw. I recognized it at once as a tarantula. The light was not good, but that much was plain. Soon it was joined by another, and in a few hours we were surrounded with tarantulas on every side. The big spiders regarded us as intruders, for they seemed bent on attacking us. We stamped on them, killing many, and fought them with all our might.

"Did you ever see an angry tarantula? If you never did, don't go looking for one, and if you find one, don't look for a hundred. I suppose it is no exaggeration to say that we were faced by hundreds of these angry insects. They spring like rats or frogs, and all of a sudden a black object would come whirling through the air, and nine chances out of ten, it would strike some unguarded spot and inject its venom. I was bitten in half a dozen places on the face, and as many more on the hands and arms, and the insects would crawl up the legs of our pantaloons to bite us. Both of us were horribly bitten all over our persons.

"The fight with the insects lasted all day long, and though we were both strong, sound men, when we went on the boat, by evening we were almost too exhausted to stand up. We called for help, we shrieked, yelled and cried, and no help came. We were faint for want of food and dying from thirst. It was a day of horror for both of us. Our wounds were swelling and our throats were parching for water. After continuing to fight the tarantulas and shrieking for help, we finally attracted atention, and some of the sailors came to our rescue. Whether it was the sailors we had bribed who came to us or whether it was some one attracted by our cries I don't know. I was then in delirium and my eyes were swollen closed."—New York World.

Famous War Horses.

Horses in war suffer more fatalities than men. Out of the many thousand who perish in their duty toward their masters, only a few return home to spend their lives in the ease and honor they deserve. One war horse, however, which made a splendid record for himself, and now has his virtues, name and noble deeds engraved on a fitting tombstone, was Copenhagen, the horse the great Duke of Wellington rode at the battle of Waterloo.

Nine years after the Emperor Napoleon died at St. Helena an old white horse perished of old age and pneumonia in England. The skeleton of the animal is set up in the Royal United Service Institution, and to all visitors it is pointed out as Marengo, the charger Napoleon rode at the battle of Waterloo. Marengo came originally from Egypt, and was left to wander on the dismal battlefield when the emperor was forced to fly for his life. An English officer found and took him, and he was sold to a general in the British army. In English pastures, cared for by kindly grooms, this noble horse passed the latter years of his life far more peacefully and happily than his great and unfortunate master.

Report of Committee upon the Business of the Real Estate News Publication Co. of Bound Brook, N. J.

The undersigned committee appointed at a meeting of the Citizens, held at the office of the above Company on Monday, Feb. 6th, beg leave to report as follows:—

Our committee met at the office of the Company on Saturday afternoon the 11th inst., according to arrangement, and after a careful investigation of the books of the above Company, and careful consideration of the assets and liabilities, found that the statement made by A. G. Drake, Secty., of the Company, at the Citizens' meeting, was in every respect true and correct.

We believe FIRST that the publication should be kept in Bound Brook for the good it can do for the Borough at large. SECOND. We find the good assets to be $855.00 as stated by Mr. Drake, and that is in excess of all liabilities, including the amount of capital stock paid in. Also that the earnings have been so far in excess of the expense that the 10 per cent dividends have been safely declared and paid.

THIRD. We believe the stock of the Company is a fair investment, and see no reason why the business should not do as well from a business point of view in the future as in the past, and even much better.

Respectfully submitted,

SPORTING.

AROUND THE BASES.

The excellent showing that the Plainfield High School boys made in their opening game Monday afternoon at the Crescent Oval, has resulted in a big boom in the interest in the National sport. From present prospects it seems that the High School team will be the only regularly organized nine to play in Plainfield this season. There is plenty of good material in the team and there is every prospect that the High School team will develop much stronger after several games have been played. The Crescent Oval has been secured for the games and they will be played there until school closes and the team is disbanded for the summer.

Manager William A. Fisher, of the Plainfield High School nine, has been busy scheduling games for the season. Some of the managers of other teams have been slow in answering, so there are other games that may be added to the schedule later. He announces the following schedule, however, subject to change:

Saturday, April 22d, Newark Academy, at Newark.

Saturday, April 29th, Rutgers Prep., at Plainfield.

Thursday, May 4th, Newark High School, at Newark.

Saturday, May 6th, Newark Academy, at Plainfield.

Saturday, May 13th, Newark High School, at Plainfield.

Wednesday, May 17th, Battin High School, of Elizabeth, at Plainfield.

Wednesday, May 24th, Rutgers Prep., at New Brunswick.

Saturday, May 27th, Battin High School, of Elizabeth, at Elizabeth.

The Little Casino Baseball schedule is out again this year and comes in very handy for those who care to keep an accurate record of the games in the National League. It also contains a large amount of reliable and useful statistical matter that makes it an invaluable handbook for every lover of the game. It is published by Emil Grossman & Co., Cleveland, O.

The Plainfield High School team has had the advantage this season of the expert coaching of A. B. Meredith, science instructor at the High School. Mr. Meredith was pitcher on the Wesleyan 'Varsity nine that defeated all the big college nines in the country. He was out for the first game, Monday afternoon, in his old Wesleyan uniform and coached the boys. He is giving special care to Claude Edwards, the High School pitcher.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Wheelmen are complaining that there are many careless persons here who throw or drop broken glass in the city streets and thus make things decidedly unpleasant for such riders as happen to pass by. There is a city ordinance against throwing or dropping glass in the streets and after several are fined for the offence, other thoughtless ones may be a little more careful in the future.

A number of New York and Brooklyn bicycle clubs are planning to visit this part of Jersey, Sunday, in their regular runs. The roads in this section are in good shape and attract the wheelmen here from all quarters.

George H. Rockfellow, local agent for Columbias and Hartfords, is doing a good business and reports that the trade this year is very promising.

Miss Edith Hulburt, of West Front street, has purchased a wheel and learned to ride.

Miss Rattie Johnson, of Madison avenue, is riding a new Cleveland wheel.

Miss Martha Anthony, of West Front street, has purchased e new wheel.

Miss Clawson, of Brook avenue, has purchased a handsome 1899 wheel.

VARICUS SPORTS.

There is some talk of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association holding its annual field games this spring. No action has been taken on the matter as yet but a meeting of the association will be called for the near future when it will be definitely decided whether or not to continue the old custom of holding open field games in the spring.

GOLF.

Commencing with next Saturday meals will be served at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club house, and no doubt there will be playing on the course if the weather permits.

GRAND JURY FINISHES

SIX INDICTMENTS REPORTED IN SOMERSET COUNTY.

Twenty-one Complaints Were Presented—George Lewis Cleared of Charge of Stealing a Bicycle—The Other Cases.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 20—The Grand Jury of Somerset county concluded its labors yesterday afternoon, and presented to the Court six indictments out of the twenty-one presentments made to it. There was nothing of a startling nature in any of the cases referred to the jury.

It was one of the best Grand Juries that Somerset county ever saw. H. P. Reynolds, of North Plainfield, was foreman, and the other members were all men of intelligence and integrity.

August Baldwin, George Baldwin and William Hartfelder were indicted for trespassing on the property of the Plainfield Poultry Farm. Daniel O'Connor, of Prideville, was indicted for assault and battery. The presentment against George Lewis, colored, for stealing a bicycle in North Plainfield, was thrown out by the jury.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

The list of artists composing The Manhattan Vaudeville entertainers who will appear at Music Hall, Saturday night, include some of the best known stars of the vaudeville profession, whose services are always in demand whenever their engagements with their regular organizations terminate. The company has met with great success on their tour this season, and will be seen here in one of the best programmes of high-class vaudeville that has been offered. The Grahams, who appear in a superior sketch entitled "A Soldier's Sweetheart" carry with them a special set of scenery and electrical effects for the proper presentation of their specialty, and good things may be expected from Joe Hardmann, comedian and monologue artist, who will be remembered here as comedian and star attraction with several repertoire companies.

TO HONOR SOLDIER DEAD

ARRANGEMENTS FOR OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY.

Representatives of Various Societies Met Last Night—I. L. McVoy Made Marshal of Parade—Exercises in Music Hall.

Judging from the interest shown in the arrangements for Memorial Day, the observance of that holiday this year will be of a great deal more interest than for many years past. Representatives from the Sons of Veterans, the Spanish-American Volunteers, Woman's Relief Corps and the G. A. R. met in Comrade E. D. Moffett's office last night and planned how they will celebrate the day.

The programme for the morning will be the same, practically, as last year. In the afternoon there will be the usual exercises at Music Hall, with an oration by some local preacher or lawyer, who is yet to be secured.

After the oration and exercises in the hall the Woman's Relief Corps will have charge of the remainder of the programme, and as many little girls as there are States in the Union will appear upon the stage and take part in the exercises. Mrs. E. C. Morse, chairman of the W. R. C., will have immediate charge of this part of the programme.

The members of Winfield Scott Post will be divided into detachments, and in the morning will visit each of the cemeteries and decorate the graves of the soldier dead. There are about 60 volunteers in the city and they will all turn out. There are two soldiers of the last war buried in the cemeteries here, one in St. Mary's and the other in Evergreen. The volunteers will be divided into two detachments, and each detachment will look after one of the graves of these soldiers.

I. L. McVoy was made marshal of the parade.

SUMMIT'S FIRST COUNCIL.

Its Members Decide to Serve Without Pay.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Summit, April 20—The City Council met Tuesday night for the first time since its organization. Chas. S. Day, Councilman-at-Large, was unanimously elected president, and said he would endeavor to do his duty in a fair and impartial manner. J. Fred Hass, who was formerly township treasurer, was unanimously elected city treasurer, and Corra N. Williams was the unanimous choice for city solicitor.

It was decided to appoint as members of the Board of Education the men who were recently elected by the people. They are as follows: J. Fred Chamberlain and Alfred M. Jones, two years; Atwood L. DeCoster and Henry C. Selvage, one year. As George H. Williams and Gustave Pollock each received the same number of votes at the election it was decided to place the two names in a hat, and City Clerk Day drew the ballot bearing the name of George H. Williams, who was declared elected.

He is conscious and seems to be improving from his injury.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF SCHEDULE FOR THE COMING SEASON.

L. E. Waring, Chairman of Golf Committee, Gives Out Season's Plans—No Matches Announced as Yet—Conditions for the Cups—Rules About Entries—Interesting Facts About Golf Play.

Golf is going to be a popular game in Plainfield this summer. Already some of the members of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club have been practicing on the old links on Plainfield avenue. Tomorrow the new links will be opened to the members. There will be no formal opening, but a scratch tournament, eighteen holes, medal play, open to all active members, will mark the opening.

L. E. Waring, chairman of the golf committee of the club, has completed the schedule of events for the season. Of course, there may be additions to it. There are likely to be a number of matches with other clubs that have not yet been arranged.

The schedule of competitions for the season, as now announced, is as follows:

Nov. 11—3 p. m. Finals, Chapman cup.

Nov. 23—10 a. m. Gilbert cup.

The play for the several cups will be regulated by the following conditions:

Reinhart Cup. Handicap. Men's competition; open to active members only. Eighteen holes, medal play.

Schoonmaker Cup. Handicap. Competition open to ladies over 16 years of age, whether active, associate or junior associate members. Eighteen holes, medal play.

Fisk Cup. Handicap. Eighteen holes. Competition open to those boys who have made one or more wins for same cup.

Gilbert Cup for mixed foursomes. Handicap. Competition open to both the active and associate members. Eighteen holes, medal play.

Men's Foursomes Cup. Handicap. Competition open to active members only. Eighteen holes, medal play. Entrance fee, fifty cents for each player.

Bogey Handicap Cup. Competition open to active members. Eighteen holes, match play.

Golf Committee Cup. Handicap. Eighteen holes, medal play. Open to active and associate members.

All entries for these competitions must reach the chairman of the golf committee, L. E. Waring, 900 Park avenue, or be dropped in the box provided for that purpose in the club-house, at least 24 hours before the event, and when an entrance fee is charged the fee must accompany the entry, otherwise the entry will not be accepted.

All entries for handicap competitions must be accompanied by the member's last three gross scores, unless they are already in the hands of the golf committee; otherwise he must play from scratch.

Steward Ivamy will be prepared tomorrow to serve lunches and suppers to members and their friends at the club house on the same plan as last year. The committee has called the members attention to the fact that it will be necessary to give the steward notice when supper for a party is desired so that he can be prepared to serve them properly. The serving of the lunches and suppers will be continued through the summer.

REJOICED THAT SONS WERE SAFE AND SOUND.

SHE DRANK IN HONOR OF THEM.

Mrs. Moncton Had Trouble As a Result and Was Locked Up for Being Drunk.

The blotter in the station house, this morning, merely showed that Mrs. Catherine Moncton had been arrested last evening by Patrolman Myers. She was charged with being drunk. The record of City Judge Runyon shows that she was found guilty this morning and that sentence was suspeneed.

Mrs. Moncton is an old woman, old enough to be grandmother to the Judge almost. She explained to the Judge that she had been to the home of a friend to have the letters of her two sons read. Two of her sons, she explained, and the tears gathered in her eyes as she told it, were with the army in Cuba and she was so glad to hear that they were still alive and well.

This friend had given her a bottle of beer to drink. On her way home she had tripped over her skirt and then the policeman had arrested her, claiming that she was drunk.

The police had nothing to say against the unfortunate woman who has always borne a good reputation. So the Judge suspended sentence.

A FAGOT SOCIABLE.

Christian Endeavorers Enjoyed Themselves at the Home of Misses French.

The members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church and their friends were entertained last evening at the home of the Misses French, West Seventh street, at a fagot sociable. The feature of the evening was that everyone present was obliged to tell a story as he or she placed a fagot in the fire.

During the evening there was instrumental music by Miss Edith Cains, while other persons present gave vocal selections and reading. Before the sociable was concluded the social committee of the society, of which Miss Susie Woodland is chairman, served refreshments to all, and thus a pleasant affair ended.

Rev. H. D. Opdyke Given a Substantial Farewell From Old Pastorate.

The friends of Rev. H. D. Opdyke, late pastor of Mt. Horeb church, met in the Martinville church last night to bid him God speed in his new field of labor. The programme of exercises consisted of music and addresses. Coffee, cake and ice cream were served during the evening.

The friends of the minister handed him a purse of $25 as a substantial expression of their appreciation of his labors among them. It is the intention of Mr. Opdyke to make his home in this vicinity in the near future, having recently purchased a farm, which he has planted with fruit trees.

COLOR LINE IN SCHOOL

PROPOSITION TO SEPARATE NEGRO CHILDREN IN EAST ORANGE

The Movement Has Caused a Spirited Controversy and the Attempt to Carry it Out Will be Vigorously Opposed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Orange, April 21—The reported intention of the East Orange Board of Education to separate the Negro children in the Eastern Public School from the white children and to employ a Negro woman to teach them has caused a spirited controversy in East Orange, in which the most vigorous opponents of the scheme are the white people of wealth and culture, many of them being New York bankers and business men.

The opponents of the scheme assert that if the plan is to be adopted in one school it should be extended to all and that in addition there should be separate classes for children of Italian, German, French and Irish parentage, all of which are represented in the township.

All but two of the members of the Board of Education are favorable to the change. These are William H. Davis and Henry White. The latter is a lawyer at 280 Broadway, New York, an elder in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church and a lay delegate to the forthcoming General Assembly.

"I believe in equal rights," said Mr. White yesterday. "The schools are open to all children without regard to race, color or creed. In my opinion the New Jersey School law does not permit of any class or race distinction and I am opposed to it even if the law permits it. It is against the aim and purpose of our public school system. Public shools belong to the people and all are entitled to exactly the same rights, privileges and benefits without regard to race or color."

It is asserted that an attempt to compel Negro children to attend other than the regular classes could be successfully resisted, and the plan of the Board of Education will not be allowed to go into effect without protest or objection. The Negroes themselves have taken no part in the controversy so far, the opposition to the plan being confined to those persons who the Board of Education evidently thought would favor the scheme.

GAVE THEM A SEND OFF.

Card Club Enjoyed a Pleasant Time With Mr. and Mrs. Taylor.

The card club of which Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Taylor, of Fairview avenue, are members, gave them a good send-off last evening at their home prior to their removal to Westervelt avenue, corner of East Front street. The feature of the evening was dancing. The twenty-four guests present thoroughly enjoyed themselves until an early hour this morning.

The house was decorated in an unique manner through the use of Japanese lanterns which were suspended from the ceilings in the various rooms, thus giving an oriental effect. The carpets had been removed from the floor, which gave added pleasure to dancing.

At midnight a sumptuous supper was served by the host and hostess, after which dancing was continued. The music for dancing was furnished by Miss Elizabeth Whitlock, formerly of this city, but now of Newark, and was all to be desired.

When the guests departed they all voted that they had never enjoyed themselves better and everyone was given an invitation to come again.

CAKEWALK IN A CHURCH.

Worldly Amusements are Attractions at Church Fair.

A cakewalk was the attraction at the fair in the Christian church last night. It was an exhibition walk by Miss Violet Johnson and Henry Ryan. There were also graphaphone selections by George Brall. Tonight a farce-comedy, "Belles of the Kitchen," will be presented. G. S. Dufford will also sing and give an exhibition of buck and wing dancing.

Great Work of Press C. A. W.

On Wednesday last a pair of gold rim eye glasses were lost by Mrs. Van Buskirk, of Chatham street, and yesterday they were found by E. D. Moffett, who saw the advertisement in The Press. On the same day a small silver Chatellane watch was lost by Mrs. Masters, of Third place, and it was found by Mrs. Moore, of East Third street. Both advertisements appeared in The Press and found the owners quickly, as usual.

Engine Disabled.

A coal train drawn by Engine 419, of the Central Railroad, passed through this city this morning at 10 o'clock, on its way to Jersey City, in tow of Engine 352. Engine 419 broke down at Somerville and had to call assistance.

Y. M. C. A. GYM IS FORMALLY CLOSED.

Exhibition of Class Work Held Last Night.

TWENTY PARTICIPATED.

THE THREE YEARS WORK DONE BY MEMBERS OF ASSOCIATION.

Exhibition Marked the Formal Closing of the Gymnasium—Class Work Will be Continued Until Warm Weather Hopever—Dumb Bell and Single Stick Drills—Also Few Fancy Combination Waves on Bars.

While the class work at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will continue until the warm weather reduces the attendance, the indoor season at the gymnasium was formally closed last evening with an exhibition of the regular work done there during the winter. There were some twenty members of the association who donned their gymnasium suits and took part in the work. Other members and friends filled the visitors gallery and the extra space on the gymnasium floor.

The exhibition was intended to show exactly what the members did in the regular class work rather than the fancy moves of which they were capable. It opened with a dumb-bell drill, led by C. E. A. Heywood, in which all took part.

A short drill on the low bar, parallel bars and buck, led by J. A. Stafford, Max Moraller and C. E. A. Heywood, was given by all. The moves were those that are taken up in the first year's work. They were simple and prepared the way for more difficult ones. A single stick drill by four young men was led by C. E. A. Heywood.

A glimpse at the work of the second year was next, fifteen of the young men participating. J. A. Stafford led on the low bar, Eric Moraller on the parallel bars and C. Berry Egan on the horse. Pyramid work on the parallel bars followed by E. Moraller, Denton, Marcley and Brokaw. Marcley, Long and Heywood tried several fancy moves on the high bar.

There were six of the young men who took part in the exhibition of the work of the third year. On the parallel bars, they were led by Walter L. Long, on the high bar by Frank Marcley and on the horse by Eric Moraller.

A potato race, the distance in which amounted to a quarter of a mile, was run by J. H. Green, Jr., and Charles Hayes. Green won in 1 minute, 48 seconds. Hayes finished two seconds later. The last record was 1 minute, 46 2-5 seconds.

The exhibition ended with a game of basket ball between picked teams of five men each, captained by Eric Moraller and Walter L. Long. Moraller's team won by a score of 8 to 0.

YOUNG VETS NOT WANTED

G. A. R. DO NOT WANT VOLUNTEERS OF SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

Article in the News Causes an Erroneous Impression—Old Veterans Want Organization to End With Them.

The article appearing in the News of last evening has caused a great deal of unfavorable comment among members of the G. A. R. and their friends. The idea suggested that volunteers of the late war be admitted to membership in the G. A. R. is not at all likely. The majority of the veterans of the Civil War are unalterably opposed to recruiting their ranks with anyone except their fellow-veterans. And they say that when this is impossible, let the organization pass out of existance, a credit and honor to the Nation.

Another point is that if anyone should come next to the G. A. R. as they pass away it should be the sons of these veterans, as they hold a rightful heritage to the place.

In previous encampments of the G. A. R. efforts have been made to open the ranks to the Sons of Veterans, but for some reasons this proposition has not been successful. It stands to reason that if the rightful heirs, the Sons of Veterans, cannot gain membership in the G. A. R., the volunteers of the late war are not entitled to it. Members of the G. A. R. recognize the Sons of Veterans.

The veterans say that there is not a general disposition to allow the volunteers of the late war enter their ranks, and it would be contrary to the laws and constitution of the organization. They also say that there is not any likelihood that such action will be taken at the next encampment, as stated by the News.

WEDDED AT ST. MARY'S.

MISS MARY A. M'CUE BECOMES MRS. ELLIOTT.

Ceremony Performed by Rev. Father Westman—Reception Held at Bride's Home—Couple to Reside in Norwich.

St. Mary's church was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when Rev. Father Westman united Miss Mary A. McCue, daughter of Thomas McCue, in marriage to Jeremiah Elliott, of Norwich, Conn. The wedding was witnessed by a number of guests, mostly members of the two families. The bride was attired in blue poplin, trimmed with white lace and satin ribbon.

The groom's sister, Miss Mary Elliott, of Norwich, acted as bridemaid, and wore a handsome gown. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, while the bridemaid's were pink. Edward McCue, of Port Chester, N. Y., was best man. He is a brother to the bride.

After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the bride's home, 674 West Fourth street, where a reception was held. The happy couple left on the 9:58 train for Norwich, where they will spend the summer. The groom is coachman for Mrs. George H. Babcock, and will return in the fall, bringing his bride with him.

Among the guests present were Miss Gordon and J. O'Neill, of Brooklyn; Miss Kate Burns, of New Rochelle, and Thomas McCue, Miss Bridget McCue, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Monsell, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Anderson, M. O'Keeffe and Miss Mary Lynch, of this city.

HIT ON THE HEAD WITH A BRICK.

Small Boys Pelted Stones and One of Them Quite Badly Hurt.

Several members of the Leal school baseball team were practicing in the Washington avenue grounds yesterday afternoon. A crowd of small boys hung around the place, tried to run away with the ball and repeatedly annoyed the players. As the latter departed, several stones were thrown at them with good aim. The fire was returned and William Valentine, of West Second street, was struck on the head by one of the missles.

A cut in the scalp, which bled freely, was the result. Patrolman McCarty was passing by on his wheel and took the lad to the station house where Dr. M. B. Long dressed the wound.

The city Judge will investigate the matter this afternoon.

WILLING TO DO MOST ANYTHING.

Constable Wyhuskey Makes a Proposition to the Dunellen Council.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 21—C. M. Wyhuskey, the constable, has applied to the Council for a position with the borough. Wyhuskey offers to do a great many things for the sum of $600 a year, among them being to do road work, act as janitor to the public buildings, trim trees, mow the grass in the streets, keep the park in order and act as marshal Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. Whether the offer will be accepted or not, cannot be told. The borough certainly needs a marshal to whom they can go in times of need, and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons are apt to be disturbed by a rough element from Plainfield.

TOOK A HEADER.

Bicycle Rider Thown Off His Wheel and Fell in Brook.

Alex. Lyngaard, aged 16 years, and a resident of Washingtonville, met with a peculiar accident Tuesday afternoon of this week. He was riding his wheel across the bridge at Washingtonville, and in trying to escape a quantity of crushed stone that had been spread in the roadway, his wheel slipped and he was thrown off the wheel and went headfirst into the brook a distance of several feet. The young man was considerably scratched about the head and body, and was taken to the hospital for treatment. His injuries were not serious and he was soon discharged.

DROPPED DEAD IN THE YARD.

A Westfield Servant's Body Stumbled Over by Her Master.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, April 21.—Mary Fahy, aged thirty-five years, dropped dead in the back yard of Charles Bussing's residence on Park street last night. She was a servant in the family of Mr. Bussing. The latter was walking in the yard when he stumbled over the prostrated body. Death was probably due to heart failure. County Physician Westcott has been notified —The Grand Union Tea Company, of 138 West Front street, will give to each purchaser of one pound of baking powder, four earthern bowls 1, 2, 3 and 4 quarts, or a lady's easy rocker.

REMONSTRANCE AGAINST GRANTING OF LICENSE.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS OPPOSED.

James Loughlin's Attempt to Put a Bar in Somerset Grove Does Not Meet With Favor.

A regular meeting of the North Plainfield Township Committee was held last evening when two important matters were introduced and favorably considered by the committee. One matter was the adoption of a second reading of the ordinance granting permission for the laying of an oil pipe line through the township. This pipe line is to run to Jersey City from the oil regions.

The matter of importance was the adoption of a resolution that is to be presented to the court at Somerville, remonstrating against the granting of a liquor license to James Loughlin for his place on the mountain at the end of the trolley road. This resolution was signed by Chas P. Sebring, Benjamin Clark and Thomas Taylor. There is now quite a petition signed by fifty property owners in the borough and township protesting against the granting of this license and there is a strong feeling against the issuance of it. The petitions are signed by most of the officials of the borough and township. The case will be decided next Friday by Sudge Bartine.

IN DR FRENCH'S MEMORY

PLAN FOR THE ERECTION OF A MEN'S INDUSTRIAL HOME.

The Project is Designed to Interest Christian Endeavorer's to the Extent of Securing Them to Purchase Shares.

The certificates of stock in the J. Clement French Industrial Home are now ready for any who wish to contribute toward the new home to be erected in Newark in memory of the late Dr. French. The committee has issued a letter setting forth the plan decided upon.

Five thousand certificats of $10 each will be issued, which when subscribed for will assure $50,000. The payments will be due on or before January 1, 1900. The committee in charge of the plan is:

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamberlain, chairman; Uzal H. McCarter, treasurer; Miss Emma Baldwin, secretary, and Joen Monteith, counsel.

Rev. Dr. Brett, president of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, in a letter indorses the new home as follows.

Jersey City, April 17, 1899.

This certifies that by a correspondence vote the Executive Committee of the New Jersey State Christian Endeavor Union give personal approval and the official indorsement of the State organization to an appeal made to societies and individuals by a committee of workers in Newark, New Jersey, for their co-operation and aid in erecting a home for the "Men's Industrial Home of Newark," to the glory of God, and in loving memory of our beloved leader and former President, Rev. J. Clement French, D. D.

The memorial fund will amount to $50,000, but it is fully understood that all gifts are voluntary, and that no responsibility is assumed by the State Union.

Cornelius Brett,
President.

ANOTHER HOSPITAL BENEFIT.

It Will Be a Concert at the Casino May 15th.

There will be no Kirmess or Spielkartenfest this season for the benefit of the Muhlenberg Hospital. The members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the hospital are planning, however, for a concert to be given May 15th, for the benefit of the hospital. The concert will be held in the Casino and the tickets for it will be $1.

Arrangements have been practically completed with the Metronome Banjo and Mandolin Club, of this city, Miss Marion Short, of New York, reciter, the Greater New York Quartette and Miss Marion Rummler, of New York, soprano soloist, to take part in the programme. It is planned to have the concert one of the most successful of the season.

Prize for Worst Looking Man.

A musicale and ragamuffin concert was given at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church last night under the auspices of the Helping Hand Society. Those who took part in the musical part of the programme, with instrumental or vocal music, were Alfred White, Wm. Groves, Edward Blair, Miss Fannie Olden, Miss Minnie Dunham, Miss Bertha Groves, Miss Mamie Carter and Miss Hall. There was an address by Richnrd Norwood, and Henry Frisbie illustrated how a Royal Blue train goes through. Frisbie, Thomas Johnson and Henry Williams took part in the ragamuffin parade, and as Johnston looked the worst he was given the prize, a silk umbrella.

ELIZABETH HOLDS FOR BETTER TERMS.

A Prolonged Session of Council Discussing the Trolley.

WON'T GIVE IN TO KEAN.

TRANSFER SYSTEM TO BE DECIDED BY BOARD OF ARBITRATORS.

The Democratic Majority Insist on a Five-cent Fare From Staten Island Ferry to Cranford—Do Not Propose to be Driven Into an Uneven Bargain—Kean Still Threatens to Quit the Project.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 21.—The City Council was in session till 1 o'clock again this morning considering the terms that should be exacted from Senator Kean in granting him the right to change the old horse car line into a modern electric railway. The matter was discussed in the committee of the the whole and a large number of interested citizens were there to watch the proceedings.

The Democratic majority still held to their position with reference to making a five-cent fare between Staten Island ferry and Cranford, and lots of aggressive discussion was indulged in. It was pretty thoroughly demonstrated that the Council, or the majority of the members, do not propose to be driven into a bargain that will give Senator Kean the major portion of the advantages to be derived from the new franchise which he has applied for.

The matter of the city retaining the right to fix a system of transfers between the Kean company and any other company in the future, if public convenience and interests warrant a change, was discussed pro and con for sometime. It was finally agreed that the amendment to the original ordinance in this respect should be made to read that the change in the transfer system should be made by a board of arbitrators, the Council to choose two, the trolley company two, and these four to select a fifth one.

Frank Bergen, the counsel for Senator Kean's company, still insists that the concessions asked for by the Council are too much and that the project will have to abandoned unless the officials recede from their position. The latter are determined, however, to secure better terms than the company have offered for the franchise, as they realize its inestimable worth to Senator Kean and the fact that it is the pivotal point to his proposed trolley operations in Union county.

On motion of President Ryan, the street committee was appointed a conference committee to confer with Mr. Kean and urge him to adopt the five-cent fare. He says he will not accept the proposition.

A SUCCESSFUL BENEFIT.

Given in Aid of the Family of the Late Augustus Jackson.

Saengerbund Hall was filled last evening with merry dancers and there was a generous response to the benefit affair given for Mrs. Jackson, widow of the late Augustus Jackson, who, some time ago, fell from a scaffold while working at Perth Amboy and was killed, leaving a wife and two children. The many friends of the departed husband, who comprise a large number of Scandinavians, Swedes, Danes and Germans, arranged the benefit last evening, and a substantial sum was realized therefrom and will be given to Mrs. Jackson.

The music for dancing was furnished by Chris. Sorensen, Claus Wallander and Louis Hummer, who donated their services, while a number of women, forming a part of the committee, furnished the refreshments for the supper without any cost.

The committee was composed of the following persons: President, Chas. Jensen; secretary and treasurer, H. Hansen; Alfred Luthmann, P. Krog, Harry Krog, Edward Engnold, Miss C. Sorensen, Miss Charlotte Karnell, Miss Charlotte Lundberg, Miss Risberg, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Engwall.

Interesting News of Former Residents.

Yesterday in Holy Trinity Protestant Episcopal church, New York, occurred the wedding of Miss Jennie Lockwood Shrady, daughter of Dr. John Shrady to Mr. Walter Graeme Buxton, where the matron of honor, gowned in pink, was Mrs. Arthur M. Shrady. Mrs. Shrady, a bride of this year, will be remembered by many Plainfield friends as Miss Aline Chaffee, and news of her will be of interest, as well as of her brother, Edward J. Chaffee, who was one of ushers at the fashionable wedding.

TROOPS TO PHILIPPINES.

The Government Will Send 14,000 More Soldiers to Swell Otis' Army.

TO SQUELCH AGUINALDO

Volunteers Amounting to 12,000 Men Now in Philippines to be Brought Home Speedily as Possible.

War Department Has No Further Information Concerning the Fate of Lieut. Gilmore and Party—Belief Still Prevalent That They Were Rescued by the Spanish Garrison at Baler.

Washington, April 21.—As rapidly as transportation can be secured 14,000 regulars, many of them now in Cuba and Porto Rico, will be rushed to Manila to reinforce General Otis's command.

Even with these accessions his force will be only slightly greater than at present, for 12,000 volunteers now in the Philippines are to be brought home as speedily as possible.

But the War Department does not intend to be content with these 14,000 troops. It is realized that more will be needed, and more than 10,000 additional will be sent, increasing our Philippine garrison to 35,000 men before early Autumn.

The rainy season will then be over and aggressive operations will be resumed, provided no terms are made with Aguinaldo in the meantime.

The first regiment to be ordered will probably be the Seventh Artillery, of which the two light batteries, C and M, have been ordered home from Porto Rico for the purpose. They will be sent at once to San Francisco to await an available transpacific steamer.

The thirteen heavy batteries of the regiment will be equipped as infantry according to present plans, although one of them may be used as light artillery.

The headquarters of the regiment and four batteries are now at Fort Slocum, New York, two are at Fort Adams, Rhode Island, and one each at Portland Head, Maine; Fort Preble, Maine; Grover's Cliff, Massachusetts; Fort Schuyler, New York and Washington Barracks.

It will be impossible to bring home any appreciable number of volunteers from the Philippines before the middle of June. Of the regular army transports and chartered steamships, two, the Grant and Sherman, are en route from Manila to San Francisco; six are en route from San Francisco to Manila; seven loading at San Francisco, and eight at Philippine ports.

The battalions of the Thirteenth regiment, Infantry, stationed at Fort Porter, Buffalo, and Fort Niagara, Youngstown, have gone from their respective posts en route to the Philippines. The information as to the fate of Lieut. J. C. Gilmore and his party, captured at Luzon. Uneasiness as to their fate has been considerably allayed, however, by Admiral Dewey's cable dispatch to the effect that the men may have been rescued by the Spanish garrison at Baler.

There are indications of foul play and the Coroner will make an investigation.

Marconi's Wireless Telegraphy.

London, April 21.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes interviews with persons interested in Marconi's system of wireless telegraphy, in which they express their belief that communication with the United States by means of the system is practicable. The question has not yet been taken up, however, as all the time has been devoted to experiments. There is no intention of competing with land lines.

New Jersey Strikers Threaten Trouble.

New Brunswick, N. J., April 21.—The strikers who are out at the plant of the Fire Proving Company have made several demonstrations. Threats had been made by the strikers to burn the Standard Fire Proving Works, and a strong guard has been placed about the plant.

THE LATEST NEWS.

THEY MAY YET ELECT A SENATOR

Harrisburg, Pa., April 21.—On account of the failure of the Legislature to pass such legislation as would have wiped out the deficiency of $3,500,000 in the State Treasury, and covered the estimated ordinary expenses of the government for the next two years, it is not improbable that an extra session will be called.

AN OLD WOMAN BOUND AND GAGGED.

Morristown, N. J., April 21.—When an old man who does occasional work about the farm of old Mary Tuttle, near Morris Plains, reached the place early this morning, he heard faint screams for help coming from the house. Entering, he found the single occupant, who is 80 years old, bound to the bed with ropes and exhausted in the attempt to free herself. Burglars had visited her.

FILIPINO JUNTA IN LONDON YET ASLEEP.

London, April 21.—The Filipino Junta has received by cable direct from General Luna at Manila a story to the effect that Gen. Lawton, while trying to march on Baler to connect with the Yorktown, was ambuscaded and 140 men of his advanced guard was captured. This forced him to retreat.

John Barrett, the Journal's commissioner from Manila, says there is an impassable range of mountains between the place where Lawton was and Baler. Lawton's withdrawal need cause no uneasiness. It was under orders given before he started and is in preparation for the rainy season.

Washington, April 21.—No credence is given the Filipino story of capturing any of Lawton's men.

FILIPINOS READY TO QUIT, SAYS ENVOY.

London, April 21.—Senor Lopez, chief Filipino envoy in London since Agoncillo went to Paris, declared the Filipinos are tired of fighting and must now throw themselves on the mercy of the Americans.

Senor Lopez's important declaration was made sorrowfully but emphatically. He said:

"We are now in the hands of the Americans and must throw ourselves on their mercy. Our troops are tired of fighting. They are fighting men that they consider are really their good friends.

"Aguinaldo is probably arranging a truce preparatory to peace, and I hourly expect orders from Aguinaldo to go to Washington and conduct negotiations to that end.

"We have full faith in the ability and intentions of the American Philippine Commisioners."

Senor Lopez said he was directly under the authority of Aguinaldo, and not of Agoncillo. He said he did not believe the story that a column of Gen. Lawton's men had been ambuscaded, and did not believe that it came from Filipino sources.

Senor Lopez's attention was called to the apparent discord which existed between himself and Senor Agoncillo, as instanced by their divergent statements. He would not explain this definitely, but intimated that Agoncillo belonged to the Jingo party.

MRS. GEORGE OFFERS ALIBI

Expert Testimony Introduced to Show That Persons Addicted to the Use of Morphine Are Unreliable—Mrs. Eckroate the Prosecution's Strongest Witness Admits Having Used Drug Ten Years.

Canton, O., April 21.—To prove that George D. Saxton was killed by a man and not by Mrs. Annie E. George will be the effort of Mrs. George's lawyers. A witness was introduced who testified that he saw an unknown man dressed in black near the scene of the murder a few minutes before the shots were fired. The defense sprang a surprise when it announced that it would present a witness who would testify to having seen a man, corresponding in description to the unknown man, hurrying away from the locality immediately after the shots were heard. To show that the "unknown man" was responsible for Saxton's death the defense says it has a witness, a woman, who will testify that Mrs. George was with her at her home, distant from the scene, at the time Saxton was killed. The defense may finish its case this week. Expert testimony was introduced to show that a person addicted to the opium or morphine habit becomes early very untrustworthy. Dr. J. G. Eyman, superintendent of Newbeg Hospital, Cleveland, was introduced as an expert on the subject. The State's most important witness, Mrs. Eckroate, who testified that she positively identified Mrs. George as the person who killed Saxton, was proved by the defense to be a victim of the morphine habit. She admitted that she had ben using the drug for ten years.

Dr. Eyman testified that one of the earliest symptoms a morphine user developed was that of hallucinations. One of the first results, the witness testified, was the loss of regard for the truth.

"I had been troubled with dyspepsia for over fifteen years and the last five years suffered intensely. I had tried quite a number of remedies, and though at times they relieved my suffering they never cured me. About four months ago I noticed the advertisement of Ripans Tabules and bought some, and by using them as directed they benefited me more than I expected. Soon I found that all signs of the disease had disappeared and that I was gaining in weight right along, and to-day I can say that I am thoroughly cured. I have gained in weight seventeen pounds, increasing from 128 to 145 pounds."

A new style packet containing TEN TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. QUAY WILL NOT TESTIFY.

Defense Announce That They Will Not Offer Anything In Retribution.

A VERY BOLD MOVE THIS.

Believed that the Trial For Conspiracy Against Bank Will Not Extend Far Into Next Week.

Quay's Friends Maintain That Proceedings Were Instituted to Stop His Election—His Enemies Rejoice Believing His Failure of Re-election Indicates Broken Power.

Philadephia, April 21.—It was the general opinion here that the trial of ex-Senator Matthew S. Quay on a charge of conspiracy to use unlawfully funds of the State deposited in the People's Bank would not go far into next week, if, indeed, it lasted beyond Saturday night. It was believed that when the Commonwealth closed so unexpectedly, the end of the trial was in sight. Quay's friends contended that the prosecution's case was destroyed on Monday last when the Court ruled out all evidence as to State Treasurers prior to 1896. It is held that District Attorney Rothermel was prepared to prove conspiracy, as charged in the indictment, only by going back to 1886, when Quay was State Treasurer.

Quay's friends also maintained that as the last ballot for Senator had been taken, the prosecution was satisfied with what had been done by the proceedings here to stop Quay's election at Harrisburg. Quayites have all along contended that the trial was a piece of political persecution, and some of the more rabid of Quay's partisans asserted that there was a sinister coincidence between the times when the People's case was closed in the trial and the last ballot in Harrisburg.

The Quay men however, declared their satisfaction with the condition of things and pointed out the fact that Quay's regime was continued in the one Senator from the State. They say that the trial will have no effect by next fall. The enemies of the former Senator believe that Quay's failure to secure a reelection has broken his power, and they protest that this will content them, even if the trial does not end in conviction.

The defence moved to dismiss the case without offering testimony. The motion was made shortly after court had opened at 10 o'clock, when David T. Watson arose and said:

"The Commonwealth made a voluminous offer. Having utterly failed to make good the offer, the defence moves to strike out of the evidence, first, the books of the bank as not being evidence in the case and not connected with the defendant Quay; second, the Red Book, because the same is not evidence in the case and not connected with the defendant, Quay; third, the letter of Haywood to Hopkins and the minutes of the meeting of the board of directors of the bank on Aug. 3, 1896, because they relate to a transaction with which the defendant was not connected; fourth, to strike out the testimony of Meyer Goldsmith, as not being the testimony of an expert, as he has not shown results, but has supported a theory by heterogeneous figures welded together by guesses.

"We do now move that the court withdraw the case from the jury and that a verdict be entered of not guilty. The crime charged in this case is conspiracy, and curiously, only one person has been indicted and put on trial. Particles of evidence have been admitted relating to this man, and that man, but not against this defendant. All this fails in the end, for the Commonwealth has failed to connect the defendant with it or to connect the defendant with any conspiracy to commit any unlawful act. All the evidence was admitted because the District Attorney promised to relate it to a conspiracy in which the defendant was involved."

Mr. Watson read the acts of Assembly regarding the use of State funds by the State Treasurer, and charged that the indictment had been ingeniously constructed but that it could not be brought under the provisions of the acts of the Assembly except by giving a secondary meaning to the words of the indictment.

"The indictment charges," said Mr. Watson, "that Quay, Hopkins and others induced State Treasurer Haywood to make unlawful use of the public funds, yet the State Treasurer was the sole custodian of those funds. He was practically owner. He had a legal right to deposit them anywhere. When you come down to it there is an almost invisible line between a loan with or without interest and a deposit.

"If the deposit is unlawful, the depositor has a right to gain any advantage he can from it. It is the State Treasurer who is prohibited from making gain by it. Is there any proof that Haywood was asked by Quay or any one else to make use of the State money for his advantage? This, the corpus delicti, itself, has not been proved, and in no shape or form has the defendant Quay been connected with the crime charged."

Judge Biddell overruled the motion of the defence at 11:20 o'clock, and said that the case would have to go to the jury.

The lawyers for Quay offered no evidence in defnce, and the District Attorney began to address the jury.

Court Whipped Beater.

Bath, N. Y., April 21.—James Kinney, wife beater, has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment, a $5 fine, and in addition received a good beating.

Kinney was arraigned before Justice John A. Adams, who is healthy and strong. When the imprisonment and fine were announced Kinney became abusive.

The Justice listened to him for a moment and then calmly arose from the bench, ordered the court officers to release the prisoner, took off his coat and proceeded to literally wipe up the floor with Kinney. He gave him a thorough thrashing, after which Kinney was taken to jail.

500 DROWNED IN TEMPEST.

Coast of Queensland Strewn With Wrecked Ships and Bodies of the Dead.

New York, April 21.—Advices from Australia give full particulars of the terrible hurricane that swept the northeast coast of Queensland early in March and in which fourteen white and more than 400 colored men were drowned. Eighty luggers and six schooners were wrecked. The damage is estimated at $1,000,000.

The Channel Island lightship and four men were lost at Douglas Spit. A colored man reached shore with two women after swimming for four hours. Many porpoises were found at the height of fifty feet. Stones were imbedded in trees to the depth of six inches, and rocks weighing tons were thrown up. Two colored women swam for ten hours with their children strapped to their backs but the children were dead when landed.

The height of the storm seems to have been experienced on Linders and Melville Islands. Where the schooners Agitta, Silvery Wave and Admiral were all lost, only one life being saved. A large number of bodies have been found unburied.

The full extent of the loss will never be known. The force of the gale must have been awful, as all trees were completely stripped of leaves and branches. Large fishes and a number of boats were thrown up on the cliffs many feet high. The beach is strewn with dead fishes and birds.

3 KILLED BY HIGHBINDERS.

Chinese "Hatchet Men" at War in Fresno, Cal., Fight a Pitched Battle.

Fresno, Cal., April 21.— A bloody highbinder war broke out in Chinatown yesterday. Three Mongolians occupy slabs in the Morgue, two more are at the County Hospital, mortally wounded, and nine are behind the bars in the county jail.

Large numbers of "hatchet men" arrived here from San Francisco. The Chinese decoyed the policeman on duty to quarters remote from the scene.

Upon hearing the first shot, Policeman Rapelji ran to the alley north of Tulare street, where he saw two Chinese pumping lead into the body of a third Chinese, who lay at their feet. Further up the alley were at least a dozen Chinamen, running about and blazing away at each other.

Policeman Morss saw a highbinder run up to a Chinaman named Chin Chi him, killing him instantly. The murderer started to run. Morss fired, the the ball penetrating the Chinaman's back, and he is now dying at the hospital.

Parson's Insurance Bill Killed.

Albany, April 21.—The Assembly by a vote of 54 to 72 defeated Senator Parson's bill providing that no domestic mutual fire insurance company having less than $200,000 assets above liabilities shall underwrite any property or re-insure policies written upon such property by other corporations.

Governor Roosevelt signed Assemblyman McMillan's bill amending the labor laws so as to prohibit the employment of a boy under eighteen years of age or of any female in operating or running polishing or buffing machines.

Mr. Allds to-day handed up the conference report on the appropriation bill. The amount provided in last year's bill, including the general school insane and canal taxes, was $16,383,-876.33. This year the bill, including amounts for the same purposes, provides for a tax of $16,344,744 47, a saving of $39,131.86. The report was adopted.

Won't Call 35,000 Men.

Washington, April 21.—A conference held at the White House resulted in the confirmation of the original decision to refrain from availing itself of the authorization conferred by Congress to organize a volunteer army of 35,000 soldiers in addition to the present regular army.

Otis now has a force believed to aggregate about 22,000 effective men. The troops on the way and to be ordered will give him about 30,000 men, after allowing for the return of the State volunteers. This is believed sufficient to meet all the needs of the summer season.

What Does This Mean?

St. Paul, Minn., April 21.—Gov. Lind received the following cablegram from Manila:

"Lind, St. Paul: The regiment must be ordered home and mustered out of the service at once.

"Officers of the Regiment."

Governor Lind said he was unadvised as to the exigencies at Manila, and was wholly in the dark as to significance of the message.

It came in cypher, unsolicited, and its terms were as unintelligible to him as they would be to the public.

250 Miles of Cable for Lewey.

Washington, April 21.—Brigadier-General A W. Greeley, the Chief of the Signal Service of the army, left for New York, where he will superintend the stowing away of the 250 miles of cable to be carried to Manila by the cable ship Hooker. The cable is intended to connect the important islands of the Philippine group, and to preserve it until Manila is reached it has to be carefully stowed away in tanks and kept under water the entire length of the journey.

71st Inquiry Up Before Roosevelt.

Albany, April 21.—A hearing on the report of the court which investigated the conduct of the Seventy-first Regiment of New York City at Santiago was given by Gov. Roosevelt. Colonel A. S. Bacon, of Brooklyn, appeared as consel for Majors Whittle, Smith and Austin, of the regiment, and James J. Buchanan, of this city, represented the court, Adjutant-General Andrews and General George Moore Smith, of New York, were present.

Thieves Rid Him of $2,000.

New York, April 21.—Smith Hill, of Passaic, N. J., who recently inherited $150,000 under his father's will, claims to have been robbed of $1,100 in cash, and jewels worth $900 by gamblers in this city. He was tempted into a faro game on East Fourteenth street, he says, and lost the cash, and was then given knockout drops and robbed of his jewelry.

WIT AND HUMOR.

"Why, papa," said Frances, who was looking at the family album, "surely this isn't a picture of you?"

"Yes," replied papa, "that is a picture of me taken when I was quite young."

"Well," commented the little girl, "it doesn't look as much like you as you look now."—Harper's Bazar.

The camel's foot is like a soft cushion, peculiarly well adapted to the stones and gravel over which it is constantly walking. During a single journey through the Sahara, the horses of British officers have worn out three sets of shoes, while the camel's feet were not even sore.

"There is one idea that you can never get out of the average man's head."

"What is that?"

"The idea that his wife hasn't anything to do, and that she could lounge in the hammock all day if she wanted to."

"My daughter is spiritual; she kept up her church work through all the hot weather."

"What kind of church work?"

"She went to the seashore and came home engaged to a clergyman."—Chicago Record.

"I don't see how a brilliant man like Professor Dusentrais can put in so much time talking to that insipid Mrs. Moktalque."

"Oh, he's only stropping his intellect."—Chicago Journal.

"Yes, Grandma, when I graduate I intend following a literary career—write for money, you know."

"Why, Willie, my dear, you haven't done anything else since you've been at college."—Boston Traveller.

PENNSYLVANIA BILLS:

Legislative Session Ends After an All-Night Sitting.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 21.—The session of the State Legislature came to an end Thursday after an all-night sitting. Great efforts were made toward the last to push belated measures to final passage. Many failed before dawn, but in several case measures got through. Among the defeated bills was one to incorporate distillery companies.

About 5 o'clock in the morning it was imposible to hold the sleepy members in their places longer, and a recess was taken until 8:30 o'clock. Then the turning back of the hands of the clock began so as to gain time for the important conference reports and other matters still hanging in the balance. The Direct Inheritance bill was called up, but after some controversy it was indefinitely postponed. This was a hard-fought measure, and was regarded as one of the important bills of the session. The General Appropriation bill was passed at the last moment, after a fight over several items. The factional strife of the session did not come to the surface in the closing hours.

A Big Banking Convention.

New York, April 21.—It was reported in local banking circles that it was probable that a convention of the banking interests of the principal cities of the United States would be called within a few weeks to discuss the subject of charging for the collection of checks and to agree, if possible, on some scheme that might be adopted. Chicago bankers are said to be urging those of Detroit, Cincinnati and other Western cities, to take the lead in the matter.

A New York banker said that while he had heard of no invitations as yet to the proposed convention, he has no doubt that it would take place. He was of the opinion that the move was one that would result in the general adoption of the system of charges recently introduced in this city. It indicates, he said, that the Western banks are dissatisfied with the old conditions and wish to obtain the relief that the New York banks are now enjoying.

There are no prospects, he said, of the abandonment of the position assumed by the New York banks in relation to check collection charges, the success of the new system having been established.

Fire on Blackwell's Island.

New York, April 21.—A serious fire broke out in the Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island last night. Flames were discovered in the cupola of the Administration Building. This is a large stone structure on the south end of the island. It contains the offices and the rooms of the employes of the various institutions on the island.

It is directly connected with the prison buildings. There is one fire engine on the island. It was at the scene promptly, but the flames spread over the roof so rapidly that it was soon seen that it would be unable to cope with the blaze. Word was sent to the city and two fire engines were sent up to the island by a special boat from the Department of Corrections pier at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street. The fireboat Havemeyer and the Departmnet boat Brennan also aided in pumping water over the building.

A squad of policemen were sent from the East Fifty-first street station to preserve order among the prisoners. There was no trouble keeping order. No lives were lost. The convicts worked to put out the flames.

Corrigan-Rockefeller Suit Settled.

New York, April 21.—George Welwood Murray, counsel for John D. Rockefeller in the suit brought against him by James Corrigan, of Cleveland, has announced that he has received the opinion of the Board of Arbitration in whose hands the suit had been for settlement. The decision of the Board is in Mr. Rockefeller's favor, it being the final and ending of all litigation between the parties. The suit was to recover 2,500 shares of Standard Oil stock sold by Corrigan in 1895, and was brought upon the theory that Rockefeller was Corrigan's trustee and was guilty of fraud.

Mayor Harrison's Content.

Richmond, Va., April 21.—Mayor Carter H. Harrison, of Chicago, returned to Richmond from a visit to the lower James. When asked about the mention of his name for the Presidential nomination in 1900 he said:

"I am not looking for anything as big as that, and I do not expect it. I have for two years just as good a job as I want, and I am perfectly satisfied. The Democrats of Illinois, I think, prefer W. J. Bryan for the nomination. I believe the Chicago platform, with some changes, and especially some additions, will be adopted by the National Democratic Convention of 1900."

The sins of Grand Juries are generally those of omission rather than commission. It seems to be thus in the case of the Middlesex Inquest failing to look into the Lehigh Valley wreck at West Dunellen last January when eighteen persons lost their lives through the negligence and fault of someone of whom the public has never received the slightest evidence of knowing.

Just why the Grand Jury failed to inquire into this fatality—the dire results of which have not been paralleled in this section in a great many years, if ever—is a mystery. It should have been the cause of a searching investigation, but it has not, and thereby public interest has been aroused as to the why and the wherefor. In an able editorial the Newark News sums up the failure of the Grand Jury to act in this manner:

To publicly inquire into a general railroad disaster is public business in the most emphatic sense of the term Such an inquiry is valuable, not alone because of the measure of its success in placing responsibility, but also because it speaks of vigilance in the protection and guardianship of the people's safety. When a disaster occurs involving loss of life and due to some grave but obscure blunder on public lines of travel the public interest demands that the authorities shall make diligent public investigation thereof, shall endeavor to place the blame where it belongs and shall disclose any conditions of railroad management that may invite peril and demand correction and reform.

Of course, every one understands that a disaster like this is deeply deplored by the management and the employes of a railroad company. Doubtless the officers of the Lehigh Valley Railroad made searching inquiry into it, and took to heart the lesson of prevention and care that it taught. But when all that is admitted the need of public investigation is emphasized. In a case of this kind not a railroad, its employes and the victims alone, but the whole people are concerned.

The ancient and important office of Coroner has been too far degraded in dignity and plundered of power in New Jersey. It is time that it were employed in many cases in which justice and public interest demand prompt investigation of violent and accidental death, or death under suspicious circumstances. And there could not be a more striking illustration of neglect and indifference than has been given by the failure to hold a public inquest in this case.

THE SISTERS OF SILENCE.

Near Biarritz is a convent of women who never speak or look upon a human face. With downcast eyes and silent tongues they till the soil, make shoes and lace and paint cards. They are all women rescued from the world. Their labor supports the "Convent of Refuge." They are called the Bernadines—the Sisters of Silence.

A committee of women representing the New Jersey Woman's Suffrage Association has issued a circular calling attention to the law respecting kindergarten departments in public schools. This law provides that the board of education of any school district, irrespective of size, may establish a kindergarten department, admittance to which shall be enjoyed by any child over five and under seven years of age. The law does not require a special fund for the maintenance of this department, but the expenses incident to its conduct can be paid in exactly the same manner as other school bills are paid. This is a law which modern education has long recognized the need and desirability of having. The kindergarten instruction forms a splendid foundaion for the more serious studies which the youth of the State are required to undertake.

The Common Council of Bayonne has voted a salary of $2,500 to the Mayor of that city. Bayonne has only 3,000 more population than the city of Plainfield, and not as much as Plainfield and North Plainfield combined. A proposition to pay the Mayor of Plainfield a salary of one-half as much as Bayonne is to pay, would be hooted down as the wildest sort of extravagence. Yet the day is approaching when Plainfield's chief executive will be paid a fair salary.

Between 1890 and 1895 the population of Plainfield increased 2,362. At that ratio of increase since the latter date Plainfield ought to have very close to 16,000 people within its boundaries at the present time. Adding the borough's population to that, allowing the same proportion of increase since 1895, and we can claim over 20 000.

Speaker Reed having decided to retire from Congress and active politics President McKinley doubtless breathes easier now. But he still has Alger's name to contend with when he comes to the voters. This immediately suggests the thought that a man's friends are his worse enemies.

The teachers in Hoboken public schools are said to be assessed 2 per cent of their salaries for the political purposes of the dominant party. If this is really so, and the interested politicians take occasion to deny it, the Hoboken Board of Education needs to be Mazeted.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

New Brunswick will probably consider itself lucky to get any tax on the old Opera House property, but having been awarded over $5,000 it should offer that as a reward to any one who will remove the eye-sore, which for four years has adorned the junction of its two most prominent thoroughfares. —Newark News.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

M. A. Kohn, of Newark, has been visiting for a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Leichtentritt, of Central avenue. Mr. Kohn has just returned from Cuba, where he has been for nearly three months. He was among the first to board the Merrimac after the declaration of peace and in his travels about Cuba he had many exciting experiences. On one or two occasions Spaniards attempted to get the best of him, but he prevented them from doing so every time.

Louis M. Dunavan, as foreman of the Gazelle Engine Company, of the Plainfield fire department, has just received a curio that will be greatly prized by the members of that company. A letter came from Mrs. F. J. Menaugh, of St Louis, Mo, saying that the inclosed ticket had just been found among some of her old papers and that she thought that it might be of more value to the company than to her. It was given to her by Richard Barkalew, who now lives in Newark and has a brother, Louis Barkalew, living in the borough. The ticket was a highly decorated affair for the first complimentary ball of Gazelle Fire Engine Company, No. 1, of Plainfield. N. J., held Wednesday evening, Thanksgiving eve, November 28, 1855.

The celebrated and long-enduring expression of Horace Greeley, "young man, go west," scarcely covers the situation now as defining the section where opportunities for "growing up" with the country abound. At least it would seem so after talking with Chas. D Stillman, a young civil engineer, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Sabine Pass, Texas. Mr. Smith believes that the south is a splendid place for the ambitious young man to go to if he is possessed of even ordinary ability. As for himself, Mr. Stillman is prospering finely. He has been in Sabine pass for two years and is now superintendent of construction of the slips and docks of the Sabine Land and Improvement Company. The company owns 18,000 acres of valuable land there and is developing the Pass as a shipping district. It has one of the finest harbors on the Gulf of Mexico and is destined to be a great rival of Galveston. Within a few years the Government has spent $3,000,000 in dredging and improving the harbor, which now has an average of thirty feet of water in it. When Mr. Stillman went there the Pass was but a small settlement; now there are 1 200 people there and the town is growing rapidly. Mr. Stillman says that a man with a small amount of capital and plenty of enterprise and perseverance can go there and make himself a well-to-do citizen in a few years.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but decidedly so for it, because it is health building and invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 21.—Yesterday was a great time for the connoisseur of old-fashioned furniture, and those who attended the auction sale of household goods at Mrs. Sarah D. Nelson's saw a great assortment of valuable pieces, some of which were worth their weight in gold to some people. There were few purchasers, and what was sold went at low prices. A handsome grandfather's clock was sold, so was a mahogany table with side leaves, a quantity of the blue china, over which society people rage now days, three spinning wheels and other articles. Mr. Nelson is about to give up house keeping and wanted to dispose of these things.

There was a good attendance at the entertainment given by the public school children in the Presbyterian church last night. The principal part of the programme consisted of a drama, "Cinderella in Wonderland," the parts of which were taken by the children. There were selections on the piano, a fan drill, marches, etc.

The Bound Brook cars gave very unsatisfactory service again yesterday. Some times there would be an interval of an hour and a half between cars, and again they would be on time. "Power off" was the excuse given for being late.

The proceeds of the dance which was given by the young men of St. John's church Wednesday night, will be used to fix up the grounds surrounding the church.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. will hold a sale of pies, cake, etc., in their rooms Saturday afternoon.

A. F. Warden and family will move into the Thompson place on Prospect avenue about May 1.

Norman Dunn, of Scotch Plains, was in the borough on business yesterday.

The schools here will appropriately observe Arbor Day which falls on the 28th.

Work on laying the water pipes was resumed again yesterday morning.

John Beekman has returned from a visit in Somerville.

Miss Merrill was in Newark yesterday.

NEW MARKET

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, April 21—D. C. Tabb has returned from a business trip, during which he visited portions of Canada.

William Cameron has returned from a two months' trip through the south with a theatrical troupe, and is visiting D. C. Tabb.

William B. Smith is about to begin the erection of a valuable house on the new property recently purchased by him.

The Junior Missionary Society of the Baptist church will give a missionary concert Sunday night.

Miss Alice Martin, of Martinville, is visiting her uncle, Phillip Jenner.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 21.—Phillip Crisp, at one time a well known resident of the village, died at his home in Trenton Wednesday. Interment will be made tomorrow afternoon in the family plot in the Trenton cemetery.

The little Christian Endeavor Juniors of the Baptist church will celebrate their second anniversary Saturday afternoon in the church parlors. An interesting programme has been arranged for the little ones and a full turnout of the members is desired.

Scotch Plains came near having the trolley Thursday afternoon. A car jumped the track on Richmond street and started this way, but the motorman would not have it. So we have again missed an opportunity.

Rev. Mr. Shott leads the prayer meeting in the Baptist church this evening. Mr. Shott intends to devote part of the service to a praise meeting, the audience selecting their own favorite hymns.

Wm. VanWalkenburg is making a number of improvements around his Bartle avenue house.

Charles Layton is around once more after a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meet in their rooms this evening.

Goodwill Lodge, K. of P., held an interesting meeting last night.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Westfield, April 21—The Newark conference having returned Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson to the Methodist church in this town, the congregation tendered him and Mrs. Anderson a reception in the lecture room last evening. There was a large part of the congregation of the church present, and after several addresses had been delivered refreshments were served.

The Board of Trade and Improvement Association held a meeting last evening, but adjourned without doing anything as there were only a few present. This organization seems like most of its kind throughout the country, a big start and then a quick finish.

The Westfield Club hall was packed to the doors last night when the Woman's Association of the Congregational church gave their annual entertainment. It was entitled "The Spinster's Fortnightly Club" and was very interesting.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1.00, every bottle guaranteed.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

All corporations are not dishonest—at least in Canada. An Ottawa paving company has just notified the city authorities that on its contract for paving Sparks street it had been overpaid $1,000, and a check for that amount accompained the letter. The overpayment was due to an error in calculation on the part of the city employes, and was only discovered by chance by the paving company's bookkeeper.

Some time ago the Louisville Commercial published an article headed: "Found at Last! The Search for the Meanest Man on Earth Has been Busily Prosecuted for Years, but I Claim the Proud Distinction of Having Located Him. He lives at Owensboro." The paper thereupon sued for libel by J. R. Tennelly, of Owensboro, Ky., who although he was not named, asserted that he was the man referred to. The Commercial admitted this and attempted to prove that the statement concerning Tennelly was true. The latter obtained judgment for $500.

OUT OF DOOR STYLES.

Dainty Capes and Mantles For Summer Weather.

Very short little capes, which come scarcely below the shoulders and are not much more than large collars, are a novelty of the season. They are of silk, satin, mousseline de soie, tulle or gauze and are much ornamented, all available trimmings being expended upon them. There are plaitings of silk or gauze, ruches of the same materials or of ribbons, ostrich tips or chiffon frills with an edge of ostrich plume fibers. Spangled trimmings and lace are also lavishly used. As a rule these capes have a fanciful collar or neck ruche and a smooth yoke, upon which are mounted points, scallops, circular ruffles or plaitings to form a little pelerine.

There are likewise very attractive evening capes, often with a hood to match, which is attached to the cape or made so that it can be worn separately. The materials employed are of the richest, and the usual form is circular, with rounded fronts.

Capes of black or white lace over silk, black, white or colored, are a pretty novelty. Mantles are also seen which embrace every grade of difference between a cape and a jacket. One of the simplest is rounded at the back and has two longer ends in front, which may be round, square or pointed. Guipure embroidered with silk and metal is used over silk for elaborate wraps, but there are all degrees of richness and simplicity.

The cut shows a costume of nickel gray cloth, the skirt being ornamented with lines of stitching which ascend in the form of points in front. The tight coat has a round basque of medium length, with a tailor collar and revers of mandarin faille. There are mandarin faille cuffs and gold buttons at the wrists of the tight sleeves. The masculine vest of white cloth is fastened with small gold buttons, and shows a chemisette of plaited white batiste and a batiste collar. The toreador cravat is of mandarin faille. Gold and cut steel buttons adorn the fronts of the coat. The hat of nickel gray felt is trimmed with a drapery of white faille, a gold buckle and an argus feather. JUDIC CHOLLET.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Hats, Bonnets and Accessories For the Coming Season.

Collars and cuffs of linen and lawn are much worn with tailor made costumes and plain woolen gowns. These accessories are plain or are decorated with hemstitching, little plaitings or ornamental stitching. Linen plastrons and chemisettes are made with masculine shirt plaits.

Hats of tulle are a conspicuous feature among the new millinery. These hats are often large and are made in all sorts of ways. Sometimes the tulle is arranged over the wire shape in thick braids and twists; sometimes it is puffed; sometimes it is shirred with innumerable little beadings, or it is made into ruches, the edges of which may be finished with a line of jet. Flowers are the favorite trimming, and a jeweled buckle or ornament is usually introduced also.

Chip hats are again seen, and a new idea for trimming them is to utilize ribbonlike bands of the chip, which are twisted into loops and bows. Leghorn hats are trimmed in the same way, strips of the leghorn braid being employed. Of course these bows are not the only trimming; they appear in connection with flowers, ribbons, velvet or mousseline de soie.

Straw hats of vivid colors are to be worn again this season. They are chiefly of wide fancy braid and appear in blues, purples, greens, reds and yellows. There are also very attractive gray and fawn shades, which are trimmed with the same tones and afford a pleasing relief from the brilliant colors.

Toques are rather large, and, like all millinery, are profusely trimmed. The toque of which a picture is given has a crown of pink roses, around which is arranged a thick torsade of black tulle. The brim has a border of steel trimming and is lifted at the left side by a twisted knot of pink velvet, which terminates in points at the back. Above the velvet is a large group of those powdery, white leaves which were worn years ago and have now been revived. JUDIC CHOLLET.

AN OLD NEVADA TRAGEDY.

The Fight Between Bodlen and Chimay at the Bodie Saloon.

"I saw a great deal of killing in one form or another, and a heap of savage fights in Nevada's mountains," said Capt. William Mason, once of the Comstock Lode and a score of other lodes in the Silver State, "but for surprise and horror the fight between Bodlen and Chimay in the Bodie saloon lay over anything else by long odds. It was about midnight that the men fell to shooting—what it was about I forget now—but the saloon was running full blast, and there was a scattering to get out of the way of the shots. But the shooting was all on one side, for the cylinder on Chimay's pistol wouldn't revolve, and Bodlen sent shots into him until Chimay fell with enough holes in him to let out three lives. He was carried into a back room and laid out on the floor to wait for the Coroner, and then everybody went back into the front part of the saloon, and the games and the drinking went on as lively as before.

"Bodlen, as the winner, was naturally popular and a good deal looked up to that night, and had a good many invitations to drink, and he set 'em up himself off and on. He was standing at the bar with a group around him, the hero of the night. Of a sudden the door of the back room, where Chimay had been laid away, opened, and the first man that looked gave a yell like an Indian and nearly fell backward, and the rest of us felt like doing the same thing when we saw that it was Chimay standing there, pistol in hand, looking round. He saw the man he wanted, and by this time everybody between him and Bodlen had got out of the way. He raised his pistol and Bodlen pulled his, and the shots rang out again, but this time Chimay's pistol cylinder revolved, and at his second shot Bodlen dropped his pistol, staggered and went down on his face, shot through the heart. Chimay watched him fall, and then his pistol dropped from his hand and he fell backward into the room a corpse for good this time.

"For clear nerve and resolution, what Chimay had done beat anything I ever knew of. Left to himself he had revived, picked up his pistol, taken it apart, fixed the cylinder so that it would work, and then came out and shot his man. That was a specimen chip of Nevada in the old days."—New York Sun.

ALDERMEN IN BELGIUM.

They Would be Voted Slow by American Municipal Experts.

My guide of varied accomplishments combined, as business men abroad often do, the roles of country gentleman, manufacturer, bank president, school trustee, and—broadening the gulf between this kind and the typical American "boss"—he holds the more important position of alderman. In every city the alderman and mayor, or burgomaster, are of high social repute, elected to office because of special fitness for the branch of public affairs they are chosen to manage. Said one, with horror and shame: "We hear that in America aldermen are sometimes—thieves!" The first "alderman of public instruction" to whom I presented my credentials in a Brussels commune proved to be a barrister of note, author of several well-known law treatises. In another commune the alderman of public instruction is professor at the normal school, progressive and public spirited. The alderman responsible for the Ghent schools fills also the chair of political economy at the university, keeps in touch with the methods of other nations, reads the reports of the United States department of labor, and, much to my surprise, identified me at once from having seen my name in one of those volumes. The faculty of the university at Liege has more than one representative in the "college" of aldermen—a suggestive title, losing none of the dignity when applied to the body of brilliant men who administer civic affairs with scrupulous fidelity on broad, wise lines.—Harper's Magazine.

The Whipping Post.

Prior to our Revolution a whipping-post stood in Philadelphia, at the southeast corner of Third and Market streets. They were also to be found in most other American cities at that time. The pillory, which usually accompanied the whipping of criminals, was regarded as a species of public entertainment. The rabble evinced such pleasure in pelting the culprits with eggs, vegetables, and clods that Watson, in his historical annals of Philadelphia, declared that, inasmuch as these punishments were inflicted only on market days, the price of eggs was then systematically higher than common.

Two centuries ago these punishments were frequently accompanied by the barbarity of slitting the nostrils or clipping the ears of the worst offenders. Afterward the Sheriff usually held up the excised fragments of the ears to the gaze and vociferous applause of the multitude. We have no record indicating that nose or ear-splitting ever prevailed in America, but instead thereof the pitiless pelting of the offenders with mud or eggs was a universal custom bequeathed to us by Old England, and practiced until the date af the revolutionary war.—The Cosmopolitan.

Where the Charge Took Place.

"When you were in the war, did you ever take part in a charge?"

"Frequently."

"And what were your thoughts at the time?"

"That the beans would be all gone before I got there. The charges were invariably upon the cook-house, you know."—Boston Transcript.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Ostpreußen.

Königsberg. Das Schwurgericht verurtheilte den Gutspächter Simmat und den Tischler Wybories Timber wegen Münzverbrechens zu zwei beziehungsweise fünf Jahren Zuchthaus. Die Verurtheilten hatten 20-Markstücke hergestellt und elf davon verausgabt.

Neidenburg. Nach der Flucht des Stadtkassenrendanten Smalenski ist jetzt in der Stadtkasse ein Fehlbetrag von 11,379 Mark festgestellt worden. Von dieser Summe sind 3500 Mark gedeckt.—Die Haffuferbahn soll am Sonnabend vor Pfingsten eröffnet werden.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Danzig. Strolche haben auf den Militärposten im Glacis am Bischofsberge mit einem Revolver geschossen. Dem Posten wurde der Daumen der rechten Hand abgeschossen. In Folge dessen hat die Kommandantur angeordnet, daß sämmtliche Außenposten mit scharfer Munition aufziehen und von ihren Waffen Gebrauch machen, wenn Personen den Anordnungen der Posten nicht Folge leisten.

Tiegenhof. Die gegen den hiesigen Kaufmann J. Pächter schwebende Untersuchung wegen Brandstiftung ist jetzt vom Landgericht Elbing definitiv eingestellt worden, da sich kein genügender Anhalt für den aufgetretenen Verdacht ergeben hat.

Rheinprovinz.

Elberfeld. Ein erheblicher Brand brach hier in der Färberei von Gabriel Wesers aus. Das Feuer entstand in der Trockenkammer und legte sowohl diese als auch die darüber gelegenen Räume in Asche. Für circa 5000 Mark Kunstseide verbrannte. Den Schaden haben die von dem Brandunglück Betroffenen zu tragen, weil die Feuerversicherungs-Anstalten bis jetzt Kunstseide nicht versichern.

Oberhausen. An der Oberhausen-Alstadener Grenze wurde Abends der Kaufmann Heinrich Heckmann aus Styrum von sechs polnischen Arbeitern überfallen und mit einem sogenannten Hampelmann über den Kopf geschlagen. Heckmann erlitt einen Schädelbruch.

Remscheid. Oberbürgermeister v. Bohlen hat nach 23jähriger Thätigkeit als Leiter der Remscheider städtischen Verwaltung sein Amt niedergelegt. v. Bohlen war auch Vorsitzender des Rheinischen Städtebundes.

Provinz Sachsen.

Merseburg. Der ausgedehnte Zuckerrübenbau in der Provinz Sachsen zieht alljährlich eine Menge Arbeiter aus Russisch-Polen dahin. Solche Arbeiter haben in Roitzsch die echten schwarzen Pocken eingeschleppt. Man brachte zwei der erkrankten Polen nach der Klinik in Halle, wo sie anstandslos aufgenommen wurden. Da aber die Klinik sich sowohl aus hygieinischen als auch aus administrativen Gründen weigerte, weitere polnische Pockenkranke aufzunehmen, so ist der Kreis Merseburg in ein arges Dilemma gerathen, wer, ob der Kreis oder die Kommune, die Kranken in gesundheitspolizeilicher Weise unterzubringen habe.

Nordhausen. Auf der Harzquerbahn Nordhausen-Wernigerode ist der Betrieb eröffnet worden, und zwar durch eine von beiden Seiten aus unternommene Festfahrt nach dem Brocken, an welcher namentlich auch die Behörden der betheiligten Städte und sonstigen Orte Antheil nahmen, und welche mit einem gemeinsamen Festessen im Brockenhotel abschloß.

Provinz Schlesien.

Breslau. In der Sandvorstadt wurden drei Personen von einem tollwüthigen Hunde gebissen. Die Hundesperre wurde auf drei Monate in der Stadt Breslau verhängt.—Hier hat der Maler Klein seine frühere Braut Martha Nagel und dann sich selbst erschossen.

Gleiwitz. Die Stadtverordneten setzten das Ruhegehalt des Oberbürgermeisters Kreidel in Betracht seiner großen Verdienste um die Stadt auf 9000 Mark fest. Das Gehalt Kreidels belief sich auf 10,000 Mark. Man ist also über die gesetzlich zustehende Höhe des Ruhegehalts von zwei Dritteln des Einkommens hinausgegangen. Bürgermeister Miethe hat sein Amt wieder angetreten. Diese Lösung des länger als Jahresfrist währenden Streites hat hier allgemeine Befriedigung hervorgerufen.

Provinz Schleswig-Holstein.

Kiel. Von der Stadtverordnetenversammlung wurde eine Stiftung von 600 Mark zu Preisen für Veranstaltungen des Kaiserlichen Yachtklubs beschlossen.

Sonderburg. Das Stammgut der Kaiserin, der Hof Augustenburg in Schleswig-Holstein, ist vom preußischen Staat erworben worden, der es jetzt als Staatsdomäne an den bisherigen Pächter Jacobsen für 10,000 Mark Pacht jährlich auf die Dauer von sechs Jahren wieder verpachtet hat. Das Gut, welches mit dem daneben liegenden Schloß Augustenburg, das bekanntlich Eigenthum des Bruders der Kaiserin, des Herzogs Ernst Günther, war, der Stammsitz der Herzöge zu Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Augustenburg ist 200 Hektar groß und hat mit dem gesammten todten und lebenden Inventar einen Werth von 360,000 Mark.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 23, "The Man With the Pitcher." Text, Mark xiv, 12-16.

Women are the water carriers in the east, and for a man to be bearing a pitcher of water would be so unusual a circumstance as to attract attention and serve as a guide for the disciples. That Jesus should know those whom He was sending to Jerusalem to prepare the Passover feast would meet such a man seems a remarkable evidence of supernatural knowledge on His part. The lesson for the thought of the League lies, however, in a different direction. The occupation of the man with the pitcher seemed undoubtedly to him and those who saw him menial if not worse. He may have felt sensitive at being compelled by force of circumstances to appear publicly doing a woman's ordinary work, but the very fact of its unusual nature served as a mark by which he became guide to the disciples and the Master.

No one knows what simple act of daily life may at any moment serve to point one out as special messenger for divine service. No honest act is ignoble. No occupation is shameful if it be morally pure. False shame and mock modesty should never prevent the faithful discharge of plain duty, however irksome that duty may be.

Not long since three men were candidates for the presidency of one of our state universities. Their qualifications were so evenly balanced that the trustees had much difficulty in choosing. The question turned on personal peculiarities at length. It was noted that one of the candidates in sitting did not cross his legs. It was a simple thing, but it marked the gentleman, and that little item turned the balance in his favor. He had been unconscious of any peculiarity in his action, but had acted naturally to himself.

Each person should so cultivate the right spirit that all acts flow spontaneously in right channels. Then they will become guides at all times safely to be followed by the messengers of the Master. Carry your pitcher faithfully and leave the rest to God.

A Christian Captain.

Battles do not more clearly reveal cowards than they display the men of courage. One of the most gratifying features of our recent war with Spain has been the prominence given to Christian courage. It is undeniable that the victory of our arms at sea was more due to the moral caliber of our men than to the superiority of our armament. Captain Philip of the Texas was not better prepared for his duties by thorough naval training than by his Christian faith and practice. He believed deeply and implicitly in God. It was a magnificent act and grander because unpremeditated in form, the calling of his men to return thanks to God for the victory while their guns were still hot from the battle.

COMMODORE PHILIP.

One of the strongest safeguards of any nation must ever be found in the godliness of her armed defenders. Corrupt officials will never be wholly absent from government circles, but we need to thank God that Christian captains on sea and land are not lacking yet.

General Superintendence.

We occasionally hear the desire expressed that our bishops may be districted and given charge over a specified diocese so as to become better known to the people and more efficient in caring for the work. To such wishers we commend a study of the map of our church territory and the movements of our bishops in supervising our worldwide work. Bishop Warren is in South America. He visits the western coast, crosses the Andes to Buenos Ayres and the eastern stations, and goes thence to Europe. He surveys the continental field of South America. Bishop McCabe has been carefully superintending and inspecting our missions in Mexico. Bishop Walden returns to Europe for a second years' round of the conferences in Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Bulgaria, Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Bishop Hartzell is touring Africa from Liberia, Kongo, Angola, Rhodesia to Inhambane. Bishop Thoburn is ever busy in India. Bishop Cranston has gone to the orient for two years of hard labor in China, Japan and Korea.

The League is fully committed to the forward missionary movement. Great results should be reached if our chapters use the means at hand to know more of our missions and their work in saving the people and consecrate their money to the work.

The Epworth League, Christian Endeavor and Baptist Young People's Union are all now using the same topics. This began with Jan. 1, 1899.

General conference in May, 1900, is to meet in Chicago. The Auditorium, the finest assembly room in America, has been secured for its use.

Indianapolis Epworth League convention is set for July 20-24. It will be a great time and a big crowd.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic for the Week Beginning April 23—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—How Christ makes use of common lives. The man with the pitcher.—Mark xiv, 12-16.

The topical reference tells the story of Christ's arrangement for His last Passover. He sent Peter and John into Jerusalem, telling them they should meet a man, bearing a pitcher, whom they should follow, and request of his master a room in which Christ should celebrate the feast. The master of the house to which they were thus directed was probably John Mark.

The bearing of the pitcher in the incident was not without its meaning. It was a solemn religious act preparatory to the Passover. The act itself, however, would not be considered a very exalted one. It was performed by a humble person, a slave. It was an insignificant act in itself, and yet Christ used it for the help of His disciples, to manifest His own power and glory, and perhaps to teach His disciples a very important spiritual truth. It was the faithful performance of a humble duty of life, and yet Christ made very important uses of it.

1. Christ used this humble act of a common life to manifest His own power and glory. That Christ should have been able to describe the man whom they should see must have added to His glory and power. The fact that He would know beforehand that they would meet such a man must have testified to them of His divine character. Christ may often use common lives to attest His divinity and to manifest His glory. The faithfulness and fidelity of those in lowly and humble positions in life must often convince men that there is a divine power in their religion.

2. Christ used this humble act of a common life to direct His apostles in the discharge of a more important duty. Fidelity to Christ in little things may often be used by Him for the benefit of others. The faithful discharge of unpleasant and undesirable duties may often be the means, in the hands of God, of inspiring others to fidelity in Christian duty, or of leading them into larger fields of usefulness.

3. Christ may have used this humble act of a common life to teach an important religious truth—namely, that cleanliness must go before Christ. The water typified cleansing, and was to be used as symbolical of purification. It therefore may teach us this lesson—cleanliness must precede Christ. The house, the heart, the life into which He enters and abides must be clean and pure.

The uses that Christ made of this humble incident should encourage us to discharge faithfully every duty of life in whatever station in life God has placed us. No life is common if it is consecrated to God.

Bible Readings.—Ex. iv, 1-5; Math. v, 16; x, 42; xxvi, 7-13; Luke xvi, 10; xix, 12-26; xxi, 1-4; John vi, 1-14; I Cor. x, 31; Gal. vi, 9; Col. iii, 17; Rev. ii, 10.

The Difficulty of Doing Good.

Whatever you attempt in the way of good is sure to entail upon you remarks and criticisms, and many times ridicule, and sometimes opprobrium. You will be near to doubting that you are not merely making a fool of yourself, bringing upon your head no end of erroneous conceptions from others, but this is "the checkered pathway that leads up to light."

You may never see the springing up or the fruitage of your seed scattering, but as sure as God sends the sunshine of spring to warm and cheer into salient budding life the tiny germ yet lingering in the brown seeds that restless winds of winter have blown here and there, so will come the sunshine of His promise and providence, and your seeds will spring up into a life of beauty and immortality.—Catholic Universe.

The Need of the Republic.

The essential failure of our Democracy hitherto and its supreme danger for the coming of time are that opportunity is so far closed to the best wisdom and strength; that its representative places are so largely filled by the cunning and passion which but ape these great qualities; that politicians wield the weapons and sway the forces of statesmen. The prime need of the republic is a revolution which shall open the way of fitness to all leadership and close the way to unfitness, which shall link opportunity inseparably to wisdom and strength.—Charlton T. Lewis.

Joining the Church.

The profession of faith is what is commonly called joining the church. The pastor is exceedingly anxious for his hearers thus to join the church—that is, to cast in their lot with the people of God so that they may inherit and enjoy the fulfillment of the promises of grace in full salvation. In the act of joining the church there is secured the full possession of the field with the bid treasure which cannot be had otherwise. It is to be in the ark of safety, outriding the flood of sin and danger.—Reformed Church Messenger.

The Music From the Books.

The finest music in the room is that which streams out to the ear of the spirit in many an exquisite strain from the hanging shelf of books on the opposite wall. Every volume there is an instrument which some melodist of the mind created and set vibrating with music, as a flower shakes out its perfume or a star shakes out its light. Only listen and they soothe all care, as though the silken soft leaves of poppies had been made vocal and poured into the ear.—James Lane Allen.

Why Not a Revolver?

A Christian warrior should always carry his fighting Testament in his pistol pocket. If you cannot carry around with you a double barreled Testament, always carry a single barreled one.—William Ashmore, D. D.

TO JUNGFRAU'S TOP.

THE ASCENT WILL BE EASY WHEN THE RAILWAY IS DONE.

An Engineering Marvel Which Will Enable Electric Cars to Climb the Famous Swiss Mountain—People May Rise Almost 14,000 Feet Above the Sea.

Thomas Commerford Martin, the well-known electrical authority, during his recent trip abroad, made a special journey to Switzerland for the purpose of inspecting some of the electric railways in the Alps, and has brought back some hitherto unpublished data concerning the new road to the summit of the Jungfrau. He says concerning it:

"The building of the new electric road to the top of the Jungfrau will be, I think, one of the greatest engineering feats of the century. I have witnessed the beginning of the work, and have been over most of the route to be traversed by the electric cars, and I must confess to a feeling of awe when brought face to face with the difficulties to be overcome. One gets but a poor idea from the published accounts that have reached this country. Think of cutting through the center of some of the highest mountains in the world, and constructing a street car route up an altitude nearly 14,000 feet above sea level! This new electric road will revolutionize Alpine travel. Invalids can be placed aboard the cars, and in an hour and forty minutes be set up on a mountain peak, which no one but an experienced mountain climber has attained. Even the Alpine clubs approve of it. In the future we may climb the mountain and descend on the cars, or vice versa, or if a climbing party be overtaken by a severe storm the members can find safety and civilization via the nearest station. Alpine casualties will decrease.

"The difference in levels between the terminal stations of the road will be 7,000 feet. The length of the road will be 12 kilometres, or 7½ miles. The fare for the round trip will be $9, or its equivalent in francs, with the proportionate reduction for passengers going only part of the way. At least 10 kilometres of the road length will be in tunnels, with openings at frequent intervals, from which the tourist may obtain momentary views of the surrounding scenery. The maximum speed of the cars on grades above 15 per cent will be five miles an hour; on lesser grades it will be slightly increased.

The motive power for operating the road will be obtained from the glaciers themselves. The waterfalls and streams will be harnessed, and made to operate turbines, which in their turn will be transmitted along the length of the road. The cars will be lighted and heated by electricity. The last is most necessary, as it is estimated that the temperature of the tunnels will range from two to ten degrees centigrade below zero as the summit is approached. The great difference in temperature of the air at the opposite ends of the tunnel, it is believed, will be ample to set up a circulation of air sufficient for ventilating purposes. In fact, it is feared the currents may be so strong as to make it necessary to close the portals in order to control them properly and to avoid the entrance of warm, moist air from below, which will cause the deposit of moisture on the inside of the tunnel, and coat it with hoar frost.

"The first section of the road will be ready for traffic by next August. The whole line will be completed in five years. The rack rail type of road will be employed. The track gauge will be one metre, and a minimum curve of 100 metres will be adopted. A maximum grade of 25 per cent will be the limit, and all down grades will be avoided whenever possible. The heaviest down grade (10 per cent) will be between the Monchjock and the Jungfraujock. But these considerations of engineering detail will not affect the tourist. Even the scientist must be impressed with the aesthetic side of the case. To travel to such an altitude in a street car; to be conveyed into the clouds by means of the very force which emanates from them, and to stand with the Alpine world at your feet, will give you an impressive idea of what modern engineers can do."

Hetty Green and Politics.

Hetty Green doesn't like to hear politics spoken of since her son Eddie failed to carry Texas. She dislikes it as much as she detests assessments on unprofitable enterprises. Stephen Van Tassel, a Democrat, and Frank M. Buck, a Republican, both know this now. They became embroiled in a heated argument on a train for Mount Vernon yesterday. Their voices were so loud that they attracted much attention. Finally Mrs. Green went to them and said in a tone that filled the car:

"Gentlemen, will you pardon me for saying that the election is over? There is a time for all things. Politics has had its. Will you not stop talking politics until you reach home? I am not deaf and you make me nervous."—New York Press.

A Drawback.

A writer in the short-lived New York Tatler once said to Whistler: "It must be delightful being an American in London, and always getting the better of people." "But," returned he, with melancholy, "it takes them such a long time to find it out."

A Compromise.

"Tony, me husban', bayn a I-talian, wanted to give the baby a I-talian name; but oi, av courrse, bayn Oirish, wanted um to have a name with a Mac in it, so we sethled the mather boi callin' um Macaroni."

Report of Committee upon the Business of the Real Estate News Publication Co. of Bound Brook, N. J.

The undersigned committee appointed at a meeting of the Citizens, held at the office of the above Company on Monday, Feb. 6th, beg leave to report as follows:—

Our committee met at the office of the Company on Saturday afternoon the 11th inst., according to arrangement, and after a careful investigation of the books of the above Company, and careful consideration of the assets and liabilities, found that the statement made by A. G. Drake, Sect'y., of the Company, at the Citizens' meeting was in every respect true and correct.

We believe FIRST that the publication should be kept in Bound Brook for the good it can do for the Borough at large. SECOND. We find the good assets to be $855.00 as stated by Mr. Drake, and that is in excess of all liabilities, including the amount of capital stock paid in. Also that the earnings have been so far in excess of the expense that the 10 per cent dividends have been safely declared and paid.

THIRD. We believe the stock of the Company is a fair investment, and see no reason why the business should not do as well from a business point of view in the future as in the past, and even much better.

Respectfully submitted,
GAINS HOFFMAN
H. G. HERBERT } Committee.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Messrs. Brooks and DeYaulus are two popular New York vaudeville managers, who organized the Manhattan Vaudeville Entertainers, the company announced for appearance at Music Hall tomorrow night. Both gentlemen have had great experience in the selection of artists, and their present aggregation of talent has been indorsed by all the leading vaudeville theatres in the country. A special addition to the list of performers whose names have been before given, is Count DeLarcey, said to be a scion of one of the oldest aristocratic families of France, a close friend of Mr. DeYaulus, of the management. He is said to be a concert whistler of rare merit, and will on this occasion render a few selections of operatic airs.

* * * * *

The very latest musical farce comedy, "The Air Ship," lately produced at the Grand Opera House, New York, and at the Newark Theatre, Newark, last week, has been secured by Manager Maze Edwards for presentation at Music Hall next Tuesday night.

* * * * *

"Tangled Relations," another of those French farces by Alexander Bisson, the author of "The Masked Ball," "On and Off," "The Nominee" and co-author of "Because She Loved Him So," will be seen at Music Hall, Wednesday night, April 26th. This farce has had a phenomenally long run in Paris and is credited with great success in Berlin and Vienna, and has enjoyed the longest run in Paris of any of the Bisson farces. There is hardly a doubt that it will duplicate its success in this country, for it is said by the Parisian critics to contain more of the roistering merriment than any of this author's works. M. Louis Ganderax, the critic of Rev. Bleau et Politique Literaire, says: "It is too little to say it is a great success." To describe the absurd situations is indeed a task. The interpreting company is a clever one with the following principals: Miss Gussie Hart, Miss Alice Baird, Miss Constance Theall, Robert Whittier, Giles R. Warren, Henry Webster, Jerome Anthony and William Andrews.

SURPRISED ON WEDDING DATE.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. McVoy Nuptial Anniversary Was a Pleasant One.

The second anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C McVoy, of Sandford avenue, was marked in a pleasant manner last evening, when about twenty-five of their relatives and friends gave them a complete surprise. The affair was arranged by Mrs. James Blair, a sister of Mrs. McVoy, and the surprised did not have an inkling of the intended visit.

The evening was passed in dancing, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music by some of the guests present. About midnight a supper was served, after which the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. McVoy happy returns of the day. The bride and groom received a large number of very handsome and useful presents.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

No More Work on Park Avenue Till Steam Roller is Fit for Work.

By tonight the workmen on Park avenue will be through there for the time being, and will go to some other place. Street Commissioner Gavett has decided to finish the lower end of Central avenue before he puts the final touches on Park avenue, so will take his force of men away for a few days.

It is not likely that any more work will be done on Park avenue until the steam roller is repaired and fit to use, and that will be a whole week yet. The men have gone as far as Seventh street, and there they will stop.

SI DRAKE WANTS DEBATE

CHALLENGES EDITOR RUNYON TO A PUBLIC DISCUSSION.

The Boomer Wants to Know Who is "It"—Suggests Music Hall for the Place of Contention, the Crowd to be Judges

Silas Dewey Drake is hot after the trail of Editor Runyon, of the News, and in the following letter challenges our esteemed contemporary to a verbal fight to the finish on the stage of Music Hall:

Frank W. Runyon, editor Plainfield News:—

In Tuesday's, April 18th, issue of the "News" I noticed the following item at the head of your editorial column:

"The only hope for the Plainfield Board of Trade is to petition Si Drake to come here and play he is "it."

In order for me to find out whether you are "it" or I am "it," as editor of The Real Estate News I was asked by many representative citizens of Plainfield to locate The Real Estate News in Plainfield. After careful consideration I did so, and am gratified at the result. I propose to use my best efforts to push the work of enlivening up real estate interests in Plainfield and am seconded in my efforts by Plainfield citizens of all classes. And as you are known to have some peculiar ideas about other people living on earth besides yourself, if you are attempting to hold me up to ridicule I only ask that the Board of Trade of Plainfield invite you to join me in debate on the platform at Music Hall, Plainfield, any evening, admission free for all, and let us discuss Plainfield's past and future, and let the audience vote who is "it."

If this subject is a little too heavy for you let us discuss whether the paper you edit, or the one I edit, will add to Plainfield's prosperity and advancement.

In fact we can take any old subject and let it be decided whether it is you, or I, that is "it."

Yours truly,
Silas Dewey Drake.

DIAMOND JIM BRADY.

The Fad of a Man Who Travels with Precious Stones Worth $60,000.

Accompanying a party of Southern Pacific officials returning from a conference at Monterey, Cal., that passed through Denver the other day was James R. Brady, who is engaged in the business of railway supplies. Mr. Brady is known as "Diamond Jim by his associates. When he dresses for a pleasure excursion, it is said, he goes about with $60,000 worth of diamonds hidden about his person.

He displays ordinarily a diamond scarf pin, a pair of diamond cuff buttons, and a ring or two. His watch is studded with diamonds, and cost $3,000. The diamonds that are not displayed conspicuously are said to be the costliest. He wears diamonds upon his garter buckles, the buttons of his silk underwear have small diamonds set in them, and his suspender buckles are incrusted with gems. The chains of his suspenders are of gold. He carries with him a collection of umbrellas and canes, all of which have golden handles set with diamonds. He also carries matches in a diamond ornamented match case, and his cigars are offered to his companions from an elaborately enamelled and diamond incrusted cigar case. He lets his fad run unchecked in the matter of cuff buttons. He has twelve sets of cuff buttons, nearly as many sets of shirt buttons, and scarf pins innumerable, with the ornaments always diamonds. Of his many diamond rings of curious designs there is one that bears a solitaire torquoise set within a cluster of diamonds. This he calls his mascot, and he never lets it leave his possession.—New York Sun.

The Spider Growing Industry.

When mine host in the ideal country inn, which all of us seek but none of us find, brings up a bottle of crusted wine covered with cobwebs and dust, this outward and visible sign is taken as convincing evidence of age. We grieve to have to record that the trust may now be misplaced. A bulletin (No. 7) of the division of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture says that in France and Pennsylvania an industry has recently sprung up, which consists of the farming of spiders for the purpose of stocking wine cellars, and thus securing almost immediate coating of cobwebs to new wine bottles, giving them the appearance of great age. This industry is carried on in a little French village in the Department of Loire, and near Philadelphia, where "Epeira vulgaris" and "Nephila plumipes" are raised in large quantities and sold to wine merchants at the rate of $10 per hundred. This application of entomology to industry is one which will not be highly commended.—From Nature.

The Smallest Picture in the World.

Probably the smallest piece of painting in the world is that executed by a Flemish artist. It is painted on the smooth side of a grain of common white corn, and pictures a mill, and a miller mounting a stair with a sack of grain on his back. The mill is represented as standing on a terrace, and near it is a horse and cart, while a group of several peasants is shown in the road near by. The picture is beautifully distinct, every object being finished with microscopic fidelity, yet by careful measurement it is shown that the whole painting does not cover a surface of half an inch square.

A young French artist is the discoverer of a fine and genuine example of the Spanish painter Velasquez. The canvas was found on a recent tour to Spain. It is a life size portrait of a man and is in the best style of the master. It has been submitted to eminent critics who have pronounced upon its genuineness.

The city councilors of Ulm, Germany have decided to utilize the spire of their magnificant cathedral as a meteorological observatory. The spire is one of the highest buildings in the world. The instruments will be supplied by the Royal Observatory at Stuttgart, and the registrations will be made by the watchmen of the cathedral under the directions of Dr. Schimpf, a meteorologist. Next to the Eiffel Tower in Paris, the cathedral spire of Ulm will be the highest artificial post of meteorological observation in the world.

Letters have recently appeared in The London Lancet, in reference to the colors of newly born negro children. Several medical men have given the result of their experiments, and the evidence shows that the children are of the color of a light quadroon. It is recorded, in a paper published in The Journal of the Anthropological Institute, of the natives of the Warri district of the Niger Coast Protectorate, that when pure negroes are born they are pink like young rats, but at the end of three or four months they become black. From this it would seem that atmospheric conditions seem to be necessary to produce the full black colored negro.

The Park Department of Boston has for a long time thought that parks were something more than simply inclosures where citizens and their children could walk dressed up in their best and look at the grass and trees. Playgrounds have been provided in different parts of the city and in these the children can play in the sand and make mud pies to their hearts' content, while older ones have outdoor gymnasiums and ball grounds to attract them from the sickening and vicious life of the pavements. The idea is an excellent one, as it is a one-sided policy to neglect a child's physical development while spending large sums upon the equipment and maintaining of schools for its mental training.

Four submarine mines broke away from Castle Island and floated on the beach at Marine Park, at South Boston Mass. For a time it was thought they were floating barrels, but when their real nature was discovered they were taken to a place where there would be no danger of premature explosions. It appears that the mines had been anchored in a little cove at the southerly end of Castle Island. They were placed there in order that they might be exploded as soon as the weather permitted. The storm was sufficient, however, to sever the mooring lines which held them together as a group, which accounted for their going adrift.

A very curious case of telegraphic disturbance is reported from Utah where the Oregon short line lost six telegraph wires for a distance of eighty miles north of Ogden, Utah. It was found on inspection that the cross arms and insulators were heavily coated with salt varying from one-sixteenth to a quarter of an inch in thickness. This coating, when wet, taken in connection with the snow lying on the cross arms, formed a dead cross. During the middle of the day, when the sun was shining brightly, the salt appeared to dry out a the wires could be used to some extent. When the cause of the trouble was determined, an engine was started out equipped with a large hose which was used with hot water for washing off the coating. The salt was carried by the winds blowing over the Great Salt Lake, and as salt is a conductor of electricity, the short circuiting of wires is easily explained.

FLAMES AND WATER DAMAGE CANDY STORE.

John Mantika & Co Suffer From Midnight Fire.

DUCK GAVE THE ALARM.

POLICEMAN SAYS HE HEARD THE AUTOMATIC DUCK QUACK.

Firemen Found Fire Hard to Fight—Was Between Ceiling and Floor—Contents of Store Ruined by Fire and Water—Loss Will Nearly Reach $700—Heroic Rescue of the Duck.

If it hadn't been for that automatic white duck in the window, Patrolman Mattox says, he never would have seen the fire in the Philadelphia Candy Store of John Mantika & Co., 108 West Front street, this morning at 12:45 o'clock, when he did. There isn't the slightest doubt in Bill Mattox's mind now that there is something wonderful about that duck. He was standing on the other side of the street when he plainly heard the duck quack repeatedly. Then he saw the light of the flames and called to Private Watchman George Rockafellow, who sent in an alarm from Box 12.

The conflagration, the cause of which the firemen are at a loss to explain, was just getting under headway when the apparatus arrived. There was no difficulty in handling it, although the fire was in a difficult place to reach.

There is a partition in the middle of the store that divides the salesroom from the department where the candy is made. When Mattox first saw the flames, they were appearing over the top of it. Most of the fire was between the ceiling of the ground floor and the floor of the second story.

When the fire department arrived, the stream from the chemical engine was used on the second story and the regular streams on the first. It was necessary to tear off the boarding of the ceiling with hooks to get at the fire. The flames worked their way up and burned a hole through the partition wall into J. O. Campbell's store next door. The firemen found it in time to prevent much damage to the latter's establishment.

The department worked over the fire for an hour and a half before the flames were entirely extinguised. The fire was not marked by any exciting incidents with the exception of the heroic rescue of the automatic duck by Foreman L. M. Dunavan of the Gazelle Engine Company. He brought the animal out in his arms amid the cheers of the few spectators who happened to be around at that time of night.

First Assistant Chief Murray was in command in the absense of Chief Doane. Of the volunteer force there turned out four men from the Gazelle company, four from the truck company, one from No. 2 company and none from Alerts. Of these nine men four were officers. Then there were the paid men and the regular officers of the department. The police put up the fire lines, but there wasn't any real use for them for the crowd didn't number fifty in all.

The building is owned by Samuel Drier. His loss will reach $500, which is covered with insurance. The damage to the stock will amount to over $100, and is partially insured. The slight loss of J. O. Campbell will be covered by $25.

Commutation Ticket Taken Up.

A well known North avenue merchant was somewhat taken in Thursday in attempting to ride to Elizabeth on a commution ticket owned by a friend of his. The conductor of the train happens to live in this city and he knew the merchant, and knew that the ticket was not his. The merchant paid his fare, and the ticket was taken up.

Soloist at Prof Conde's Concert.

Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of Washington Park, has been entertaining company from Somerville.

MUSIC AND RECITATION.

ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN FOR BENEFIT OF RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

The Artists Were Misses Randolph, Lord and Hall and Mrs. J. K. Myers—Neat Sum Realized From Entertainment.

All Souls' church on Park avenue was filled last evening with an appreciative audience that assembled to enjoy an evening of readings and music. The affair was arranged and given for the benefit of the Plainfield Relief Association. Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of the church, had charge of the programme and announced the several numbers.

The programme opened with a violin solo by Miss Blossom Randolph, which was followed with selections from "Quo Vadis," by Miss Lord, of the Emerson School of Oratory, Boston. Miss Lord's work was of the highest character and she displayed rare talent in her recitations. The next number was a German song by Alexander VanOss, of this city.

A unique and thoroughly enjoyable feature of the evening were the selections given by Miss Hall, of this city. They were given in French and the audience greatly admired Miss Hall's work.

Those present were favored in having the privilege of hearing Mrs. J. K. Myers, who gave two vocal selections which was a pleasure and delight to all.

Altogether the entertainment was one of the best presented this season, and a nice sum will be realized therefrom for the Relief Association.

MAY CLASH WITH STRIKERS.

Outbreak Expected When Standard Fireproofing Company Tries to Fill Their Places.

At the Standard Fireproofing Company's, Isaacs Station, near Keasbys, Middlesex county, the strike is still of serious proportions, although the prompt action of Sheriff Litterst in sending down a big force of deputies has had the effect of keeping the strikers from becoming riotous.

These deputies were on guard yesterday, and, although the strikers at times were menacing in their attitude, there was no collision between them. It is anticipated, however, that there will be some trouble today.

If the old hands will not return to work the company will make an effort to fill their places. When this is attempted there is likelihood of an outbreak. The company is taking steps to guard against this. One of the hands employed at the works was injured slightly yesterday. He was crossing a small trestle over a brook on his way to the factory, when he was struck on the head by a stone thrown by a striker and his scalp was lacerated.

About 450 men are on strke. They demand an increase of fifteen cents a day in wages. If this were granted it would mean an increase in the company's pay roll of $600 a week or or $30,000 a year.

MUST RETURN AMOUNT RECEIVED.

A New and Important Law in Reference to Loan Associations.

The following will be of interest to shareholders in Building and Loan Associations: Chapter 160, of the Laws of N. J., 1899, provides that the withdrawing shareholder shall be paid the withdrawal value of his accumulations, which shall be not less than the sum of his instalments paid in, less all unpaid fines and his proportionate share of any loss sustained by the association, and after one year a reasonable share of the profits; and that amounts paid for salaries, commissions and other current expenses shall not be considered losses sustained by an association within the meaning of this this section.

In short the laws of the State say to the building and loan associations doing business in this State, you must return at least the amount received; this will be welcome news to many who have suffered by reason of the system of discounts adopted by some outside concerns doing business here.

Of a Literary Nature.

A varied programme will be presented Monday night at the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Literary Society. In the debate the affirmative side will be taken by Thomas A. Cuming, Walter Drier and Henry Eggerding, while O. S. Rogers, R S Opdyke and N. D. Drake will look after the negative. George Weeks Sandford will read an essay, and there will also be a reading by C. W. Sprague. In the way of music C. E Drange will play on the guitar and R. W. Davis will render cornet solos.

Transferred to This City.

T. E. Ballentine, formerly ticket agent at the Elizabeth Avenue Station of the Central Railroad, has been transferred to this city, where he will hold the position of night ticket agent at the North Avenue Station.

A POOR LAD'S HARD LOT

HIS PITIFUL CRIES ATTRACTED ATTENTION OF REV. E. E. JACKSON

String Tied so Tight Around the Leg That it Cut Deeply Into the Flesh—Organized Aid Association is to Investigate.

As the Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist church, was walking up West Fourth street this morning his attention was attracted to the pitiful cries of a diminutive specimen of humanity in the yard of the house No. 443. The little fellow seemed to be in trouble and alone.

Rev. Mr. Jackson's compassion was aroused and he went to where the little fellow was standing and inquired why he was crying so. Choking with sobs the little fellow said that his leg hurt him. The minister investigated and found that the boy's stocking had been tied with a string so tight that it cut into flesh, and made a painful wound that might result seriously from blood poisoning if it was not cared for soon. The boy is about five years old.

After ascertaining that the boy's name was Patsy Snyder, that his mother was in the asylum at Morris Plains, his father engaged all day at work on the railroad and himself looked after by a nine year old brother, Rev. Mr. Jackson took the lad to Randolph's drugstore where the wound on his leg was attended to.

Learning that the boy received but little parental care, his father being obliged to be absent from home all day, Rev. Mr. Jackson visited the Organized Aid Association headquarters later in the morning and called the attention of Mrs. Woodruff, the agent, to the boy's plight. Mrs. Woodruff immediately made an investigation and before noon perfected arrangements for better care for both of the children who have been shamefully neglected.

A STREET TO BE VACATED.

Elizabeth Facilitates the Enlargement of the Singer Plant.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 22.—The City Council Thursday night voted to close the eastern end of First street, the main business thoroughfare of Elizabethport, for the benefit of the Singer Manufacturing Company. The portion to be vacated is 250 feet long, and extends from Trumbull street to the main line of the Jersey Central Railroad.

The Singer company proposed to extend the main building on its immense plan from First to Second streets, through the company's park, a distance of 800 feet, and it is said will remove its woodwork plant from South Bend, Ind., to Elizabeth when the addition to its plant here is completed. The new extension will be built of iron and brick and will be five stories high. It will furnish employment to about twelve hundred persons, in addition to the forty-five hundred now employed in the Singer works.

A Surprise Party.

A complete surprise party was given to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Smith, of Fritt's avenue, Thursday night. About 60 people were present and among then were the Misses Anna Fiering, Margaret Kennedy, Mamie Kliner, Sophie Wilson, Pauline Meicer, Lily Woodland, Lena Bremmer, Annie Deim, Annie Snyder, Katie Meicer, Mr. and Mrs. J Overland, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Stites, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Stites, Mr. and Mrs. David VanBuskirk, Mrs. A. B. Stites, Mr. and Mrs. William Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Smith; Messrs. Mr. Ira VanBuskirk, George Kliner, John Kliner, James Gunn, John Gunn, Harry Ackor, Fred Bimtle, Charles Meicer, Edward Meicer, George Bremmer, Fred Keading, George Keading, Gus Feiring, Edward Stram, Henry Bohl, Fred Martin and Harry Snyder. The general feature was a cakewalk. The first prize was awarded to Miss Anna Feiring and George Bremmer, the second prize was awarded to Miss Margaret Kennedy and Fred Bimble.

To Increase the Local Service.

The Bound Brook Chronicle is authority for the following item: "A report is current that with the usual spring change of the passenger schedule on the Central Railroad, two Dunellen crews are to be removed to Somerville, which will greatly increase the service between the county seat and Plainfield, in competition with the trolley."

Full Dress Rehearsal.

A full dress rehearsal for "Diplomacy" will be held next week Friday evening. The finishing touches are now being made and a fine performance is anticipated.

HOBART TO RETIRE FROM PUBLIC LIFE.

The Vice-President's Health Settles That Question.

FRIENDS ARE AWARE OF IT.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY AND SENATOR HANNA DEEPLY DEPLORE IT.

The Vice-President Has Valvular Heart Disease, and in View of the Necessity of Absolute Quiet He Will Not Accept a Renomination on the National Ticket—He May Resign Soon.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, D. C., April 22—Vice-President Hobart has informed his more intimate friends, including President McKinley, that his health will not permit him to accept a renomination, as he desired, and as the President and all the Administration men desired. It is even doubtful whether Vice President Hobart will be able to preside over the Senate again, and Senators who are here expect to see Senator Frye occupying the chair as President pro tempore at the next session of the Senate.

If Vice President Hobart resigns, the President pro tempore of the Sanate will preside throughout the next Congress

Mr. Hobart is recovering from his present attack, but it would be a miracle if he should be cured entirely, for he has valvular disease of the heart, so that he cannot, therefore, stand the strain of public life indefinitely. His family and friends are greatly encouraged by the way in which he has recovered now, and they therefore hope for the best, but they have realized for some time that he would probably have to decline a renomination,

This is a sincere disappointment to them all, and to no one more than to President McKinley.

Senator Hanna is authority for the statement that the Administration has not selected any candidate to succeed Mr. Hobart.

TOWNSHIP WANTS $200

FANWOOD ASKS TO BE REIMBURSED BY TRACTION COMPANY.

The Money Spent in Connection with An Application for a Franchise—Justice Warden Has Reserved His Decision.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 22.—After several adjournments the case of the Township of Fanwood against the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company came to trial yesterday afternoon. The evidence was so weighty that Justice Warden decided not to give a decision upon the matter just yet, and reserved it for a week.

In 1895 the township granted the trolley company a franchise to lay and operate a street railway through its limits. A large sum of money was spent by the township, in getting ready to grant this franchise, such as holding special meetings, surveying, etc., and the township now wants the trolley company to return the amount, which they put at $200.

Their reason for this demand is that the company have not taken advantage of their franchise, and that the township is still without a trolley.

The company disputed the claim, and said that they never applied for a franchise. The original application, signed by President McGowan, settled that point Ex-City Judge W. R. Codington, of Plainfield, represented the township, and William P. Voorhees, of New Brunswick, the trolley company.

THE FATES WERE THERE

DISTRIBUTED THEIR GIFTS AMONG EPWORTH LEAGUERS.

Novel Sociable Held in Vincent Chapel by the Epworth League—There Was an Entertaining Programme Rendered.

The Epworth Leaguers of the First M. E. church enjoyed a pleasant sociable in Vincent chapel last evening. A varied programme was given during the evening and was much enjoyed by the young people present.

The programme opened with a reading by Miss Susie Davies. There was a vocal duet by Miss Etta Raybert and Miss Eva Jenkins. Then followed several games in which all all the members and guests could participate.

The closing number was entitled "The Three Fates." The main part of the chapel was darkened. On the platform were posed the "three fates," Misses Elsie Horne, Lucie P. Davies and Etta Raybert, draped in white, with startling effects produced on their faces by a combination of powder and charcoal.

The guests were then invited to pass through the room where the fates posed with spinning wheel, distaff and sissors. As they passed through Little Edna Kennedy and George M. Rittenhouse handed each a ready-made fortune, telling of all the nice things that the fates had provided for him or her as the case might be.

After that, the guests returned to the parlors where a social hour was spent and the refreshments provided by the committee, were enjoyed.

The committee in charge consisted of Miss Elizabeth Stackhouse, chairman; Miss Luella Crowther, Miss Edith B. Horton, Miss Eva Jenkins, Miss Etta Raybert and Frank French.

Miss Susie Jackson and Miss Minnie Sharp were in charge of the refreshments.

HOW MONEY GOES FOR MISSIONS.

Interesting Address by Treasurer of Presbyterian Foreign Mission Board.

Rev. Mr. Hand, treasurer of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, addressed the Christian Endeavor Society of the Crescent Avenue church last evening upon the workings of that great society in which all Presbyterians are interested.

Mr. Hand, as treasurer, is better able than almost any one else to intelligently describe how the money contributed to foreign missionary work is applied, and when he through last night there was no excuse for ignorance on the part of any.

The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions is a chartered organization, incorporated under the laws of the State. It consists of twenty-one members, ministers and laymen. Among the ministers is Rev. Dr. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, and the speaker paid the Doctor a high tribute in his remarks. Among the prominent men connected with the organization are Rev. Dr. Wells, of Brooklyn; Rev. Dr. Paxton, of Princeton.

HANDLING THE CADDIES

BOYS WHO WORK ON GOLF LINKS MUST HAVE PARENTS' PERMIT.

Olaf Saugstad Put in Charge of the Department — Forty Caddies Employed, Eight of Whom will be Regular.

At a recent meeting of the golf committee of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, Olaf Saugstad, a member of that committee, was made manager of the caddies. There are forty of the caddies and it has been a problem heretofore how to manage them.

Many complaints have come from school teachers and parents because the boys play truant and work at the golf grounds instead of going to school. Mr. Saugstad will require a written permit from the parent or guardian hereafter before he will allow any boy to serve as caddy on school days, so as to be certain that the lad is not doing something to which his parents will object.

There has been no system in the management of the boys, and this Mr. Saugstad will introduce. A man whose duty it will be to manage the caddies will be employed, and each caddy will be obliged to carry a card which will have to be filled out, so as the manager can see just what the boy has been doing. There are eight caddies who will serve on school days, and thirty-two more will be on hand Saturdays and holidays.

The wedding was a quiet one, but there were a number of white people present, who are friends of the bride, who is well-known in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Staats will reside at Franklin Park. KEAN IS PLAYING A WAITING GAME.

By Procrastination He Hopes to Win in Elizabeth.

COUNCIL IS FIRM, THOUGH.

THE DIFFERENCE IS OVER RATE OF FARE TO CRANFORD.

By Threatening to Quit the Project Senator Kean Hopes to Force the Acceptance of the Terms He Offers—President Ryan, of the Council, Declares the Council Will Not Yield.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, April 22—Elizabeth is now undergoing an experience in trolley matters similar to that which interested Plainfield last fall. Senator Kean is desirous of changing the old horse car line into an electric railway, and offers to do $56,000 worth of improvements to streets if he is permitted to have a new franchise. A conservative and understanding view of the situation shows that the offered improvements are not enough compensation to the city as compared to the worth it will give in the franchise, but notwithstanding the railway company is holding out and declaring that they will not make the change if the Council holds to its demands. The passing gossip of the day when people meet is the prospects of improvement in the trolley service.

The company will not, it is stated, submit to the clause in the ordinance making the fare to Cranford station 5 cents.

The company wants 3 cents more for carrying passengers from the dividing line between Cranford and Union to the Cranford station, but will also allow passengers for this additional 3 cents to ride through Cranford and and Westfield to the Fanwood township line, when Senator Kean's new county trolley road from Elizabeth to Plainfield is built. This will make the cost of a trip from the Elizabethport and Staten Island Ferry to the Fanwood township line, a distance of over ten miles, only 8 cents, and the railroad company thinks this offer is liberal enough. At present the Central Railroad Company now charges 35 cents from Elizabethport to Cranford and return, or 20 cents one way, while to Westfield it is 45 cents for an excursion ticket. Senator Kean thinks his proposition, as compared with these rates, ought to satisfy any fair-minded person in Elizabeth.

The City Council passed a resolution that the Committee on Streets and Parks confer with the railroad company and try to get it to consent to a five cent fare to Cranford. Chairman Ford, of the committee, was angry at this, and at first declared he would resign before he would act in the capacity, but finally president Ryan and the other members of the board prevailed on Councilman Ford to serve. He thinks no concession should be made to Senator Kean's company on the fare question.

President Ryan, of the city council, said yesterday that the only stumbling block is the fare to Cranford, and he hoped that in the interest of rapid transit, Senator Kean's company would see its way clear to recede from the stand it has taken on this point. The council, he feared, would not relinquish its demand, as several of the members thought the company should carry people to Cranford for the one fare, as in other places the fare for a greater distance is only five cents.

SAYS CROKER GOT SHARE.

Andrew Freedman Claims Heded Salary and Commission of Bond Co.

A VERY STORMY SESSION.

The Mazet Investigating Committee Gets Little New Evidence. Chairman Angered By Witness.

Himmelwright of the Roebling Construction Company Refused to Answer Questions and Then Refused to Leave the Stand—Sergeant-at-Arms Crawford Had to Remove Him By Force.

New York, April 22.—Andrew Freedman created a sensation by his testimony before the Mazet Committee.

Freedman testified that he divided his salary and commissions in his surety company with Croker, always giving him his share in cash.

Freedman said he had made a verbal agreement with Croker as to the amount to be paid, but he refused to tell whether Croker got the lion's share or not.

Mr. Platt's company, he testified, is the co-surety with his company on every bond for city contracts.

Freedman created an exciting scene when he left the stand by handing to the reporters a written statement of the business done by his and Platt's company.

Mr. Moss said Freedman's action was discourteous, and the witness sneered. All the members of the Committee, Mr. Moss, Dr. O'Sullivan and Freedman tried to talk at once, and Moss threatened the witness with contempt proceedings.

Freedman is the manager of a bond company. His salary is $15,000 a year. How large his commissions were he refused to say.

Freedman is known as Croker's "handy man." He never met Croker until about three years ago. The two men became fast friends. It is said that Croker has put him in the way of making $100,000 a year. Freedman has more influence with Croken than any other man in the Democratic Club. He is a natty dresser, a high liver, drives good horses and has a comfortable fortune.

Abraham Himmelwright, manager of the Roebling Construction Company, of which Frank Croker is Treasurer, was forcibly ejected from the Mazet inquiry because, after he was called as a witness, he persisted in making a statement clearing his company from implications which had been made against it by Mr. Moss.

Himmelwright in his testimony said Superintendent Dooner, of the Building Department, had advised him to see "Con" Daly about getting his process approved. He refused to answer questions about Croker's son.

After the adjournment Mazet announced that no attempt will be made to punish recalcitrant witnesses until the committee has finished with them. "Then we will try to punish them all together," he said.

"Andy" Freedman's persistant and positive refusal to answer certain questions and his action in handing a statement to the newspaper men present, without showing it to the Committee, brought from Chief Inquisitor Moss this important statement:

"This matter of contempt is not to be lightly regarded. When a sufficient number of men have defied the committee and committed contempt, we will deal with them in a bunch."

"All right, sir," said the witness, "we will have lots of company."

Queer Sight in Court

Mays Landing, N. J., April 22.—In the Criminal Court here Bartolomeo Deororo was placed on the witness stand to testify against Andreo Pedetti, who during last winter's blizzard stabbed Deororo in the abdomen with a stiletto, which he had fashioned from a steel file 12 inches long. Deororo appeared upon the witness stand in his blizzard garb. Instructed by the prosecuting attorney he partially disrobed before the jury, removing a heavy overcoat, a leather belt and in succession an undercoat, three red flannel shirts and three blue flannel ones. The stiletto had penetrated all of these garments, as well as the waist-band of a pair of thick velveteen trouser and a pair of heavy buckskin driving gloves which had been tucked within the band.

THE LATEST NEWS.

WHAT THE "PRESS" SAYS ABOUT TRAITORS

New York, April 22.—The Morning Press publishes the following sensational article under a scare head:

"Washington.—A serious subject was discussed at the Cabinet meeting. It was in relation to traitors and the laws of treason. When the discussion in the Senate was discovered the sentiment hostile to an American occupation in the Philippines, and when it was realized that Aguinaldo was being encouraged to revolution by the public utterances and private advices of certain public men, the question of giving aid and comfort to the enemy and of inciting revolt against lawful authority came under sharp examination, but there was no arrest, as there would have been in the days of the Civil War, for such an offense against the Government.

"Certain individuals known to the Government have been trying not only to aid Aguinaldo, but to weaken our army by spreading discontent among the volunteers. Telegraph messages from anti-expansionists and from Democrats, zealous to gain political advantage, have been captured encouraging volunteer officers and men demanding their return from the Philippines on the ground that peace had been declared. Messages even countermanding on the ground that peace had of refusing further to serve in the Philippines.

"What the President will do is not yet decided. It will not be surprised if a warning in the shape of a message will remind the mischief makers that there is a serious law against treason which will be enforced if there is any further attempt to tamper with the men at the front."

QUAY DECLARED NOT GUILTY

Jury Acquitted the Ex-Senator of Charge of Conspiracy to Wreck Bank.

APPOINTED SENATOR.

Acquittal Generally Expected After the Prosecution Rested Its Case After Offering Expert Testimony.

Papers and Books of the People's Bank Found in Desk of Cashier John S. Hopkins Were Grounds of the Prosecution—Hopkins Committed Suicide and Left Bank in Peril.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 22.—Upon the receipt of the news from Philadelphia that Senator Quay had been acquitted of the conspiracy charges Gov. Stone appointed Quay United States Senator until the regular Legislative session of 1901.

The appointment is addressed to the President of the United States, and it is stated in the letter to be made under the authority of clause 2 of section 3 of article 1 of the Constitution of the United States.

Philadelphia, April 22.—Ex-Senator Matthew S. Quay was declared not guilty Friday of the charge against him of conspiracy to use unlawfully money of the Commonwealth deposited at the People's Bank. The verdict was returned at 11 o'clock, when the jury, which had retired at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, was brought in after an announcement that an agreement had been reached. The acquittal was generally expected after the prosecution rested on Wednesday afternoon, having offered practically only expert testimony to prove the case. The jury, when it withdrew, took into the jury room all the books of the bank and the other documents which had been admitted into evidence and which had formed the basis for the expert's testimony, and it had been thought that the jury might not finish its examination of the books so soon.

Papers and books found in the desk of John S. Hopkins, cashier of the People's Bank in Philadelphia, were the ground of the proceedings against Quay. Hopkins committed suicide towards the end of March, 1898, and as soon as papers left by him were opened, and it was found that certain of Hopkins's transactions had imperilled the bank, the doors were shut and a receiver was appointed.

This receiver, Thomas W. Barlow, found, as testified later, books and papers in Hopkins's desk which, it was alleged, implicated Quay with others in the unlawful use of State funds deposited in the bank.

$25,000,000 Increase

Newark, N. J., April 22—A special meeting of the Continental Tobacco Company was held in the office of J. Bayard Kirkpatrick, the local agent. Harris I. Drummond, Vice-President, presided. The meeting was called for the purpose of voting on a proposition to increase the capital stock of $25,000,000 for the purpose of purchasing the plant of Liggett & Meyers, of St. Louis, and other plants, the names of which were withheld. Fifty-eight millions of the sixty millions of stock was represented and voted in favor of the increase.

Boy Acquitted of Murder.

Muncie, Ind., April 22.—Fred Oland, 12 years old, was acquitted by a jury of the charge of murdering Andrew Rodenmiller, a 5 year old playmate. Last November the body of the Rodenmiller boy was found hidden under a box in a gravel pit, and policemen frightened young Oland into a semi-confession, but, when later this was withdrawn, the extreme youth of he prisoner and the absence of all except circumstantial evidence caused the acquittal. The mystery of the crime, which was the third of a series of three murders within a few days of each other, is unsolved.

Jamaicans Fear Our Retaliation

Kingston, Jamaica, April 22.—The despatch from Washington, saying the tariff here discriminated against American trade is creating a feeling of unrest in commercial and industrial circles. In the Legislature, Mr. Burke, leader of the Representatives, denounced discrimination against America, urging that the threatened retaliation meant ruin. The Jamaican newspapers express the hope that the threat of retaliation from Washington will compel Joseph Chamberlain to permit negotiations for a reciprocity treaty.

Here's a Rich Beggar

New York, April 22.—Gustave Peterson, seventy-eight, a professional beggar, of 41 Bowery a lodging house, was sent to the Workhouse for three months in the Yorkville Court. When searched three pockets full of change in pennies, nickels and dimes and enough more in bills to make $153.70 were found on him. An account book indicated that he had been depositing $10 a day in several banks for six months. He admitted that he had accounts with three banks.

Thieves Rid Him of $2,000.

New York, April 22.—Smith Hill, of Passaic, N. J., who recently inherited $150,000 under his father's will, claims to have been robbed of $1,100 in cash, and jewels worth $900 by gamblers in this city. He was tempted into a faro game on East Fourteenth street, he says, and lost the cash, and was then given knockout drops and robbed of his jewelry.

Report of Committee upon the Business of the Real Estate News Publication Co. of Bound Brook, N. J.

The undersigned committee appointed at a meeting of the Citizens, held at the office of the above Company on Monday, Feb. 6th, beg leave to report as follows:—

Our committee met at the office of the Company on Saturday afternoon the 11th inst., according to arrangement, and after a careful investigation of the books of the above Company, and careful consideration of the assets and liabilities, found that the statement made by A. G. Drake, Sect'y., of the Company, at the Citizens' meeting was in every respect true and correct.

We believe FIRST that the publication should be kept in Bound Brook for the good it can do for the Borough at large. SECOND. We find the good assets to be $855.00 as stated by Mr. Drake, and that is in excess of all liabilities, including the amount of capital stock paid in. Also that the earnings have been so far in excess of the expense that the 10 per cent dividends have been safely declared and paid.

THIRD. We believe the stock of the Company is a fair investment, and see no reason why the business should not do as well from a business point of view in the future as in the past, and even much better.

Respectfully submitted,
GAINS HOFFMAN

ST. PAUL FLYER WRECKED.

Ditched at Fifty Miles an Hour—One Man Killed, Several Hurt.

Aurora, Ill., April 22.—The St. Paul flyer of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy road went into the ditch seven miles west of here, killing on man, injuring several others and wrecking the train.

The accident occurred while the train was going fifty miles an hour. The engine left the track followed by the train, which turned over. The dining car and one coach were burned.

Big Chess Match Begins.

New York, April 22.—Play in the first international cable chess match between six American students representing Columbia, Harvard, Yale, and Princeton and an equal number representing Oxford and Cambridge began on six boards at 10 o'clock Friday. The Americans were invited to play their games at the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, while the British students had taken up their quarters at the British Chess Club, London.

At the end of the first day's play in the International University cable chess match the Americans are in the lead, having scored one game, Meyers, of Columbia, defeating George, of Oxford, on the second board. Falk, of Columbia, has a safe position on the first board, and it should be drawn. At the third board the Englishman made a combination which seemed to be unsound, and Arensburg, of Harvard, has a chance to win. Cook, of Yale, has a slight disadvantage. Young has a shade the better in his game. Catching's game is not satisfactory. On this showing the Americans should win.

Report About Sloan Case.

New York, April 22.—A report has been published that divorce proceedings had been begun between Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Sloane. It was said that the case was before a referee and that the decree for the divorce would soon be granted.

Edmund Coffin, Mr. Sloane's brother-in-law, was quoted as the authority for the information that the case was in the hands of a referee. Mr. Coffin was seen at his office. He said:

"The statement attributed to me is without the slightest foundation. If divorce proceedings have been begun on either side, I know nothing of it."

There is no record in the courts of a pending suit for divorce under the title of Sloane vs. Sloane. If proceedings were in existence, however, the papers could not be kept under seal by the order of the Justice before whom the suit was filed.

Gold in Philippines.

Manila, April 22.—Private Bogan, of the Montana Volunteers, who had done some placer mining in New Mexico and Nevada, thought there was some chance of obtaining "color" in a little stream near here, and tried it. He got forty-five Mexican cents' worth of yellow metal in two hours. He and three favored companions later took $5 worth of gold, but they could not keep the secret. An assayer has investigated and says $2 a day can be taken from the surface washings, and with sluices and proper working ten times that much can be realized.

Many Killed in Train Wreck

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 22.—A freight train wreck occurred near Sloan's Valley, on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad. Many persons are reported to have been killed. The body of an unknown man has already been recovered. Conductor J. E. Pepper and Brakeman Jennings, of Somerset, Ky., are missing, and are believed to be dead. There were several tramps on the train, all of whom lost their lives. The train was running at a high rate of speed when a car broke down at the end of high bridge known as McKee's.

Williams for Vice-President?

Boston, April 22.—Friends of George Fred Williams say that he has been offered a Vice-Presidential nomination by no less a person than William Jennings Bryan, and that he is now considering it. They believe that he will give his consent. The offer is said to have been made to Mr. Williams while he was in New York at the big Chicago platform dinner, when O. H. P. Belmont and Judge Tarvin, the Kentucky Circuit Judge, who himself has aspirations, were present at a conference.

The Jewish Colonization Associaton of London gets $2,000,000, and the Board of Guardians in London $600,000. The remainder goes to charitable institutions on the Continent. Twenty millions goes to relatives. The State tax on the bequests is $4,800,000.

THINKS SAILORS KILLED.

Admiral Dewey Gives Reason For Capture of Gilmore and Party.

TO PUNISH THE NATIVES.

Intimates that Punitive Expedition Will Start in a Few Days—Has Not Positively Learned Fate.

General Rios, the Spanish Commander, Doubts that Spaniards Could Have Rescued Cutter's Party as They Themselves Were Penned Up in a Church—Fears Americans Were Shot.

Manila, April 22.—Admiral Dewey declared that the reason why Lieutenant Gilmore and his boat's crew were captured was that the launch passed out of the Yorktown's sight.

The launch was sent to sound the mouth of the river in order to see if the Yorktown could go in, but they went beyond a bend, and thus passed out of the protection of the Yorktown's guns.

Admiral Dewey intimated that the expedition for punishment will start in a few days. He said that he believed the men were either killed or captured, and there were unmistakable intimations in his tone and manner that he believed they were killed.

The Admiral said that he had not heard anything about the fate of the men. The Yorktown's errand is simply to rescue the Spanish soldiers and priests imprisoned in the church at Baler, on the Island of Luzon. It is believed that they do not know the war between Spain and the United States has ended.

Admiral Dewey would not say what punitive measures he intended to take.

General Rios, the Spanish Commander, doubts that the Spaniards could have rescued the crew as they are themselves penned up in the church. He fears that the Americans were shot.

Washington, April 22.—By diligent work nearly 9,000 of the force of 14,000 regulars to be sent to the Philippines have been selected. The War Department believes that the remaining 5,000 will be available as soon as needed. There are four regiments that can be withdrawn from Cuba. The transportation problem will be solved as it presents itself.

There are over 13,488 regulars in the Philippines. There are 4,076 at sea and 4,134 are under orders to sail.

The provisional army of 35,000 volunteers authorized by law will be called out only as a last resort. No such action is now in contemplation.

Fighting Fiercely at Manila.

Manila, April 22.—Three companies of the South Dakota Regiment marched from Bocave, and in conjunction with three companies of the Minnesota Regiment from Guiguinto, north of Bocave, encountered a rebel force numbering fully five hundred men when two miles out.

The enemy retired three miles in fairly good order in spite of the fact that they suffered heavy losses.

The Americans, having exhausted their ammunition, were compelled to return to their camps.

The heat is intense. At noon the thermometer registered 95 degrees and the mercury was still rising. There were several prostrations from the heat among the troops, but only one man was wounded.

A force of about two hundred rebels yesterday afternoon attacked the outposts of the Washington Regiment near Taguig, south of Pasig and Pateros.

Two companies immediately engaged the enemy and advanced into the open in skirmish order. The rebels were checked and routed after two hours' fighting, leaving twelve men killed on the field and several wounded.

The American troops also obtained possession of many Mauser rifles and many other weapons. Three Americans were wounded.

A short time before a detachment of eighteen soldiers, under the command of a captain, while skirmishing north of Guiguinto met with another band of insurgents. In the subsequent sharp firing twelve of the enemy were killed and one American wounded.

Casualties at Manila.

Washington, April 22.—Gen. Otis under date of Manila, April 21, reports these additional casualities:

Wounded, April 17, Private W. O. Walker, Company A, 2d Oregon, foot, moderate. Private Nicholas Hanson, Company A, 13th Minnesota, thigh severe. Private Albert R. Straub, Company D, face, severe; Corporal G. H. Burlingham, Company H, side, slight; Private William M. Winders, Company C, chest, severe, all of the 1st Washington.

Falling Wall Buries One.

Fordham, N. Y., April 22.—One man was probably mortally hurt and a dozen others narrowly escaped serious injury by the caving in of about fifty feet of the stone foundation wall for new flat house at Ryer and Burnside avenue.

Antonio Casti was buried in the wreckage, and when his fellow-workmen dug him out he was unconscious.

Sues Leiter and Workers.

Chicago, April 22.—The law, like politics, makes strange companions. Levi S. Leiter, the multi-millionaire and father of Vice-Empress, is the co-defendant with a striking union. The suit is brought by Winslow Brothers, ornamental iron workers, who call into question the right of labor unions to declare strikes and who especially seek to prevent Leiter from cancelling his contract to them for work on the building because of the strike.

Will Serve in Philippines.

Chicago, April 22.—The Naval Reserve Association of Illinois, composed of veterans of the Spanish-American war, has tendered to the Government 250 men for service in the Philippines. The association numbers only about 280 men.

ALIBI FOR MRS. GEORGE

Witness Klinger Testifies to the Woman Not Being at Scene of Murder.

Canton, O., April 22.—In the George trial Joseph Eckroate, husband of the woman who testified that she had seen and recognized Mrs. George in the act of firing two shots into Saxton's body, testified that his wife had been using a white powder, presumed to be morphine, for the last twelve years. He said it made her drowsy and irritable.

E. J. Schlabach, a druggist, testified to having sold ⅛-ounce bottles of morphine to Mrs. Eckroate at intervals of a week or two. Harry Taylor testified to Mrs. George and Saxton going to Allegheny in March, 1896.

The defense called Miss Florence B. Klinger, who testified to passing Saxton on his way west at 5:55 o'clock the evening of his death.

At 6:25 she said Mrs. George came to her home on Marion street and remained there until 6:50, when she went to Sterling's law office.

These hours constitute an alibi, it being practically a physical impossibility to have been at the Althouse residence at the hour of the shooting and at the Klinger home at 6:25.

Concession to Porto Rico

Washington, April 22.—It was decided at the meting of the Cabinet to suspend the United States Coastwise Shipping laws as far as Porto Rico is concerned for one year. Under the present law, trade between different ports of the United States is restricted to American bottoms, and since Porto Rico has become a part of the United States this provision would naturally apply to the island. It is found, however, that hardship would be experienced by Porto Rican trade interests if it were required that products of the island be restricted to American bottoms while ocean shipping facilities are so small. The point is also made that it would be necessary, should the law be put in force, to admit Porto Rican goods into the United States free of duty, and it is not intended to do this at present.

Tramps Rob Tramps

Matteawan, April 22.—When train No. 2, engine 590, pulled out of Poughkeepsie a party of five tramps boarded her. On board also stealing a ride were two men whose identity is not known who had ben doing some work up the State and were getting a cheap ride back to New York. They had on good clothes and carried watches. They also had a little money. When the train reached the tunnel at New Hamburg, a few miles above here, it came to a stop with a jerk. The train hands began to make an investigation. On the train they found one of the two men mentioned. He had been robbed of about all his clothing and told a tale of robbery and an assault committed by the five men.

Gold Swindler's Fate

New York, April 22.—Hirsch Koppelmann, who pleaded guilty to swindling a Cincinnati saloonkeeper by means of brass filings, which he claimed was gold, was sentenced to four years and eleven months in prison. For this same crime Samuel Jacobs is now serving seven and one-half years in Sing Sing, and Koppelmann's confession exonerates Jacobs from any intentional complicity. It was Jacob's daughter Minnie who ran Koppelmann down after the conviction of her father. Governor Robsevelt is now considering an application for the pardon of Jacobs.

Thug Assaults Bank Runner in Street.

Philadelphia, April 22.—A bank runner from George B. Evans & Sons, bound to the Corn Exchange National Bank, was attacked by a robber on Chestnut street in the heart of the financial district. The would-be assassin struck his victim over the head with a blackjack and attempted to get the money bag containing $2,600. The runner held on desperately in spite of a deep wound in the head. Help arrived and the thug ran, but was captured at Third and Market streets. The prisoner is James Bellsen, who was acquainted with his victim, William C. Werner, aged seventeen.

Fleet to Martinique

Washington, April 22.—Admiral Sampson notified the Navy Department that he has started for Martinique with the New York, Brooklyn, Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas. He did not tell why he was going, but despatches have told of race troubles at Martinique, and it is presumed that Sampson has hastened there to protect the American interests that might be jeopardized. Martininque is in Sampson's itinerary.

Plague in Paris

Paris, April 22.—The Fronde has a rumor that three cases of Oriental plague have occurred among the employes in one of the big shops of the city, to which the disease was brought in carpets of European manufacture. The paper demands that a severe investigation be made. The police officials announce that there is absolutely no foundation for the report.

Woman Held for Murder

New York, April 22.—Mrs. Nora Jeffries, the pretty young Brooklyn woman who is accused of murdering her aged father with an ax at his home, 2544 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, on April 13, was held without bail by Magistrate Worth in the Gates Avenue Police Court to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Can't Sell Negro Vagrants

Richmond, Ky., April 22.—The Kentucky law under which so many negroes in the last twenty years have been sold on the block for a term of years in punishment for vagrancy, has at last been declared unconstitutional. The decision was made by Judge Scott in the case of Ben Burton, colored, charged with vagrancy.

7 Per Cent. of Troops Ill.

Washington, April 22.—The following despatch was received at the War Department from Manila:

"Adjutant-General, Washington:

"Troops abundantly supplied, and sickness, wounded included, only seven and fraction per cent. of command.

"Otis."

Burlington, Iowa, April 22.—This State is practically out of debt and hereafter all warrants on the Treasury will be met with cash if the hopes of the State officials are realized.

The twists and the turns of modern financiering are very curious. Frank Bergen says that it will be impossible for the Elizabeth Street Horse Car Line—owned by John Kean—to float the necessary bonds to build the road with the proposed improvements if the Elizabeth Council insist on the terms they are asking. Why is it that John Kean, with all his millions, should find it necessary to issue bonds to raise the money on the only asset the enterprise has—the franchise which the public grant? Why doesn't Mr. Kean, who is amply able to furnish the needed capital out of his own personal fortune, put up the requisite amount for the establishment of the road?

The Arkansas Legislature has passed a game law that will subject to a fine a woman wearing a stuffed bird on her hat. It provides that any person "who shall have in possession or who shall sell or expose for sale any feathers or skins or parts of birds for use in millinery or similar purposes, or shall kill for such purposes any bird in this State, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall not be fined less than $25 nor more than $50 for each bird skin or part of skin or parcel of feathers so sold or offered for sale or killed for that purpose."

In the midst of all the investigating of the Mazet Committee the great wonder that forces itself upon our mind is, how can Richard Croker—a plain citizen with no more apparent rights than the most humble denizen of the squalid East side—obtain the power and prestige that is his over the heads of scores of men his equal in every respect but this one?

THE PRESIDENT'S PHILIPPINE COMMISSION.

These gentlemen, comprising the commission appointed by the president to investigate the political conditions in the Philippines, have issued a proclamation assuring the Filipinos of the good will of the United States and guaranteeing civil and religious liberty and a stable government. The supremacy of this government will be enforced throughout the archipelago, says the proclamation.

The New Jersey editor of the New York Press seems to known more about Plainfield and its poker playing citizens than people living right in the city, for in this morning's paper he gives space to the following: "What cares the Plainfield poker fiend for a law that closes the the city rendezvous of the gambler when he can wheel away to the groves in the suburbs and enjoy a quiet game without fear of police molestance."

Excellent postal service is one of the best advantages that a city like Plainfield can possess, and it is to be hoped that the Department at Washington will see its way clear to grant the additional carriers required by Postmaster Bird to put a delivery system on the satisfactory basis that it should be on.

The baseball season is with us. Though the good old game has lost prestige and popularity in comparison with former years it still is the favorite with the masses. It is truly a National game, and possesses attractions for the popular mind that no other sport can possibly duplicate.

What John Kean is offering the city of Elizabeth for the new franchise to operate his old horsecar line as an up-to-date electric railway is out of all proportion in its slimness to the benefits he will receive by such authorization.

The prospects are that Tom Reed will receive an income of $100 000 a year if he settles down to law in New York. Tom Reed started at the bottom of the ladder in grappling with the world's ways and problems.

The Tall Sycamore of Somerset now stands out as the only Speaker Reed in the country.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

J. Fred MacDonald recently received a letter from the seat of war in the Phillipines which he prizes very highly. It was written by William H Egbert, formerly of Plainfield and an employe in Mr. MacDonald's grocery store. The letter was written on two cartridge boxes that had been tied together by a black piece of thread. Recourse to this sort of parchment was necessitated by the fact that Private Egbert was in the trenches at San Pedro Macate ready to open fire on the Filipinos at any moment. It was slipped through the lines in some manner and forwarded to Mr. MacDonald without a stamp, he paying the postage on this end. The date of the letter was February 22d, and Egbert's company had been in the trenches then for eight days. He says they were in the hottest of the fighting and were heavy losers. Many of the company were sick, but his health had been fairly good up to that time. Mr. MacDonald prizes the letter as a souvenir and has had it preserved in a frame.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Allen Wilson has gone on a business trip to Easton.

Mrs. Chas. L. Holstein, of the borough, is confined to her home by illness.

Robert Schreiner, of Sixth street, has returned from a short visit with Philadelphia friends.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The Manhattan Vaudeville Entertainers an organization of versatile and clever artists will be the attraction at Music Hall tonight. The company includes the creme of the vaudeville world, who are able to present in the aggregate over two and a half hours' of good entertainment. Among the performers are such well known names as Joe Hardman, the exceedingly funny monologist and parody singer. the Grahams in their novelty sketch, "The Soldiers' Sweetheart," Gilbert & Emerson, the funniest and most mirth provoking groteseque comedians in the vaudeville stage, Miss Alice Finley. the American prima donna in operatic selections, Gordon & Gilbert, the California boys, black-face comedians, and Miss Anna Ott, the charming balladist.

The attraction which appears at Music Hall next Tuesday night is entitled "The Air Ship" and is said to be particularly strong. It was written by Joseph M. Caites, author of "A Railroad Ticket." To people who laugh and like to be amused, who appreciate good music, pretty girls and funny comedians, as well as beautiful scenery, this comedy will prove acceptable. There is a plot, too, something unusual in plays of this class, but there is not enough of it to prove burdensome. It simply gives good reasons for the many amusing situations. The strength of the company combined with the excellency of the mounting in scenery, costumes, new and novel specialties and electrical effects, should result in crowding the house at every performance. The cast includes Marie Stuart, Raymond Finlay, James T. Kelly, Max Millian, Ben Shields, Ben Welch, the Doherty Sisters, George Errol, Lottie Burke, Maryland Tyson Stella Blair, John Phillips, Marie Tillotson, A. G. Howard, Nana Bascom, E D. Coe, Helen Steele, T. W. Arthur, J. Garrick, C. Eisenbut, Mique Smith and others.

The electrical humorous comedy in three acts entitled "Tangled Relations," which comes to the Music Hall next Wednesday night, was played 103 times in Paris, France, at two distinct theatres named the Vaudeville and the Cluny. Mr. Robert Whittier has adapted this play from the French, and the original author has yet to fail in any plays that have been produced in America. His greatest works were "On and Off." "The Masked Ball," and he was co-author of the reigning New York success, "Because She Loved Him So." The company interpreting the different characters in this humorous suggestive farce are culled from different successful companies of the past season.

Clarence Eick, of Lincoln, has been visiting Plainfield friends for a short time.

Allan Wilson, of "Tunlaw," has returned to his studies at Lafayette College, after spending a short time at the home of his father, Former Mayor Wilson, of the borough.

F. A. Runyon, of East Front street, who has been south for the past two months, is now at St. Augustine, Fla., with his mother, Mrs. W. M. Runyon. Both are improving in health and will be home May 15.

She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TRICKS TO LURE THE CLUBWOMAN'S DOLLAR FROM HER PURSE.

How the Shrewd Advertiser Baits the Hook Which He Drops Into the Troubled Waters of Clubdom—Annette Crawford Draws Conclusions.

[Copyright, 1899, by American Press Association.]

In locking over the current numbers of various publications devoted to the woman who clubs, I confess to have been more interested in the advertising pages than in the inner text. It is the attitude of the advertiser toward the clubwoman which interests and amuses.

As a rule it represents a man's idea of the most successful methods by which thinking woman can be induced to part with her dollars and dimes. It likewise represents the man's strange and sometimes absurd notions of what he thinks the clubwoman most needs and desires, else why would he advertise in a publication devoted especially to her interests?

Here, for instance, is the flaming advertisement of a man in Sioux City who offers to teach her how to "stuff birds" and to supply a "compound of wonderful embalming power," all for the small sum of $1, with liberal discounts to agents. She is assured that she can do nice work from the start and can make money teaching her friends.

In a single publication I find three advertisements of books on parliamentary law which purport to tell women how they should conduct their club meetings, as if, forsooth, women did not have the same facilities and intelligence as men in consulting and construing the standard authorities on parliamentary practice.

A vaudeville theater in Boston presents its compliments in a display ad., assuring the readers of the woman's club paper that that is the "popular resort for women and children" and offering to send a beautifully illustrated booklet.

A shrewd New England lawyer publishes a card in which he gravely announces that "no more serious business can be undertaken than the selection of an executor or administrator" and straightway recommends himself to the clubwomen as the most desirable man to attend to their estates upon their decease.

An advertisement which smacks of the secondhand shop recites that "the highest price will be paid for old gold and silver, diamonds, watches and precious stones."

A young woman in Nebraska offers her services to clubwomen as a conductor of correspondence study courses. A Boston young woman announces her willingness to give them botany lessons, while a Massachusetts man would be pleased to instruct them from the lecture platform in sociology and literature, and a Jerseyman would for a consideration tell them all about "the English race and its future."

In a late clubwoman's journal before me a Boston woman of enterprise offers her patronage to European parties, announcing that she will have a special ship reserved. She advertises a special trip for the Daughters of the American Revolution, though doubtless any of us would be permitted to go if the requisite cash is forthcoming.

In a leading journal for clubwomen I find the prospectus of a women's magazine which, for the sake of a local habitation and a name, I will call the Chicago Pink Tea, and that is quite as appropriate a name as the true one. It graciously proposes to give to "every new subscriber to the magazine and to every one renewing subscription a copperplate half tone engraving from her portrait free of charge." This plate is of the regular newspaper column width, and the prospectus points out that "every woman or girl who entertains, goes into society or has musical or other accomplishments absolutely needs a copperplate engraving of herself" and modestly suggests that there are "frequent occasions when your local newspaper wants your picture and has no means of reproducing it. You are identified with local happenings every day in social life which interest your friends, neighbors and acquaintances, which, with your picture, make very readable news."

How delightful! How convenient! If you are the hostess of an afternoon tea or the central figure of an evening soiree, all you have to do is to hand the half tone plate to the reporter who writes up the affair, and, if there is no reporter present, you can write it yourself and send the plate to the editor, and in the morning you have the satisfaction of seeing your picture in print.

ANNETTE CRAWFORD.

EPIGRAMS.

Brief and Interesting Witticisms From Various Sources.

Epigrammatic conversation has sadly declined in the present century. Nowadays our dialogue has degenerated into a series of meteorological observations It has none of the quick rapier-like flash of rapartee in which the wits of the Golden Age loved to indulge. An epigram is hard to define; its distinguished characteristic is its terse conciseness; it should be at once graphic and laconic, pointed and poignant—a brilliant brevity; it may be gay, cynical, bitter, broad—in short, a kind of Liebig Extract of Literature. Of all European nations, the French were pre-eminent in the Art of Polite Conversation, though England can boast of Sydney Smith, Charles Lamb, Thackeray, Douglas Jerrold—men whose wit approached very near to the best utterances of Tallyrand, Fontenet, Revarol, and Chamfort.

The antithesis to an epigram is a euphemism which hides a disagreeable fact in a cloud of words. There is one also of American parentage. A man was asked the cause of his father's death, and replied that "while addressing a large outdoor assemblage of people who were listening to his remarks with the greatest interest, a portion of the platform upon which he was standing gave way beneath him, whereby he was precipitated several feet with such violence as to break his neck." The man's father was hanged.

The witticisms of Sydney Smith have been quoted broadcast among English-speaking peoples. "The whole story of my life," he says, "has been passed like a razor—in hot water and a scrape." "There is the same difference between his tongue and mind as between the minute and the hour hand; one goes twelve times as fast and the other signifies twelve times as much." "My house is just now full of cousins. They are all first cousins, and I wish them—once removed." "The Church's ordinances of feasts and fasts are tolerably well kept up. The rich keep the feasts and the poor the fasts." "Gout is the only enemy which I don't wish to have at my feet."

Lord Brougham once defined a lawyer as "a legal gentleman who rescues your estate and keeps it himself." Hicks and Thackeray, walking together, stopped at a doorway over which was inscribed in gold letters these words, "Mutual Loan Office." They both seemed quite puzzled. "What on earth can that mean?" asked Hicks. "I don't know," answered Thackeray, "unless it means that two men, who have nothing, agree to lend it to another." Even the ponderous lexicographer invaded the realms of humor on occasions. When he had finished the work which laid the foundation of most English dictionaries he asked the man who had carried the last sheet to Millar, the publisher, "What did he say?" "Sir," said the messenger, "he said: 'Thank God I have done with him!'" And Johnson, in his grandest style, replied, "I am glad he thanks God for anything."

"Marriage," says Selden, "is a desperate thing. The frogs in Aesop were extremely wise; they had a great mind to some water; but they would not leap into the well because they could not get out again." "They say a parson invented gunpowder," observed Douglas Jerrold; "but one cannot believe it until one is married." The same lively wit tells us: "My notion of a wife at 40 is that a man should be able to change her, like a banknote, for two twenties."

Very pungent was the remark of the old Scotch woman who, when advised by her minister to take snuff with her, to keep her awake in the kirk while he was preaching, replied: "Why dinna ye put the snuff in the sermon, mon?" "Some men preach," said Sydney Smith, "as if they thought sin was to be taken out of a man as Eve was taken out of Adam—by casting him into a deep slumber." The Rev. Rowland Hill said once to some people who had entered his chapel to avoid the rain, "Many people are to be blamed for making religion a cloak, but I do not think those much better who make it an umbrella."

Crime and Disease.

Science, the final authority, has long since decreed crime to be a disease.

Accordingly, when the man killed his wife and children, his friends were very apprehensive for his health. In no small anxiety they awaited the progress of the malady.

But the next day the man killed only his grandmother and one of the servants; it was plain he was mending.

The attending physicians issued hopeful bulletins, predicting that within a week or so the man wouldn't be killing anybody to speak of.—Detroit Journal

Taking Sides.

"A woman always seems to take sides against her own sex," remarked the man who affects great wisdom.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Meekton. "It's invariably the case. I was reading an account of a man who beat his wife aloud to Henrietta this morning. She said it was the woman's own fault; that she ought to have known how to train her husband better."—Washington Star.

Disturbed His Slumbers.

A Georgia darkey, who was sleeping soundly, was awakened by his wife, who screamed:

"Dey's a big blacksnake coiled up at yo' feet!"

The darkey rose slowly, rubbed his eyes, caught the snake by the tail and threw it out of the window. But as he crawled back in bed he said:

"Maria, don't you ever wake me a'gin 'cept fer a rattlesnake, or a water moccasin!"

ANIMAL AGREEMENTS

CREATURES THAT GET ON VERY WELL IN COMMON QUARTERS.

A Curious Lizard and Petrel Inhabiting the Same Burrow—Both are Benefited by the Partnership—Examples Among Marine Animals.

An intimate connection subsisting between different animals is known as commensalism, commensals being creatures which may be said to sit at the same table, but which do not prey upon one another. Of late years naturalists have become acquainted with numerous examples of this form of animal partnership. In one of the Chicken Islands, off the New Zealand coast, a curious lizard known as the tuatara and certain species of the petrels were found inhabiting the same burrows, apparently on the best of terms. In rare cases the burrows, which consist of a passage two or three feet long, ending in a chamber a foot and a half long, one foot broad and six inches high, is the work of the bird. As a rule, however, the lizard is the excavator. Each builds its nest on opposite sides of the chamber, the lizard almost invariably choosing the left and the petrel the right side. The lizard feeds partly on worms and beetles, and partly on the remnants of fishes brought to their common table by the petrel, both animals being thus benefitted by the partnership. This is probably more than can be said of the prairie dog, whose underground home is frequently shared by the rattlesnake and the burrowing owl. These were at one time supposed to form a "happy family," but considerable doubt has been cast on the point by the discovery of young prairie dogs in the stomach of the rattlesnake, which seems to indicate that commensalism in this particular case has been a one sided affair so far as the benefits were concerned.

It is among marine animals, however, that the most striking examples of commensalism have been observed. A feeble fish called the remora owes its success in life to the powerful alliances it forms. One of its fins has been transformed into a sucker placed right on top of its head, by means of which it attaches itself firmly to any passing shark, whale or even ship, no doubt mistaking the latter for some huge sea monster. By these it is transported without any exertion on its own part over great distances meanwhile picking up such food as may come in its way.

Several small fishes have been found, also, to habitually lodge in the mouth cavity of a Brazilian catfish, sharing such food as the latter succeeds in capturing. The enemies of the smaller fishes are so numerous that it is only by retreating to places inaccessible to their foes that they have a chance of survival. A favorite shelter for many small fishes is the round disk of the larger sea jellies, the stinging properties of which probably cause them to be avoided by the other denizens of the deep. As many as twenty fishes have been counted swimming within the fringed margin of one of these pulsating umbrellas. The sea cucumbers are another lowly group of marine forms which afford shelter to fishes.

Other instances might be given, such as that of the little pea crab, found in mussels and other bivalve shells, which in return for the protection given them by the molluskan shell gives its host a share of the food it captures.—Washington Star.

How to Explore.

An explorer in a new country makes most wonderful discoveries by observing very small facts.

He comes to the mouth of a river. If the water is milk white he knows that it comes from a glacier direct, yet he may see the glacier-bearing mountains and find the water quite clear. That means that the river has a lake in its course which has filtered the water and taken out all the mud.

If the river is muddy red it comes from a country of clay; if it is clear brown it comes from swamp or forest. If the water is "hard" when he washes his hand that means a country of limestone.

By the gravel he knows the exact rocks which are drained by the river. Speckled rocks, such as granite, tell a story of probable mountain ranges, even if none are in sight; and by the speckles the explorer can tell whether the mountain range is brand new and jagged, or old and worn.

By the pebbles it is quite easy, with a little practice, to read off the history of a country, to guess at its age. Flints mean a chalk formation, ironsand is the best possible indication of gold; lavas and basalts mean volcanic action.

Terraces along the coast mean that it is rising by jumps, as may be seen in Norway and Chile.

Where the rivers cut deep between sheer walls on their course from the mountains to the sea, that means that there is no rainfall. Modern shells on top of high mountains mean that the range has only recently been lifted out of the sea.

Hummocky mountains or plains are sure to be made of granite; caves are nearly always in limestone; sink holes mean water running beneath.—Stray Stories.

Nails Never Grow Equally.

The nails of two fingers never grow with the same degree of rapidity. The nail of the middle finger grows with the greatest rapidity, and that of the thumb least. It has been computed that the average growth of the finger nail is one-thirty second of an inch per week, or a little more than an inch and a half per year.

MEN HIT IN BATTLE.

OBSERVATIONS OF A SOLDIER WHO FOUGHT IN THE CIVIL WAR.

Was in Totten's Battery—Some Wounded and Dying Fell Thick and Fast—Fighting in Hard Luck—Taking His Last Smoke.

"If you want to know how men die in battle, ask some of those who have been at Wilson's Creek, on one side or the other," said Judge David Murphy of the criminal court of St. Louis.

"I was in Totten's Battery, and I saw them, wounded and dying, falling thick and fast around me. You may say that I saw not one man flunk in the face of death on that terrible day of fighting and bloodshed. While I was firing my gun from Bloody Hill a youngster, not more than twenty years old, suddenly jerked his leg. He uttered a sharp, quick cry, then bent down and tore the trousers away from the place on his skin where a Minie ball had struck him. He looked up with a smile, patted the wound with his hand, pulled the torn trousers down and went on shooting. Five minutes later he yelled again, and his hand went up to the fleshy part of his arm. 'Hit again!' he said, sat down behind the battle ranks and examined his arm. The wound was only skin deep, and that seemed to please him hugely, for he tied his handkerchief around it and went again forward into the ranks with his musket.

"'You're fighting in bad luck, to-day, Pete,' said a comrade. The youngster turned his face to answer back, and by the snapping of his eyes it could be seen that his mind framed a saucy, defiant reply. Just then his jaw dropped. A ball ploughed its way through his mouth leaving nothing but a bloody cavity. With a hoarse gurgle the fellow threw his gun on the ground and fled back of the lines. He was found in a hospital afterwards, but never recovered.

"On that same day I encountered three men under a tree. Their faces were ashy gray, showing that they were mortally wounded. I asked them why they were not attended to, and one of them said that it was all over with them: they wanted the surgeons to attend first to those who could be saved. One of the men was smoking a short briarwood pipe.

"What are you doing, my friend?" I asked.

"Taking my last smoke," he answered, his glassy eyes looking steadily at me. Another was reading a letter. He held it up to his face, but I could see that he was not making any headway. His eyes were growing dim, and his weak, trembling hands folded the missive and thrust it into his breast pocket. He was perfectly resigned to his fate and had not a word to say. When I returned in the evening, after a lull, I found the three men dead. Their faces were white and set in the shadow of the tree under which they lay.

"That's all bosh about men raving about home, mother and heaven. All the men I have seen die or near death were quiet and perfectly rational. They made no fuss. Those that did were usually delirious, entirely out of their minds. The faces of those were frequently distorted, and gave every evidence of the mental and physical agony they unconsciously had endured.

"One thing struck me as peculiar. Nearly all the regulars exhibited an instant desire to examine their wounds when they were hit, and the expression of their faces indicated in a moment whether they were slightly or mortally wounded. They seemed to know with unfailing certainty. If the wound was slight and in a place where they could tie it up conveniently, they did so, and then went back to the fighting lines. If it was mortal their grave, pale faces betrayed their knowledge. The volunteers were not so well posted, but they were as brave as lions, and seldom gave up unless seriously hurt."

When a Man Becomes of Age.

The question sometimes arises whether a man is entitled to vote at an election held on the day preceding the twenty-first anniversary of his birth. Blackstone, in his Commentaries, book 1, page 463 says "full age in male or female is twenty-one years, which age is completed on the day preceding the anniversary of a person's birth, who, till that time, is an infant, and so styled in law." The late Chief-Justice Sharswood, in his edition of Blackstone's Commentaries, quotes Christian's note on the above, as follows: "If he is born on the 16th of February, 1608, he is of age to do any legal act on the morning of the 15th of February, 1629, though he may not have lived twenty-one years by nearly forty-eight hours. The reason assigned is, that in law there is no fraction of a day; and if the birth were on the last second of one day, and the act of the first second of the preceding day twenty-one years after, then twenty-one years would be complete; and in the law it is the same whether a thing is done upon one moment of the day or another." The same high authority (Sharswood) adds in a note of his own, "A person is of full age the day before the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday."

Fleas in French Theatres.

All Paris theatres except the new Opera Comique are full of fleas, according to Francisque Garcey, the dramatic critic, who ought to know. He suggests that managers drive sheep into the auditorium before the performances to attract the pests, a method that is said to have some success in Spanish hotels.

BISMARCK COULD DRINK.

And Yet He Lived to a Ripe Old Age and Always Enjoyed His Pipe.

Count Andrassy's story of an interview he had with Bismarck is as follows:

"Bismarck had two immense mugs of beer brought to us. He took one of them and shoved the other over to me. I remarked that I drank only water. He looked at me in silence, curiously and almost [illegible] for a minute and then [illegible] with the subject under discussion. The more interested he became in our conversation the more frequently and copiously he drank. After finishing his own mug he appropriated mine without a word and put down its contents in three or four tremendous draughts. Then he had a servant fetch and fill two enormous pipes. When he offered me one of them, I explained that I never smoked.

"'What!' he cried, 'neither drink nor smoke? What kind of a supernatural man are you anyway?'

"It was a mercy to both of us, however, that I did not accept the pipe, for Bismarck smoked so incessantly that within fifteen minutes the air in the room was dense. When I rose at the end of the evening from the table at which we were sitting, the smoke was so thick that I could hardly see the chancellor's face."

He Enjoyed It.

Fred—That cigar you gave me did me lots of good.

Arthur—I'm glad of it. When did you smoke it?

"Oh, I didn't smoke it. I gave it to Howard; I hate him, you know."—Harlem Life.

He Felt Funny.

One of the men on board the Olympia, at Manila, tells of the preparations to enter the bay and brave the dangers of the mines and shore batteries:

"About 7 o'clock I took a pillow," he writes, "and lay down on the soft side of a plank to take a nap. All the men slept at their guns. At 9:30 we were quietly called. No bugle sounded. Everything was done quietly. I jumped up and went on the bridge. I felt nervous for awhile; I did not know where we were, and it was as dark as hades. All one could hear was the orders given by the officers and the click of the breech blocks as they were closed. We could see the shape of a big island ahead of us, and we were told that it was the fort. It is about 500 feet above the level of the sea. We could not elevate our guns enough to bear on it, so they fired at us without receiving an answer in return. Our nerves were highly strung now from waiting in suspense. About 12 o'clock we were directly under the guns of the first fort, and when they started to signal and fired a rocket every man braced himself. On we went, not knowing what minute a torpedo or submarine mine would send us all to eternity."

"Speaking of the battle he says: "For a while I thought I was a gone goose. The shells were falling around us thick as hail. We could see the big ones pass over our heads, and the smoke and saltpeter were suffocating. One shell passed about two feet over my head, cutting the signal halyard I was holding. 'Jump up there and get that end,' said the officer. While I was up on the back stay I felt funny, I can tell you."

Hard on the Gentler Sex.

There is much of the slave and the tyrant hidden in the nature of woman. Thus woman is not yet capable of friendship, but only of love.

In the love of woman is injustice and blindness to all that she does not love.

There are two things a true man likes—danger and play. He likes woman because she is the most dangerous of playthings.

A man should be reared for the vocation of a warrior; a woman for the recreation of the warrior. All else is rubbish.

A woman's principle of honor is to love more than she is loved, so as not to be second.

In any game where love or hate is not at stake women play a mediocre part.

All women behind their personal vanity cherish an impersonal contempt for woman.

As a rule, a mother loves herself in her son more than the son loves himself.

The chief danger that besets artists of genius lies in woman. The worshiping woman is their ruin. Hardly one has character enough to resist his ruin when he finds himself treated like a god. Man is a coward in face of the ewig weibliche, and no one knows it better than the small woman.

Women indulge in literature as they commit a little sin, glancing round to see if any one is looking—i. e. to attract attention.—Henry Nietzsche, in Academy.

JACK OF ALL TRADES.

INTERESTING AND VARIED EXPERIENCES OF NEW YORK POLICEMEN.

A Single Day's Varied Deeds of Bravery—Typical Example of Occurrences Which Combine to Produce the Finest Police Force in the World.

If anything happens in New York it's "Call a policeman." He's the municipal jack of all trades. He goes to all the church weddings with feminine persistency. He attends about half the funerals. He escorts inebriated gentlemen to their doorsteps, and drags common "drunks" to the station. If there's a murder, he's on hand. If the cook "sauces" her mistress, he's invited into the mansion. If the mistress is out, he's invited in by the cook.

When there's a runaway he is much in evidence. When there is an accident he appears in force.

The policeman one hour is a diplomat, the next a prize fighter. In one block he is the tyrant, sending the pushcart men scurrying from the blows of his night stick; in the next he is the Solon, issuing wise orders to preserve the peace of the community. Now he is the Sherlock Holmes, stealthily trailing the criminal to his haunts; again he is a bidden but unintroduced guest at the society function, keeping an eye on the silver spoons.

He is all things to all men and a hundred things in one. Every day he has to do things at which the average citizen would blush. Every day he does things as a matter of course about which the average citizen, if he did them, would boast for a month. If he does not report the dead cats on his "beat" he is complained of at Headquarters and loses a day's pay. If when he gets thirsty, he takes a drink, as ordinary mortals do, it's two days' pay if he is caught. Not a day passes but he risks his life. Sometimes he gets honorable mention or a medal. More often he gets only a spoiled uniform.

Here's just a glimpse at the policeman's life, a chronicle of a few of the things he did one day recently, illustrating the courage, quick wit, physical powers and qualities of heroism that make the Police Department of New York the finest in the world.

As it happens, the day on which these instances were noted was one of those times when the fire king shows his power. From midnight to midnight the firemen were answering alarms and the streets were seldom without the clatter of hoofs and the clang of gongs.

Five alarms had been sent in for a destructive fire in Sixth avenue late the night before. It drew the fire engines from a large section, and when smaller fires came later the firemen were much longer than usual in arriving. At the scene of the big fire were the police reserves from several stations.

Almost with the fire alarms came the call for reserves. There were eager, pushing crowds to keep out of the firemen's way, threatening walls to watch, reporters' questions to answer, heaped up goods from the burning building to protect, a hundred other things to do, and scores of tired policemen, dragged from their slumbers, did all these duties uncomplainingly until the morning broke.

But all the heroes of the force were not at the fire. One lone policeman was riding on the rear platform of an east side car. His watchful eye saw smoke issuing from a store on the ground floor of a Norfolk street tenement. It was only a second's work to dash to the nearest fire alarm box and call the engines, thereby bringing the firemen in time to rescue shrieking tenants whom the flames had cut off from the fire escapes and stairways.

Not many blocks away two policemen, a few hours before, had been violating that much transgressed rule about talking on post by having a friendly chat. On the opposite corner was a fire alarm box. An excited citizen ran up and opened the door of the little red box. He thought he had called the engines to a nearby fire, but he had not. It took the policemen only a second to discover that he had not "pulled the hook" according to directions, and they quickly remedied the delay that might have brought death to many in a tenement.

Over on the west side, in West Fourth street it was a little girl, playing with fire, ignited a sofa. The house was in a panic. Tenants scurried hither and thither, helpless from fright. Some one had presence of mind enough to turn in an alarm, but before the engines arrived came a cool headed young policeman. The sofa was blazing merrily, but nothing else had caught. He flung up a window, tossed the sofa out into the street and went back to his post. He had saved a building from the flames, but what's a policeman for?

Further up on the west side a fire started on the third floor of the house. Up on the fourth floor was a poor woman—a consumption victim—with her baby, six months old. She heard the shrieks of the other tenants as they ran from the building. None thought of her. Picking up her child she sought to escape by the stairway. Weak from illness, the smoke overcame her. A big policeman found her there, and tenderly carried mother and babe to a place of safety. But that's only an ordinary thing for a policeman to do, and the station house blotter will not even tell you his name.

And while all this was going on thieves were being arrested, intoxicated men taken care of, pedestrians guided through Broadway's mazes, strangers directed to stores and ferries, attempts at suicides being investigated—all by policemen.—New York Herald

On motion of Freeholder Farrell, received and placed on file.

Jersey City, N. J., March 25, 1899.

Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN — We learn that condemnation proceedings have been instituted by your Board to acquire the whole or some portion of the following lands owned by Amelia D. Pope, for the purpose of widening Westfield avenue, viz:

All that certain tract or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in the City of Elizabeth, in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the northerly line of Westfield Avenue and the easterly line of Bay Way; thence (1) easterly along said northerly line seventy-five feet; thence (2) northerly at right angles to said northerly lines eighteen feet more or less to the line of land of Antoinette B. Blackwell, formerly of Amos Clark, Junior; thence (3) northerly and westerly along said Blackwell's line to its intersection with the easterly line of Bay Way; thence (4) along the easterly line of Bay Way to the place of beginning.

This is to notify you, that Catherine A. Pope is the owner of a mortgage given to secure the sum of $3,000, made by Franklin L. Pope and wife to her, covering the land above described, which mortgage is recorded in Book 104 of mortgages for Union County, page 59, and further, that this mortgage has been foreclosed, and a decree made by the Court of Chancery of this State March 20th, 1899, in a cause wherein said Catherine A. Pope is complainant, and said Amelia D. Pope and another are defendants, adjudging $3,298 50, with interest from the date of the decree, to be due said Catherine A. Pope on said mortgage, together with costs of suit to be taxed.

Very truly yours,
BRINKERHOFF & FIELDER,
Solicitors, CATHERINE A. POPE.

On motion of Freeholder Roll, received and referred to the County Attorney.

Fanwood, N. J., March 20, 1899,

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J.

Gentlemen: At a meeting of the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Fanwood, Union County, held March 14, 1899, I was directed by the Council to present to you the following resolution passed at that time in relation to the condition of North avenue which your Board declared a County road at a meeting some months ago. The resolution is as follows:

Resolved—That inasmuch as the County Board of Chosen Freeholders have taken from the Borough of Fanwood, of Union County, New Jersey, all that part of North avenue lying within the limits of the above Borough and have declared it to be a County Road:—

It is further resolved that the Chairman of the Street Committee be instructed to present to said Board, through our representative, Mr. John Robinson, the Borough Council's protest of the manner in which the said North Avenue is neglected by those concerned, and to request the Board to either repair North Avenue at once or authorize the Borough authorities to do so, the Board agreeing to settle bill of expense for such repairs as will put said North Avenue in as good shape as when they declared it a County Road. Yours truly,

A. McKOWN,
Chairman Street Committee.

Freeholder Roll moved that the communication be referred to the County Attorney, which was duly seconded. At the request of Freeholder Robison for some information on the matter, County Attorney Codington read from the County Road act (sec. 6) which provided in part that all roads adopted as county roads must be maintained by the localities in which such roads are situated, until such time as said roads are actually improved by the county.

Freeholder Roll's motion was then adopted without dissent.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Freeholder Farrell reported "progress" on repairs to St. George's avenue at Rahway (from Lake avenue to city line,) Mr. Redhing, the contractor on said road, having agreed to put same in proper condition as soon as the weather permitted.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Scudder;

"Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union relinquish control of that portion of the road known as Union avenue and Springfield avenue from North avenue in the Township of Cranford and through a part of Westfield Township to the county road known as Mountain avenue, and that the map of said road be changed accordingly, and that a certified copy of this resolution be filed in the office of the County Clerk."

Freeholder Roll moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Higgins:

"Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, relinquish control of the road described as follows: Commencing at the intersection of Washington avenue and Grove street in Elizabeth city; then along Washington avenue to Edgar turnpike; thence southwesterly along said turnpike to the intersection of Stiles street in Linden Township; and that the map of said road be changed accordingly, and that a certified copy of this resolution be filed with the County Clerk."

Freeholder King moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll-call it was adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Adams:

"Resolved, That a committe of three be appointed to investigate the advisability of building a culvert over what is known as River street at Cranford, N. J., said culvert not to cost over $85, and said committee be empowered to contract for the same."

Freeholder Farrell moved the adoption of the resolution, and after some discussion, during which Freeholder Adams stated that the matter was one that needed immediate attention, the resolution was on roll-call adopted unanimously.

SPORTING.

VARICUS SPORTS.

There will be a meeting of local horsemen in a short time to arrange for several trotting matches for the coming season.

The Junior contest for the championship of the Y. M. C. A. took place this morning. The movements were on the low bar, on the horse and the parallels. Thirteen boys took part in the contest. Of these four came out close together. One prize was awarded, a silver championship medal. Out of a possible 90 points, Irwin Leland made 87; Harold Lucky 80; Donald Bechtelle 79, and Ernest Sherwin 78. Irwin Leland, therefore, gets the prize. The others get honorable mention.

Death of a Little Fellow.

James C. Hansen, the two-year old son James and Nellie Hansen, of West Second street, died early this morning. Five weeks ago the little fellow fell out of a third story window down to a platform below the third story, and was not injured apperently, except on one knee. A day or two ago he was taken ill again, and about 1 o'clock this morning he died. Dr. B. VanD. Hedges says death was due to acute indigestion, but not induced by the fall. The funeral services will be held Monday.

Macadamizing Nearly Completed.

The macadamizing of Franklin place and East Sixth street is practically completed. All that is necessary now is to allow the elements to knit the surface firmly together so that it will be smooth.

GOLF SEASON OPENS IN EXCELLENT SHAPE.

Hillside Club Links See Activity Once Again.

BIG TURN OUT OF PLAYERS.

GOOD SCORES WERE MADE IN THE SCRATCH TOURNAMENT.

The Day Was Delightful in the Weather. way—New Appointments of the Clubhouse are Very Pleasing to the Members—Many Visitors Present Saturday—The Scores Made in the Opening Game.

The most particular devotee of golf could find no fault with the beautiful day that was given for the formal opening of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course last Saturday. Nature smiled in all her beauty upon the uplands and valleys that comprise the well-appointed course of this popular club. The air was bracing and just enough so to to put vim into the large number of enthusiasts that wended their way over the links for the first time this year. Considering all things the opening day was an auspicious one in the history of the club, and notwithstanding the fact that the golfers have hardly entered the swing as yet there were many that engaged in the sport in their old-time manner.

It was a beautiful sight to stand near the club house and watch the players circle the course. It brought back pleasant memories of last year, and enthused all for a successful season. Many of the older members were out in force and vied with the young set in doing their best. The old scores were laid aside and it was a time when new scores had to be made so that there would be a basis for handicapping for the coming season.

As stated, it was the first time for many over the course this season, and in spite of this handicap some good scores were made. The event was the scratch tournament, 18 holes, medal play, open to all active members, and the result was as follows: Willard Wadsworth, 86; Frank Talmage, 90; J. H. P. Wharton, 93; C. W. Fisk, 94; T. R. VanBoskerck, 99; S. L. Schoonmaker, 100; F. L. Schoonmaker, 100; Walter Glenny, 102; Olaf Saugstad, 104; P. W. Mason, 104; Owen Fleming, 105; Whitney Baker, 106; E. J. Warfing, 107; H. R. Stockton, 109; L. H. VanBuren, 110; G. T. VanBoskerck, 112; Carroll Runyon, 112; N. P Rogers 116; R. M. Shepard, 115; Mrs. N. P. Rogers, 137.

The social features of the day were pleasant. The club house was opened and in the reception room the slight coolness in the air was tempered to a pleasing degree by a cosy wood fire. Groups gathered here and there and chatted over the bright prospects for the season, and how attractive everything looked about the house and grounds.

The new steward, Fred Ivarmy, and his wife were in charge of the house, and they looked after the comfort of all. The restaurant was formally opened, and in the evening John Doul Miller gave an informal dinner to a party of a dozen friends. All were well pleased with the service, which bids fair to be all that is desirable.

During the afternoon many visited the grounds by carriage and accepted the hospitality of the members. There were also many strangers present from out-of-town and they seemed to be pleased.

The next club event will be Saturday, May 6th, when the finals for the Fisk cup, junior club, will be played, but there will now be playing every Saturday on the course and many will take advantage of the sport during the week. Steward Ivarmy is now prepared to serve lunch or dinner and by proper notification meals can be arranged for.

HE LIKED IT AFTER ALL.

Charles Schermerhorn Surprised on His Birthday

Saturday being the anniversary of Charles H. Schermerhorn's birthday, the genial Western Union telegraph operator was treated to a genuine surprise party by his wife. Mr. Schermerhorn was not in the secret, and being decidedly outspoken in his detest for surprises in general he suspected not what was going on around him.

Returning from his evening stroll about 9 o'clock Saturday night Mr. Schermerhorn found his apartments invaded by a host of friends from Dunellen, headed by Fred Dickerson The evening was spent pleasantly, and it is needless to say that Mr Schermerhorn made a charming host for all his dislike for parties.

Mrs. Rushmore, of Washington Park, left this morning for Pittsfield, Mass, where she will remain for a time.

DIFFERENT STORIES TOLD BY POLICEMAN AND PRISONER.

The Brown Brothers Quarreled Over Baseball and Then Came to Blows—Patrolman Myers Appeared on the Scene.

Patrolman Myers had an experience Saturday night. He told about it in city court this morning when his prisoner, William Brown, colored, was arraigned before Judge Runyon. In his efforts to arrest his man, he said, he was rushed into Brown's house by the latter's friends and family. There they tried to shut the door on him but he finally succeeded in dragging his prisoner outdoors again and to the rookery.

The Browns live in the little white house at the corner of Plainfield avenue and West Fourth street. William Brown and his brother Ed. were there Saturday night. They couldn't agree on the subject of baseball and there was a quarrel. Then they went outside and began to spar. Myers says there were several blows struck. Myers came up and grabbed at Will while Ed. ran away

Myers testified that he grabbed Will and that the rest gathered around them and rushed them both into the house where Will lay down on a lounge and refused to move. The prisoner and his witnesses claimed that Myers followed them into the house and made the arrest there. At any rate, Brown objected to arrest and it was with difficulty and he was removed.

The Judge heard the story, meditated and announced that he would think it over until Wednesday when he would announce his decision in the case.

WAITING FOR SOMETHING

ROSELLE COUNCIL DOES NOT ACT ON TROLLEY APPLICATION.

Representative Gaddis Says That Railway Company is Anxious to Come to Terms so as to Complete Road.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, April 24—The application of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, controlled by the Bikers, of Newark, which has been before the Board of Alderman of this place for many months past, was talked over at a meeting of the Council Friday evening. The application was taken from the table and its further consideration was adjourned till Monday evening, May 1st, at which time it is believed the railway company and the Council may agree on a route for Roselle.

Representative A. A. Gaddis was before the meeting and spoke in the interests of his company, telling how the work on the main at Garwood was progressing and explained that at Cranford the evening before the township Committee appointed Township Engineer Vreeland to confirm the street grades established by the railway company. The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company had hopes of completing their main line to connect Elizabeth with Plainfield by June 1st, but will not be able to do so now on account of their application being held up by the Board of Aldermen at this place so long.

A Successful Fair.

Taken altogether the fair which closed Saturday night at the Christian church has been successful in every way. The goods left over were disposed of at auction, John Goodwin making an excellent auctioneer. All the contests were decided except one, that for the quilt. This will be decided May 9th, when a lunch box sociable will be held at the church. Miss Mary Smith won the doll and Mrs. Lydia Baldwin the pillow.

DR. RICHARDS SENDS A LETTER FROM ATHENS.

Read to Crescent Avenue Presbyterians Yesterday.

HIS IMPRESSIVE SIGHTS.

IN THE MIDST OF TRAVEL HE THINKS OF HIS OWN FLOCK.

He Has Been in Lands Made Sacred by the Personality of the Apostles and Has Received Inspiration by His Observation—Feeling of Sadness to Walk Among Ruins of a Once Great Civilization.

Although Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, is far away from his people and cannot be with them, yet he sends them frequent letters. One of them was received recently by Leander N. Lovell, and was read yesterday at the morning service by the minister in charge, Rev. Elliott W. Brown, of New York.

Athens, March 21st, 1899.

To the Crescent Avenue Church and Congregation:

Dear Friends—The day has almost come for the annual meeting of the church, the reviewing of the old year and the beginning of the new.

I must send a word of greeting and a prayer for you all.

The journey which your kindness has enabled me to take has been deeply interesting, though we have not yet reached the land which must be most interesting of all. But already we are in lands made sacred by the labors and testimony and sufferings of the Apostles and their converts.

In Rome among the bewildering multitude of historical associations, to me the deepest impression of all come from the memorials of those early Christians who sealed their testimony with their blood; here in Athens we have found no spot more impressive than the rocky ledge of Mars Hill, where the Apostle declared to the people the unknown God whom they had failed to find; and on the old site of Corinth where a great city was and is not, there seems not much left except the memory of the man who labored in that city one year and six months for the Lord Jesus and for the souls of men.

It gives me a feeling of sadness to walk among the ruins of a splendid civilization which has so completely passed away. The position of leadership which these Nations once held they forfeited; others hold it now. And even for the churches which used to stand here the warning seems to have been often fulfilled that their candlestick should be taken out of its place.

I often find myself thinking anxiously of our own dear land, and our own dear church; for this is our time of growth and enlarging opportunity. May the Lord save us from such hopeless decrepitude as fell on these more ancient people and churches. His promise to His people, if they faithfully wait upon Him, is that they shall renew their strength. Wherever that promise seems to have failed we must believe that the people did not wait upon Him; there was some unfaithfulness or disobedience; they knew not the time of their visitation.

I am exceeding anxious to learn how our church will bear herself toward the work of the new year, and whether with unabated faith and consecretion we can undertake once more the responsibilities offered us in the home church and in our various chapels.

The Sunday when we renew our subscriptions for this work is always an anxious day for us; but now being vanished to the other side of the world, I think I can understand a little of the Apostle's feeling when he used to wait in great trouble of soul for Timothy or Titus to bring tidings from some one of the churches which he loved.

May the Lord Himself be with you, and guide and bless you now and always, and in His good time permit me to look into your faces once more.

Affectionately your pastor,
W. R. Richards.

Money For Chapel Work.

Yeterday was Chapel Day in the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday school, and attention was paid to it during the afternoon session. A collection amounting to $13.15 was taken up, which will be devoted to erecting chapels in the newly acquired possessions of Cuba and Porto Rico, and carryng on the Gospel work there. Several of the members of the school read selections telling of the need of such work there, and four little girls gave a recitation entitled, "If I Were a Sunbeam."

Arranging to Open.

FRESH AIR CAMP GONE.

FOREST FIRES DESTRUCTIVE WORK ON THE MOUNTAINS.

Flames Supposed to Have Been Started by Boys—No One There to Prevent the Flames From Doing Any Damage.

All that remains of the Fresh Air Camp for Children of the King's Daughters, which was located on the mountains, along Johnston's drive, is a heap of smouldering embers. The fires which have raged on the mountains for the past few weeks swept that section Saturday and utterly destroyed the little summer home on the mountain.

Owing to the lack of rain for the past month the wood lands have become very dry. Fires have been burning on the Watchung Mountains for some time. Until Saturday, however, the King's Daughters little place escaped. The fire of Saturday is supposed to have been started by some boys.

The camp was a neat little wooden structure that was well equipped for the purpose for which it was intended, that of taking sick babies to the camp for the day so that they might have the advantage of the bracing air. It was built and conducted by the Local Union of King's Daughters, several years ago. In it was stored the furniture, dishes and other articles used in the camp.

As no one was watching the destruction of the camp was not known until yesterday. As the trees stand very close to the building it would have been nearly impossible to save it without great labor, even if the fire had been discovered in time.

MONEY FOR THE "BLACK BELT."

Forty Dollars Raised for Educational Work in the South

A quartette of colored jubilee singers from the Fort Valley, Georgia, High and Industrial school, were at the Seventh Day Baptist church last night and gave a consert. Their assistant principal was with them, J. H. Torbert, and a plea was made for a collection to be used to aid the school to erect a girls dormitory.

Assistant Principal Torbert explained the workings of the school, and A. T. Jackson, one of the pupils, told his experiences as a teacher in a country school in the "Black Belt" among the ignorant colored. At the close of the concert, which consisted of vocal songs and selections on the mandolin and guitar, it was found that $40 had been donated to help on the work. A concert will also be given in the Crescent Avenue church May 3

At the Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

Staff-Captain Ferris, of the Salvation Army, was not able to be present at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon, so F. H. Martin made the address. The Jubilee Singers from Fort Valley, Ga., were there, and sang several Negro Bible songs which were well rendered. E. C. Martin, of the firm of Woodhull & Martin, rendered a solo accompanied on the cornet by R. W. Davis.

FATHER SMYTH TALKS OF THE CIDER JOINTS.

Declares They Are a Disgrace to West End of the City.

FATHER WESTMAN'S VISITS.

ASSISTANT RECTOR SAW FOR HIMSELF HOW THEY OPERATE.

A Personal Visit by the Clergyman Showed a Disgraceful Condition of Affairs—Father Smyth Referred to It Yesterday Morning, Declaring He Would Do What He Could to Break It Up.

Rev. Father Smyth, rector of St. Mary's R. C. church, created quite a sensation yesterday morning by referring to the open and disreputable manner in which the "cider joints" are being run in the west end of the city Sundays.

Father Smyth stated that a week ago Sunday Father Westman, the assistant rector of St. Mary's parish, made a personal visit to several of these resorts and found a condition of affairs that was a disgrace to that part of the city. Both Fathers Smyth and Westman have heard many bad stories of late concerning the operation of these "cider joints," and it was decided by them that the best way to get at the root of the evil was for Father Westman to make a personal inspection of some of the places that had been complained of and see for himself just what they were.

In order to find out the exact condition of affairs Father Westman made his visits without warning. He called at several places that are apparently respectable and harmless to outward appearances, but once inside he was astonished at what he witnessed. The principal business that they seemed to be doing was the serving of the alleged soft drinks, but on every hand was evidence that the beverages were not the harmless concoctions that many people are led to suppose are for sale.

In several of the places visited Father Westman found members of St. Mary's parish who should have been attending the services instead of loitering in these resorts. The proprietors of the places, as well as the habitues, were greatly surprised at the clergyman's arrival and were discomfited by his inquiries and observations.

Yesterday morning Father Smyth took occasion to refer to the matter in vigorous language. He said that it was a disgrace to the city that such places should be in existence, as wel as a reflection on Catholics that any of that denomination should be found patronizing or frequenting the places. As for himself Father Smyth declared that he should see to it that such parishioners as came under his spiritual direction should be stopped from visiting the places if it was possible. He said that the business should be suppressed and that any attempt to accomplish such a result would receive his hearty co-operation.

DR. SMITH MAY GO TO JAIL.

Must Pay Penalty for Permitting Patients to Bath in Lawrence Brook.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, April 24.—It looks now as though Dr. Charles Smith, of Rahway, will have to pay dearly for his bathing in Lawrence Brook and polluting the water supply of New Brunswick. Dr. Smith conducted a cold water cure sanitarium along the Lawrence Brook, whence the water supply of New Brunswick is obtained. Patients were in the habit of bathing in the brook, which Dr. Smith termed "fountain of youth," until the attention of the Board of Health was called to the practice, when he he was prosecuted.

At his trial, Foster M. Voorhees, now Governor, defended him. He was found guilty. On January 27th, 1898, Judge Strong sentenced him to pay a fine of $75 and costs of $67.97. He carried the case to the higher court. Recently the sentence in this court was affirmed and the appeal dismissed. The necessary papers for his arrest were prepared and handed to a detective. Unless Dr. Smith pays the fine he will be locked in jail. He says he is 125 years old, and attributes his old age to the preserving qualities of Lawrence Brook.

Another Drug Store.

Dr. M. S. Simpson is about to open a drug store. Dr. Simpson has rented the corner store in Charles Hand's new building on the corner of Second street and Watchung avenue, and men are busy today fitting it up. The doctor will use the rear room as an office, while the drug store will occupy the main room. Dr. Simpson formerly kept a pharmacy on the corner of Liber y and West Fourth streets.

THIRST WAS TOO MUCH.

A HALF PINT OF WHISKEY LED TO WILLIAM DELANEY'S ARREST

He Had Left It in S. A. Cruikshank's Cellar and Stolen Into the House to Get it—Caught and held for Police.

A half pint of whiskey led William Delaney to do several things that proved very unfortunate for him. He had left the bottle of whiskey in the cellar of "Sacmore," S. A Cruikshank's beautiful residence on Belvidere avenue, where he tended the fires until last Friday.

Last night at 8 o'clock Delaney reached the neighborhood of "Sacmore." On the lawn he removed his shoes and started for the kitchen door, carrying his shoes in his hand. The kitchen door wasn't locked, so he walked in and started for the cellar.

Miss Helen Cruikshank happened to be looking out of the window and saw, by the moonlight, a man walking over the lawn, with his shoes in his hand. She told her father who reached the kitchen in time to confront the ex employe. The police were notified by telephone and Sergeant Kiely and Patrolman Higgins hurried to the house where they put Delaney under arrest and locked him up for the night.

Delaney had been employed at the Cruikshank residence for six weeks. His sister is the cook there. Mr. Cruikshank believed his story and refused to appear against him in court this morning. City Judge Runyon discharged the prisoner on condition that he would leave town at once.

Bullet Found by Aid of X-Rays.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, April 24.—Several days ago a woman at Elizabeth shot Wm. Duncan, of that city. One ball entered his cheek while the other lodged in his arm. Dr. R. B. Whitehead, of that city, succeeded in removing about thirty grains of the ball which entered the arm but he could not find the remainder. Fighting Fire Under Difficulties in Bound Brook.

CHILD'S LIFE WAS SAVED.

STAIRS GAVE WAY AND THREW GALLANT CHIEF INTO CELLAR.

Veritable Tinder Boxes and Fire Traps Became Ignited and Made Hard Work for the Volunteer Firemen—One Man Seriously Hurt—Fire Supposed to Have Been Incendiary Work.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, April 24.—Bound Brook was startled at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by an alarm of fire. It came from two old houses, regular tinder boxes, which lately belonged to Adolph Stokem, but fell into the hands of the town for non-payment of taxes. They were situated on Main street in the east end of the town, and were soon to be removed, as the Borough Council at its last meeting decided to raze them, but the matter was laid over for one month.

One house was occupied by Mrs. Ellen Vousden and four children, who are supported by the town. The structures were in the business portion of the town. The Hotel Bound Brook is acoss the street, with the house of Hose Company No. 1 to the east and Maulbeck's bakery and ice cream parlor to the west.

The wind was west and the house of Hose Company No. 1 was threatened, and a line was laid from its cart to the plug by being carried over the truck. The members started in at once to save their building, and while so doing Assistant Foreman Fred W. Miller, of the hose company, was seriously injured by a falling chimney. Miller was soon dug out of the heap of bricks and, although dazed, at once started to work again by grabbing the hose and pitching in and directing the work. Dr. Fisher ordered him to be taken away, but Miller refused to go and had to be carried away. It is feared he is injured internally. He became unconscious soon after. Andrew Heffner, a member of the same company, had his shoulder dislocated by the fall of the same chimney.

Assistant Chief Cody made a gallant rescue of a child from the third story. The child was heard to scream, and Cody at once started to save it. He found the child, but as no ladders could be used he had to come down through the building. He reached the second story and as he was coming down the stairs between the second and first floors they gave way, throwing Cody and his burden to the cellar. After a few minutes of anxiety Cody appeared, with the child, nearly suffocated by smoke.

After an hour's work the fire was under control and what was left of the building was torn down. The fire is believed to be the work of an incendiary, as this is the fourth time in less than a year that the place has been on fire. Mrs. Vousden succeeded in saving only a bed tick, a trunk and a coal scuttle.

ALL LIKE THIS CIRCUS.

Forepaugh-Sells Brothers' Show Lets People See Something.

People who delight in the old-time one-ring circus are thoroughly enjoying the Forepaugh-Sells' Brothers' show at Madison Square Garden, New York. While the exhibition is so stupendous, as the press agent has it, that it could not all be given in one, or two rings, for that matter, the star acts, such as those of the Hanlons, acrobats; Philion, the man who goes up to the roof on a spiral path on top of a rolling ball, and Capt. Woodward's trained seals and sea lions are given solo parts in the centre of the sawdust stage.

The double mule-riding, a la ancient Rome, act of the clowns, Bennett and Merode, and the 'Soosee's" concert by the clown band are the most excruciatingly funny things ever seen in a circus ring.

Incidentally it may be mentioned that the riding is fine, the horses are admirable and the women performers younger and better looking than are generally seen under canvas.

STRIKERS IN CAMP

Gathered on an Eminence Which Commands the Approaches to the Factory

Perth Amboy, N. J., April 24.—There has been more or less serious trouble all last week at the factory of the Standard Fireproofing Company in Woodbridge township, where 500 men have been on strike since Monday morning. Under the influence of Father Szyminowski, a Polish priest of this city, the strikers have been quiet and orderly most of the time. They have, however, refused to disband and go home. Their stronghold is an eminence in full view of the works, which has been nick-named "San Juan Hill." Here they have been encamped continuously by day and night with the evident purpose of preventing the hiring of a fresh set of men.

Every way of access to the works is under the eyes of the strikers, and every attempt to start things going has resulted in violence and disorder. About 100 deputy sheriffs have been on the ground for the last two days. Several arrests have been made. The men are getting $1.10 a day, and they demand an increase of 15 cents. They also ask to be paid in cash twice a month in accordance with the law recently passed by the State Legislature. The company is willing to meet them on the latter point, but refuses to consider an increase of wages. An effort will be made Monday morning to set a new lot of men to work. This will probably result in disturbances.

R. F. Davis to Be Married

Marion, Mass., April 24.—Richard Harding Davis and Miss Cecil Clark, of Chicago, are to be married on May 4 in the Episcopal Chapel at Marion Lower Village. Mr. and Mrs. John M. A summer resident clergyman, the Rev. Percy Brown, of Roxbury, will perform the ceremony.

Gen. Bates Ordered to Manila.

Washington, April 24.—Brig.-Gen. John C. Bates, who was in command of the Department of Santa Clara until its consolidation with the Department of Matanzas, under Brig-Gen. James H. Wilson, has been ordered from Cuba to New York for assignment to duty. He will be directed to report to Major-Gen. Otis at Manila, and it is supposed that Gen. Otis will assign him to a command in the Eighth Corps.

THE LATEST NEWS.

NEGRO MURDERER BURNED AT THE STAKE.

Atlanta, April 24.—The negro murderer, Sam Hose, died the most horrible death conceivable near Newman, for his crimes committed near Palmetto ten days ago.

He was captured near Marshalville, at his mother's home, last night, and his captors were on their way to Atlanta with their prisoner when they reached Newman, where they were deprived of their prisoner by a mob from Griffin and this town, who, in fear of interruption from the militia, decided to complete their work immediately.

Hose was taken out to a field two miles from Newman, stripped and bound with chains to a tree. His body was horribly mutilated and then the torch was applied to his oil-soaked shirt and to the woodpile.

GENERAL LAWTON BEGINS ADVANCE.

Manila, April 24.—Gen. Lawton's brigade of 2,500 men advanced along the road east of Laloma. No signs of the enemy were seen until the troops had advanced seven miles, when the scouts exchanged shots with the insurgents near the Tuliahan River, the firing developing into a running skirmish to Novaliches, which the troops reached at 11 o'clock. They found the town deserted, the enemy having scattered in the low hills surrounding the place, from which their sharpshooters directed a harrassing fire upon the Americans, though they did no damage. Only one man, a member of the First North Dakota Infantry, was wounded. The troops encamped at Novaliches to await the arrival of the baggage train. The heat is having a depressing effect upon the men and animals, many being prostrated.

GEN. OTIS'S REPORT KEPT SECRET.

Washington, April 24.—Gen. Otis sent a message to the War Department outlining the movement of Gen. Lawton's column, which began north to Novaliches. It is understood that Lawton's movement will be conducted in conjunction with MacArthur's column at Malolos and vicinity, the plan being to drive the rebels out of the open country and into the mountains. The War Department declined to make public the information contained in Gen. Otis's despatch, on the ground that the plan outlined might not be successfully carried out. It is apparent that the Department believes that despatches from Gen. Otis are being sent back to the Philippines for the information of the rebels, and it is therefore necessary to keep secret the details of any contemplated movement.

HOTEL DEL MONTE PARTLY DESTROYED.

San Francisco, April 24.—Word has been received here that the great Hotel Del Monte, at Monterey, was on fire. The west annex to the hotel is said to have been destroyed, but details have not been received.

THE CABINET INDIGNANT.

One of the Administration Officials Gives Government's Views on "Antis."

"SEDITION," "TREASON."

Gen. Otis Says Volunteers in Philippines Have Received "Seditious and Treasonable Telegrams."

Erving Winslow, Secretary of the Anti-Imperialistic League Says President McKinley Should Be Impeached for Employing the Army and Navy in War With Filipinos, Unauthorized By Congress.

Washington, April 24.—The Administration officials are indignant toward the people of the United States who, they say, are endeavoring, by causing dissatisfaction among the troops in the Philippines, to weaken the American position, with the obect of forcing the Government to abandon the islands. Major-Gen. Otis says, in explanation of the dissatisfaction among the volunteers, that a number of seditious and treasonable telegrams were received at Manila from the United States for distribution among the troops. A Cabinet officer is authority for the statement that there is a concerted movement in this country to prevent, by underhanded and treasonable means, the Government from obtaining possession of the Philippines. He further says, "It is the present intention of the Administration to make a public exposure of the plot, with the names of those concerned in it, when all the details are obtainable.

There is no concealment of the fact that the Government was very much surprised and chagrined over the apparent desire of a majority of the volunteers now in the Philippines to return home at once. Telegrams received recently from Gen. Otis had said that the volunteers were cheerful and enthusiastic and were unanimous in the desire to remain while there was fighting to do. These despatches were sent by Gen. Otis, supposedly after he had made careful inquiry as to the feeling of the State organizations, and knowing how how conservative he is in all things, the Administration was satisfied that it was easy sailing with the troops. It was, therefore, with the most intense surprise that the Government learned that the volunteers, or a majority of them, wanted to return to the United States when peace between this country and Spain was declared. Under the terms of this enlistment they are entitled to immediate muster out of the Federal service as soon as peace was declared, and the provision of the Army Reorganization act for the retention of those volunteers now in the Philippines for an additional period of six months was not compulsory in its application.

Enough information has been receive from Gen. Otis, taken in connection with what the Administration has ascertained in this country, to justify the assertion made by a prominent official that their is a concerted movement in the United States to compel the Government to relinguish control of the Philippines. Anti expansionists have been sending letters to the soldiers in the Philippines, urging them to insist upon being allowed to return home. It is stated on authority of this same Cabinet officer that there will be a complete public exposure of the persons, but this may be changed to a determination to proceed against them through the proper tribunals, with a view to punishing them. To use his own language: "Leaving out of consideration the other matters involved, it is said that the Government can collect enough evidence to convict some people in this country of the crime of attempting to incite United States troops to mutiny."

In his telegram Gen. Otis did not tell the names of the persons in the United States who had sent the telegrams which excited his indignation. A despatch has accordingly been sent to him asking him for particulars.

"IMPEACH THE PRESIDENT."

That, Says Winslow, Is the Thing to Do Instead of Talking of Treason.

Boston, Mass., April 24.—Erving Winslow, Secretary of the Anti Imperialistic League, said that the charge was ridiculous concerning the implication of treason in the act of writing letters to soldiers in the Philippines urging them to withdraw. Mr. Winslow said that there was no such thing as treason except an overt act against the Government. Constructive treason was not recognized by the Constitution of the United States. He declared that it was of course imposible to tell what some individuals might have attempted to do, whose indignation had been excited by the President's action. He continues:

"If there is to be any punishment inflicted it should be by way of impeachment of the President, who employed the army and navy of the nation in war against the people of the Philippines with the avowed purpose of destroying their army and of reducing the people to admit the sovereignty of our Government, while it is not pretended that this war was declared by Congress, in which body alone, under our Constitution, the right to declare war exists."

Mr. Winslow intimated that it would be difficult for anybody to elude the press censorship and get despatches to the Philippines. The complaint all along has been that the press censorship was so rigid that nobody knew what was going on in the Philippines. That was one of the chief things criticised in the anti-imperialist meeting in Tremont Temple.

John Barrett Talks

London, April 24.—Mr. John Barrett, formerly United States Minister to Siam, who has recently returned from Manila, emphasizes the most important point in the Philippine situation. There can be no doubt, he says, that the greatest responsibility for the prolongation of hostilities will rest on those who encourage the insurgents to believe that if they hold out long enough public sentiment in America will change, the present policy be abandoned and the islands wil secure complete independence. Mr. Barrett ascertained in Hong Kong a month ago that the insurgent Junta there had the most complete information from day to day of the drift of American opinion. Their sole encouragement is the belief that the opinion within a year will favor the abandonment of the present policy, and for this and no other reason the insurgents will try to keep up their resistance as long as possible. If this support is withdrawn no attempt will be made to resume hostilities after the rainy season, nor would there have been any resistance if the Spaniards and others hadn't created the belief among the natives that the Americans were the worst oppressors in the universe.

Mr. Barrett had rather a good opinion of Aguinaldo. He said he opposed resistance until compelled to act by the young Filipinos who are officers of the army. All the older leaders likewise opposed the fighting.

The Rioting in Syracuse

Syracuse, April 24.—The indignation of the north side Germans against the Syracuse Rapid Transit Company, which led to the tearing up of the company's tracks in Butternut street, continues at a high pitch. The committee adjourned until Wednesday next, when the Rapid Transit people are expected to give their decision as to whether the demands of the north siders regarding the improvements in the car line will be met.

Acting General Manager C. Loomis Allen, of the Rapid Transit Company, gave out a statement to the effect that the company would not operate cars or give any service on Butternut street until assured of protection by the city authorities, which was denied on the night of the rioting. Mayor McGuire replies as follows to this statement: "I did not order the attack on the railroad, but it was done with my tacit consent, and I fully sympathize with the movement. The people removed the T rail, which has never any permanent right in the street. No record is obtainable in the City Hall that gives the railroad company any right to place a T rail in Butternut street. The police protected the other property of the railroad company, and beyond a few stones that were thrown by small boys through the windows of the cars, no damage was done. If I had not been on the ground the railway officers would have fared badly." The Mayor has issued a public announcement permitting all persons to run bus lines in Butternut street.

May Do Business in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., April 24.—W. P. Nelson, one of the general fire insurance agents of this State, propounded the following question to State Insurance Commissioner Sloan:

"If a company which has complied with all the laws of the State up to March 1, 1899, and was duly authorized by you to do business, but which is now being sued by Attorney General, were to apply to you for a certificate for an agent, would you issue such agent certificate?"

The Commissioner replied: "I beg to say that each company defendant in above-mentioned suits had authority to conduct its business in this State down to March 1, 1900, unless said authority be sooner revoked. The power to nulify this authority under the Anti-Trust law is lodged in the courts. Until forfeited by a proper decree of the court the authority granted, as stated, will stand. Since I will have no information as to any company's violation of the law and revocation of its authority to do business until the courts which have this sole authority so declare, I shall issue agents' certificates upon application of any said company until its authority to do business in this State shall have been declared forfeited by the courts."

Severe Storm in Louisiana.

New Orleans, April 24.—News from the surrounding country shows that the storm did far more damage for a radius of a hundred miles around New Orleans than has been reported. At Amesvile, nearly opposite New Orleans, the Mississippi River was driven over the levee, washed the revetment away, and it was only by prompt action of the authorities that a repetition of the disastrous Amesville crevasse of 1871 was prevented.

At Bay St. Louis, Miss., the wind blew sixty miles an hour, beached and otherwise damaged fourteen vessels, unroofed St. Stanislau College and destroyed several houses. At Pas Christian, Miss., two vessels were beached; at Waveland, one; at Gulport, Miss., the E. Blessing was compelled to cut away her masts and was otherwise damaged; at Bay View the Grover Cleveland was blown aground. In St. Bernard several houses were blown down, and one was blown into the river and sunk. No lives were lost.

Knockout May Prove Fatal

Pittsburg, April 24.—Kid Lavelle, the colored pugilist, known in the East as the "South African Cyclone," is dying from the effects of a blow received in a glove contest at Homestead with John Cavanaugh, Pittsburg's champion heavyweight. The men were to have boxed twenty rounds, but in the twelfth round Lavelle, who was being outpointed, changed his tactics and resorted to infighting. Cavanaugh quickly floored him with a heavy swing on the jaw, and landed a similar blow as soon as the colored man gained his feet.

Nashville Starts Up the Mississippi

New Orleans, April 24.—The United States gunboat Nashville sailed from New Orleans for a cruise on the Mississippi and its tributaries. The Nashville will have to take off her upper masts to get under the Memphis Bridge. She will stop one day at Baton Rogue, two at Natchez, two at Vicksburg and three at Memphis which city she will reach on May 1. She will arrive at St. Louis on May 12. No American man-of-war of any size has ascended the Mississippi as far as St. Louis.

Mr. Charles Austin Bates, the famous advertising writer, makes a specialty of medical advertisements. He has studied medicine and has a habit of analyzing the ingredients of every medicine about which he is asked to write, refusing to write advertisements for medicines which he can not indorse. He says of

Ripans Tabules:

"I had the formula and went through it from the ground up. I found that every one of the ingredients was put in for some special purpose, and was good for the purpose intended. I have as much confidence in Ripans Tabules as I have in anything I ever wrote about. I take them myself when I have eaten a little too much or feel nausea or symptoms of headache coming on, and I find them quicker to act than any medicine I ever took. You can feel their action in the stomach almost immediately; a very pleasant sensation. I know some people who think they can't possibly get along without them. My wife went to call one day on some friends she had known always. She found they swore by Ripans Tabules. They did not know that she knew anything about them or that I had written anything for them."

Report of Committee upon the Business of the Real Estate News Publication Co. of Bound Brook, N. J.

The undersigned committee appointed at a meeting of the Citizens, held at the office of the above Company on Monday, Feb. 6th, beg leave to report as follows:—

Our committee met at the office of the Company on Saturday afternoon the 11th inst., according to arrangement, and after a careful investigation of the books of the above Company, and careful consideration of the assets and liabilities, found that the statement made by A. G. Drake, Sect'y., of the Company, at the Citizens' meeting was in every respect true and correct.

We believe FIRST that the publication should be kept in Bound Brook for the good it can do for the Borough at large. SECOND. We find the good assets to be $855.00 as stated by Mr. Drake, and that is in excess of all liabilities, including the amount of capital stock paid in. Also that the earnings have been so far in excess of the expense that the 10 per cent dividends have been safely declared and paid.

THIRD. We believe the stock of the Company is a fair investment, and see no reason why the business should not do as well from a business point of view in the future as in the past, and even much better.

Respectfully submitted,
GAINS HOFFMAN

REVEAL GIGANTIC FRAUDS.

Arrest of the Counterfeiters in Philadelphia a Notable Event.

EXPERTS WERE DECEIVED

New Men and New Methods Employed in Counterfeiting the New U. S. $100 Silver Certificate.

Extent of Operations Not Entirely Known But Believed to Be Immense—Enough Revenue Stamps Counterfeited to Cover Hundreds of Millions of Cigars—Some Big Seizures of Cigars.

Philadelphia, April 24.—The round-up of alleged counterfeiters of Treasury notes and revenue stamps made last week by John A. Wilkie, Chief of the Secret Service Bureau in Washington, reveals the most daring and successful attempt of counterfeiting that has ever ben tried upon Uncle Sam. The secret service men have been on the track of these men for nearly a year.

They were baffled from the outset because the forged notes and stamps were evidently the work of new men, and were produced by entirely new methods. All the old-time tricks of photography, pen and ink filling and fibre mixing were disregarded. The forgery of the $100 certificates was so clever that it deceived even the Treasury officials. One of the certificates was actually sent out from the Treasury with a quantity of new bank bills to the Bank of North America in this city, and the bank was compelled to resort to legal procedure to recover the money.

Arthur Taylor and Baldwin S. Bredell, two expert engravers, in custody in Moyamensing Prison, say they did not succeed in getting out more than 100 of the forged certificates before they were detected. The general impression among persons who know the ins and outs of the counterfeiting game is that these men are decidedly understating the truth. Secret service men say they have secured forty-eight of the one hundred forged notes said to have been issued. It is the impression also that the Government has secured more of these counterfeit notes than it is willing to acknowledge at present.

Government officers have merely scratched the surface of this matter, to judge from all they have been willing to make public, but they have discovered sufficient to reveal fraud on a most gigantic scale. The forgery of the $100 silver certificates proves to be a mere side issue. When the men were arrested they had a plate perfected to run out an issue of spurious fifty dollar bills that were as much a work of successful counterfeiting as the $100 forgeries. Whether any of them had actually been put on the market is not definitely known.

At the outset Taylor and Bredell professed to be willing to assist the Government to punish all the men associated with them, under certain guarantees of immunity, and the fact that they implicated Harvey K. Newitt, former Assistant United States District Attorney, gave an air of sincerity to their professions.

Publicity, however, brought out ramifications of the swindle that secret service men never dreamed of when they started on the chase of the $100 note counterfeiters. They have taken possession of nine tons of paper similar to Government bank note paper that was intended for counterfeiting purposes, and they have discovered forged internal revenue stamps enough to put 400,000,000 cigars on the market.

Just how far Mr. Newitt and others implicated with them are involved is still a matter of doubt, but the high bail fixed by the court leads to the belief that all the information in the possession of Government agents has not been produced in court.

The counterfeiters had not the slightest hesitation in placing their one hundred dollar counterfeit notes right where they were made, in Philadelphia, and it was through a clerk in the Sub-Treasury here that the fraud was discovered. A silver certificate for $100, sent to him by the Merchants' National Bank, of this city, on December 28 last, excited his suspicion. After consultation with the bank officers the note was sent to Washington for examination. Most of the Treasury experts pronounced it genuine, but finally it was found to be counterfeit.

These certificates were known as the Monroe issue, and the portrait of the former President of the United States was the most conspicuous feature of the counterfeit. Once attention was directed to it the defect in the portrait was most noticeable. In the genuine note Monroe is represented with high cheek bones, the one on the left side of the face being particularly prominent. In the counterfeit the left cheek bone is missing, giving the face a much narrower appearance than it has in the original note. The arrangement of the hair is also entirely different in the original note and the counterfeit.

In all other respects—color, formation of letters, geometric lathe work and distributed fibre of the paper—the counterfeit note is a marvel. It shows conclusively that counterfeiting up to date is worthy of all the espionage the Treasury Department is capable of putting upon it. All previous tests of the counterfeiter's work failed in this case.

No better evidence of the dangerous character of the note could be desired than the ease with which the most experienced judges of money were deceived. The number of places heard from makes the statement of Taylor that only one hundred forged notes of this issue were circulated look dubious.

Cigar Dealers Suffer

Washington, April 24.—Many cigar dealers will be innocent sufferers as a result of the counterfeiting operations discovered by the arrest of several men in Philadelphia and Lancaster, Pa. Special agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau have possession of all the books of Jacobs and Kendig, of Lancaster, and are tracing up all the sales of cigars made by them. They believe tht they will be able to locate about two million cigars shipped to various parts of the country with counterfeit stamps on the boxes. Under the law these cigars are all forfeited to the Government, and the dealers who purchase them are liable to arrest, fine and imprisonment. The cigars will be seized and sold for the benefit of the United States, but it is not probable that the purchasers will be proceeded against criminally unless it can be shown they knew when they purchased the cigars that the stamp was counterfeit.

New York—Internal Revenue officers have visited several large department stores in this city, and in one store confiscated 10,000 cigars sealed with counterfeit stamps.

Newark, N. J.—Ten thousand cigars have been seized in Newark by Deputy Internal Revenue Collector A. J. Breidenbach because of the use on the use on them of counterfeit revenue stamps.

New Orleans, La.—General E. L. Souer, Collector of Internal Revenue, seized between thirty-five and forty thousand cigars on the ground that the boxes were sealed with fraudulent revenue stamps.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Internal Revenue Collector Bettman and his entire force went on a raid for counterfeit revenue stamps. They confiscated more than half a million cigar stamps, and expect to secure a million more.

Bridgeton, N. J.—Internal Revenue Inspector Morris L. Davis has seized more than fifteen thousand cigars that were being sold under counterfeit revenue stamps.

Maybe the grocer is "just out of Ivory Soap but has another, he thinks, is just as good." No other soap is just as good. Insist that he get Ivory Soap for you.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

CUBAN ARMY LISTS PADDED.

General Brooke Announces That He Will Not Pay 39,930 Men.

Havana, April 24.—General Gomez called upon General Brooke to confer with him in regard to the disbandment of the Cuban Army. Gen. Gomez, who was accompanied by Gens. Francisco Carrillo and Alejandro Rodriguez, was informed by Gen. Brooke of the necessity of reducing the total number of the Cuban army as indicated by the list, as according to trustworthy information received by him the number was greatly exaggerated. The list shows 39,930 men entitled to pay. Gen. Gomez asked for two days in which to answer, saying that he needed to gather some information from the chiefs of the Cuban forces.

Gen. Greenwood is prosecuting his Central Railway claim vigorously. He says that Secretary Alger refused to aid him in prosecuting his alleged rights, but referred him to the Senate, which also refused to assist him. He again saw Secretary Alger, who sent Gen. Kennedy to Santiago to investigate the matter of Greenwood's rights. Gen. Greenwood says he got the concession from the Spanish and American authorities immediately after the capitulation of Santiago, and before any proclamation forbidding the granting of any franchises had been issued. He refuses to say from whom the concessions came, but it is understood that he received the American rights from Gen. Wood.

Gen. Greenwood says that the right of way of much of the route has already been purchased and negotiations for the rest are under way. The surveys of the French company will be used in the prosecution of the work, which is planned to begin in the province of Santiago. The most difficult section, among the mountains and streams, will run through Puerto Principe to Sancti Spiritus, where it will meet the roads already in operation.

Attack on Plate Glass Trust

Cincinnati, O., April 24.—Attorneys filed in the Superior Court an attack on the Polished Plate-Glass Trust. The plaintiffs are Baron, Boyle & Co., jobbers in glass, who represent every other Cincinnati jobber whose business has ben affected by the trust. This action, which asks for $50,000 damages, is brought under the Valentine-Stewart Anti-Trust law, which Attorney General Monnett says would drive the trusts from Ohio if upheld by the courts. The defendant is the Pittsburg Plate Glass Company, which represents, with the exception of two manufacturers, the entire production of polished plate glass produced in America. The Pittsburg people recently opened a warehouse in Cincinnati, and their local representative, George Sealey, is made a defendant. The plaintiffs complain of unjust discriminations in prices and assert that the trust either refuses to sell or places the price at such a figure that they are unable to bid for public contracts.

Steamer Whitney Lost.

Jacksonville, April 23.—The steamer Whitney, of the Morgan freight line, has been lost off Cape Canaverel, Fla. One boat with sixteen men, including Capt. Hawthorne, in attempting to land lost twelve men by drowning, the twelve including Capt. Hawthorne, whose body has not been recovered. Another boat with fifteen men is still missing.

The Whitney originally plied between New York and Boston, and was owned by the Metropolitan line. She was not built for cyclonic seas. She left New Orleans for New York last Tuesday. The General Whitney was an iron craft of 1,849 tons, and was built at Wilmington, Del., in 1873. She was an extra boat of the Morgan line, and was the slowest of the fleet.

Extradition Treaty With Mexico

Washington, April 24.—Mr. McCreary, the Charge d'Affaires of the United States in the City of Mexico, telegraphed the State Department that the ratifications of the extradition between Mexico and the United States have been exchanged. The terms of the treaty are now in operation. Under its provisions the treaty becomes retroactive and covers all cases of extradition arising since the expiration of the preceding agreement several months ago.

Naval Promotions

Washington, April 24.—Naval orders contain the official announcement of the promotion of the following officers: To the rank of Captain, G. E. Ide and J. E. Nichols; to the rank of Lieutenant-Commander, C. J. Boush, G. H. Peters and N. Sargent.

A Comparison.

The very loquacious man had come to a pause in his discourse, and an admirer took advantage of the lull to say:

"Hasn't he a splendid command of language?"

"It doesn't seem so to me," replied the weary-looking lady. "He has plenty of it. It's like riding a bicycle down hill. He can start easily enough, but he can't stop himself."

An Age Limit.

"Did you speak to my father?" said Miss Gushley.

"Yes," replied the young man with embarrassment.

"You told him that despite your humble fortune, we wished to marry?"

"Yes—or something to that purpose."

"And what did he reply? That I was too young?"

"No, not exactly. He said that I was old enough to have more sense."—Washington Star.

Lost Chance.

Simmons—What on earth are you so blue about?

Timmons—I was thinking of this awful European war.

"I didn't know you were so sympathetic."

"Sympathy be darned! I don't see why they could not have waited until Thanksgiving time to pull it off. Just think of the jokes I could have turned out."—Indianapolis Journal.

Method in Their Madness.

Mr. Park Plaza—What hospitable persons suburbans are!. They are always inviting a person out to stay over Sunday.

Mrs. Citily (grimly)—Yes, and then trying to sell their place to you before you leave for the city.—Puck.

Not to be Declined.

A kiss is a noun, though generally used as a conjunction: it is never declined; it is more common than proper; it is not very singular, and is generally used in the plural number and agrees with me.—Roxbury Gazette.

CAPT. COGHLAN'S SPEECH.

Was Entertained in New York By the Army and Navy Club.

MADE A REITERATION.

Claims That Representative of Germany Hampered the Work of U. S. Ships at Manila.

Spoke As He Did Because He Wanted to Place Admiral Dewey in a Proper Light—Admiral Von Diedrich Could Get War in Five Minutes If He Wanted It—Made a New Reputation as an Orator.

New York, April 24.—Capt. Joseph B. Coghlan and the officers of the Raleigh were the guests of the Army and Navy Club. The Captain made a speech, in which he reiterated everything he had said about the Germans at the dinner given in his honor at the Union League Club. His utterances were cheered to the echo by the 300 odd members and invited guests who had assembled to greet him.

Capt. Coghlan was escorted to the club from the Waldorf-Astoria by a committee composed of the following army and navy officers: Brig-Gen. Gilbert McKibbin, Capt. Richard Leary, lately appointed Governor of Guam; Gen. W. D. Whipple and Paymaster George Barton. A reception committee of twenty received the Captain upon his arrival. Gen. Fred Pierson, President of the club, welcomed the guests as follows:

"When the first gun was fired at Manila it was like the first gun at Sumpter. It ushered in a new era for the United States. That grand old man, Admiral Dewey, has planted the Stars and Stripes in the Far East, and we all want them to stay there. The flag is the emblem of Christianity and good government. I now take great pleasure in introducing our esteemed guests, Capt. Coghlan and his officers of the United States cruiser Raleigh."

Capt. Coghlan had evidently expected to be let off without a speech, but his admirers wouldn't have it so. He said:

CAPTAIN JOSEPH B. COGHLAN.

"I thank you sincerely for myself and officers of my command and Admiral Dewey. Since entering the club I have ben informed that my remarks have given offense in Washington, and for that reason I am almost afraid to say anything now. What I did say was true. I said what I did about Germany because its representatives hampered us in our work. They were continually nagging us, d—n 'em, and we were ready for them. I have read a good many stories in the newspapers about what Admiral Dewey had to contend with, but not one of them placed our gallant old Admiral in the proper light."

"Good, good!" yelled the Army and Navy men with glee.

"I will reiterate everything I said, if any one is anxious to hear it. I spoke as I did because I wanted to place Admiral Dewey in the proper light. Any one who knows him knows that he can stand annoyance patiently and bide his time. I always did think and always will that we were that close (snapping his fingers) to crushing them. No man is more capable, more ready to uphold the honor of our people than Admiral Dewey. Whatever the occasion he always rose superior to it. We at home may make mistakes in telling about what occurred, but he never makes a mistake."

Capt. Coghlan's remarks were frequently interrupted by cheers, and when he concluded he was cheered again and again. Capt. Richard Leary and Capt. F. G. Wildes also spoke.

In his previous speech Capt. Coghlan stated that Dewey had sent word to Von Diedrich, the German Commander at Manila, that unless he mended his tactics he would precipitate trouble, saying, "And if he wants war he can get it in five minutes."

Vice President Hobart Improving.

Washington, April 24.—For the first time during the several weeks of Vice-President Hobart's illness, his physician, Dr. W. W. Johnson, made a public statement on his condition. "He said: "Mr. Hobart's recovery is only a matter of a few days. He is improving fast, and is better to-day than at any time since his illness. We shall permit him to take dinner with his family to-morrow, and expect that he will be on the streets next week."

George Testimony All in.

Canton, O., April 24.—The testimony for and against Anna George, on trial for the murder of George D. Saxton, has been completed, and after listening to a two days' summing up of the testimony by the four attorneys who conducted the case and hearing the instructions of Judge Taylor the jury will retire on Wednesday to frame a verdict.

London, April 24.—A despatch to the Central News from Madrid says that the Spanish naval budget shows an increase of 5,000,000 pesetas, and that the Chamber will be asked to sanction the raising of 250,000,000 pesetas for the purpose of constructng a navy.

Mr. Hobart's Position.

Vice-President Hobart is now going through that period of public life in which everyone but himself knows what his plans for the future will be. But, as might be expected from the know it-alls, it is merely guess work as to what Mr. Hobart's future intentions are in respect to his participation in public life.

One day we have it in the strictest confidence that he has decided to relinquish all public cares, and then the next day we hear to the contrary. And so it seems to go see-sawing back and forth between contradictions. Following the report that Mr. Hobart has definitely decided not to accept a renomination on the Republican National ticket comes the one in more positive language that Vice-President has decided nothing of the kind.

In occupying the office of Vice-President Mr. Hobart has lent an importance to that position than no other incumbent has ever been able to give it, and if he should finally decide to retire, as it is not unlikely that he will, it would mean that New Jersey's star in the National galaxy of G. O. P. satellites would not shine as brightly as it does now. Mr. Hobart's leave of public life will be a distinct loss to New Jersey in the sense that he has been the most conspicuous Jerseymen in public service for a good many years.

On just what principle the editor of the News upholds John Kean's position before the Elizabeth Council in demanding a franchise of inestimable value for improvements that will cost $56,000, is another one of inexplicable phases of reasoning which dominates the mind of the editor of the News. In comparison to the value of what he is asking for, the Council is not asking as much of Mr. Kean as the News editor insisted on the Plainfield Council demanding from the local trolley company last fall when they applied for the Scotch Plains extension franchise.

TROUBLESOME MATAAFA.

With Germany favoring his aspirations for royalty, Mataafa has once more caused trouble in Samoa. For eleven years he has been an annoyance to the powers. In 1888 he rebelled against King Tamasese, was victorious and became king. The treaty powers deposed him in favor of Malietoa. In 1893 he rebelled again and was exiled.

James Martin, who conducted the New Jersey page of the New York Tribune for several years, and whose bright and timely comment on State affairs was always entertaining if not convincing, has been advanced to the responsible position of news editor on The Tribune. Mr. Martin's numerous friends throughout the State will be highly pleased to hear of his promotion, for which he is eminently fitted in a professional way.

The other day somebody asked Senator Morgan how long he thought he could speak in an emergency. "If I am familiar with my subject," replied the Senator from Alabama, with a sly wink, "I can talk indefinitely; but if I am not familiar with it I do not believe I could speak more than three or four days on a stretch."

It is announced that when Admiral Dewey comes home he will live on an island between Maine and New Hampshire, where he has purchased a tract of land upon which he will erect a cottage. Dewey will have need of some such retreat from the maddening crowd that will be eager to press attention upon him.

One would think by the way the Newark papers are acting over the matter of awarding a contract for furnishing pure water to the city that the editors had imbibibed something stronger than aqua pura.

—E. F. See, general secretary of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A., says: "Major W. H. Coughlin is a ready and interesting speaker. He has made and developed his own pictures, which are excellent. The next best thing to an actual visit to Switzerland is an imaginary trip under his leadership and a view of his "Snap Shots." Major Coughlin will lecture Tuesday evening at Y. M. C. A. Hall.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

A promise of something unusually bright and entertaining comes with the announcement of "The Air Ship," which will make its first appearance at Music Hall tomorrow night. This comedy is said to combine the rollicking fun of farce, the melody of opera, the pretty farce of burlesque, the handsome costumes of a Parisian spectacle, to all of which is added a great comedy surprise. It is a good busy play. Every moment is utilized, no time is lost, and the result is most satisfactory with good people, fine specialties, new music, and crowds of pretty girls. The piece has been written around an eccentric individual, who has invented and made practical that which up to the present time has been an impossibility. The third and last act is at Old Point Comfort, Va., just about sunset, which gradually changes into a brilliantly illuminated night scene. New and beautiful scenery, combined with some startling electrical and mechanical effects, make "The Air Ship" one of the most successful plays of the season. The company comprises well-known artists all of metropolitan reputation, and possessing more than the ordinary amount of ability in their lines.

Another adaptation by Alexander Bisson, that brilliant Frenchman, author of "Masked Ball," "On and Off" and co-author of the reigning New York success, "Because She Loved Him So," will be played at Music Hall, Wednesday night. The manager takes pleasure in guaranteeing his patrons in advance a creditable performance. The company herewith includes Robert Whittier, Giles Warren, Henry Webster, Jerome Anthony, Teddy Hart, William Andrews, Frank Grey, Miss Gussie Hart, Miss Alice Baird and Miss Constance Thill.

• • • • •

No such high-class melo-drama has been presented in New York in many years as the "Great Ruby," which is now scoring a great success at Daly's Theatre. The plot and action of the piece is of intense interest throughout, and is presented with a wealth of dramatic material that is not duplicated in any other attraction being presented in New York. Miss Ada Behan, whose impersonation of a leading character in the "Great Ruby" has given her fresh and creditable laurels, is supported by a cast of superior talent. The melo drama is mounted in an elaborate and artistic manner and is realistic to a degree quite remarkable. Many Plainfield theatre parties have attended the performance and have returned home sounding the praises of the production. The success of the attraction is such that it will undoubtedly run into the warm weather weeks.

George's Wisdom.

This time it doesn't happen to be either George Washington or George Dewey, but George Elliott, who in writing on the subject of experience, remarks that there are stores laid up in our human nature that our understanding can make no complete inventory of, and that's just the case with the stores of rare gifts at Collier's; you can't count 'em, and the best of it is that they are the selections of a thirty years' business experience, and carry their own guarantee.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

KENTUCKY'S AGED.

THE REMARKABLE OLD MEN AND WOMEN.

They Have Twelve Thousand Relatives—All Are Called by Their Given Name—In the Prime of Life at Seventy-eight—An Apology.

The most remarkable family in point of age in the United States lives, moves and run things in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky—in Letcher county, to be exact. Webb is the name of these old persons, whose number is six, and to whom every individual of the 12,000 population of the county is directly or indirectly related. Three old men there are, and three old women. Their father was the first cousin of Daniel Boone, and was, in addition, the earliest settler in the rugged mountain region in which his descendants are now all powerful.

They are all called by their given names, with the prefix "Uncle" or "Aunt," as the case may be. There is Aunt Letty. She comes first by reason of her age, which is eighty-nine years. She is growing rather appreciative of the burdens which come with advanced years, and she is not so spry as she has been up to a few years ago. Then, too, the murder of her son, Wiley W. Craft, a dozen years ago, has had much to do with aging her. To Archibald Craft, her husband, she presented eleven pledges. Her grandchildren number ninety, her great-grandchildren sixty, and her great-great-grandchildren forty.

After Aunt Letty comes Aunt Polly, who is eighty-five years old in her own right, and who is growing old gracefully at the home of her son. She married a man named Adams, and ten children were born. It was to visit her eldest daughter that Aunt Polly last year rode one hundred miles on horseback over the roughest of mountain roads. She didn't mind this experience, so unusual for an octogenarian, and remarked that the Webbs came of hardy stock. She has 110 grandchildren, and seventy great-grandchildren and about forty great-great-grandchildren.

Jason is next in point of years, being eighty, and the most prolific of the family. He doesn't know the meaning of illness from any personal knowledge of it, and he says he feels as fine as a yearling. Nineteen children is the record which makes him the proudest man in Letcher county. These nineteen have obeyed the Scriptural injunction and have multiplied to such an extent that the old gentleman has 175 grandchildren, 150 great-grandchildren and more than one hundred great-great-grandchildren. He is one of the two members of the aged six who have ever looked upon the landscape from a car window. It was two years ago that he first ventured on the "kyars," and that was when he went on a visit to friends in Tennessee.

Then there is Uncle Miles, who considers himself in the prime of life. Although he is seventy-eight years old, he rides his horse all over the rough neighborhood and is apparently as unrestrained in his movements as a youngster. With him, too, the storks have been generous, and the children of his children number 165, his great-grandchildren count up to 150 and the last generation ninety.

Aunt Sally, with seventy-five milestones to her credit, runs around her home with as much agility as any of her grandchildren. She is a widow and does her own work, even to shouldering a sack of corn and carrying it to the mill. She has thirteen children, eighty grand children, sixty-five great-grandchildren, and more than fifty great-great-grandchildren.

The baby of the family is Uncle Wiley, who is only seventy-three. His eleven children perpetuated the race to the extent of seventy-five grandchildren, and he has fifty great-grandchildren and thirty great-great-grandchildren. He apologizes for his comparatively small number of descendants by stating that his sons married late in life.

Arabs at Omdurman.

The Arab mode of attack was quaint to a degree; formed in a line, each tribe advanced against a part of the village. When about 500 yards from the mud houses they halted and commenced to dance, brandishing spears and swords in the air and firing off rifles. After a few moments they resumed the advance, dancing and firing all the while (in the air) when suddenly, with a yell, they rushed at the houses, and, having effected an entrance, they slaughtered every one within.

A Costly Bible.

The most costly book in the royal library at Stockholm is a Bible. It is no wonder that it is considered precious for there is not another just like it in the world. In weight and size alone it is unique. It is said that 160 asses' skins were used for its parchment leaves. There are 309 pages of writing, and each page falls but one inch short of being a yard in length. The width of the leaves is twenty inches. The covers are solid planks four inches thick.

The Czar May Be Modest.

An amusing incident is reported from St. Petersburg. A copy of the London Daily News delivered there had several columns of the principal page blacked out by the censor. The recipient, curious to know what this lengthy forbidden topic could be, procured a copy privately from London. The expurgated portion proved to be William T. Stead's long, enthusiastic appreciation of the Czar himself after the famous interview.

THE HATS OF SPRING.

They Are Bowers of Blooms of Every Shape and Shade.

Suddenly the feminine world has blossomed out into beauty of flowers and all the colors that go to make up the season's millinery. While a few sample hats were shown a week ago to whet the taste for more, whole streets now are like one gorgeous bed of many colored flowers.

The straws themselves are of all the brightest colors, and added to them are the flowers and the ribbons, the feathers and laces, until it seems as if a hat was the very culmination of all the loveliness of the world.

The flowers are more perfect than ever. Some of the sweet peas look as if just plucked. There are wild violets where the bunch on the hat represents the whole plant, roots, leaves, buds and blossoms, as though some rude, unholy hand had snatched it from its mold in a shady place.

There are pink May blossoms and trailing arbutus and the beautiful white swamp azalea, and these are so perfect that the eyes deceive the senses, and one imagines one smells the faint, evanescent odor of those flowers precious to all who love the woods and all that is found therein. Then there are tiny blue forgetmenots in great masses, looking as fresh and cool as if yet wet with the spray of the river by whose banks they grew. Roses there are, tulips half inclosed, great velvety pansies and all the dear old field flowers gathered into "posies," such as children love.

"You can't put white and yellow and red and green and blue and pink and purple all together," one person said once. "They would look simply awful."

Now we see poppies, bluets, buttercups, daisies, violets and "pinksters," all gathered together with their green leaves among them, and no one stops his horses to look at them, unless it is to think of the days when he trotted over the meadow for a bouquet for mother.

The shapes of the hats are as varied as the faces they are intended to adorn. One of the cutest and pertest of all the new things was a hat with a sugar loaf crown and the back of the brim bent up and the wider front brim bent up still higher. The hat was of shirred brown tulle with beads sewed along the shirred places. The trimming consisted of very rich cream colored satin ribbon loops and two very delicate yellow ospreys. There were strings of this ribbon to tie under the chin, and on the left side above the temple, to rest on the hair, was a small bunch of yellow satin buttercups. A more sedate hat was of deep prune satin braid straw. Around the crown and under the brim in the back were masses of small wood violets with scarcely any foliage. In front was a crushed rosette of ivory white velvet. Four sharp wings gave distinction—three were jet black and one white.

While one looks well in a demure shepherdess form and another in a walking hat, still others look best in a saucy tilted affair which no one could adequately describe. The brim will be tip tilted or twisted or turned some way other than the first intention had been. Flowers, ribbon and lace make the rest.

For a middle aged lady there was a lovely bonnet. It was of net on a lace foundation. In front was a butterfly of fine chantilly, and at the left side a dainty close bunch of forgetmenots.

This season the violets belong to the young. A couple of rich black tips stood up out of another bunch of flowers at the back. There were black velvet strings.

There was one bonnet of black lace, the brim being formed by a very full ruffle of fine chantilly. The lace ruffle was then twisted around a wire until it formed a spiral some four inches high. There was no touch of color, but the effect was elegant. The pretty half moon shaped chantilly veils, with their delicate borderings and their dotted centers, are frequently used to make or trim small evening bonnets. Nothing could be prettier.

There are many hats which are arranged to carry out a scheme of color. For instance, one hat will be all gray in a dozen different shades, or browns ranging from maize to seal, or pale lilac to deep prune. Black and white continue to be very fashionable in millinery and in garments.

The tailor suit has now departed from its severe plainness, so that one may say there are three distinct styles of tailor costumes. One has the sheath skirt, flaring widely at the bottom, with a blouse jacket stiff with stitching or braid. Another has a three piece skirt, worn with or without a tunic, and the third has the regulation severity of line and finish, and with that goes the short jacket. The jacket is scarcely more than three inches longer than the waist line and usually has fly fronts. Just a plain, flat collar belongs with this and sleeves as devoid of ornament.

CROWS GO CLAM-DIGGING.

An Interesting Sight Witnessed by a Coaching Party.

A coaching party from Lakewood to Asbury Park received a novel and amusing lesson in natural history a few days ago, says the New York Tribune. All except H. W. Merford, who drove the coach, were astonished at the number of crows that were hovering about the banks of the Shark River. It was something out of the ordinary going on among the birds, so they turned to the most superintendent. Their antics were [illegible], and their loud cawing showed that they were excited. [illegible] in their madness, they [illegible] after a little observation. At last on the advice of Mr. Merford, who had brought his four horses to a standstill, a crow was closely watched. He worked vigorously in the soft mud for several minutes, and finally extracted a lump nearly a third as big as himself. He flew high in the air with his prize, and when near the center of the river, which was covered with ice, Mr. Crow dropped his trophy. It fell upon the ice with a report. Mr. Crow was close upon its wake, and reached the ice a few seconds later. He at once showed fight to other crows that came near, and, having driven them away, he proceeded to devour the fragments of his prize.

"What is he eating?" was asked.

"Soft clams," was Mr. Medford's retort. "The crows," he continued, "dig them out of the mud and carry them into the air by seizing the tentacles which protrude from the shells. They are, however, unable to open the clams. The shellfish scent danger and closes its shell in self-protection. Mr. Crow has, by his wonderful intellect, succeeded in overcoming this difficulty. This he does by letting the clam fall on the ice from a distance high enough to give sufficient impetus to shatter its shell and place the fish at his mercy."

The crows go clam-digging every fine day, and a number of coaching parties have been organized by the guests at the Lakewood Hotel for the express purpose of seeing the ingenious birds earn a fish meal.

An amusing feature of the performance is the "hanger-on-crow." There are at least five crows that do not work to every one that does. These fellows keep a sharp eye on the industrious crow and try to profit by his labors. Like all loafers, they are cowards, and when the rightful owner of the clam shows fight, they retreat to a respectful distance, and content themselves by sorting over what is left.

Animals Which Cost the Most Money.

Those animals which are most difficult to obtain bring the largest prices in the market. A full-grown gorilla would in this country, if such an animal were obtainable, cost, it is said, not less than $50,000, owing to the fact that these animals have not become sufficiently acclimatized in Europe to enable them to attain full growth. The $10,000 given by the late P. T. Barnum for the old favorite elephant Jumbo, was the highest price ever paid for a wild animal. Barnum, it may be mentioned, realized over $200,000 by exhibiting Jumbo in America, and if poor Jumbo had not been run into by an engine while traveling through the country, he would have been the means of swelling the bank account of the circus people. Two specimens of the rhinoceros were sold not long ago for $7,000 and $6,000, respectively. The value of a good large hippopotamus is reckoned at $5,000. Giraffes are also expensive animals, costing nearly $4,000 each. It is unfortunately one of the most delicate animals, and requires the greatest care. A good elephant is worth in Europe from $2,000 to $3,000; a well trained animal will bring a higher price anywhere, and at any time. A pair of zebras which came from the hills of South Africa recently cost $2,500; full-sized lions are to be had for from $500 to $1,500 each; a first-class pair of tigers would cost $1,500. The largest and best specimens of snakes sell up to $5,000 each.

Saw the Retreat From Waterloo.

Philip B. Dom, one of the pioneer citizens of Springfield township, Hamilton county, celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary at his home, in Mt. Healthy, recently. Mr. Dom was born in Berne, Hesse-Darmstadt, in 1809, and was six years old when the battle of Waterloo was fought. He distinctly recalls the retreat of Napoleon's army and also the passage of the troops of Blucher, and of his hiding behind a woodpile with his brother while the soldiers were passing. Between the two armies the family was brought to the point of starvation, and when the children cried for something to eat he remembers seeing his mother break up a potato and divide it around. He came to this country in 1820. His parents were not able to put up all of the passage money, and Mr. Dom, with others, was put up to be sold by the steamship company in order that it might be reimbursed. This was a custom in that day, and children were sold as apprentices that their fare across the sea might be paid.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Woman's Rights in China.

The boatwomen of China have no need to agitate for women's rights—they possess them. The boatwoman, whether she be a single woman or a wife or a widow, is the head of the house—that is to say, of the boat. If she is married, the husband takes the useful but subordinate place of deckhand or bow oarsman. She does the steering, makes bargains with the passengers, collects the money, buys supplies, and in general lords it over everything.

ADVENTURE ABOARD A SMALL BRITISH NORTH BORNEO SHIP.

Running for Safety in the China Sea With Fire in the Coal Bunkers—Only Half an Inch of Wooden Bottom Left on Arrival in Port.

It was August in Hong Kong; and as everybody knows, the worst month of the typhoon season. The "Petrel," a small gun-boat, was lying at one of the buoys off Kowboon ready for sea. She had been built for the government of British North Borneo, and had just been equipped and fitted out by an officer sent over from there who was ordered by the governor to proceed back with her to Borneo with as little delay as possible, for the pirates who infest the coast were again causing trouble and she was urgently needed to suppress them.

So a scratch crew of Chinese sailors and firemen was engaged, a European engineer to take charge of her triple expansion engines, and a half-cast deck officer to assist the English officer in command to keep watch. Her bunkers were well stocked with coal, and coal was also stored in bags in other parts of the ship, for precautionary measures, as well as to take the place of ballast. As she was only for use on the coast, to put down Malay pirates and convey government officers from one station to another, she was only built of wood with iron frames and beams and carried one quick firing gun.

On the 9th of August cable dispatches were received from Manila that a typhoon was raging in the China sea. So giving it three days to blow itself out the captain decided to start on his voyage on the 15th, trusting to reach a safe latitude before the next typhoon was "brewed."

On reaching the open water outside Hong Kong she encountered a terrific sea, but the little craft behaved splendidly and after correcting the compass she started boldly across the China sea bound for Borneo. All went well until two o'clock the following morning, when the chief engineer reported that the coal in the port bunker was on fire.

Orders were at once given to close the stoke-hole doors on that side, and stifle, if possible, the fire for want of air. At seven bells in the forenoon, the fire was still reported burning, and furthermore, the star-board bunker had also caught. The situation was getting serious. In the first place it seemed a pity to put back to Hong Kong, for the sea was getting smoother and the barometer showed no sign yet of another typhoon, and in a few days we could be out of their latitude; it was also necessary we should push on with all speed to Borneo, where the vessel was urgently needed. At the same time we had to consider the vessel was wood and the bunkers were not lined with iron. The fire was surely and slowly burning through the bottom of the ship. We only had two small boats barely sufficient to hold us all if we should be compelled to abandon the ship.

Finally it was decided to alter our course for Manila, to close all stoke hole doors and bunker tops, and use coal from other parts of the ship. Holes were then bored in the decks immediately over the bunkers. The crew were employed drawing water constantly, and pouring it down these holes; to exclude the air, plugs were cut and fitted in these holes. One man would stand by when the water was brought and take out the plug, insert the funnel, pour in water, take out funnel and put in plug again. The work was tedious and exhausting, but we dared not desist. The decks, after two days, and nights of this, were becoming alarmingly hot. The boats were provisioned and breakers of water were placed in them to be ready if the bottom burnt out of the ship. Any moment now we expected to see her stern disappear. On the afternoon of the third day of the fire the Chinese crew suddenly refused duty; the continuous work of drawing and carrying water was irksome and hard.

On being asked what was the reason for their not working, the serang, or boatswain, in charge of the sailors, replied in his pigeon English: "We no wanchee work any more! What good work? Suppose Joss up top side have say makee die, must makee die; can no fight Joss." Now, from a Chinese point of view this may be all right. A Chinaman is a fatalist, and does not believe he ought to go against what he supposes to be the wishes of God or Joss, as he calls Him, but should sit down in such cases as the present and wait calmly and stoically for death. But our ideas and theirs on this theological point do not coincide, and by gently but firmly showing that if they refused duty they would certainly die, but in harsher method than the calm and comfortable one of drowning, they began to think differently. Then we told them that our Joss, who was a much stronger one than theirs, had showed us that if they worked for one more night, the next day we would be in Manila. They finally went sullenly back to their duty and the next day at noon we reached Manila, steamed right up amongst the Spanish fleet at Cavite and anchored.

The Spanish Admiral very kindly gave us all the assistance we required, sending forty blue jackets in charge of two officers to help us put out the fire. On examining the bottom, where the fire had been, it was found that less than an eighth of an inch of wood was all that remained between us and eternity.

ABOUT MRS. LEASE'S HUSBAND.

A Good Man in His Day and His Day is Not Ended Yet.

Anent the slurs recently cast at Mrs. Lease, it is not generally known that her husband is a man who has not only the willingness to fight when occasion requires it, but who has the requisite brawn to do battle to a successful conclusion. Charlie Lease was a mighty good man in his day, and his day has not ended yet. He has had only about two fights in the last ten years, and unless somebody who doesn't know him runs up against him he won't have a fight in the next ten years.

The following instance will illustrate Mr. Lease's make up to a dot: He was a salesman in the wholesale drugstore of Ben Aldrich. One day a bully, who wanted to start a joint in a neighboring town, came in to buy some drugs to put in front. He was a mean chap and swore at Mr. Lease frequently and applied disgraceful epithets to him repeatedly. Mr. Lease smiled and treated his customer with the utmost affability all the time. In due time the sale was made, the goods loaded on a dray and carted away. Mr. Lease took the money from his customer, gave him the change and thanked him most kindly for his patronage.

As the fellow went out on the sidewalk Mr. Lease followed and hailed him. "What's the matter?" said the bully roughly, "isn't everything settled?" "Not quite all," said Charlie, "we haven't yet settled for those names you called me," and so saying, he mopped up the sidewalk and half a block of the gutter with his customer.

Saturday night, when the store was about to be closed, a cash boy told Mr. Lease that he was wanted at the desk of Mr. Aldrich. He thought sure that his cake was dough, but when Ben Aldrich said "Charlie, your wages are increased $5 a week," he felt better toward himself and the world, and even the man he licked.—Kansas City Times.

NOVELIST CAINE'S WIFE.

An Enthusiastic Helper in His Work—Their Domestic Life a Happy One.

While Hall Caine is famous for his books, which have placed him in the front rank of the writers of the nineteenth century, but little is known of his domestic life. It has been told that he has residences in London and other places, but that his best work is done at Greeba Castle, in the Isle of Man. Few know that the novelist is not a Manxman by birth. He was born in England, of Manx parents, and in his youthful days spent much of his time in that little bit of the universe which teems with lore.

Greeba Castle is situated in the most picturesque part of the beautiful island close by the sea, and surrounded by the very places which he has made famous in his novels.

In his domestic life Mr. Caine is very happy. His wife belongs to the island, and was his companion in his youthful days. She is an ardent helper to her husband, and the two may be seen any pleasant day or evening taking bicycle rides in the beautiful country roads which abound in the northern part of the island.—New York Herald.

PLEASANT FOR THE GOVERNESS.

The King of Siam Evidently Wished Her to Make Herself Useful.

The King of Siam was educated in his youth by an English governess named Mrs. Leonowens; hence the fluency of his English. When Mrs. Leonowens arrived at Bangkok the present King's father said to her, to her great surprise: "I have sixty-seven children, and you shall educate them, and as many of my wives as may wish to learn English. And I have much correspondence in which you must assist me. And, moreover, I have much difficulty in reading and translating French letters. You must undertake these. And, furthermore, I have by every mail foreign letters whose writing is not easily read by me. You shall copy them in roundhand for my ready perusal." This was a small order, even smaller than the average English governess's share.—New York Journal.

He Lost the Wrong Leg.

Abraham Sprawls was a veteran of three wars, and he used to live in wiregrass Georgia. He had lost one leg in battle, and walked around on a wooden stump. One day he got in the way of the fast mail and the engine ran over him.

One of his sons—and he had a family of fifteen—had witnessed the accident, and, running toward him, shouted:

"Train's cut off dad's leg, an' he'll git damages!"

He lifted the old man to inspect his wounds, but suddenly let him fall, saying, in a tone of disgust:

"Durn it all! It's his wooden leg they've cut off."

"Yes," groaned the old man as they wheeled him home, "it's jest my durned luck. Can't see, ter save me, how they missed the good leg!"—Atlanta Constitution.

The New Version.

Mr. Benedict—I want to tell you, dear, that when you are on your wheel you make horrible faces.

Mrs. B. (savagely)—I suppose they're not as good as the ones your mother used to make.—New York Journal.

Wickwire—Do you know that this is the third time you have tackled me to-day? You must take me for an electric button.

Dismal Dawson—Electric button?

Wickwire—Yes, electric button. You seem to think you can get a drink by touching me.—Indianapolis Journal.

OYSTER FARMING.

UTILIZING THE SEA FOR CULTIVATING THE LUSCIOUS BIVALVES.

An Ever Increasing Demand in the Paris Markets—Nineteen Million Oysters Exported in 1880—Four Hundred Millions Now.

An interesting article in one of the March magazines furnishes particulars of the clever way in which the French oyster farmers at Arcachon have developed this notion of tilling the sea. An interesting Frenchman named Costa in 1857 first started the new industry, observing that oysters were diminishing in number, while the demand for them constantly increased. Now, the oyster parks which he originated have become of national and even international importance. The spot itself on the Biscay coast will be sufficiently dear to all the successors and imitators of Dando, the immortal oyster-eater, since it is there that the very best bivalves may be enjoyed at the price cited above, of tenpence per hundred. Arcachon, however, sends out her treasures to Paris and wherever else they can travel alive, and if only the favorite shell-fish of mankind could survive a sleeping draft or refrigeration, Arcachron would be ready and willing to send oysters all over the world. In 1880 her exports amounted to 19,000,000 oysters. Eight years afterward they were 195,000,000, and in 1894, 412,000,000! But then, at Arcachon they understand the oyster, and cultivate him with the science and devotion which his merits deserve. An oyster does not ask much, but wants that which it must have regular, pure and perfect. Give him sweet seawater with the right flavor of brackish or vegetable material, and keep him safe from crabs, star-fish, dog-fish and foul outlets, and he makes the best possible banker for your investments. His wife signally assists in the shelly syndicate by producing a family of over 1,000,000 little bivalves every year, and these grow so rapidly that by the age of three years they are fit for the table. To prepare a bed and to stock it with 500,000 mother oysters requires a capital of about $6,000, but the return at the end of three years ought to be 5,000,000 oysters, worth on sale $40,000, which is certainly a rich reward. All this, however, is, naturally, not obtained without incessant and unsparing labor. The article to which we have alluded pleasantly describes the picturesque aspect of the oyster farms, mainly attended to by fish-wives in scarlet knickerbockers, white sunbonnets and top boots—a costume business-like if unfashionable. The oysters are penned out, like small cattle of the sea, into square-sided folds, some of them devoted to the tiny spot, just settling upon the breeding tiles, others to oysters in the infantile or childish condition. It is from September to July that the hardest work at oyster-farming has to be done. The oyster breeds from the beginning of May to the end of August, which explains the popular custom of avoiding oysters upon the table or in sauce when there is no "R" in the month. As soon as there is an "R" the nursing mamma-oysters have to be carefully fattened, the little ones of last year shifted about, and a variety of other momentous duties performed. Exceedingly delicate at first, the baby oyster lives inside his mother's shell for a whole month, and then starts out for the great world, one drop of their native sea water at this epoch containing thousands of them. Arrived at the place where chance or choice conducts them, they settle down for life, developing slowly, layer by layer, the wonderful shell, ugly and wrinkled outside, but lined within by that exquisite nacre whose texture of moonbeams can be turned by some of them into pearls for the ear of a duchess when the patient bivalve is troubled with a stomach ache, or some floating particle intrudes on its comfort.

Butter Made From Peanuts.

A new factory has just been put into operation in Kokomo, Ind., for the manufacture of butter from peanuts. For a year or more Lane Bros. of that city have been working on a process of making butter from the peanut to compete with the product of the farm cow, and have succeeded in producing the desired article. At the present price of the nuts the butter can be sold at fifteen cents per pound. The process of manufacture is no secret. The nuts after the hulls are removed, are carefully hand-picked and faulty kernels removed. They are then roasted in a large rotary oven. Again they are gone over by hand for the removal of scorched grains. The nuts are then put through a mill and ground as fine as the finest flour, the natural oil in the grains giving it the appearance and consistency of putty as it leaves the mill, except that it is more of an orange color. By the addition of filtrated water, to reduce it to a most pliable state, the butter is complete, no other ingredient, not even salt, being used. It never grows rancid and keeps in any climate. It is put up in one, two, five, ten, twenty-five and 100-pound tin cans and sealed. The new butter is already in great demand at sanitariums and health resorts. It is used for all purposes ordinary butter is used, including shortening and frying. Physicians pronounce it more healthful than cow butter and it is much less expensive. By the addition of more water a delicious cream is made, and if desired it can in the same way be reduced to the consistency of milk. The new butter factory is located but a few rods from a large dairy barn, and is running in opposition to it.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

There was a game of baseball in Newark, Saturday morning, between the Plainfield High School and the Newark Academy. Now, that the game came out even the participants themselves are not certain. An error somewhere in the scoring enabled each team to claim the victory. By way of compromise it was finally agreed that the score should be considered a tie, 19 to 19.

The exhibition of baseball playing shown in Saturday's game was not particularly creditable to either side. After their victory over Leal's school, the High School boys felt rather confident. As long as everything went well with them they played good ball, but exciting times game and sundry errors were made that ought not to have been.

The Plainfield team put up a fair game but there was a lack of seasoning that will have to be cured in the future, if the team expects to make a good showing. Edwards and Squires were the battery for the Plainfield High School and they did very well. While Edwards occasionally had his curves batted about the field, the poor support given him was largely responsible for the nineteen runs made by the Newark boys. When an error or wild throw was made, there was a tendency on the part of the High School boys to stand still instead of following the ball.

Plainfield batted well but the nineteen runs in this case were also largely due to poor fielding. The teams played fairly even but Plainfield repeatedly failed to avail itself of opportunities that would have not left the result in doubt.

The failure of the two scores to agree was unfortunate but the trouble was finally settled by calling it a tie and agreeing that the remaining game of the series between the two teams will be understood to decide the series.

In the game in Philadelphia, Thursday, between the Philadelphias and the Brooklyns, when the latter was defeated by a score of 4 to 3, John Keeler, the old Plainfield Crescent player, made 2 out of the 3 runs that Brooklyn scored. Keeler is now playing right field for Brooklyn.

Next Saturday will see the first appearance of the Plainfield High School boys against any out-of-town team. The nine from Rutgers Prep School, of New Brunswick, has been scheduled to play here next Saturday. The game will be played at the Crescent Oval that afternoon. It will be the first appearance of the Rutgers "Rats" here for many years.

One of the strongest semi-professional teams that will appear on the diamonds in the metropolitan district this season will be that of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, now consolidated with the old New Jersey Athletic Club. Warren MacLoughlin, the young boroughite, who has already won considerable fame as a pitcher, has been signed by that club and will pitch for them this season. Among the other players, well-known in Plainfield, who will play with the K. A. C. this year will be Neely Collins, who played left field for the Plainfield Crescents last season until they disbanded. Collins will be in the field and is counted on as a strong man for batting and base running.

GOLF.

Although the formal opening of the Park Golf Club course will not take place until next Saturday, there was goodly-number of enthusiasts on the grounds last Saturday. The course is in fine condition and those who went over it were loud in their praise of it. There was no attempt to make good scores, although some were made, but not turned in. Fred Coverly, keeper of the course, has worked very hard to have the grounds in the best of condition, and he has succeeded admirably. The fact that many people were away on Saturday accounted in a measure for comparatively small attendance. Next Saturday the opening will take place and it is expected that a large crowd of golfers will be out on the course. There will also be some social features.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Plainfield bowlers of the Park Club demonstrated their skill in the game on the club alleys Saturday night by defeating the boroughites in two out of three games. In the series, which have now been concluded, the city team has won six games out of the nine. The scores were as follows:

THEIR ANNUAL MEETING.

New Jersey Association of Fire Underwriters to Meet in Newark Next Month.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Newark, April 24.—The annual meeting of the New Jersey Association of Fire Underwriters is to be held in this city May 11th at the Board of Trade rooms.

This association was organized some years ago in order to improve the business standing of New Jersey agents. Before its inception it was scarcely possible for agents in this State with large lines to place their risks. This disadvantages has given way to the unity of action of the agents in the association. In other ways agents here have been benefitted by union.

A Fierce Runawey.

A fierce runaway took place on Watchung avenue this morning, which threatened for a few minutes to do considerable damage. A team of grey horses belonging to Nicholas VanWinkle, of the borough, stood on the top of the Watchung avenue hill, attached to a heavy wagon. Becoming frightened they bolted down the hill, VanWinkle being just too late to catch them. The horses ran as far as Ninth street, when they ran into the curb and were caught. No damage was done to either horses or wagon.

A THREATENING FIRE.

Watchung Water Company's Plant, it Was Feared, Would be Burned.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Lincoln, April 24.—The barn belonging to Charles P. Sebring, at Greenbrook, caught fire this noon and threatened the power plant of the Watchung Water Company with destruction. Word was sent to Bound Brook and Lincoln for assistance.

Mayor Silas D. Drake, of this place, ordered out the Lincoln hose wagon immediately and it was taken to Greenbrook behind Abram Gulick's team. The hose wagon at Bound Brook was also sent, but the Lincoln men had a stream on five minutes before the others.

The barn was partialy saved and the flames were prevented from spreading to the power plant and water works and other buildings close by. The damage will reach $300.

WEDDED THREE MONTHS.

Miss Annie Grey and Clarence Mundy Announced Their Marriage Today.

The marriage of Miss Annie Grey, formerly an operator at the central office of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in this city, to Clarence Mundy, was announced today. The marriage took place three months ago in New York when the couple went away estensibly for a day's pleasure trip.

No one had the slightest idea that the couple were married till today. The announcement to the parents of the bride caused quite a scene. The mother was inclined to extend the parental blessing, but the father, it is said, is much worked-up over the marriage. Miss Grey recently resigned her position at the telephone office.

M., Elias Johnson; senior grand warden, Wm. Fisher; junior grand warden, Lewis Jones; treasurer, Nehemiah Mosley; grand tyler, Geo. Williams; R. W. G. secretary, Chas. H. Baynard; assistant, Samuel J. Moore; grand chaplains, James Williams, Levi Miller, Chas. Taylor.

Fire on the Mountains.

A bright reflection illuminated the sky last evening in the direction of Johnston's drive, and several persons who saw it were led to believe that Mrs. Emerson's house was destroyed by fire. Inquiries were made, but the report proved to be false. So far as can be learned no dwelling was burned, but it is thought that the fire was occasioned by the burning of a quantity of brush on the mountains.

REPORT IS CONFIRMED.

PLAINFIELD HAS $78,000 BACK TAXES TO COLLECT.

Report of Martin Act Commissioners Confirmed by Court at Elizabeth This Morning—Council to Act Now.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, April 24.—One of the first acts of Judge VanSyckel when he convened the Supreme Court this morning was of great importance to Plainfield. He confirmed the revised report of the Martin Act Commissioners, which shows $78,000 of back taxes to be collected.

The Commissioners were appointed by the court over a year ago to adjust the back taxes of the city of Plainfield under the Martin act. A report was submitted a year ago and was fought by some of the Plainfield property owners involved. The court ordered the report back for revision. The first report showed collectable taxes to the amount of $65,000. Since then a second report has been filed and was this morning approved by the court.

The work of collecting these back taxes will now be started by the Plainfield Common Council under the process provided for by the Martin act.

Counterfeit Ten Cent Pieces.

Same one has been flooding New Brunswick with counterfeit 10 cent pieces. A number of storekeepers have been victimized by the coins, which are all dated 1898, and are excellent imitations. They ring and seem to be up to weight, but are too soft.

A WHOLE STATE RUN BY WOMEN.

Farm the Land, Repair the Roads, and Send the Men to Work in the City.

The woman question has been on trial for years in a country the conditions and tendencies of which seem more outspokenly opposed to progress in that particular direction than those of any other land. It may sound strange, yet Russia is the empire referred to.

In Central Russia is the township of Besjukovschtschina. There, in 1861 after an epidemic that reduced the peasants to starvation, the women led by Saschka, ordered the men to leave and go to the city to find work. The women remained alone and began to till the farms. The men were allowed to return only for the holidays.

The woman state comprises a territory of ten square miles, and is divided into seven villages. Saschka and seven other women, the wives of the exiled elders, administer to all public affairs, such as the levying of taxes, the allotment of acres to the various families, the keeping up of the churches, the paying of the shepherds, etc., etc. They also assume the recruiting officer's duties by sending those men who attained the proper age to town in order to submit to medical examination.

In the Summer the fields of the district afford a peculiar aspect. One may ride over the Besjukovschatschina domain from morning till night without encountering a single male being. All the work, the hardest as well as the lighter manipulations, is executed by women and girls of different ages. With naked feet and arms they trot behind the plough, throw out seeds and gather fruit. Here we observe a dozen or more sturdy members of the weaker sex engaged in lifting a mighty rock; again, we see others cutting down trees or subduing a bucking horse or a wild bull. Toward evening all hands assemble in the church squares of the seven villages to hear reports of common interest, the women acting Mayors being the speechmakers, who discuss public questions in decisive and businesslike manner. This done, the women go home to attend to their own affairs.

Besides cultivating the fields, they keep the roads in order, and occasionally set up a new cottage or stable.—New York Journal.

How the Elephant Sleeps.

One of the most erroneous of the many queer ideas which the layman has on the questions of natural history is the one respecting the elephant's mode of sleeping. Even the old school of naturalists declared that the elephant had never been known to sleep except in a standing position. Of late, however, say within the last century, it has been learned that the error came about by persons studying the habits of such beasts as had not been long in captivity. Such animals, when undergoing the process of domestication, have been known to stand for twelve, eighteen, or even twenty-four hours without once lying down to sleep. This is regarded as a want of confidence in their keepers, coupled with a longing liberty. When elephants are in perfect ease and reconciled to their fate, they will lie down on their side and sleep as all other beasts do.—St. Louis Republican.

Feminine Nature.

Shopkeeper: "What can I do for you, Mrs. Stoneback?"

Mrs. Stoneback: "Send me four bushels of coal, two chickens and one pound of tea."

JERSEY POLITICIANS PLANNING FOR FALL.

The Principal Contests Will be Over Senatorial Elections.

BATTLE WILL BE FIERCE.

NEW STATE SENATORS WILL VOTE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR.

Somerset is Considered One of the Counties in Which the Democrats Have a Good Fighting Chance to Win—Senator Sewell Will be Greatly Concerned Over the Outcome of Election.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 25.—The politicians will have a rest from their arduous labors from now until October. No State conventions will be held until next year. At the November election this year there will be elected seven State Senators and a House of Assembly, besides Sheriffs for all the counties with the exception of Passaic, Bergen, Somerset and Cape May. The Senators whose terms expire this year now represent Essex, Monmouth, Union, Somerset, Gloucester, Salem, Warren and Camden. Their successors will each have a vote for a United States Senator in 1901. The outgoing Senators are all Republicans with the exception of the one from Warren county.

Between now and November the politicians will find some recreation in preparing slates for the Senatorial offices mentioned. In some of the counties there may be sharp contests, while in others there will be a walk-over for the candidates of either party. For instance, in Camden, Essex, Union and Gloucester Republican nominations will be equivalent to election. Warren county seems to be the only Democratic stronghold. Monmouth, Salem and Somerset are very close counties, and for the success of the candidates on either side personal popularity and high character will be much of a requisite. As his seat in the United States Senate will be at stake, General Sewell, no doubt, will exercise a commanding influence in the selection of Republican candidates. South Jersey is his own particular bailiwick, and the only danger that confronts him there is in Salem county. The Democrats are always very active there, and recently they have scored some victories. It has elected several Democratic Senators within a score of years back, and another one may be chosen next November.

Essex county, being Republican to the core, there seems no use at all for the Democrats to make nominations. And the conditions are the same in Camden and Gloucester. In Essex there will be a new candidate for Senator, Mr. Ketcham not desiring a third term. Senator Johnson will be returned from Camden and Senator Stanger and Speaker Watkins will do battle for the nomination in Gloucester.

Warren county will surely elect a Democratic Senator. Should the Democrats get together in Somerset they would make things very lively for the Republicans. There are Republican sores in that county which, if not healed in time, may give the Democrats a clear road to success. Should Senator Reed seek a second term and receive the hearty support of former Senator Thompson, then another Republican victory would be probable. These leaders have been at daggers' points for years, and as a result of their quarrel a Democratic Sheriff was elected in Somerset last year. There is no doubt of the re-election of Senator Cross in Union.

An impartial review of the field would indicate that the Republicans will come very near holding their own in the present State Senate. As before stated, the only doubtful counties are Monmouth, Salem and Somerset. The House of Assembly will almost certainly be Republican. Two important offices will be filled by the next Legislature, those of State Treasurer and State Comptroller. The present incumbents, who are Republicans, have a bright prospect for a re-election for a third term.

Rahway's Political Plum.

The Republican members of the Rahway City Council will hold a caucus this week to determine on the officers to be voted for at the meeting of the New Council to be held Tuesday, May 2. A president of the board, together with Receiver of Taxes, Police Justice at headquarter, Overseer of Poor and City Physician are the officials to be chosen at the next meeting.

To Adopt Five Pale Faces.

Paughcaughnaughsinque Tribe of Red Men will adopt five pale faces at their meeting tomorrow night.

GAY NIGHT FOR GERMANS

CONCERT AND BALL GIVEN BY THE GESANG AND TURN VEREIN.

Prof. Conde Rendered Two of His Own Compositions—An Acrobatic Exhibition Also—Dancing Ended Pleasant Affair.

A concert and ball was given last night by the Gesang and Turn Verein in Saengerbund Hall, assisted by outside talent. The concert was a lengthy one, and included selections by the singing section of the Turn Verein and singing societies from Elizabeth and Stirling, and violin solos by Prof. P. Ludwig Conde and other instrumental music.

Prof. Conde played twice and was encored each time. His first selection was a violin solo composed and dedicated to King Leopold, the First of Belgium. This difficult piece was skillfully rendered, and brought rounds of applause. The next selection on the violin was one of the Professor's own composing, "Mazurka de Concert," and was as well received as the first. Prof. W. E. MacClyment was Prof. Conde's accompanist.

M. Sorensen rendered a cornet solo, and Master George Smith, a youthful pupil, gave violin selections which were well rendered. As a change the programme was varied by an acrobatic performance by Charles Meyer, Sr. and Jr. and Master Hansen. M. Burke also gave an exhibition of slack wire walking.

The concert was a success from a financial standpoint, and the numbers were all liked.

The choruses were assisted by Prof. Louis Schnebel, baritone, A. Eichhorn was the director. Prof. O'Reilly's Orchestra furnished music for dancing, and also played the overture and other selections.

COURT NOT SATISFIED.

UNABLE TO DETERMINE WHETHER OR NOT DWYER IS INSANE.

Doctors and Witnesses Thought That He Was Insane, But He Will be Sent to Morris Plains for Examination Soon.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 25.—Testimony was taken before Justice VanSyckel yesterday morning respecting the sanity of John Dwyer, who was indicted in January charged with the murder of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Catharine Dwyer. Dr. James S. Green and Dr. Victor Mravalag, who were appointed by the court last winter to make an examination of the defendant, testified that it was their belief that Dwyer was insane. They recounted many peculiarities of manner. Sargent Corbett, on whose farm Dwyer lived for fourteen years, said that Dwyer used to keep lamps burning in the barn at night to keep the devil out. But the reason above all others on which Corbett based his belief in Dwyer's insanity was the fact that he wanted to marry Corbett's aged mother-in-law. Dwyer refused to be brought into court and the proceedings went on without his presence.

Justice VanSyckle and Judge Vail decided that the evidence was insufficient and ordered that Dwyer be taken to Morris Plains Asylum, where experts could be in attendance, and at a later day decide whether he is sane or insane.

Fire Destroys Arbutus.

The trailing arbutus is fast disappearing and another week will find but few stray blossoms where they have been numerous. The past week has seen a large number of visitors to the sand hills, back of Bonhamtown, the only place in this vicinity that the arbutus grows. Saturday, the underbrush there caught fire and burned over a large section of the sand hills, destroying many of the pretty little flowers.

Sheriff Sells a Church.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Morristown, April 25.—During the past week Sheriff During, of Morris county, has sold at Sheriff's sale the Second Presbyterian church edifice at Mendham to settle foreclosure proceedings. The purchaser was Theodore W. Phœnix, and the price paid was $725. For years past the congregation has struggled along under a heavy debt, and recently decided to disband.

REPORT IS SET ASIDE.

WESTFIELD AVENUE IMPROVEMENTS RECEIVED A BLACK EYE.

Judge VanSyckel Decides That Awards Were Not Equitably Adjusted and Whole Ground Will Have to be Gone Over Again

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, April 25.—The Westfield avenue trolley scheme got another black eye yesterday when Justice VanSyckel set aside the report of the commissioners.

Justice VanSyckel said that the awards were not equitably adjusted as one of the commissioners admitted that he was influenced by the benefits which he thought a trolley along Westfield avenue would confer upon the property-holders along the line.

The whole ground will have to be gone over again by the commissioners.

It is currently believed now that unless the City Council and Senator Kean come to some amicable agreement on the question of fares the trolley on Westfield boulevard will never be realized and the Riker-Gaddis-Hine trolley will have no opposition.

TO ASK FOR INVESTIGATION.

Shareholders Object to a Change in Republic Savings and Loan By-Laws.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 25.—Certain Stockholders in this city of the Republic Savings and Loan Association have petitioned the State Commissioner of Banking and Insurance for an investigation of the company, in accordance with the new law.

There are over 2,000 shares of the association's stock held in Elizabeth, and this action was taken at a meeting last week of shareholders in this this city, which was called by H. D. Poole, the Elizabeth agent. The stock holders here object to a proposed amendment to the by-laws to increase the expense fund of the association, and also to change the present contract system so as to make retroactive contracts.

The headquarters of the Republic Savings and Loan Association is in Newark, and L. G. Gaddis is the president, and County Auditor Edward L. Conklin the secretary.

DECORATION DAY ORARORR.

Rev. W. C. Snodgrass Chosen to Address the Old Soldiers.

Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First Methodist church, has been secured as orator of the day to make the address to the G. A. R. at Music Hall Decoration Day. Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D. D., will preach a special sermon to the members of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., Sunday evening, May 28th, in the First Baptist church.

Can't Control the Rebels.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 25.—Former Tax Commissioner Richard Frohwein, of this city, has received a letter from his son Paul, who is an apothecary on board one of the United States war vessels at Manila. The young man writes discouragingly about the situation there, and says all the territory that the United States, outside of Manila, is able to control, is simply what is covered by the range of the American guns. The Filipinos, he says, are persistent in their harrassing warfare, and just as soon as the Americans withdraw from a place the Rebels swarm into it again.

Another New Steamship.

The second of the two new steamships building for the Old Dominion Line at Roach's shipyard, Chester, Pa., was successfully launched Saturday, the 15th. Miss Florence Dudley Guillaudeu, daughter of the vice-president of the company, performed the christening ceremony, naming the vessel Jefferson as it moved down the ways. The Jefferson will be a sister ship to the Hamilton, recently launched, and will be a thoroughly up-to-date steamship. In conjunction with the Princess Anne and Jamestown, these new ships will perform the daily express steamer service between New York and Norfolk.

Hunterston's New Proprietor.

Major F. W. Coleman, a veteran and respected boniface, who has conducted hotels for many years in New York, Washington and other cities, has leased The Hunterston, Netherwood, N. J., and after putting the house in perfect order will open it May 15th. Last season Major Coleman managed the Coleman House at Asbury Park.—The Hotel Gazette.

THRILLING STOP OF A RUNAWAY TEAM.

The Twenty-third Capture Made by Brave Dennis Kane.

DANGER DIDN'T STOP HIM.

GRABBED HORSE'S BRIDLE AND WAS DRAGGED ALMOST A BLOCK

Team Attached to Beer Delivery Wagon of Mrs. Eugene Hoerster and Became Frightened at Central Avenue and Front Street—Stopped at City Hotel—Wagon Did Not Collide With Anything.

Those who were on Park avenue last night about 8 o'clock witnessed a dashing runaway and a brilliant capture by Dennis Kane, who seems always to be on deck when there is a runaway horse to catch. The team belonged to Mrs. Eugene Hoerster, the Somerset street beer bottler, and were in charge of George Schudder.

Schudder was delivering beer at a house near Central avenue and West Front street, leaving the horses unhitched in front. Becoming restless they suddenly started off for home, and tore down Front street at a furious pace, turned into Park avenue, and were caught in front of the City Hotel.

The wagon did not collide with anything on the way down Front street, but in rounding the corner of Park avenue the left rear wheel struck the curb and was dished. Kane seized the off horse just as they were turning the corner, but was dragged nearly a block before he succeeded in stopping the frightened horses. Officer Higgins came to Kane's assistance, but the animals were under control before he arrived.

Every one who saw the capture was loud in their praise of Kane's deed, as the act was a daring one, and the catch skillfully made. Dennis says that this makes the twenty-third runaway horse that he has caught, and he has never yet suffered any injury in doing it.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY.

Horse Frightened by Trolley Car Plunged Into and Wrecked a Bicycle.

Last evening shortly after 7 o'clock there was an exciting accident at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, when a horse being driven by William Ward, of Westfield, dashed across the curb, completely wrecked a new Crescent wheel owned by Fred Meeker, and almost upset Mr. Ward and his companion.

Mr. Ward drove through Park avenue and when he arrived at Front street car No. 2, of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, came along and frightened the horse. Mr. Ward immediately began striking the frightened animal with a whip. This caused the horse to madly plunge across the street.

An unknown milkman standing near caught the horse just in time to prevent still further damage. The wagon was damaged to some extent, but later in the evening the horse again became frightened at a trolley car on Somerset street, and this morning the wagon occupied by Mr. Ward and his companion was seen standing in a wrecked condition on the upper part of Somerset street. The occupants evidently secured another wagon to reach home.

Fred Meeker, the owner of the wrecked wheel, saw Mr. Ward, and the latter promised to stand the expense of having the cycle repaired, which will cost $10.

A BROKEN RIB.

Louis Roland Hurt Trying to Subdue Fractious Horses.

Louis Roland, aged 38 years, a resident of Plainfield avenue and an employe of Mrs. Brown, who carries on an excavating business, was brought to the hospital last evening suffering from the effects of a broken rib in the abdomen. It seems that he was driving a team of horses for Mrs. Brown and the team became unmanageable. In Roland's efforts to stop the team he was thrown from the wagon which passed over his abdomen fracturing a rib. The man seems to be doing very well, and no serious results are feared.

Settled on Time.

Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, says that the personal and poll tax now delinquent in the borough is coming in very satisfactory. Yesterday Mr. Brown had occasion to inform two persons that if they did not settle by 8 o'clock last evening they would be arrested. The two persons appeared on time and settled.

TIN WEDDING AND WHIST

JOLLY WHISTERS ENJOYED A FINE NIGHT OF IT.

Were the Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram A. Woodruff, Who Celebrated Their Tenth Wedding Anniversary.

To close the season the "Jolly Whist Club" had its final gathering last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram A. Woodruff on Westervelt avenue. The occasion being also the tenth anniversary of the wedding of the host and hostess, a few of their immediate neighbors were invited to participate and a most enjoyable time was spent by all. Whist was played in the early evening, followed by dancing and refreshments, the music being furnished by Rogers.

Ten years of married life being generally termed the tin wedding, each of the members and guests came armed with some article of the bright metal. As a consequence the household tinware has been considerably increased with many useful articles.

The club also presented a handsome card table as an extra appreciation of their respect for their genial hosts. A most unique, as well as appropriate gift among the many was a tin corsage bouquet for the hostess and a tin boutonniere for the host.

Those participating were Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burtis, Mr. and Mrs. Woolston, Mr. and Mrs. Buckle, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Lowe, Postmaster and Mrs. Bird, Mr. and Mrs. VanWinkle, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Homan, Mr. and Mrs. Tolles, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons.

Mrs. E. A. Lowe won the first ladies' prize, Mrs. Buckle the second, Mr. Baker the first gentleman's, and B. I. Tolles the second.

Four Competitors for Work to be Done by the Borough.

After the special meeting of the Borough Council last evening there was a meeting of the street committee at which time bids were received for the laying of sidewalks and crosswalks in the borough. There were four bids received. John Lanning agreed to lay sidewalks for 48 cents a foot, and crosswalks for 55 cents a foot. P. Kiely agreed to lay sidewalks for 44 cents a foot and crosswalks for 24 cents a foot. For the same work A. Kane bid 48 cents for sidewalks and 96 for crosswalks. The bid of M. Powers was 46 cents for sidewalks and 35 cents for crosswalks. All of the bids were gone over carefully by the committee and the successful one will be announced later.

GRADUATION OF NURSES

EXERCISES OF TRAINING SCHOOL FIXED FOR MAY 25TH.

The Matter Decided at the Meeting of Hospital Governors Last Night—No Decision About New Buildings.

The Governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital are not ready to act on the proposed additions to the present buildings. The committee, which has the preliminary work in hand, has made some progress, however, and will be expected to report at an early date. At the regular meeting of the Board of Governors, held in the Public Library, last evening, they merely reported progress.

Besides the regular routine business necessary in the administration of the hospital affairs, the only business of importance was the fixing of the date for the graduation exercises of the training school for nurses in connection with the hospital. They will be held Thursday evening, May 25th, probably in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders was appointed chairman of a committee to confer with other committees from the medical staff and the Women's Auxiliary Board in making arrangements for the exercises.

The report of the medical director, Dr. W. H. Murray, for the month ending April 20th, showed the total number of patients admitted, 24; number discharged cured, 16; discharged improved, 2; died, 5; total number treated, 44; number remaining, 23. Dispensary report: total number treated, 49; total number visits, 187.

NEW SCHOOL IS READY.

MOUNTAIN AVENUE INSTITUTION TO OPEN THIS WEEK.

Two of the Lower Classes to be Transferred to it on Thursday and by Next Week Entire Change Will be Made.

There was a meeting of the Borough Board of Education last evening, at which time it was announced and decided to open the new public school on Mountain avenue this week. On Thursday two of the lower classes from the school on Somerset street will be located in the new school and it is hoped by next week that the entire change may be effected.

There still remains a few finishing touches to complete the school, but nothing that will interfere with carrying on school. Eventually all the younger scholars will be transferred to the new school.

The only other important matter considered by the Board was the appointment of W. W. Bowley as taker of the school census. He will commence his work at an early date. The Board paid the usual budget of bills presented, after which they adjourned.

BISHOP PRESENT.

Interesting Services Held in Church of Heavenly Rest Last Night.

Bishop Scarborough held a very interesting service at the Church of the Heavenly Rest last night, and was assisted by several of the local clergymen, among whom were Revs. Floyd Appleton, S. P. Simpson, A. S. Phelps, E. E. Pendleton, W. M. Downey and W. W. Moore, lay reader.

Tonight the Bishop will be at the St. Stephen's P. E. church, Netherwood, and next Sunday will attend the other churches of that denomination in the city.

Seats for "Diplomacy."

Seats for "Diplomacy," next Saturday night, are still selling well. The demand for them has been extremely satisfactory and it is likely that the chart at Armstrong's drug store will be well sold by Saturday next, the day of the performance. Good seats may be still obtained at popular prices. Mr. Dallon, a prominent member of the "Amaranth," of Brooklyn, has been engaged to play the part of "Henry Bouclerc," made vacant by the sudden death of Mr. Van-Vliet's father.

Teachers Taught.

At the meeting of the Primary Teachers' Union yesterday afternoon Mrs. Darby taught the lesson on the subject of "The Comforter Promised," and the topic, "Blackboard Work," was in charge of Mr. Olmsted. Next week Monday afternoon the regular business meeting will be held.

Further Improvements.

East Sixth street, between Watchung avenue and Washington street, is now being macadamized and the work will be completed in a few days. When that part is finished, East Sixth street will then be macadamized from Park avenue to Richmond street.

A Benefit Entertainment.

There is a likelihood that next Monday evening an entertainment will be given in the Camera Club rooms for the benefit of the proposed soldier's monument.

WOULD NOT ACCEPT THE BOROUGH'S TERMS.

Project of Building a Private Drain is Halted.

ARE CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS.

BOROUGH WANTS POWER TO ORDER ITS REMOVAL ANYTIME.

Ordinance Granting the Right Drawn by Councilman Clark, but Amended by Borough Counsel Reed so as to Better Proctect Borough—A. I. Smalley Wanted to Build it—Wouldn't Accept.

The Borough Council held a special meeting last evening for the purpose of considering and acting upon a petition presented by A. I. Smalley, who desired to lay a private drain for surface water in the upper part of the borough. The petition was presented and an agreement was drawn and offered as binding between Mr. Smalley and the Mayor and Council, but the permit to tear up the streets to lay this drain was not given. After wasting about two hours the meeting adjourned without doing a thing.

The point in question seemed to be whether Mr. Smalley should have the sole right of this drain without any more than the usual restrictions. To this there was a disagreement. The agreement was drawn under the supervision of Mr. Clark, and according to custom it was shown to Corporation Counsel Reed for approval. Mr. Reed thought that the borough should be protected to a greater extent than was shown in the original agreement, and amended the agreement so that Mr. Smalley should not have the sole right of the drain, and if the borough so desired it could order its removal at any time.

Mr. Smalley would not agree to the amendments and consequently withdrew his petition. He stated that if he could not have the permit according to the agreement as drawn by Mr. Clark he would not accept it. He claimed that it was a benefit to the borough and if he was going to expend $600 or $700 for the improvement he ought to have adequate protection.

On the other hand the officials thought that the borough should enforce restrictions that would provide against any improper use of the drain. Everyone thought the improvement a good one, but there could not apparently be an agreement as to restrictions. Thus the matter was dropped for the present.

Excellent speakers will be present from this and other States, and an orchestra will furnish good music during the feast. The officers of the committee arranging the affair are Alderman Geo. S. Broeher, who is president of the Board of Trade, and H. S. Barnes, its secretary. The tickets for the banquet will be $2 each.

ON ALBERT SEWELL'S TRA"

The Crowd of Infuriated Georgians Not Appeased By Two Lives.

THEY SEEK THE THIRD.

The Story Telegraphed From Atlanta That Sewell Had Been Caught and Lynched Is Denied.

Sam Hose A Confessed Murderer and Rev. Lige Strickland Implicated By Hose's Confession—Have Paid the Death Penalty Strips of Roasted Flesh and Human Bone Sold on Atlanta Streets for Souvenirs.

Atlantia, Ga., April 25.—News is expected hourly of the lynching of Albert Sewell, a negro who said that negroes should avenge the recent lynchings here. An infuriated mob has ben hunting for him all day, but he has thus far eluded his pursuers.

Word was received here that he had been caught and lynched, but it was contradicted later.

The country in which he is supposed to be hiding is being scoured by bands of armed men, and it is believed that he has no possible chance of escape.

Strips of roasted human flesh and human bones are being openly sold here as highly-prized souvenirs of the burning of Sam Hose at the stake on the Palmetto road, two miles from Newnan. These shocking relics of the fiery lynching were literally hacked from the negro's body as it lurched forward in death, partly released from the chain which had held him fast to a tree.

Palmetto, Ga., April 25.—The body of Lige Strickland, the negro implicated by Sam Hose, who was burned at the stake, in the kiling of Alfred Cranford was found swinging to the limb of a tree about a mile from town. The ears and fingers wer cut off and on the body was pinned a placard bearing the following words: "We must protect our Southern women." Strickland was arrested on the farm of Major Thomas, about seven miles from Palmetto, and carried off to the woods.

Strickland was named as an accomplice in the Cranford murder by Hose while Hose was being slowly tortured to death by burning and mutilation near Newnan yesterday. Hose said that Strickland offered him $20 to kill Mr. Cranford. Strickland was a preacher.

The declaration of Hose caused great excitement here, and a crowd of Campbell county men left for the home of Major Thomas, where Strickland worked, and took the negro from the place and brought him into town. Major Thomas made a speech to the mob requesting it not to take the negro, and saying he believed the man was innocent. The men would not listen to him and took the negro with them.

Several hours before that a crowd had gone to the home of A. Sewell, a negro, three miles from here, and taken him prisoner, and it is thought he will be lynched. He is the negro who said a few days ago that he thought all the negroes should be avenged.

An impromptu court was held about 100 yards north of here and Strickland was tried. He loudly protested his innocence and was defended by members of the mob. Others insisted that he be hanged and still others thought he should be burned. The crowd seemed to be about equally divided, and, as there was no means of ascertaining the negro's guilt, great care was taken in the proceeding. He was strung up two or three times in an effort to get a confession from him, but each time he refused to say that he had had any connection with Hose's crime, and denied that he paid Hose to murder Cranford.

Early in the morning the crowd started toward Fairburn and the man was hanged when that place was reached.

Copyright Law Decision.

Washington, April 25.—Anybody may publish Oliver Wendell Holmes's "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," and no accounting can be required of him under the copyright law. So says the Supreme Court in an opinion announced by Justice Brown. The trial disclosed the fact that the Atlantic Monthly, in which the "Autocrat" made its origional appearance, was not a copyrighted publication at the time, and that copyright was first taken out when the book appeared in its entirety.

Strikers Ask $1 50 a Day.

Buffalo, April 25.—About 500 men, many of them skilled laborers, employed at the Gould Coupler Company's works in Depew, have gone on strike. The men demand $1.50 a day intead of $1.20. Following the strike among the employes of the Union Car Works, which occured on Saturday, when 1,200 men went out on a similar demand, the action of the men at the Gould Company works would indicate that there has been something like concerted action.

Mystery of Ex-Soldier.

Washington, April 25.—Government officials are invesigating the mysterious case of ex-Soldier Jacob Cash, a former member of the Twenty-second New York Volunteers, who has been a prisoner in Havana jail since March 8, charged with stealing old clothes. Cash has letters from President McKinley, Ambassadors and other men in high life indorsing Cash's scheme to go into politics.

THE LATEST NEWS.

GERMANS ARE ACTIVE IN THE CAROLINES.

San Francisco, April 25.—The barkentine Ruth has arrived here from Guam, Ladrone Islands. J. Extrom, a South Sea trader, and A. G. Maddern, a collector of natural history specimens, came on the Ruth. Extrom was obliged to remove to Guam from the Island of Ruk, as the natives there were extremely quarrelsome. The Ruth's passengers pronounced Guam a land of great promise. They say that the Germans are trying to get possession of Kusaie.

When the news that Manila had been captured was received the Governor of Ponape, one of the Carolines, ran his two gunboats into the mangrove swamps, and there they still lie. The Governor made a prisoner of J. V. Melander, an American trader of Kusaie, and detained his vessel. Just before the Ruth sailed Melander was released, the Governor telling him that the vessel never had been seized.

It is said that the German firm controlling the Marshall and Gilbert trade has advanced money and goods to the beleaguered Spanish Governor. Representatives of the firm were working hard to get a mortgage on the Spanish lands. This done, there would be a German trader established at Ponape, another at Ruk and a third at Kusaie.

TWO LIVES ENDED BY CHILD'S SHAME.

Newark, N. J., April 25.—Mary Seither was charged six weeks ago with robbing the toy banks of the children of her employer. She killed herself with carbolic acid, not so much because of the disgrace and humiliation that followed the accusation, but because of grief for her father, who was driven to suicide by his daughter's shame. Mary was only 14 years old. She was employed by George Scheimer, of No. 17 Boyd street, and one day early in March the jingling coins in the little iron banks tempted her, and she pried out a few coppers and nickels. The theft was quickly discovered and a policeman took the terrified girl before Justice Schalk, who sentenced her to pay a fine of $15 or spend thirty days in jail. Her father committed suicide because he could not raise the money to secure her release.

HABEAS CORPUS FOR MOLINEUX.

New York, April 25.—Justice Bookstaver issued a writ of habeas corpus for Roland B. Molineux, who is under indictment for the murder of Mrs. Kate J. Adams, directing Warden Hagan of the Tombs to bring Molineux to the Supreme Court that his commitment by the Grand Jury may be reviewed in an effort to obtain his discharge from prison. After rehearsing the history of the case in court, George Gordon Battle, of counsel for Molineux, contended that the setting aside of the indictment by Justice Williams is a practical discharge of Molineux's commitment to prison, and maintains that the prisoner is now held without due warrant of law

MAJOR WHITTLE OUT OF THE GUARD.

New York, April 25.—Major John H. Whittle sent in his resignation from the Seventy-first Regiment and the National Guard. After the hearing in Albany on April 20, when Major Whittle and Lieutenant Colonel Charles H. Smith were formerly accused by the Court of Inquiry of lack of courage and bravery and of incompetency, Governor Roosevelt announced he probably would submit the case of Major Whittle to a court-martial to determine his competency to remain an officer of the National Guard. By resigning Major Whittle has made such a court martial unnecessary, and thus has closed the case.

THEY MUST KEEP OUT OF POLITICS.

Louisville, Ky., April 25.—The Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, the whiskey combine, intends to keep out of all sort of politics, according to its managers. Letters have been sent to several officials of the company throughout the State who occupy municipal offices telling them that they must resign, as the company does not wish to be mixed up with politics in any way

This hardly will affect any of the company's employes seriously, as most of those who hold any sort of political positions are merely members of Councils of different towns throughout the State These must resign, however.

KID LAVELLE THE PUGILIST DEAD.

Pittsburg, April 25.—Kid Lavelle, the colored pugilist from Chester, Pa., who was knocked out by John Cavanaugh in a boxing contest in Homestead last Friday evening, is dead. A post-mortem is being held, and the physicians have discovered a blood clot on the brain. Cavanaugh, his manager, Mason; Lavelle's manager, Moseley, and Captain Bennett had a hearing to-day on the charge of abetting prize fighting. All waived hearing. Cavanaugh was remanded to jail, where he has been since the fight.

MUCH SMOKE LITTLE FIRE.

Capt. Coghlan's Hot Speech Sets the Diplomatic Pot Boiling.

NOBODY IS ALARMED.

Sec'y Hay Has Asked Explanation of Coghlan's Talk and Awaits Answer Through Sec'y Long.

Apparently the German Ambassador Von Holleben Has Been Quieted By the Statement That Coghlan's Address Was in Private and Hence Could Not Be Taken Note of Diplomatically.

Berlin, April 25.—It is announced in a semi-official note to-day that the United States Secretary of State, Col. John Hay, has expressed to the German Ambassador at Washington, Dr. von Holleben, his strong disapproval of "the conduct of Capt. Joseph B. Coghlan," of the United States cruiser Raleigh. Berlin officials say the speech of Capt. Coghlan can be dismissed by the explanation that he was drunk.

Washington, April 24.—It is stated here that Secretary Hay has made no semi-official explanation of Capt. Coghlan's speech to the German Ambassador, but is awaiting his reply to be forwarded to the Secretary of the Navy.

Unofficially Secretary Hay has expressed to the Ambassador his disapproval, but nothing has been done officially, and Colonel Hay declines to say what passed at the conference held between himself and the German Ambassador. It is stated, however, that Germany insists upon an official disavowal, and that Ambasador Holleben announced to the Secretary that such action would be expected.

Secretary Hay has stated to Dr. Von Holleben that the language used by Captain Coghlan would in no sense be regarded as official or as a public utterance, as the occasion was a private banquet at a club. He intimated, it is said, that the Navy Department might take action in the way of disciplining Captain Coghlan.

It is hinted in diplomatic circles that the German Ambassador will concern himself with the question of proper punishment being inflicted upon Coghlan as with that of an official disavowal by our Government.

Ambassador Von Holleben is reported to have cabled to the Berlin Foreign Office stating the position taken by the Secretary of the State, and another protest will probably follow by the German Government. Secretary Hay's stand, to the effect that as Captain Coghlan's speech was made in a private club, it is a subject for discipline by the Navy Department alone, and not one for diplomatic consideration, is approved by the Administration, and while Germany may protest vigorously, it is believed that the State Department will maintain its contention, even at the risk of serious complications. Secretary Hay discussed the matter with the President before taking this position.

Following is a semi-official statement of the German views as expressed in Berlin papers:

"After the arrival of the Germans at Manila the relations between the German Admiral and Dewey were dissatisfactory, as the latter was misled by English lies about the Germans, from whom he feared hostilities and interference.

"This the Germans never intended. Several incidents shortly occurred capable of a construction unfavorable to Germany, and it was one of these that Captain Coghlan exaggerated in his speech.

"Dewey, recognizing later that he was in error in suspecting the Germans, exhibited the most amiable spirit toward them."

The Nord Deusche Zeitung says: "We will not overrate the political importance of Captain Coghlan's utterances, because he was doubtless in a befuddled condition at the time."

The National Zeitung sees the incident in a similar light. It says: "The ocurrence described by Captain Coghlan, in which Admiral Dewey figured as the hero, can have taken place only in the phantasy of a mind gloriously excited by alcohol."

The paper says further that the prompt disavowal of Captain Coghlan's words by the Secretary of State, Colonel John Hay, is an indication of the improved relations between Germany and the United States

MR. WILSON: I knew an Ohio farmer named Enochs. He was about fifty years old and was bothered for years with some trouble the doctors didn't understand. He told me the story himself. "I kept getting weaker," said he, "and fairly got so weak my food done me no good, what little I did eat, and I went from 135 pounds down to 98." It was the druggist who suggested that he try Ripans Tabules, and he says that he had not used a dozen of them before he felt much better, and after a month he was cured sound and well, and in less than a year weighed 150 pounds. For a long time he had a bad color, but to-day his complexion is as good as mine.

Report of Committee upon the Business of the Real Estate News Publication Co. of Bound Brook, N. J.

The undersigned committee appointed at a meeting of the Citizens, held at the office of the above Company on Monday, Feb. 6th, beg leave to report as follows:—

Our committee met at the office of the Company on Saturday afternoon the 11th inst., according to arrangement, and after a careful investigation of the books of the above Company, and careful consideration of the assets and liabilities, found that the statement made by A. G. Drake, Sect'y., of the Company, at the Citizens' meeting was in every respect true and correct.

We believe FIRST that the publication should be kept in Bound Brook for the good it can do for the Borough at large. SECOND. We find the good assets to be $855.00 as stated by Mr. Drake, and that is in excess of all liabilities, including the amount of capital stock paid in. Also that the earnings have been so far in excess of the expense that the 10 per cent dividends have been safely declared and paid.

THIRD. We believe the stock of the Company is a fair investment, and see no reason why the business should not do as well from a business point of view in the future as in the past, and even much better.

Respectfully submitted,
GAINS HOFFMAN

A $6,000 BRIBE?

Former U. S. District Attorney Ingham Arrested in the Stamp Case—$10,000,000 Is Involved.

Philadelphia, April 25.—Ellery P. Ingham, former United States District Attorney and law partner of Harvey K. Newitt, has been arrested, charged with conspiracy with Harvey K. Newitt, his law partner, to bribe Secret Service Agent, William J. McManus in connection with the $10,000,000 tobacco stamp plot. Mr. Ingham was taken to the office of District Atorney Beck, and was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edmunds, who held him in $10,000 bail for a further hearing on Thursday morning.

The affidavit upon which the warrant was issued charged Ingham and Newitt with conspiring to bribe McManus by offering him on Feb. 15 $6,000 in monthly payments of $500 each to drop his investigation into the colossal fraud. They are charged, too, of having made one payment of $500 on March 8.—

Mr. Ingham is only forty-three years old, but he has been a leading member of the bar here from the time of his admission to practice, in 1887. His first political position was as a delegate to the National Convention in 1888, and in July, 1889, he was made special deputy collector, resigning to become United States District Attorney, when appointed to that position by President Harrison to succeed John R. Reed. Upon retiring from the office of United States District Attorney upon Mr. Beck's appointment, he formed a partnership with Harvey K. Newitt, who was arrested last week for alleged participation in the bogus stamp deal.

TWO WOMEN BUTCHERED.

Murder and Mutilation in Murfreesboro, Illinois, of Wife and Guest.

Murfreesboro, Ill., April 25.—An inquest was held on the bodies of two women who were murdered while they slept in the house of E. M. Davie, a miner, residing one mile from Carbon Mine No. 6. The bodies were mutilated and blood stained.

The victims are Mrs. Mary E. Davie and Miss Millstead, who lived with the family.

Friday afternoon Mr. Davie left for Carterville, Ill. His wife and Miss Millstead accompanied him to the train. That was the last time they were seen alive.

The crime was evidently committed some time during the night while the women were asleep, for they were clad in their night clothes. The condition of the room indicated that it had been looted.

Both a revolver and a club were used in the double murder. Miss Millstead was shot in the right temple and her head was also crushed. Mrs. Davies' skull was crushed in a horrible manner.

New Jersey Corporations.

Trenton, N. J., April 25.—Articles of incorporation have been filed by the United States Worsted Company. The company's charter is general in its character, and it may operate in the United Sates and foreign countries. The incorporators are Samuel B. Lawrence, Henry C. Everett, George E. Spencer, of Brooklyn; Leavitt J Hunt, of New York, and James C. Young, of Jersey City. The capitalization of the company is $70,000,000, divided into 700,000, of which $30,000,000 worth is to be preferred, being a cumulative dividend of 7 per cent.

The American Plumbing Supply Company was also incorporated, with a capital stock of $30,000,000, of which $10,000,000 is to be preferred stock bearing a cumulative interest of 7 per cent. The incorporators are John B. Sunmmerfield, Henry M. Haviland, Robert P. Berry, Jr., and Armitage Matthews, of New York, and James Hunt.

Another company incorporated here is the New York Electric Brake & Coupler Company, with a capitalization of $1,000,000 divided into 10,000 shares. The incorporators are George W. Harrison, Edward B. Hawkins and Harry H. Picking, whose addresses are given as East Orange.

ARMY BEEF INQUIRY

General Miles's Representative at the Court of Inquiry Submits His Brief.

Washington, April 25.—Major J. H. Lee, who represented Gen. Miles before the Beef Court of Inquiry, has submitted to the court a brief reviewing the evidence submitted, and expressing his belief that the charges made by Gen. Miles against the beef supplied to the army have been sustained. He says:

"We believe these facts have been established beyond question, and we believe that a great fraud has been perpetrated upon the Government and a great crime committed upon its soldiers, and as to the party or parties who have commited this offence, and whether the evidence should be refered to the judicial officers of the Government in order that justice shall be done, are matters that we leave to the consideration of your honorable court."

Sues Mayor Jones For Fortune.

Toledo, April 25.—Mrs. Borroughs, better known as Marie Wilson, and her mother, Mrs. Wilson, after a vain attempt to secure the conviction of Workhouse Superintendent Bickwith and his assistants for robbery and meditated murder, have sued Mayor Jones and other city officials for $850,000 damages for false imprisonment. The women were sent to the workhouse for assaulting the mother of Peter Borroughs, who Marie Wilson declares is her husband, though he has repudiated her.

Fire at New Lisbon.

MAC ARTHUR ADVANCES.

Division Left Malolos With Investment of Calumpit As Its Supposed Object.

A FIGHT AT QUINGUA.

American Losses Severer in Proportion than in Any Other Fight With the Filipinos.

War Department Has Received No Further News From Otis Since the Despatch Briefly Outlining Our Loss—But Expect Fuller Details—Think the Conflict Important and Rejoice in Victory.

Washington, April 25.—The Administration regrets most keenly the serious losses in the fight at Quingua, in the Malolos region.

No news has been received at the War office from Gen. Otis, since the despatch containing the information concerning the loss of six killed and forty-three wounded in the battle at Quingua. It is recognized in Washington that a new and unfavorable factor must now be contended with in the Philippine campaign. That factor is the tropical heat which is at this season increasing every day.

Some anxiety is felt for the health of the soldiers, although the latest despatches on that subject are reassuring. The climate is by no means as deadly as that of Cuba, but continued hot weather in any latitude must be deleterious in its effect on troops engaged in a hard campaign. The situation will undoubtedly be relieved from time to time by the wisdom of the officers in charge of the campaign who will allow sufficient respite occasionally to allow the men to recover from the effect of hard marching and fighting in the sun.

Perhaps the battle of Quingua was less encouraging in its results than any engagement in which our troops in the Philippines have recently been employed. Our losses were comparatively heavy, and were very serious, while those of the natives were comparatively light, apparently.

Nevertheless, the victory for the Americans was complete and there was nothing like a retreat form a difficult position. The engagement, in the opinion of the War Department officers, must be regarded as another decisive gain in position by the troops under Gen. MacArthur's command.

Manila, April 25.—Gen. MacArthur's division left Malolos with the investment of Calumpit as its object.

The Fourth Cavalry and the Nebraska and Iowa regiments, under Gen. Hale, got under way before dawn, laying their course toward Kuinchua, where the river Bagbag can be forded.

Word came later that Gen. Hale had crossed the river and taken up a position within one-half mile of Calumpit, commanding the ford and the trenches adjacent thereto. Gen. Hale's troops gathered in a number of prisoners, who said that Aguinaldo is at Calumpit, together with Gen. Luna and the Filipino staff. The prisoners said that Aguinaldo's troops are in strong force.

Generals Wheaton and MacArthur, with the Montana and Kansas regiments, pushed forward to the left and right of the railroad, having with them an armed supply train, mounting two Gatlings and Colt's rapid-fire guns and a six-pounder.

An ineffectual attempt was made by the natives to burn the railway bridge near Calumpit.

The army is hampered by lack of men necessary to garrison captured towns when an advance is made, and upon this situation are hinged the rebel rumors of American reverses.

Would Keep Sage In.

New York, April 25.—A determined fight is to be made on behalf of Warden Sage, of Sing Sing, whose successor, Addison Johnson, a Republican leader of Westchester County, has been appointed by Superintendent of Prisons Collins.

The Prison Association, of this city has championed Mr. Sage's case, and claims that Mr. Johnson's appointment is illegal. An attempt will be made to bring the matter before the Grand Jury.

Freezing Better Than Burning.

Chicago, April 25.—George R. Seamans, of Austin, proposes to use liquid air to take the place of cremation.

"Cremation," he says, "is far more expensive than liquid air. The liquid costs about 35 cents a gallon, and four gallons would freeze a body into an icycle. Then the body would be reduced to a fine, glittering powder under a heavy roller."

Room in Iron Stock.

Glasgow, April 25.—The iron market was caught short owing to the London broker having lifted 150,000 tons. Scotch iron rose one shilling and seven pence a ton, and hematite one and nine pence. American iron, with the low state of stock, high wages and the Belgian strike, assisted in raising the price.

Col. Smith Made a General.

Washington, April 25.—The President has appointed Colonel James E. Smith, of the First California Volunteer Regiment, a Brigadier-General of Volunteers. The regiment is now in the Philippines. Gen. Smith will be assigned to one of the brigades of Gen. Otis's army.

Shamrock Nearly Ready.

Glasgow, April 25.—Captain Hogarth, of the Shamrock, has been summoned to London by Sir Thomas Lipton, as the vessel is now approaching completion. Captain Hogarth has personally supervised the fittings of the Shamrock, such as the masting, sails and running gear.

Calls Bryan Conspirator.

New York, April 25.—Perry Belmont has written to Colonel William Jennings Bryan a letter in reply to the Colonel's refusing to attend the Democratic Club's Jefferson dinner, in which he calls Bryan, Teller and others "fellow conspirators" to change the Democratic policy.

THREATENS SUICIDE.

Mrs. George Says She Will Destroy Herself if Convicted of Murder.

Canton, Ohio, April 25.—Mrs. George declares her intention to commit suicide if convicted of the murder of George D. Saxton.

She says: "Should the jury render a verdict against me, I will never go to the penitentiary. I will accept suicide as a last means of escaping the persecution that has been mine for ten years."

This she said to the best friend who has stood by her in her trouble, Mrs. Streeter, and the latter believes that the desperate woman would carry out her threat.

Sheriff Zazier does not think that his prisoner would resort to self-murder even if convicted, but he says he will take such precautions as to render such a step practically impossible.

Belief that the prisoner will be acquitted is growing here, and in that event it is understood that Mrs. George will bring suit for a widow's share in the estate left by George D. Saxton, on the ground that she was his common law wife. Saxton left real estate valued at about $150,000, which was divided among the children of his sister, Mrs. M. C. Barber, who was made executrix. Ohio laws are liberal toward common law marriages, and many believe Mrs. George would have a strong case.

SHOT FARM HAND.

Woman Kills Drunken Employe Who Tries to Break Into the House.

New York, April 25.—Fearful of her life, during a midnight attack on her home, Mrs. Charles Loring, of Bedford shot and killed John Rooney, a workman employed by her husband.

Mrs. Loring is the wife of a well-to-do farmer. Rooney was thirty-two years old, unmarried, and was employed by Loring to help on the farm. He had been drinking for three days but had kept away from the house.

Mr. Loring was in the city on business. About midnight, Rooney, crazed with drink, made his way to the house and bombarded it with stones. Mrs. Loring shot him thinking him a robber.

Loss of Life at a Fire.

New York, April 25.—A man and woman and two small children will likely die as a result of a fire in Williamsburg.

Those fatally injured are Guitamo Colombo, Constantine Fromato and her two children, Leonore and Drello, aged three and ten years respectively.

The children were thrown out from the third story by the frantic mother, who, after hurling her offspring to the sidewalk, leaped after them.

Leonore, when thrown, struck an iron picket fence which surrounds the house, fracturing her skull and sustaining internal injuries.

The boy struck the sidewalk, fracturing both arms and one leg, also sustaining internal injuries.

The frenzied mother received three broken ribs and a fractured skull. The physicians say they will die.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp, which Guitamo Colombo endeavored to throw after the explosion, into the street. His clothes ignited and he was compelled to drop the lamp. He was frightfully burned about the hands, face and body.

Suicide's Body Found.

Asbury Park, April 24.—The body of Charles Traux was found yesterday in the hayloft of G. Jackson's barn by young Charles Jackson, who, while after some hay, thrust a pitchfork into the body. Traux had evidently committed suicide. He had severed with a razor the arteries in his wrists, and had then crept under the hay in the barn to bleed to death. Traux left his home near New Bedford, a few miles south of here, a month ago. When he left he took a razor with him, remarking at the time that suicide was an easy death. He had not been seen since that time. His wife and family had instituted searching parties and for weeks the counry for miles around had been scoured for his body. A large reward was offered but no clew was obtainable.

Opposes Col. Miller's Promotion

Washington, April 25—Capt. G. F. F. Wilde of the United States steamship Boston, it is understood, has protested against the promotion of Col. Miller to a Brigadier-Generalship on the ground that Miller captured Iloilo. This is the first time officers of the army and the navy have had any differences in the campaign in the Philippines, and controversies of this character generally become department fights.

It appears that the capture of Iloilo was effected entirely by naval forces under the command of Capt. Wilde, and in the complaint it is stated that it was not until after the capture had been effected that the place was turned over to Col. Miller, who up to that time had had nothing to do with its capture. This statement is indorsed by Admiral Dewey.

Investigating Committee Adjourns.

New York, April 25.—For the present the Mazet Investigating Committee has finished its work. The committee returned to Albany and will present a preliminary report to the Assembly. The Assembly will instruct the committee to resume its labors, and the investigation will begin again a week or ten days after the Legislature's adjournment. The date mentioned for the committee to reassemble is May 9, but this is subject to change.

Mr. Croker appeared before the committee and explained that he was suffering from a boil on his neck and wished to go to Europe as soon as possible. The committee excused him until Aug. 29. He announced that he would go to Europe at one.

Burton C. Webster Free

Sing Sing, April 25.—Burton C. Webster, who shot and killed Charles E. Goodwin eight years ago for an alleged insult to Evelyn Granville, who was reputed to have been Webster's wife, left Sing Sing Prison yesterday a free man.

"In Old Madrid."

Madrid, April 25.—A despatch from Manila has been received here which says the Americans are being decimated by sickness and that the situation is serious.

Home endorsement it's salient point.

Mr. Robert Love, of 44 Duer street, member of the firm of Love Brothers grocers of 257 West Front street, says:—"I suffered from kidney complaint for eight or nine years; pain across the back and a lameness over the kidneys. Colds always settled there and aggravated the pain and lameness. At last my back grew weaker and any heavy lifting or too much standing or sitting gave me additional pain. In the mornings my back bothered me greatly until I moved about and took some exercise, when it became better to a certain extent. I doctored and used different kinds of so-called kidney cures, but it was throwing money away. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our paper, and being in bad shape at the time, I got a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. Before taking half of it my condition was greatly improved, and continuing their use, all the pain left me. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a grand medicine for kidney trouble and it gives me pleasure to recommend them whenever an opportunity presents itself."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Forster-Milburn Co., Buffalo N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

Suppressing "Cider Joints."

The strongest moral force that can be brought to bear against the disreputable business of the "cider joints" in Plainfield, Sundays, is the position taken up by Revs. Father Smyth and Westman, of St. Mary's church. These two clergymen have taken a stand that is admirable to a high degree and they should receive the hearty and through co-operation of all good people.

Three years ago The Daily Press took up this same subject and succeeded in inducing the Common Council to pass an ordinance aimed to curb the business of these places. The ordinance prohibiting the sale of cider on Sundays proved fairly effective in suppressing the nefarious trade for a time, but it is a conceded fact that the ordinance is openly and disgracefully violated today. However, judging from the manner of the patrons of these places the beverage known as "sweet cider" is a very much different decoction than the name implies.

The present condition of affairs emphasizes the fact that there must be something more than legal machinery brought into play to suppress this traffic. What is needed is an arousing of the moral energies of the people, and the action and voice of Fathers Smyth and Westman have proven an effective and initiative. We trust that the reverend gentlemen will not falter in their undertaking of striving to suppress this traffic, but that they will continue as aggressively as they started. They have gone at it in the right spirit and right manner. They should have the quick and earnest support of the citizens who desire to see the good name of the city preserved.

Though it is not a momentous matter, the right to construct and operate the drain designed to relieve cellars of surface water in the borough during certain parts of the year, is a franchise that ought to be extended into perpetuity. The Borough Council has shown a proper regard for the people's rights in making restrictions such as form the proposed ordinance submitted last night. It is gratifying to realize that even in small things municipal bodies are beginning to appreciate the value of public right and are prone to protect them properly.

The decision of Justice VanSyckel in setting aside the work of the county boulevard commissioners puts a serious obstacle in the way of John Kean's trolley plans if he is in earnest in his desires to build electric railways in Union County.

Shrewd political observers agree that Somerset county will provide good fighting grounds for the Democrats next fall. But partisan Republicans substitute winning for fighting in summing up the situation.

Mr. Croker will have a chance, while he is in Europe, to look over his private affairs and fully decide what his personal business is so that he will be fully prepared for his dog day interview with Mr. Moss.

John Wanamaker calls Senator Quay's acquittal another chapter of shame, and declares that Quay will not be allowed to rest from the charges made against him.

The people are the only ones who should own perpetual franchises. Individuals or sets of individuals should not share in privileges of their kind.

Revenge rather than justice rules the Georgia mind.

April showers will be due about May 1st.

BATTLEFIELDS IN THE PHILIPPINES.

There are names of places in the Philippines that will live in history because of the war. In peace they would have remained forever unknown to fame. This map gives accurately the locations of those places. Here also are presented portraits of two of the active leaders of American forces in the fighting around Manila. Note the queer weapons used by the Filipinos.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

"The Air Ship" will be presented at Music Hall tonight. It was constructed by Jos. M. Gaites for the sole purpose of amusing the public, and evidently he has succeeded, with the aid of John W. Young of the Broadway Theatre, N. Y. "The Air Ship" is equipped with stage settings worthy of a much larger production. These acts are not new but novel, and will arouse comment. A real air ship carrying fifteen persons is used to represent a trip to Klondike gold region, across the stage. Dawson City in winter is a vivid stage picture, while the flight of the air vessel forms the climax of the second act. It will be the first time such a picture was ever represented on the stage. New songs, dances and specialties will be introduced, which no doubt will serve to popularize the piece. "The Air Ship" is the result of the craze in the Southwest sometime ago over an aerial vessel which was as frequent in its appearance as sea serpents. While the author was at work on the piece, the title suggested itself to him as the best one, although at first he thought of calling it "An Aerial Trip to Klondike." The comprises some of the best talent in the country.

• • • • •

Ludicrous situations, brilliant wit, with a dash of spiciness, are the elements in which "Tangled Relations" will be dealt with at Music Hall tomorrow night. Alexander Bisson who wrote the French original is the author of "On and Off," "Masked Ball" and co-author of Charles Froman's greatest New York success "Because She Loved Him So." Therefore a new play by Alexander Bisson should receive a warm reception. The company has been carefully selected to interpret the different characters.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

In remodeling the old Governor Belcher house at East Jersey and Catharine streets, Elizabeth, workmen have come upon an iron slab, which, according to the inscription on it, was made in 1742. The slab was part of the old-fashioned fireplace, and stood upon end at its rear. On the surface of the slab is the date 1742, together with the intials E. V. The latter are seen at both ends. Between them are fleur-de-lis, embossed on the slab. The slab was used for the back piece, and evidently has been there ever since the house was first built. The timber of the house is in an excellent state of preservation, and the plastering is as strong as though just put in place. The walls between the rooms are filled in with brick, and most of these bricks which came from Holland, are stamped with the words "O. F. Maryett," evidently the name of the maker. The old house is said to have been owned in days gone by by Governor Belcher, Governor of the Colonies. In its day, it is said, Lafayette once was a guest under its roof, and it is also said General Washington was entertained there.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Next Thursday will be the celebration of Gen. Grant's birthday and no doubt there will be many informal celebrations of the day.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 25.—The workmen who are digging the trenches for the water pipes on the south side of the railroad track find a great difference in the hardness of the soil. While on the north side the soil was of a sandy nature, light and easily handled, on the south side the diggers strike a mass of shell and small stones through which it is almost impossible to force a way. When the men were working on the north side, it was nothing for a man to dig 200 feet a day, while on the south side it is almost impossible to see any progress.

William H. Cole scratched his hand with a rusty nail Friday, and is apprehensive of some trouble with it. The wound, although a slight one, refuses to heal, and gives him much pain. The hand is bound up, but does not get well as rapidly as it ought to.

Gray & Garretson have begun their work on the streets, sprinkling small stone over them, and filling up the holes.

The annual meeting of the Presbyterian church will be held May 4th. Two trustees will be elected.

Mr. Huffman has moved from the Todd building to Michael Monyhan's house on North avenue.

Isaac J. Stites attended the funeral of a relative at Metuchen Sunday morning.

Alexander Hunt, of Westfield, spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Josephine Dunham,

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Maier spent Sunday with Mrs. Maier's parents in Cranford.

Prospect avenue was closed to travel yesterday while repairs were being made.

Mrs. Wilson Frederick spent yesterday with relatives in Somerville.

Miss May Apgar, of Front street, spent Saturday in New York.

John Runyon entertained his sister from Piscataway Sunday.

W. H. Evans, of New York, is stopping with J. E. Henry.

John Fenner visited his parents in Pluckamin Sunday.

Mrs. Alvah Gray is visiting relatives in Glen Gardner.

The sidewalks on North avenue are being graded.

George Harris is riding a new Defiance wheel.

Mrs. Emily Apgar spent Sunday in New York.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, April 25th—The concert given in the Baptist church Sunday night last by the Junior Mission Band was a success in every way. The singing and recitations were well rendered, and the entertainment was enjoyed by everyone who attended. Recitations or songs were given or sung by Ethel Gaskill, Florence and Bertha Nelson, Mabel Leslie, Lester Nelson, Frank Coriell, Ethel Garretson, Annie Winges and Kathrine Krouse. When the mite boxes were opened $10 was found in them. The basket collection amounted to $9 more, which made a neat little sum. The money will be used to pay the expenses of a colored girl who is being educated at Mobile, Ala. Although the band has only been in existence a short time, there are already 24 members. Mrs. S. R. Dayton and Mrs. H. C. Gaskill deserve great credit for the success they have had with the little ones, most of whom are under ten years of age.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 25—It is expected that the old liberty pole will soon be the possessor of a fine new flag. Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., have taken the matter in charge and hope to be able to unfurl the new "Old Glory" on Decoration Day.

Miss Ella Squier, of Rahway, has been secured as an assistant teacher in the primary department of the Public School. Miss Squier is a graduate of the Trenton Normal School and will make a valuable addition to the efficient corps of teachers.

Fanwood Council, R. A., meet in their rooms this evening. A large attendance is desired as Orator Collins has a very pleasant programme arranged for duty 17.

Mrs. Albert Darby, of Plainfield, was the guest of her mother, Mrs. John R. Marsh, Monday.

Charles Wade led the Epworth League meeting in the Methodist church Sunday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Westcott, of Fanwood, are entertaining their niece from New York, for a few days.

George Schick is out with a handsome new awning in front of his tonsorial rooms.

Mrs. Hurlburt and Miss Ethel Marsh have returned from a visit with relatives in Newark.

John R. Haskard, and family, of Clinton avenue, spent Sunday with mother.

Miss Refier has returned from a pleasant visit with her sister in Westfield.

John Wade has returned from a visit with his uncle at Lyon's Farms.

Frederic Schmidt spent Monday evening with friends in Plainfield.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

A New Store Opens Tomorrow in Plainfield.

It won't be the biggest store in Plainfield—we shall prove that mere bigness isn't everything in storekeeping.

This much we promise—No store in Plainfield shall be safer or pleasanter to trade in. Certainly we have the newest, brightest stocks—and we shall make the service as prompt and agreeable as possible.

The beauty of the store, the dainty white enameled finish, the costly fixtures, the rich carpets and mirrors, all are part of this agreeable service. It is to be a pleasant store. But not a High-Priced Store or an Exclusive Store, except that poor qualities shall not be admitted. Very low prices for very good goods will be our strongest claim for custom.

We shall not try to keep everything. The store is limited as to size. You do not like to choose from a hodge-podge stock. We shall take a few lines only and carry them in COMplete assortments.

Come tomorrow or Thursday or any day and judge us by what you see.

You are sure of NEWNESS in everything you buy in this new store. We shall make you equally sure of Excellence, of Desirability, of Low Prices.

HOME DRESSMAKING.

HOW TO CUT AND FIT THE LATEST STYLES OF SKIRTS.

Olive Harper Gives Some Simple and Practical Information For the Benefit of Women Who Make Their Own Gowns and Jackets.

[Copyright, 1899, by American Press Association.]

THERE are two leading styles in skirts, one being what is known as the three piece skirt, which is adapted to many requirements. It must hang just right. If it is cut wrong, it will sag at the sides in a very short time.

It requires 4½ yards of double width material to cut it. The pieces left can be utilized in the making of the jacket. The front breadth is cut on the straight with the fold in the center, unless a bias stripe or plaid effect is desired. In such a case there should be a seam in the center. The piece is cut in exactly the same way, but is cut apart in the middle and the two slanting seams sewed together, taking care that the stripes or checks exactly match.

In cutting the other two breadths the cloth should be spread out upon a large surface so that the whole pattern can be laid upon it. Measure the length from the points shown by the dotted line which is the fold. That will give the length. Double this over so that the selvages are even and then pin your pattern on. This pattern you can draft yourself.

To draft the pattern get the length of your skirt measure front and back. The front is 6 inches across the top and 18 at the bottom. The slope is easy by folding the stuff diagonally and following the fold, measuring on the double 3 inches at the top and 9 inches at the bottom. Cut along the fold.

The back breadths must be cut flat. Lay the doubled material opened out to its full width on the table. Measure both edges and mark the proper length with a piece of chalk, being sure that the fold in the goods runs like the dotted line. The top of these pieces measures 16 inches each and a curve of an inch is made along the top.

Two darts 5 inches deep are marked on the stuff, to be taken in later to fit the figure. When the top and two outside lines are drawn with the tape line, measure from just over the back dart to the bottom and mark a dot; then another measure and dot at the bottom just back of the second dart.

The back is sloped from one to six inches longer than the front, according to taste and the use to which the dress is to be put. After the dots have been marked it is easy to draw a curve line. The two back breadths should measure 48 inches each at the bottom.

When the skirt is cut the lining is cut exactly the same. The stiff facing should be cut just exactly the same shape as the outside and stitched flat to the lining after having been solidly basted. When these two are fastened together, they may be basted to the outside and then the three seams basted together, always beginning at the top.

Then the darts are to be taken in, so that the waist would exactly fit over the hips, using only that part in front of the star. All back of that is either gathered or laid in one fold each side the placket.

Basting is a very important part, and no dress can be expected to hang well unless the seams have been properly basted. Then they can be sewed. Press the seams apart. Then put on the facing of mohair, sewing that to the stiff lining by hand. The edge can be bound with velveteen or have a row of one of the brush edge bindings. A line of featherbone skirt tape down each front seam makes it set better. Press the seams again and sew on the binding and finish the placket with two rows of six buttons and loops.

NO. 1.

1 to 3, breadths of skirt; 4 to 9, parts of jacket; 10, back of finished jacket.

Tunics are made to wear with this shape only. Flounces and net or silk mull overdresses are applied only over this shaped foundation, and alone it is one of the best and most popular shapes if properly made.

The jacket requires a silk or satin lining and three small pockets. All seams are opened and pressed flat, except the four in the back below the waist line. The sleeves are in one piece. Where the line is on piece 4 four silk buttons are set, and there is a fly to fasten them to. The jacket is single breasted. A row of featherbone stitched along the edge makes the lapels sit well.

To draft the pattern you should measure from top of shoulder to the length you wish in front and under arms. The dart takes up one inch. The back is to be measured in length and across; also the bust and waist measure are taken, and that gives the right length and breadth, and the eye can follow the shape.

The new sheath, or flare, skirt has from seven to nine gores, but none measures more than 4½ yards around the bottom. Where there are nine they are narrower, and where seven wider.

To draft the pattern, take the skirt measure for the front breadth, allowing 8 inches at the top and 12 at the hip line, and 20 at the bottom. At the bend of the knee slope the sides in 1½ inches in the middle. This throws the bottom out in a flare. The breadth marked 2 measures 4 inches at the top and 14 at the bottom, and is rounded out one inch over the hips at the dotted line and sloped in an inch at the knee.

The breadths marked 3 are cut almost the same, only are not curved out quite so deeply. They measure 4 inches at the top, 5½ at the hip and 12 at the bottom.

These five breadths, cut as they are, give the distinguishing features to this skirt—viz, the sheath shape around the hips and the flare at the bottom. The other four are cut with straight edges, 4 inches at the top and 12 at the bottom. The front side of the No. 4 breadths is on the straight, and the back edge bias. The back seam of No. 5 is on the straight and the sides bias. This style of skirt is generally made longer than is usual for walking dresses.

The front breadth is always cut with the fold in the center, though in some tailor costumes a seam is placed there, opened out and stitched down on both sides. This is quite ornamental. Those marked 2 are, after the lining is carefully basted to the outside, basted from the top downward; those numbered 3, 4 and 5 also. This basting requires to be firmly done, so that the skirt may be tried on before it is sewed. The five first pieces should fit closely around the hips. Measure the hips before cutting to make sure of sufficient room.

The four back breadths are simply for folds, and they are to be closely shirred at the top. Where stiff facing is liked, the hairbone cloth, six inches deep, is best.

There are two ways of finishing the front side seams. One is to press them

NO. 2

1 to 5, breadths of the skirt; 6 to 8, rounded tunic and serpentine flounces; 9, pointed tunic; 10, finished tunic.

flat open and the other to sew them once and then turn the seam over and strap stitch it on the right side. This shows a fold along down the sides, giving a tuniclike effect. The next two seams on each side are pressed open flat, but the three back seams are not pressed at all, but have a line of featherbone tape sewed in with the seam. This makes the back breadths fall naturally into four round folds.

It requires 3¼ yards of 44 inch goods to cut this skirt, providing that there is no figure and no nap. Then four breadths can be cut from one width of cloth doubled, laying one pattern up and one down.

The tunic is now a fixture. In figure is shown half of the new rounded tunic. To cut it, open out double width material, allowing the curved part to lie along the selvage and the back seam bias. It can be made as long or short as one wishes and may be hemmed or stitched or otherwise trimmed according to the material. If hemmed or stitched only, it should almost reach the bottom of the dress.

Figures 8 and 7 show the shape of the serpentine flounces that are added to the fine cloth tailor made tunics. Fig. 7 is for the upper part of the curve, the narrowest point coming to the waist and the wider at the lower part. When such a ruffle is added to the lower portion of the tunic, it is sewed in a seam and then pressed flat upward and a ribbon or silk tape sewed over it.

On the diagram No. 6 there are two darts shown, which, when taken up, should bring the tunic to exactly the size of the waist.

The shawl point tunic is for the softer goods and those to be worn over more ornate skirts. Fig. 9 shows half the pattern. The upper point is that for the front, and the dotted line shows where the seams come. The other point is the back, and there is a seam there. No lining is required for this tunic. The darts are to be taken in deep enough to fit the tunic snugly over the hips. A tape should be sewed in with the bias seam in the back to prevent sagging. The placket is hemmed and staid by a straight piece of the material. Fig. 10 shows the tunic as it looks finished.

OLIVE HARPER.

SCOTCH TENANTS' DINNERS

Humorous Breaks Made by Farmers at Such Functions.

Could the funny sayings and incidents at the tenants' dinners in Scotland be recollected they would make an unrivalled book of humor. Mistakes of an amusing and sometimes an embarrassing nature occur frequently at such functions. One story is told of a guest at a Scotch tenants' dinner who tasted ice cream for the first time on that occasion. He pushed a large spoonful of the frozen mixture into his mouth and jumped from his chair with agony expressed on his face. He let out a yell and cried out "Ow, ow, ma rotten tooth," and could not be induced to eat any more.

At another Scottish affair of the kind a good old farmer was seated next to the hostess. She served him a bit of savory omelette, which seemed to cause the old man deep disappointment. His idea of an omelette had always been a dessert with sugar, or fruit or jams, and after tasting the sample before him he turned to the hostess and said, "Weel, ma lady, I canna compliment you on your puddins." The late Duke of Buccleuch told a story of a tenant at one of the farmers' dinners on his estates, who was asked by the Duchess if he would take some rhubarb, a dish she was fond of. The farmer was surprised, but answered politely, "I'm muckle obleeged to your Grace, but I dinna need it."

Rouge Et Noir.

"Ah didn't kiss Melinda."
"Yus yo' did."
"Wha' for yo' say dat?"
"From yo' own lips!"
"Ah didn't say so!"
"No, but yo' hab pink rouge on yo' lips, an' Melinda am de only gal dat uses pink."

The One Gayety at a Watering Place.

It was a stupid Southern country watering place, designed especially to catch the Northern fly.

We were there two days, during which it rained all the time. At last the clerk of the hotel, taking pity on our desolation, told us that there was to be a "coon wedding" that night, and that we could go and see the ceremony and the dance afterward.

A collection was taken up for the happy couple, and a wedding present devised. I thought that something literary might do, just for the fun of the thing.

I went to the newspaper stand and in the midst of copies of Laura Jean Libbey and Hall Caine, I found one bound book. It was quite gorgeous, and the newsman told me that he had had it for several years, and was quite delighted when I bought it. It had been a kind of mascot, and he was rather loath to part with it.

It was one of H. G McVickar's novels, and with dark lilac ribbons I sent it to the dusky bride. Its title was appropriate for the occasion, "The Purple Light of Love," and a bunch of lilacs was also sent in lieu of the customary fleurs d'oranges.

And that is how I remember the McVickar literature.

Love's Signature in the Wrong Place.

A short time since the daughter of a Hull millionaire drove up to the door of a jeweler's shop, went in and selected a turquoise and diamond ring valued at £50. She made out her check for that sum and passed it to the assistant. The alert young man glanced at it and then looked inquiringly up at the young lady and said: "There is some mistake here I think."

The young lady flushed and asked if the check was not for the right amount. She was told it was, but——

"But what?" she exclaimed frigidly. "Do you mean that my check is not acceptable?"

The assistant acknowleded that he knew who the young lady was, but explained that the check was not made out just as it should be. And he handed it back. The girl ran her eye over it and then turned a deep crimson.

"Oh," she exclaimed. "I see!" And then she proceeded to make out another check. She had signed the first one "Your own sweetheart, Jessie."

He Collected the Collector.

"Yes," said the business man, "I have given up trying to collect that little bill from Bilkins. You see, he is a pretty big fellow, and he used to throw my collectors out."

"Then why didn't you employ a woman collector? He couldn't do that to a woman."

"That's what I thought. So I got one and sent her around, but she never came back."

"Why not?"

"He married her."—Answers.

Financial Advice.

"Here's a man," said the old citizen, "who lost $5,000 in a bank, whar he put it fer safe keepin'. Bill, don't you ever take no risk like that. Ef ever you gits hold of any money, de like yer father before you done—bury it an' spen' the rest of yer life settin' over it with a shotgun!"

MERCERIZED COTTON.

JOBBERS IN COTTON SELLING MORE SILK THAN THE SILK MEN.

All the Material that Silk Shirt Waists are Made of Comes from Cotton—It is Steadily Supplanting Silk—Nine-tenths of the Silk Shirt Waists are Mercerized Cotton.

A jobber in cotton goods remarked to a New York silk merchant not long since that he was selling more silk goods than the silk merchant was.

"How is that?" asked the latter, suspecting a joke.

"Why, I am selling all of the material that silk shirt waists are made of," replied the jobber, smiling significantly. "Don't you comprehend the inroads that mercerized cottons are making into your trade? The process of mercerizing, or 'silkifying,' cotton cloth has reached such a stage of perfection in Europe that Germany, Switzerland and even France are sending to this country enormous quantities of cotton goods that few persons can distinguish from silk. Nine-tenths of all of the women's silk shirt waists made here recently have been made of mercerized cotton.

The jobber spoke the truth, as the records of the United States appraiser's office in New York will testify. Within the past year the importation of mercerized cotton has increased to a very large extent. In various ways this class of goods is steadily supplanting silk, and it wears even better than some of the grades of silk that it supplants, there is a steady growth in the demand for it. For shirtings, certain grades of linings, umbrella covers and upholstery goods the mercerized cottons are fast usurping the field formerly held by silk alone. It is cheaper than silk and the duty on it is about 15 per cent. less. Some of the pieces of mercerized silk dress goods that have lately come to this country would readily be mistaken for genuine silk. It has the lustre and sheen, and dry goods men say that the mercerized goods will last longer than the silk. Mercerized cotton yarn is declared by experts in the appraiser's office to be twenty-five per cent. stronger than the unmercerized yarn.

The color in the warp of these mercerized goods is imparted by an insoluble and inextractable coloring matter inherent in the fibre; the physical construction of the fibre is changed by the action of caustic soda. Mercerizing machines have been put in operation all over Europe, and the probability is that these goods will drive out of the market entirely some of the cheaper grades of silks. Although the duties on mercerized cottons are considerably less than the duties on silks goods, it is the opinion of observant customs officers that the Government will not be a loser because of this extraordinary growth in the demand for mercerized goods. There are certain novelties which are mercerized, now coming into market in large quantities, which would not have been imported for the success of the mercerizing process. The diminution of the silk importations will not be sufficient, though it may be considerable, to counteract the increased revenues afforded by the larger importations of mercerized cottons.

The mercerized goods are even invading the realm of woolens and of velvets. Mercerized fabrics in imitation of both woolens and velvets have made their appearance. Only a few weeks ago a unique importation of dress goods from Germany was made here. The goods were of cotton but made in imitation of worsted with rich silk stripes. On close examination it was found that the "silk stripes," were also cotton, mercerized. Scarcely a week passes now-a-days that something new in the way of mercerized goods does not come before the public.

A Fire Proof Tree.

The Chaparro tree of the United States of Columbia is credited with a phenomenal endurance of fire. The tree—botanically known as Phopsala obvata—grows to a height of fifteen to twenty feet, and its distorted trunk measures from nine to twelve inches in diameter. In Tolima where other trees are nearly all destroyed by the persistent burning of the savannahs and hills for renewing pasturage, the Chaparro not only resists the fire but seems actually to seek it. In the lower hills, reduced to sterility by the incessant burnings, hundreds of square miles are covered by growths of these little trees, which are as regular in arrangement as in a carefully cultivated plantation. The resistance of the tree is due to the structure of the bark, of which the outer portion, to the depth of half an inch is of peculiar composition and serves no vital function.

A Robin's Costly Nest.

Mrs. George A. Sammis, of Huntington, L. I., placed three pieces of rare old lace on the lawn beside her residence, one morning recenty, to bleach. Each was more than a half yard in length and of medium width. In about two hours they were missing. It was thought that some person, knowing their value, had stolen them. Later, the servant girl remembered that she saw a bird fly past the window with something fluttering from its beak. Investigation in the direction the bird was flying soon revealed the laces. A robin had worked them up into material for the most comfortable nest imaginable. They were recovered somewhat damaged.

But Not as Good.

SHE KEPT HIM A BACHELOR.

Yet Gave Him the Start in Life That Made Him a Success.

A Michigan lawyer, whose success has been an established fact for years, tells one incident in his life, from which he dates his prosperity:

"I had gone from a farm up in New Hampshire to Boston. In worldly matters I was deplorably ignorant, but in book lore I must have been something of a phenomenon, for so much that I have read was literature such as occupied the thoughts of the scholar a century or so ago. I had said farewell to the folks at home, and positively assured them that when I came back I would be a lawyer.

"I had my whole campaign mapped out, and you can infer I was a novice from my line of procedure. In my mind the Mayor of a great city exercised a sort of patriarchal sovereignty. From what I had read in my old books he was the father of his people. So I went to the Mayor of Boston; not to his office, but to his house, in the evening, and without invitation. He was the central figure in some sort of social function, and I was practically paralyzed when ushered into his august presence. The fine ladies about him put the finishing touches on my timidity. As I look back I can recall that I would speak at first, then think, and finally suffer indescribable horrors. I was in a state of irresponsible extinction. But it was one of those same fine ladies that came to my rescue. With a tact that would have won her fame as a cross-examiner, she drew me out, was delighted with the quaint knowledge that I possessed, interested the Mayor in spite of himself, and he actually put me into an office where I was self-sustaining from the start.

"When admitted to the bar I found an opening to come West and have always been satisfied that it was the Mayor who found it for me. I tried to induce that fine young lady to come with me, but she was just as tactful in refusing my proposal as she had been in helping me to a start. I think it is her fault that I am a lawyer, and I know it's her fault that I'm a bachelor."—Detroit Free Press.

THE CAMEL'S HUMP.

The Latest Scientific Explanation of Its Origin and Purpose.

Where did the camel get its hump?

Be it known that camels did not originally have humps on their backs. So says Professor Cattaneo, of the Italian Institute of Science. The proof that they did not and the explanation of why they have them now is given by this savant in a recently published monograph, which is the result of scientific study of the subject.

The llama is known to have been used as a beast of burden centuries before the discovery of the western hemisphere, but it is asserted that thousands of years before the first llama carried a load upon its back the camel had been domesticated and was used for the transportation of burdens.

It is upon this point that the Italian savant rests his theory as to the formation of that animal's hump. In the beginning, he says, the camel, like the llama, was straight of back, but a hundred centuries, perhaps, of making a pack animal of the camel have brought about the change. At first the skin grew loose upon the camel's back. Then there and upon its knees the skin grew thick and callous. Soon nature began to pad this burdened part with fat and muscle; then for countless generations heredity did its work; little by little the hump grew, until it finally acquired its present size.

The use of the camel in the desert places of the world also played its part in the formation of this portion of its anatomy. For, being forced to go without food for days at a time, nature came to the rescue of the camel and providently stored these humps with fat which should nourish the beast through its periods of privation.—New York Journal.

A Narrow Escape.

A very quiet and unobstructive grocer, now living in Omaha, was, so years ago, a scout and frontiersman in Nebraska and the Dakotas, when buffalos and Indians were plenty. One day he was out on a hunt for game to supply a party he was guiding, when he encountered a small herd of buffalo. He had brought down two of the big animals and was aiming at a third, when the herd, instead of running away, ran directly toward him. He was more surprised than alarmed, as he had a good pony under him, but as he wheeled when the herd surrounded him, the pony slipped and fell. There was only one way to escape being trampled to death; he seized the mane of the nearest buffalo and vaulted on its back. The strange steed stayed with the herd for a mile or more, and then struck off for itself. Taking advantage of this move, the scout, with his revolver, shot it behind the left fore leg, and down it came to the ground. "I was well satisfied with three buffaloes that trip," said the old-time hunter, "and I'd been satisfied with that last one only."—Golden Days.

Pleasant Woman to Live With.

"The weather is very trying for everybody," says the physician.

"Yes," replied Mr. Meckton, "I don't see how my wife is going to bear up under it. When the sun doesn't shine it gives her the blues, and when it does she says it's fading the carpet.—Odds and Ends.

A WISE CROW IS DICK.

The Bird Seemed to Understand His Mistress' Remark.

Mrs. James D. Martin of North Bennington, Vt., has a crow that is a born humorist. It is continually playing pranks on the different members of the Martin household. The bird's name is "Dick."

"Dick" has a strong love for jewelry, and never allows an opportunity to steal a ring or other ornament to pass. Recently Mrs. Martin missed a plain gold ring. She at once suspected the crow of being the thief.

"'Dick,'" she said, "where is the ring you stole?"

"Dick" cocked his head pertly to one side, and then looked at his mistress from the corner of his little beady eyes. He shook his black head violently, and then flew out of the open window to the limb of a nearby tree.

"There's no use trying to do anything with that crow," said Mrs. Martin. "The rascal has hidden it somewhere, and we will never find it again. I know what I'll do. I'll just have the men kill that crow."

"Dick" evidently had overheard every word, for he peered into the room anxiously, even in a manner betokening fright. When Mrs. Martin entered the room an hour or so later she found the ring lying on a table. "Dick" was demurely perched on the back of a chair.

"So you did bring the ring back, did you?" said Mrs. Martin, sharply eyeing the bird.

"Dick" looked at her for a moment, and then hopping from the chair to the floor, tried in a manner that was extremely ludicrous to beg her pardon.—Cor. New York Press.

A BATTLE IN THE SEA.

The Menhaden More Afraid of the Blue Fish than the Shark.

Did you ever see bluefish charge a school of menhaden at sea? That is something worth seeing. The bluefish throw their lines forward until they almost surround the menhaden, and then attack them flank and rear. The menhaden fairly make the water boil in their efforts to escape, while all around the enemy is at them tearing relentlessly.

Into all this commotion comes a great shark. It's a picnic for the shark, a school of menhaden all herded up for its benefit. It swims leisure into the midst of them, opens its mouth, and takes in half a dozen menhaden at a gulp. It swims around and bites out half a dozen more from the school. It gorges itself without effort.

But the menhaden are not nearly as much disturbed by the presence of the monster swimming about among them as they are by the charging bluefish. The shark takes half a dozen fish or more at a bite, while the bluefish only bites a piece out of a single fish, but there is only one shark, while there may be thousands of bluefish, plunging and tearing incessantly and maiming at every stroke.

The shark's a brute, but under such circumstances the menhaden has less of fear than it has of contempt for him.

SOLDIERS' BEDS.

The French Soldiers' Bed the Best of Any in Foreign Countries.

The soldier's bed varies notably in the different European armies. According to Dr. Viry, the following are the principal varieties, in which, perhaps, we may see the reflection of national characteristics. In England the bed is hard; the soldier lies on a thin mattress that rests on canvas stretched over a frame. In Spain the soldier has only a straw bed, but he is allowed besides this a pillow, two sheets, two blankets and a covered quilt, sometimes even a cover for the feet. It is almost sybaritic. In Germany and Austria he has a simple straw bed with one or two covers, neither sheet nor mattress. In Russia, until recently, the soldier slept with his clothes on, on a camp bed; but now ordinary beds begin to be used—the result of contact with more civilized countries. After this, it cannot be doubted that the French soldier's bed is the best of all, with its wooden or iron bedstead, a straw bed, a good mattress, sheets, a brown woolen coverlet and an extra quilt for cold weather. Thus the bed of the French soldier is the softest of all soldiers' beds, as that of the French peasant is acknowledged also to be the best of all European countries.—British Medical Record.

Discipline—Military vs. Domestic.

A courier had arrived, bringing the intelligence that Troop B was surrounded by hostiles, and was standing them off with the greatest difficulty; that, unless aid reached them very shortly, Troop B was doomed to massacre.

The quiet post sprang to arms. Troopers and officers hurried hither and thither. Noise and confusion, tempered by discipline, reigned. In an incredibly short time the bugles sounded boots and saddles, and the battalion filed out.

There was no song, no jesting nor laughter to lighten the march in all that column. The peril of their comrades weighed upon each heart; the stern determination to save or terribly avenge was stamped upon each face.

Suddenly there was a sharp exclamation, and one of the troopers, with a pale, set face, turned his horse from the column and trotted back toward the post. In another moment an officer swiftly gained his side and, with a wrench that nearly jerked him from the saddle, stopped him.

"You cowardly cur," hissed the officer, "what does this mean?"

"I—I forgot to tell my wife that I wouldn't be home to supper," exclaimed the trooper.—Philadelphia Press.

SOME NEW DRINKS.

WHAT SOME OF OUR NEW LANDS PRODUCE.

Strange Concoctions Which Soothe the Nerves of Hardened Topers—Others that Don't—The Porto Rican Cocktail—Hawaiian Nerve Destroyer.

With the annexation of new territory by the United States the nimble fingered dispenser of liquid refreshments finds it incumbent upon him to extend his repertoire, while the devotee of Bacchus has thrust upon him newly and strangely compounded assuagers of the demon Thirst. From Cuba, from Porto Rico, from the Philippines and from the Sandwich Islands come liquid fancies—some native, some invented by residents of more extensive experience, but one and all different from the flips and coolers and cocktails, daisies and sours and mashes of our native land.

First of all must be considered pimento that fragrant stimulant with endless possibilities known so well in Cuba. A glass well filled with ice, a lime well squeezed, a dash of pimento dram, a spray of seltzer or club soda, the mixture then well stirred, and you have a fizz which many think better by far than one of gin or whiskey.

Molasses or brown sugar takes the place of syrup in the drinks of Porto Rico and Manila. They give a peculiar flavor much liked by the natives, but which is not always appreciated by others. In any of the recipes given gum may be substituted for molasses if desired, although in some cases it is the latter which gives the distinctive flavor.

Another tropical cocktail has for its base one-third part of vanilla cordial. To this are added two-thirds brandy and a dash of pimento dram. The oil from a bit of lemon rind adds zest to the tipple, and is squeezed upon the top after stirring.

Rice wine is not unknown here, although in no great demand. Mulled it is quite a favorite in the Philippines where, under a warm sun, its intoxicating effects are fully appreciated. A gun barrel is generally used by the natives in preparing the mulled potion, a superstition prevailing that the drink thus compounded absorbs some of the peculiarly effective fighting qualities of the gun and gives strength accordingly.

More deadly than rice wine is barley ale. Old and experienced drinkers have been brought to grief by a couple of glasses of this palatable intoxicant. It is sometimes mixed with lemon juice to deaden the effects, but for the average American the fascinating flavor is destroyed by such treatment.

Sandwich Islanders are extremely fond of cocoanut milk, but the American and European residents improve on the natural liquor by adding a liberal dash of brandy and shaking the whole with ice.

Samoans have a fermented drink made from awa root, which, however, is not popular with whites who have once experienced its effects. According to report, one glass is sufficient to put the average man under the table, while three or four glasses have been known to put seasoned drinkers in bed for a week.

A favorite cocktail in Havana is made of one-quarter curacao, one-quarter maraschino, one-quarter brandy, a few drops of lemon juice and a dash of quino bitters. The mixture is well stirred with ice and strained into thin glasses.

Curacao and maraschino in equal quantities is a favorite cordial. It is served alone or with a dash of quino bitters on the top. These bitters are much used in the West Indies in all drinks. They are a pleasant stimulant and excellent stomach tonic. They are made from the bark of a tree resembling cinchona.

Guirdilec is made in some parts of the Sandwich Islands. It is prepared from sugar cane. The cane is chopped into pieces an inch or so in length and placed in a trough exposed to the sun. Water is added from time to time as fermentation progresses. When this has reached the proper stage the mass is distilled over a slow fire.

To import new sensations to a hardened palate a moderate use of meqonao is recommended, but long continued use of this tipple results in the complete shattering of the nervous system. The manufacture of meqonao is carried on principally in Honolulu. Native coffee is first roasted and crushed, then mixed with an equal part by weight of molasses and water. The mass is allowed to ferment and the wine is then distilled.

For "long" drinks residents of the Philippines have compounded two delicious beverages which vie with one another for preference in the popular taste. Both are new to New Yorkers, although the ingredients are readily obtainable here. The foundation of one consists of cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg, with strips of orange and lemon peal, the juice of an orange and lemon, three ponies of brandy, one pony of rum and a like quantity of conichuaro. These ingredients should be placed in an earthen bowl for two hours, after which the liquor may be drawn off, iced and served.

The other "long" drink is made by taking equal parts of all the fruits available—limes, lemons, oranges, bananas, pineapples, pears, peaches, grapes, figs, raisins, and berries. These are crushed together in an earthen mortar, water is added and the whole is boiled for twenty minutes. After being allowed to cool and settle the clear liquor is drawn off. To every quart of liquor add two ponies of brandy, one pony of curacao, one pony maraschino, and one-half pony of rum. Mix thoroughly, strain and bottle for future use. Serve with cracked ice.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Plainfield Juniors defeated the Clinton avenue Juniors a second time at baseball Saturday afternoon by a score of 42 to 20. The batteries were Trotter and Bird for the victors, and Utzinger and Nostrum for their opponents.

The Plainfield High School was way ahead of the Newark Academy as far as pitchers were concerned in the game at Newark Saturday. Edwards was in good form and Squires held him well. Newark tried a new man in the box at first and he was hammered all over the field. Then their old twirler took his place but the Plainfield boys were batting hard and he was hit rather hard. Between the two of them, they only struck out three men while Edwards struck out nine. Edwards also made a reputation as a batter. After two long drives, they refused to give a chance to hit the ball and sent him to first on four balls.

There was general disappointment over the game between the Plainfield High School and Newark Academy in Newark, Saturday morning. The Plainfield boys ought to have won and their score book gave victory by one run. The Newark scorer made the final result 19 to 19 and, naturally, the Newark team insisted that he was correct. Rather than end with a quarrel, the High School boys agreed to call it a tie and let the next game, which will be played in Plainfield, settle the series. With a little more practice, the High School boys are quite confident of defeating the Newark Academy team by a good score.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Dr. Endicott has purchased a Columbia chainless bicycle from the Columbia agency on Park avenue; and S. H. Allen and Miss Goslin, too, are riding Columbias bought at the same place.

If the Irvington Town Council sticks to a decision made at its meeting last Tuesday night it is probable that the Irvington-Milburn road race may not be run this year. The Council decided to make the Associated Cycling Clubs, under whose auspices the event is held, furnish a bond of $2,000 and pay the town $50 for additional police protection. "I don't know positively how Mr. Kohlmeyer, chairman of the Race Committee, feels about it," said W. A Drabble, chairman of last year's Race Committee, "but I would not for a moment consent to the terms Irvington has imposed upon us, and I don't think he would. I am acting in an advisory capacity for him. There's not a cent of money in running this meet. Last year we came out behind. If the town stands by this decision the chances are there will be no race."

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Albert Hedden, the liveryman, has a new road team.

While in New York recently, C. V. D. Corle purchased a three-year-old bay colt with a record of 2.22¼. Albert Pope, of Park avenue, also has a fast horse, one with a record of 2:15, and that was bought from Abe Case, of High Bridge.

A BREATHING PLACE FOR THE POOR.

Westfield Fresh Air Camp Plan for the Summer's Work.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Westfield, April 25.—The executive committee of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp Association held a meeting last night in the W. C. T. U. rooms here, and talked over matters pertaining to the work of the camp for the coming summer.

Officers for the new year were elected as follows: President, Mr. Wolff; first vice-president, Arthur M. Pierson; second vice-president, Miss Florence G Hawkins, of Plainfield; treasurer, Miss Love, and secretary, Miss Mahr.

Improvements costing about $75 are needed about the buildings, and it was voted to appropriate that sum. Miss Curry, matron of the camp for the past four years, gave a short talk during which she outlined her work, and there were also other talks by different ones present. Miss Currie will still hold the position of matron for the coming year, and it is expected more work among the poor of New York will be done during this summer than at any time since the camp has been in operation.

A VERY GREAT ELECTION.

Y. M. C. A. Debaters Discuss Anglo-American Alliance.

The Y. M. C. A. Literary Society attempted to settle the question of an Anglo-American alliance last evening. The debate was on the question, "Resolved, that an Anglo-American alliance would be advantageous to the United States." The speakers for the affirmative side were Thomas A. Cuming and Henry Eggerding. O. S. Rogers and N. D. Drake were for the negative. Owing to the few points advanced by both sides the debate was not decided.

The programme also included readings by C. W. Sprague and R. W. Davis and an essay by George Weeks Sandford, the president. Two new members were elected and one application for membership was received.

Miss Kittie Graves, of Liberty street, has secured a position of bookkeeper in M. B. Walker's grocery store at Westfield.

Wm. Vail, a former resident of this city, and at one time a member of the Minnie Lester Company, is now living in New York, and is a student at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, where he has successfully passed his first year.

LAYING OF SIDEWALKS.

POWER THAT IS INVESTED IN THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

Present Ordinance Has Been in Operation Since 1894 and Makes it Legal for the Council to Act as it Has Been Doing.

Last week under the caption of "Was the Ordinance Illegal?" the News published a half-column story in which it tried to prove that all action concerning the compulsory laying of sidewalks in the borough and the effecting of a lein, where the property-owner failed to comply, was illegal. They claimed that competent authorities have made a study of the subject and are of the opinion that the borough officials have no right to compel anyone to lay a sidewalk. The article further stated that legal authorities claim that this procedure is an injustice of the most flagrant sort, and the officials have acted directly contrary to law.

In view of these statements a representative of The Daily Press has been making an investigation of facts, and learned that on February 2, 1894, under the administration of William L. Saunders, who was then Mayor, the sidewalk ordinance was adopted, and has been in use ever since. Since that time there has been no changes made to the ordinance, which evidently complies with the State law. It now seems as though it is a pretty late day to learn that the ordinance is illegal.

The Press representative interviewed a member of the present Borough Council on the subject, and the following statement was obtained:

"There seems to be a notion among some of the people of the borough that any law or ordinance which in any way affects them must necessarily be illegal. The existing ordinance relative to the laying of sidewalks was enacted February 2d, 1894, during the administration of Mayor Saunders, and while Mr. Reed was counsel for the borough. There is no doubt in my mind that the action of the last two administrations in laying sidewalks under that ordinance is perfectly legal, and I doubt if any intelligent person seriously questions this, even the chronic compromisers. Every one will concede that we have for corporation counsel a man second to none in the State, as authority on borough laws. No borough ordinance would be passed by any Mayor or Council unless first referred to him to be drafted in accordance with their legal rights under the State laws. I am perfectly willing to back our corporation counsel against any unknown 'competent authority in position to know,' 'Bombshells' and all. We are not unlike other similar places known in having this opposition to all attempts at progess."

MISS BULKLEY IN TOWN.

VISITED SEVERAL OF THE PLAINFIELD SCHOOLS TODAY.

Is on a Three Months' Vacation From Her Duties at Chicago—A Guest at Home of H. D. James—Addressed Rasores Club.

Miss Julia E. Bulkley is spending a few days in Plainfield and revisited the scenes of her former labors. Most every Plainfielder knows that she was once superintendent of the Public Schools in this city and is now at the head of the department of pedagogy of the University of Chicago. Miss Bulkley is now enjoying a well earned vacation of three months. Part of it she will spend in visiting old friends and the remainder in literary pursuits.

Miss Bulkley arrived in Plainfield Saturday night and is a guest at the home of Henry D. James, of First place. Last evening there was a gathering of her Plainfield friends there who came to meet her again.

This morning, Miss Bulkley went to the High School and was present at the morning exercises and listened to the regular singing lesson, led by Charles L. Lewis. She then spoke a few words to the pupils. Afterwards, Superintendant H. M. Maxson escorted her to the Lincoln school where she spoke highly of the new building.

She attended the meeting of the Rasores Club, at the home of Miss Haviland, of East Second street, later in the morning and addressed the members.

Tomorrow Miss Bulkley will visit the Irving School. She will remain in Plainfield until the last of the week.

—A delegation from Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., will go to Newark Wednesday night to pay a visit to Success Lodge, of that place.

—The lecture to be given by Major Coughlin at the Y. M. C. A. Hall tomorrow evening will be illustrated with 80 colored stereopticon views, prepared by Mr. Coughlin from negatives taken in Switzerland last summer. He has lectured for the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, under whose auspices the Garrett P. Services lectures are delivered.

VICE-PRESIDENT HOBART'S PLANS

Has Not Said He Will Take a Second Term.

NO POLITICS DISCUSSED.

PHYSICIANS PRECLUDED SUCH TALK IN THE SICK ROOM.

It is Said That it is Well-known That He Wishes a Renomination on the Republican National Ticket—He Will Consult With the Party Leaders and Take the Advice of McKinley—Getting Better.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Washington, April 26.—It can be said upon an authority second only to that of Vice-President Hobart, that he has not in any manner whatever intimated that he is considering the advisability of withdrawing from the candidacy for a second term.

The question of Mr. Hobart's candidacy remains now in the precise condition that it did when the violent attack of grip and indigestion sent him to the sick bed, and it will remain just the same for a long time to come. No one in Washington believes that Mr. Hobart will withdraw from the race, and all expect to see him active in the preparations to insure his renomination.

As soon as he is possessed of his full strength he will, it is understood here, give the matter of renomination the serious and careful attention it deserves, consult with members of the National Committee and other leaders in the Redublican party, and then make known his intentions. It may be said, however, that it is considered certain that he will be a candidate for renomination unless President McKinley personally requests him to withdraw.

The friendship that exists between Mr. McKinley and Mr. Hobart is of such a steadfast character that it would be hard to find in Washington a man who will say he believes that the President will make such a request, and on the other hand, no one doubts but that Mr. Hobart would immediately relinquish his claims to further recognition by his party if the President intimated that the ticket would be stronger without Mr. Hobart.

The question of trusts and their bearing on the next campaign was very thoroughly canvassed during the conference in Georgia, and it is understood that the President openly expressed his opinion to the effect that such an issue would not injure the chances of Republican success because Mr. Hobart occupied the second place on the ticket.

It was generally agreed that the hue and cry of trusts and monopolies which has been raised against New Jersey cannot be made against the Vice-President personally, although he is widely known to be a corporation man, for no one holds him responsible for the creation of trusts under the laws of New Jersey.

It is known for a certainty that Mr. McKinley would rather have Mr. Hobart on the ticket with him than any one else, and it is believed that the wishes of the President will be respected, and that Mr. Hobart will declare his candidacy later, when the time which appears the most opportune arrives.

The Vice President denies himself to all interviewers on the advice of his physicians, and none but the closest friends of the family are permitted to see him, and when this privilege is accorded the conversation is not permitted to turn on politics. When Mr. Hobart is able to travel so great a distance, he may go to the St. Lawrence River and remain there until he entirely regains his strength. His cough is still bothersome but its severity has departed.

USE THEIR JUDGMENT.

BOARD OF ASSESSORS DECIDE HOW THEY WILL WORK.

Important Conference of City Officials Last Night—Assessors to be Guided Entirely by Their Own Discretion.

An important conference was held in the Mayor's office, last evening, preparatory to the work of the Board of Assessors in fixing the valuations in the city. There were present at the conference Mayor Rockfellow, the members of the Board of Assessors and the Commissioner of Appeal.

The question that was principally considered was the action that the Assessors should take regarding the decisions of the Commissioners of Appeal last year. Whether they should rate properties at the value set by the Commissioners if such value should not seem the true one to them or else place the values according to their best judgment without regard for any past action on the subject.

It was decided that the Assessors were to go about their duties unprejudiced by any previous action by the Commissioners of Appeal and place the valuations at such figures as were, in their opinion, the true and honest values of the properties.

BECAUSE ROAD WAS BAD.

ALL FANWOOD TOWNSHIP THREATENED WITH ARREST.

William C. Stansbery Was Not For Being Made An Example of—All Cyclists Take the Sidewalk In Scotch Plains.

The roads of Fanwood township were originally intended for riding and driving. The poor condition of some of them, however, has led a good share of the inhabitants of the township to prefer the sidewalk. As a result, the arrest of nearly half the people of Fanwood is threatened. This exciting situation nearly came to pass yesterday when Constable Trainor considered the advisibility of making an example of one of the number.

The trouble is chiefly with Park avenue, the thoroughfare connecting Fanwood borough and Scotch Plains, between the Meadow bridge and the fur mill. The road is very stony and many complaints have been made regarding it. Horsemen claim that the large loose stones are dangers to drive over and lame the horses. Cyclists growl softly and then take to the sidewalk.

Now, according to the theory of those who made the laws prohibiting the riding on sidewalks, it was understood that if the road was not suitable then the wheelmen might walk. Every day sees a long procession of wheelmen and wheelwomen who think differently. They include many of the prominent officials of Fanwood township and their families.

A Plainfield man was walking on the sidewalk in question, Monday, when he met Wm. C. Stansbery riding his wheel on the sidewalk. He afterwards complained to Constable Trainor. Yesterday a rumor began to gain circulation to the effect that Justice Clark, of Scotch Plains, had issued a warrant for Mr. Stansbery's arrest on the charge of riding on the sidewalk. Mr. Stansbery met the constable yesterday afternoon and inquired concerning the rumor. The constable admitted that he was thinking of it.

Mr. Stansbery wanted to know why he had been singled out of all the offenders. The constable said that somebody must be made an example of. Mr. Stansbery admitted his guilt but remarked that if he was arrested he would immediately swear out warrants for all the others, township officials included, who daily ride over the sidewalk on Park avenue. The warrant hasn't yet been served, and the cyclists still continue to use the sidewalk as they can't ride in the road.

CONFIRMED A CLASS.

Bishop Scarborough Visited St. Stephen's Church.

Bishop Scarborough visited St. Stephen's Episcopal church at Netherwood last night, and confirmed a class of three young people, two young ladies and one young man. The Bishop made an excellent address, in which he gave the newly made church members some good advice. The church was filled, and the Bishop was thus encouraged by a good attendance at the service. He was asissted by the rector, Rev. S. P Simpson.

ROUGH ROAD FOR TRUE LOVE TO GO

Cupid And An Irate Father Clash in Scotch Plains.

BEAU KEPT LATE HOURS.

THE DAUGHTER FORBIDDEN TO RETURN TO HER HOME.

Charles Messler Ejected Harry Ball, His Daughter's Sweetheart, From the Premises—Latter Retaliates With Assault and Battery Charge, And the Father Was Held for the Grand Jury

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 26.—The old saying that true love never runs smooth was again in evidence last evening when Charles Messler appeared before Judge Clark's court to answer to a charge of assault and battery upon his daughter Alida, seventeen years of age, and her young friend, Harry Ball, of Mountainside.

It seems that Harry and Alida have been keeping company for sometime past, and there seemed to be no objection to their little love affair so long as Harry knew when to go home. But of late he has been lingering later and later each evening. The climax, however, came Monday evening when Mr. Messler put in a strong objection to the late hours being kept by the young people. So he gave Harry to understand about 11:30 o'clock Monday evening that it was pretty near time for him to be home. The young man differed in opinion and lingered on. About 12 o'clock the young lady's father arose from his bed and dressing hastily proceeded to the parlor and ordered the young man off the premises.

Now here is where the real trouble started. The stories do not agree. Mr. Messler claims that Ball was slow in making up his mind to go and the daughter did not seem to want the interview interrupted. He then proceeded, he says, to use force to eject him from the premises.

Ball alleges that his prospective father-in-law followed him out into the highway and did strike and abuse him, both with his fists and tongue, and that he also assaulted the daughter by striking her over the head with a chair and forbidding her to return to the parents roof again.

The young couple wandered out into the night alone and it was decided during those weary hours to have Messler arrested. Mr. Ball appeared befor Justice Clark yesterday asking for a warrant for assault and battery.

As Mr. Messler pleaded guilty to the charge of assault Judge Clark held him under $100 bail to appear before the grand jury. Constable Traynor went Mr. Messler's bond and that side of the case was settled for a short time.

After it was all over Mr. Messler asked for a warrant for Ball's arrest, charging him with being a nuisance and trespassing upon his property. The Judge decided that an action for damages was the way to cover this charge and promised Mr. Messler that a summons would be issued today if he wished. Mr. Messler replied that he did and the end is not yet.

Like all love stories it will be continued in our next.

LOST MUCH BLOOD.

Small Blood Vessel Ruptured Under the Brain of George Gayle.

George Gayle, of the borough, was awakened about 4 o'clock Monday morning by a profuse bleeding at the nose. Remedies were applied that temporarily stopped the bleeding and Mr. Gayle went to work as usual, but about 8 o'clock another and more violent attack came on and he was taken to his home, 18 Vine street. Dr. Long was summoned, and the second attack was also stopped, but not until he had lost a large amount of blood. The cause is supposed to be the rupturing of a small blood vessel near the brain, and had the blood not found its way out by the nostrils and mouth Mr. Gayle would probably have been attacked with apoplexy. After a few days quiet rest Mr. Gayle will be able to resume work.

Improvements in a Livery Stable.

Adam Blair, proprietor of the West Sixth street livery stables, has begun some improvements about them which, when completed, will make the stables among the most commodious in the city. The entire front of the building is being taken out, widened and raised up to the height of the rear. The front door will be placed in the centre, which will make it handier to get the carrriages in and out. Albert Pope, of Park avenue, owns the building.

Y. M. C. A. MUST PAY TAX LEVIED BY CITY.

State Board of Taxation Dismisses Their Appeal.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

QUESTION AS TO SOURCE OF INCOME NOT PASSED ON.

The Rental of Stores in the Building Was the Basis For the Board's Decision Against the Association, Which Will Now Have to Pay Taxes on an Assessed Valuation of $18,000 Made by City.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, April 26 —A meeting of the State Board of Taxation was held yesterday at which the dismissal of appeal of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield from the assessment made against its building came up for discussion. A part of the building is rented out for stores, and this fact was the basis of the board's decision against the Y. M. C. A. The question as to whether an exemption would be allowed the Y. M. C. A. in case no part of its building was used as a source of income, was not passed upon.

In discussing the case the board had quite an argument over the opinion recently rendered by Justice Depue in the case of the Cooper Hospital, of Camden. This hospital was endowed by Isaac Cooper, and the Camden taxing authorities assessed a great deal of property, the revenue from which maintains the hospital. In setting aside the assessment, Justice Depue held that no taxes ought to be paid on the property the revenue from which goes to the maintenance of the hospital. The source to which the revenue is applicable and not that from which it is derived, the Court in substance said should govern the tax authorities.

It will be remembered that W. D. Murray, former president of the Y. M. C. A., appeared before the State Board of Taxation at Newark last week and made an argument for a reduction in the amount of assessment on the property of the association on the ground that it was a religious and charitable society. Corporation Counsel Marsh appeared for the city and in an argument sustained the action of the Board of Assessors. The property is assessed $18,000, which is considered about one-third of its worth.

GAVE THE FLAG OF ERIN.

PRESENTED TO THE HIBERNIANS BY THE LADIES.

Pleasant Incident of a Reception and Ball Given in Washington Hall Last Night—Growth of the Local Order.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians, the well-known Irish society, gave a reception and ball in Washington Hall last night. The Ladies' Auxiliary met with them, and the two organizations passed a pleasant evening together. A programme of music and recitations was first presented, then supper was served and dancing kept until about 1 o'clock.

Patrick Casey was chairman of the meeting which preceded the entertainment. In a brief address he made some remarks about the growth of the order during the twenty-four years it has been in existence. April 9th was the twesty-fourth anniversary of the order. Of the charter members who organized the lodge, Patrick Casey and Edward Conners are still on the roll.

The most interesting part of the programme was the presentation by the Ladies' Auxiliary of a beautiful Irish flag to the Hibernians. The presentation was made by three little girls, the Misses Young and Ryan. The gift was received in behalf of the society by Edward Ryan, the president, who, in a short address, thanked the ladies for their kindness.

There were other features of the programme. The Ladies' Chorus sang several patriotic pieces, and there were solos by Miss Maggie Reville, Miss Alice Kelly, Miss Lizzie Gannon, Miss Delia Gannon and John Moran. Addresses were also made by Rev. Fathers Smythe, Miller and Westman.

Of a Musical Nature.

One of the most delightful informal entertainments that have been arrang- by the House committee of the Park Club was held in the club house last evening. The programme was entirely of a musical character. It included baritone solos by Alfred E. Holmes and piano selections by Mrs. Harry F. Johnson. Both rendered their selections in a finished manner and to the great satisfaction of the members and their families who were present. They were called upon for several encores.

WOMEN WOULD SETTLE THE DUST QUESTION.

They Think Sprinkling Should be Paid for by Taxing.

PLAN FOR PLAY GROUNDS.

TOWN IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION FULL OF VIGOR.

Annual Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon and Mrs. Pierre Malli Chosen President—Park Improvement Discussed — Mrs. Malli's Gift of a Fountain Cannot be Accepted—Other Interesting Things.

The annual meeting of the Town Improvement Association was held yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. A good part of the time was taken up with a discussion of plans for getting the Council to look after the sprinkling of the streets. If the women could have it their way every thoroughfare in the city would be watered several times a day to the comfort of everyone who lives in the limits.

Mrs. W. Palmer Smith, of Netherwood, is chairman of the committee on street, and it was finally left to her to find out the best way to bring this matter to the Council, with a view to having an ordinance passed giving the city the power to sprinkle the streets and add it to the tax bills. The ladies thought that it would be such a small amount added that no one would find fault with it, and several cited incidents where their neighbors refused to do their share of paying for the service, and as a consequence parts of the streets are watered, while other parts are not, and the result is almost as bad as before.

Mrs. J. K. Myers and Mrs. C. A Marsh were particularly active in agitating this question of watering the streets, and Mrs. Smith is to report the result of her inquiries at the next executive meeting.

As Mrs. Pierre Malli, the president, was not able to be present, Mrs. Charles Ryder occupied the chair. The treasurer's report for the year showed that $347.23 were the receipts. All but $38.31 has been spent, the greater part of it on the park, where new benches have been placed, and other new features added.

The committee on trees and parks reported that the Council had donated $100 to be spent in the care of the park. Mrs. Malli found that the fountain she promised to donate could not be used, so there will be no fountain there this season at least. Mrs. Charles Hyde, Mrs. W. Palmer Smith, Mrs. Lawrence Myers, Mrs. Alexander Gilbert, Mrs. Talmage, Mrs. Malli and Mrs. O. T. Waring have given plants which have been placed in the centre of the park, and make a pretty sight.

Mrs. Henrietta B. Herring, chairman of the committee on cruelty to animals, said that there has been only one case brought to her attention. Mrs. Maria Eaton, who has been urging the Central Railroad Company to provide benches at the stations, so that ladies will not have to take such long steps to mount the cars, reported also that she has been trying to induce the company to issue fifty trip New York tickets to sell for $9 instead of $18

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Pierre Malli; first vice-president, Mrs. Charles Hyde; second vice-president, Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph; recording secretary, Mrs. S R. Krom; corresponding secretary, Miss Annie Stewart; treasurer, Mrs. Alexander Gilbert.

Mrs. S. R. Krom, Mrs. Carman Parse and Mrs. Maria Eaton were elected delegates to the spring meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs which meets at Rutherford May 11th.

The subject of play grounds was also brought up. The ladies have tried to procure the vacant lot at the corner Plainfield avenue and West Fourth street and also the ground on which the old tenement known as "Battle Row" once stood, before it was burned down, but the owners will not rent the ground. If the ladies could get hold of some kind of a play ground in that quarter of the city, fit it up as a park, with trees, sand banks for the little ones to play in, it would fill a long felt want.

Not Enough Farm Hands.

Much of the help that has been necessary for farmers in South Jersey to secure in Philadelphia has become tired of farm life and left, placing the farmers in a predicament. In many instances higher wages has been paid to old hands to keep them.

Placing the Valuations.

WANTS SALE SET ASIDE.

MR. BROWER ALLEGED TO HAVE BOUGHT PROPERTY TOO LOW.

Senator Reed, of This City, Made Application Before Vice-Chancellor Stevens—The Application was Granted Yesterday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, April 26—Vice Chancellor Stevens, on application of State Senator Reed, granted a rule to show cause why a Sheriff's sale of property in Plainfield should not be set aside. The application was made on behalf of Henry M. Demorest, who with his step-mother, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Demorest, was an executor of the estate of his father, David Demorest. The annulment of the sale is sought on the ground that the price derived was less than half the value of the property.

Mrs. Demorest held a mortgage for $13,000 on the property. After the death of her husband, a year ago, foreclosure proceedings were begun and the property was bought in by Charles D. H. Brower for $6,000. It is alleged that he was the only bidder, the sale, it is asserted, not having been properly advertised. It is also averred that Brower acted merely as an agent for Mrs. Demorest, who thus practically secured title to the property and still holds a claim against the estate for $7,000, the balance of the mortgage.

HONORED ITS 10TH YEAR.

DECENNIAL TEA OF MISSIONARY SOCIETY WAS A SUCCESS.

Women's Missionary Society of First M. E Church Celebrated Its Tenth Anniversary in the Chapel Last Night.

An excellent supper was the principal part in the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the formation of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. church, held in Vincent chapel, last evening. A decennial tea was the title given it. It was altogether a very satisfactory affair, and the members of the congregation, who turned out to attend it, were given a fine repast and a pleasant time.

At the head of the committee in charge of the supper was Mrs. L. M. French. Those presiding at the tables were Mrs. C. C. Cokefair, Mrs. J. W. Jackson, Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. J. H. McNaughton and Mrs. John Lewis. The other members of the committee who assisted included Mrs. J. P. Homan, Mrs. N. W. Pike, Mrs. I. L. McVoy and others.

The waitresses were the Misses Mildred Terrill, Florence Rugg, Elsie Horne, Persis Snodgrass, Bertha N. Jenkins, Lucie Palmer Davis, Cora Scull, Flora Tainor and Carrie Mulford and Mrs. May Johnston.

After supper was over, exercises were held at which Rev. Dr. Whitney presided. There were several well rendered solos by Miss Etta Raybert. The annual report, which also summed up the work of the society during the ten years of its existence, was read by J. W. Jackson.

The exercises closed with an address by Mrs. Boswell, of Newark, on the work of the Home Missionary Society. She gave a brief sketch of the various fields of work in the United States and told of the great good that had been already accomplished and the opportunities that still existed.

Ice cream and cake were then served at the tables and a social hour was enjoyed by those who had remained.

MORE MONEY FOR THE SOLDIERS' MONUMENT

Old Committee Has $200 Which Will be Turned Over.

MANY SUBSCRIPTIONS, TOO.

AN ENTERTAINMENT TO BE GIVEN TO RAISE FUNDS.

Encouraging Reports Made at the Meeting of the Special Committee Last Night—Defunct Association Secured Pledge for $3,500 and an Effort Will be Made to Renew Subscriptions.

There was an important meeting of the soldiers' monument committee last evening. The interest in the project was advanced considerable. W. C. O'Donnell, president of the committee, reported that he had communicated with members of the defunct Soldiers' Monument Association, regarding the possibility of securing for the new movement such money and subscriptions as were sometime ago given for the then proposed monument.

Mr. O'Donnell stated that he was informed that about $200 had been given in case, and about $3,500 subscribed toward the project. Col. Mason W. Tyler, a member of the old committee, suggested that Nelson Runyon, secretary for the old committee, be asked to call a meeting of the committee and that some means be adopted whereby the money and subscriptions could be turned over to the new committee. This idea was thought to be a good one and Mr. O'Donnell saw Mr. Runyon, who said he would call a meeting of the old committee for the purpose mentioned.

Another matter considered favorably at meeting was the proposition of Dr. Simpson, of this city, who offered to exhibit at a slight expense a large number of snap-shot views taken in the recent war with Cuba. The pictures are valuable and cannot be duplicated. The Camera Club, for this purpose, decided Monday evening to allow their rooms in the Babcock building to be used free of expense for the exhibition, and the entertainment will probably be given Saturday evening, May 6th. In addition to the exhibition of pictures there will probably be a musical programme, and the committee hope to have the hearty cooperation of all patriotic citzens in making the affair a success.

The interest and enthusiasm in the proposed monument still increases and this week sometime the announcements prepared by the committee will be sent out. An effort will be made to reach if possible every person in this city, and it is hoped that the blank will be filled out and returned to Treasurer J. F. Buckle. The committee will be pleased to receive any amount, and a ready response will be appreciated.

THE YOUNG VETERANS.

Spanish-American Volunteers to Act on a United Movement for Memorial Day.

A meeting of the soldiers who were in the U. S. army during the Spanish-American war will be held in the G. A. R. rooms tomorrow night. Final action will then be taken regarding a united movement to turn out Memorial Day. The soldiers will also consider plans for uniting with some of the veteran associations that have sprung up after the war, and also for forming a militia company in Plainfield.

MUSIC MADE MONEY.

Pleasing Entertainment Given for the Benefit of Piano Fund.

Last evening in the lecture room of the First Baptist church a pleasing entertainment was given for the benefit of the fund which was started for the purchase of a new piano for the Sunday-school. There was a good attendance and the programme was enjoyed. Lindley Hillman had charge of a phonograph and gave about a dozen of the best selections. Other features of the programme were the singing by Mrs. Ward, contralto, and Wm. Holmes, baritone, and their selections interspersed the phonograph selections. The artists were generous and responded to several encores during the entertainment. The receipts were gratifying to the committee in charge, of which Harold Serrell was the chairman.

Robert Morley, eighteen years old, coachman for Editor F. W. Runyon, was brought before Justice Nash this morning charged with petty larceny. It was alleged that he had stolen $15 from his employer. He was held under $100 bonds for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

COGHLAN INCIDENT CLOSED

The Gallant Captain Expresses Regret That His Remarks Stirred Diplomats.

SAYS HE WAS NOT DRUNK

Regards Such Statements in Some Papers as Unworthy of Consideration and Unjust,

His Reply Has Been Received at the Nav Department But Its Contents Have Bee Witheld—The Cologne Gazette Says Ger many Does Not Heed "Braggadocio o 'Miles Gloriosus'"

New York, April 26.—Capt. Coghlan when seen on the Raleigh expressed regret at the weight which had been given to his remarks at the Union League Club dinner last Friday night.

"My faux pas at the dinner the other night," said the Captain, "though it then apeared to me as very inconsequential, has apparently acquired considerable diplomatic significance, and every word I have said and may say seems likely to be used as a weapon against me. Therefore, I think it would be most diplomatic to be absolutely reticent until the incident is closed on this side of the Atlantic, as, the Berlin papers report, it has been closed on their side.

"As for the statement made in some of thenewspapers that the license of my speech was attributable to the fact that it was made over the walnuts and wine, that is absolutely unjust and unworthy of consideration.

"I have received no notice whatever in regard to my reported detach ment from the Raleigh. My last orders from the Navy Department were to weigh anchor at 2 o'clock this afternoon and proceed to Philadelphia, in order to have the ship on hand to participate in the Dewey day celebration.

"There is one thing further I wish to say; that is, that when President Gunnison of the Universalist Club announced that I had accepted an invitation to attend a dinner to be given by the club at the St. Denis Hotel Monday night, he did not speak with knowledge of the facts. Up to Sunday morning my orders were to drop down to Sandy Hook on Sunday afternoon and thence to proceed to Philadelphia. As these orders were made public I saw no necessity of answering the invitation."

The Naval Board of Inspection which came on from Washington to inspect the Raleigh, reported that Capt. Coghlan, his officers and crew passed an excellent examination and that in view of the facts that the crew was about seventy men short and that the ship had just returned from a long foreign voyage, Capt. Coghlan deserved a great deal of praise.

Washington, April 26.—The reply of Capt. Coghlan of the cruiser Raleigh to the Navy Department's inquiry regarding his speech at the Union League Club dinner has been received by mail. The officer maintain the utmost secrecy in regard to the contents of the letter, and an official announcement even of its receipt was withheld.

Berlin, April 26.—The Cologne Gazette prints an official communication in regard to the Coghlan affair, which says that the action of the American Government is in accordance with common sense. Though the German Government does not heed the braggadocio of a "miles gloriosus," the paper adds, it is to the interest of the American Government "to bring the spouter to book."

Dewey Day in Vermont.

Northfield, Vt., April 26.—Dewey Day, May 1, is to be observed in this town by the breaking of ground for Dewey Hall, which is to be built at Norwich University as a testimonial to Admiral George Dewey. The programme includes a parade, remarks by President A. D. Brown and an oration by Colonel Kittredge Haskins of Brattleboro. It is expected that Captain Charles A. Clark, of the Norfolk Navy Yard, Captain of the battleship Oregon on her famous trip from San Francisco last year, will break ground for the building.

Havana's Big Strike.

Havana, April 26.—Two thousand laborers employed by the Quartermaster's Department have struck for higher wages. One thousand of the strikers, who have been working at Quemados and receiving 83 cents a day in American money, want their wages increased to $1.25. The others who have been employed on the docks in Havana at 17 cents an hour, demand 25 cents. All Government work is tied up as a result of the strike.

Preparing Report on Beef.

Washington, April 26.—The court of inquiry appointed to investigate the quality of beef furnished to the army in Cuba and Porto Rico has begun to consider its report. The court has been in session almost ten weeks, and the testimony of the hundreds of witnesses covers 4,500 pages. It will take the court several days to complete its findings.

THE LATEST NEWS.

TORRES MADE AMERICANS QUIT BUSINESS.

New Orleans, April 26.—Advices received here from Bluefields, Nicaragua, by the steamship Jari state that pandemonium reigned in that city on the night of April 18. Drunken native soldiers paraded the streets firing at inoffensive citizens and into houses. Several persons were wounded.

General Torres served notice on the American merchants that unless they paid the duties demanded by night he would close up their places of business and confiscate their receipts.

These duties already had been paid to General Reyes, when the revolutionists were in charge of Bluefields, and the merchants naturally objected to paying them twice.

The foreign element were anxiously awaiting the arrival of the United States cruiser Detroit, with Minister Merry aboard. She was at Greytown when the Jari left, and was expected to arrive at Bluefields on Friday.

United States Consul Sorsby, United States Consular Agent Clancy and the British Consul, J. A. Ballenger, went to Greytown to meet Minister Merry, and were to come to Bluefields on the Detroit. It was owing to their absence that Gen. Torres was emboldened to threaten the American merchants.

MRS. GEORGE AND JURY SHED TEARS.

Canton, Ohio, April 26.—Pleas for the life of Mrs. George have been begun in her trial for the murder of George Saxton. It is not likely that the case will be given to the jury before Thursday morning.

Mr. Sterling, in his speech, lashed the memory of the murdered man, brother-in-law of President McKinley.

"Grant stated that George D. Saxton was a prominent citizen of Canton," he said. "I grant it. He was a prominent citizen, but not prominent in anything that was noble, pure or good. Hewas the brother-in-law of President McKinley. He was rich.

"He was a deliberate, designing libertine," he went on. "There could be no such thing as a home in our land if all men were like Saxton.

Sterling's description of the ruin caused by Saxton moved Mrs. George to tears. Many women in the audience wept in sympathy with her. Tears stood in the eyes of the jurors.

Then Sterling called attention to the fact that the State had furnished an alibi for Mrs. Eva Althouse on the night of the shooting. She is now outside the State, he said, but if she could say a word to add to the burden of Mrs. George she would be present.

CONCLUSIVE PROOF OF HOSE'S GUILT.

Atlanta, Ga., April 26.—The discussion suggested that Mrs. Cranford might have been the subject of mental impression in believing that Sam Hose had assaulted her, received a short answer from Dr. Casper Smith, of Palmetto, her family physician.

"The suggestion is ridiculous,' said the doctor. On request he furnished the following statement:

"To Whom It May Concern:

"From my knowledge, gained as Mrs. Cranford's physician, called to see her within one hour of the crimes, taking with me for consultation Dr. F. T. Nixon, I can declare the charge of Hose's criminal assault upon her to be true. Dr. Nixon coincides with me. The details are of such a nature that I cannot repeat them.

"Casper Smith, M. D."

In addition to this, Captain J. B. Jones, who, with his brother, arrested Sam Hose and succeeded in carrying him through 100 miles of hostile territory to the proper officers, says Hose made full confession to him.

KANSAS HAS A LYNCHING BEE ALSO.

Galena, Kan., April 26.—Charles Williams, a negro, was shot to death by a mob in the jail here. Williams was arrested on suspicion of having murdered Laura Canifix, his sweetheart, Sunday night.

A mob battered down the doors of the jail, and finding Williams's cell, informed him he was about to be lynched. He offered resistance, when a volley of shots were fired and he fell dead, riddled with bullets. The mob then left the jail and disappeared. A coroner's jury was impanelled and rendered a verdict that Williams came to his death at the hands of persons unknown.

Laura Canifix was found dead in her room. The indications were that she had been strangled to death. There was no evidence against Williams, more than he had been the girl's suitor.

AMERICAN WARSHIPS PATROL LUZON.

Washington, April 26.—Army officials have learned that since Manila fell the Filipinos have been obtaining supplies of ammunition from Hong Kong and Singapore, as well as from Europe. A strict naval patrol of the island of Luzon has been established, and the belief is expressed that the supply of ammunition will now be cut off. It is positively stated that the Filipinos have no factory for the manufacture of smokeless powder and Mauser cartridges which they are using.

THE YORKTOWN GOT TWO PRIZES.

Vancouver, B. C., April 26.—The steamer Empress of China brings the story of how the Yorktown captured two steamers in Luzon. The Yorktown seized the Spanish steamer Mundara off the Gulf of Lingayen on March 30 as a filibusterer. She gave the Yorktown a two hours' run before she was captured. Later the Yorktown discovered the Filipino steamer San Joaquin hidden near Dagupan. The native crew had mutinied, murdered the captain and mate and looted the ship. The Yorktown towed the prize to Manila.

THE WORK OF BENZOIL.

Terrific Explosion in Laboratory of Fleer's Chewing Gum Factory.

LIKE AN EARTHQUAKE.

Two Men Killed and Many Injured. Factory and Surrounding Property —Smashed to Smithereens.

All the Hospital Ambulances in Philadelphia Rushed to Scene of Disaster, and Few of Over Four Hundred Employes Escaped Injury—Two Dead Bodies Removed From Ruins.

Philadelphia, April 26.—An explosion of benzoil completely wrecked the laboratory on Callow Hill street, near Twenty-fourth street. One man was killed, another is supposed to be dead in the ruins and about a hundred persons were injured. A score of buildings were completely demolished.

Ther were only five persons at work in the building at the time of the explosion. Three of them are under the care of physicians, one being, perhaps, fatally burned; the fourth man's body is at the Morgue, while the remaining person is unaccounted for. This body is believed to be in the ruins.

The entire front of the chewing gum factory was blown out into the street, and then the roof and upper floors fell into the basement. A cloud of steam and a column of black smoke shot up into the air, and almost at the same moment a more violent explosion occurred, and all the buildings within two blocks shook as though an earthquake had rocked them. Bricks were hurled through the air, smashing glass and battering in windows and doors. An alarm of fire was turned in. Flames were bursting from the ruins in half a dozen places. This alarm was followed by a second alarm and by ambulance calls.

Chief Baxter quickly reached the scene and with about 100 policemen kept the crowd away from the ruins. Some in their fright did not seem to know enough to get away from the toppling walls, and the policemen were obliged to take them to places of safety. Children, many cut by flying glass, cried for their mothers until the policemen carried them away and tried to find their parents. Women in some instances tried to force their way back through the police lines to hunt for their children.

Not a house on the block escaped damage. For two blocks around window glass was shattered and in some instances had been driven with the frames into the buildings. As soon as the firemen could force their way into the ruins they went in search of the bodies of the dead, although there was danger of falling walls.

The full force of the explosion was felt in the houses around the factory. To the west George M. Dunlap has a grocery store, and the side walls and part of the front were blown into the street, together with much of the stock in the store. Furniture on the upper floor was blown into the street, and some fell into the wreck of the chewing gum factory. At Conrad Goetz's repair shop and store the front wall was bulged out and the roof torn loose from the joists, while within the furniture stock was piled up in a confused mass. On the corner of Twenty-fourth street Antonio Woodside conducts a barber shop. The force of the explosion blew the mugs, mirrors and furniture up against the Twenty-fourth street wall. Two wagons were passing at the time. One, a small, unmarked one, was flattened by the fall of the wall. The horse and driver escaped. The second was a large delivery wagon of Armour & Co., and this was caught by the blast and driven up against the house on the opposite side of the street. What became of the horse and driver nobody seemed to know, but had they remained with the wagon they would have been killed, as a boiler for boiling candy was driven through the bottom of the wagon and bricks were piled up on it. Piled in the street were many tons of brick and mortar mixed up with the machinery from the factory. The saloon of Lawrence McStravog, on the southeast corner of Twenty-fourth and Callow Hill streets, was completely wrecked. Windows, bottles, glasses, cash register, cigar cases and beer pumps were piled up in a mass on the floor.

Philadelphia, April 26.—The injured in the factory explosion as far as reported to the police are: Margaret Burcoe, 67 years old, of 2,326 Callow Hill street, fracture; Harry Randall, 20 years old, of Camden, was at 2,345 Callow Hill street, lacerated wounds of scalp, and burns; Mrs. Mary Barr, 400 West Twenty-fourth street, blown out of the house; her next door neighbor, Mrs. O'Donnel, had her baby blown from her arms; both woman and child suffering from shock; Charles Marion, 12 years old, 2,312 Callow Hill street, lacerated wounds of scalp; Lizze Donahue, 2,347 Callow Hill street, lacerated wounds of face; Frank Giberson, 1 year old, rescued from a Callow Hill street house by Fireman Davis, of Hose Company 27.

Yarn Spinners Approached.

Boston, April 26.—A number of corporations in this State engaged in the manufacture of yarns have been approached by promoters of a combination who desire to know how a proposition to purchase their plants would be received. As yet no figures have been submitted. The leading yarn mills in this State are in New Bedford, Fall River and Taunton. The New Bedford mill men, capitalists interested in banks carrying a large amount of yarn mill stocks, say that a combination is more than likely to be brought about.

Party of Timbermen Dead.

Astoria, Ore., April 26.—The members of the party which left Seaside April 7 on a timber cruise are dead. The bodies of three have been found, and search is being made for the fourth, who was the oldest and weakest member of the party. It is supposed that death was the result of eating canned meat or canned vegetables.

The strike of Bridgeton glass blowers is near an end.

"Open your mouth and shut your eyes
And I'll give you something to make you wise."

Whereupon the other said: "That is an advertisement of Ripans Tabules—They're a good thing! I know that from my own experience. I used to have occasional headaches that spoiled a day for me. About two years ago I learned about the Tabules and they stave off the headache every time. I carry them in my vest pocket regularly now."

"I must look into that," said the other man, "for I too have headaches now and then."

"Well," said his friend, "Ripans Tabules will break them up. Here! take one now," added he, producing a vial from his vest pocket.

"And," says the lady, "the man swallowed the Tabule then and there."

Report of Committee upon the Business of the Real Estate News Publication Co. of Bound Brook, N. J.

The undersigned committee appointed at a meeting of the Citizens, held at the office of the above Company on Monday, Feb. 6th, beg leave to report as follows:—

Our committee met at the office of the Company on Saturday afternoon the 11th inst., according to arrangement, and after a careful investigation of the books of the above Company, and careful consideration of the assets and liabilities, found that the statement made by A. G. Drake, Sect'y., of the Company, at the Citizens' meeting was in every respect true and correct.

We believe FIRST that the publication should be kept in Bound Brook for the good it can do for the Borough at large. SECOND. We find the good assets to be $855.00 as stated by Mr. Drake, and that is in excess of all liabilities, including the amount of capital stock paid in. Also that the earnings have been so far in excess of the expense that the 10 per cent dividends have been safely declared and paid.

THIRD. We believe the stock of the Company is a fair investment, and see no reason why the business should not do as well from a business point of view in the future as in the past, and even much better.

Respectfully submitted,
GAINS HOFFMAN

CALUMPIT HAS BEEN TAKEN

So Argues the Washington Correspondent Assuming Otis Knows His Business.

A FLANK MOVEMENT.

MacArthur to Move Along Railway and Attack From South and Lawton on North East.

Gen. Otis Sends Cable Regarding Movements of Troops—Hale Encounters Fierce Opposition Driving Enemy With Heavy Loss—Our Troops Suffering on Account of Extreme Heat.

Washington, April 26.—It is assumed, of course, that Gen. Otis and the War Department know what they are about, otherwise it would seem a little peculiar that flanking movements to surprise the enemy should be reported fully from Manila and elaborately explained by the Washington strategists who are following the campaign on the map, before they are executed. It is assumed that Gen. Otis knows just how long it takes news to get back, and does not let it leak out until all danger is past. It will be remembered that the last flanking movement failed through the enemy getting word of it, but that is because it was delayed beyond expectation by the nature of the country. The present march is easier, and in all probability Calumpit is ours and has been ours since before the last despatch was issued.

Washington, April 26.—The keenest interest is felt by the war administration in the movement of MacArthur and Lawton on Calumpit to trap Aguinaldo. It is not too much to say that some of the officers of the War Department are relying on this movement to cause a turning point in the campaign decidedly favorable to the American cause. Up to this time the plan of strategic attack has been guarded with great secrecy, for it was deemed imprudent to allow the publication in the United States of any matter that might be called back to the insurgent leaders and thus give them an advantage in the coming encounter.

Now that the battle is at hand, or perhaps fairly in progress, there is not the same effort at secrecy. The plan seems to be for MacArthur's railroad from Malolos to Calumpit and attack Calumpit from the south. Gen. Lawton will conduct his movement in careful cooperation with Gen. MacArthur. His purpose is to lead a forced march around to the northeast of the insurgents' position at Calumpit to a place called Norzagay. After reaching that town he is expected to turn sharply to the westward and flank the insurgents while they are engaged with MacArthur's attack from the south.

The rapidity of this projected movement is shown by the following cable message received to-day:

BRIGADIER-GENERAL HALE.

"Adjutant General, Washington:

"Hale's brigade, MacArthur's division moved down right bank Quinqua River to vicinity Calumpit; now joined by Wheaton's brigade on left bank. Hale encountered fierce opposition, driving enemy with heavy loss. Hale's casualties six killed, twelve wounded. The division has nod invested Calumpit, which will be taken to-day. Lawton, with part of his command, reaches Norzgay this evening, where he will be joined by centre column from Bocaye; extreme heat, rains, high streams, bad roads made march very difficult; he has not met opposition since leaving Novaliches; enemy retreating in his front south of and near Manila. Enemy has force 4,000 making demonstrations daily; can easily be taken care of; it cannot communicate with north; list of casualties of day before yesterday cabled to-day.

"OTIS."

Anti-Trust Bill Passed.

Albany, April 26.—Senator Donnelly's anti-trust bill, which enables the Attorney General to proceed against illegal combinations, passed the Assembly by a vote of 105 to 2. The Republicans turned in to its support. The bill now goes to the Governor. By this bill, its author claims, the State Law Department can bring to book all trust operating directly or indirectly in the State.

Boston, April 26.—One man was killed and two were fatally injured by thecaving in of a sewer in Charlestown.

"You see, madam, Ivory Soap is really the most economical. The cake is so large that it easily divides into two cakes of the ordinary size. There is twice as much soap as you get in the usual cake of toilet soap. Then it is very economical in use, for although it lathers quickly, it is always firm and hard, even in hot water. As it floats, you can not lose it or leave it to waste in the bowl. We sell it to all of our best trade for general use."

HUGE COPPER DEAL.

Reports of $400,000,000 Combination—Morgan, Rockefeller and Rothschilds Interested.

New York, April 26.—Much talk was occasioned in Wall street by reports to the effect that thepending copper deal would shortly be matured. One report emanating fro mChicago stated that negotiations for an immense consolidation of copper interests in this country had been concluded in London on Friday, when contracts had been signed transferring to a single organization some of the biggest copper-producing companies in this country. The new combination, the report said, would begin operations on May 1.

In Boston, which is at present the scene of a large copper speculation, this story was vigorously denied, with the declaration that, when the combination was effected, news of it would not be issued from Chicago. S. F. Untermyer, of Guggenheimer, Untermyer and Marshall, counsel for the promoters of the combination, denies the Chicago report, but he will not discuss the situation.

The opinion is gaining ground in financial circles that the deal is rapidly nearing completion, and that the big Anaconda wine will be included. At the office of the company nothing can be learned, but the pronounced rise in the stock, induced by heavy buying, strongly suggests that a determined effort is making to obtain control.

One report in Wall street said that the buying of Anaconda stock comes from the Rothschilds, Rockefeller and Morgan representatives, and that it is practically the only copper company which has not yet reached the limit at which it will figure in the new combination.

The new combination will, it is said, mean a ne wcompany of $400,000,000 capital, which will be underwritten as follows: $200,000,000 by the Rothschilds and $100,000,000 each by Rockefeller and Morgan. The stock of this company is to be exchanged for existing stocks of almost all the existing important copper companies. Rumor has it that Anaconda will go in on the basis of $100 of the stock of the new company for $92 of the stock of Anaconda. This deal is reported to be responsible for diverting speculative capital, which, if not so engaged, would be active in other properties on the Stock Exchange.

Copper at the present time is occupying a very interesting position in the financial and metal worlds. Copper prices would have advanced in the face of an increasing production, which has been more than offset by increased demand, due primarily to the electrical industry.

In 1895 the world's total copper production was scarcely 350,000 tons. In 1898 it had advanced to about 420,000 tons. The increase was greatest in this country and Australia. The production in this country—the greatest producer of copper—in 1895 was about 172,000 tons, and in 1898 it was 235,000 tons. Australia increased her output from 10,000 tons in 1895 to 18,000 tons last year.

This country also leads as the chief consumer of copper, absorbing in 1898 116,000 tons, or more than 25 per cent. of the total world's output.

OSWALD KILLED TWO.

Stabbed Wife and Daughter Both to Death After a Quarrel.

Camden, N. J., April 26—Edward Oswald murdered his wife Mary and his eight-year-old daughter in their home, at 692 Jefferson avenue, this city. He stabbed both through the heart.

After killing the two, Oswald tried to kill himself by cutting his throat with the same knife, but will live.

Oswald is in the hospital under arrest. He made a desperate fight, although weak from the loss of blood, against being made a prisoner.

Jealously caused Oswald to commit the double murder. He repeatedly accused his wife of being unfaithful to him. The couple had frequent quarrels.

Mrs. Oswald, according to her neighbors, had no visitors in the absence of her husband. The husband frequently threatened to kill his wife. Oswald was employed as an instrument maker in the S. S. White Dental Works in Philadelphia. He was a good mechanic and had steady work.

Neighbors wer aroused by Mrs. Oswald's cries for assistance. There were sounds in the Oswald's apartments as though Mrs. Oswald and her children were endeavoring to escape from the building. Neighbors saw the oldest of the Oswald children run from the house. Mrs. Oswald and her daughter followed. Oswald was in hot pursuit. Just as Mrs. Oswald with her little girl in her arms, left the house Oswald overtook them.

He had a long knife in his hand. He plunged the knife into his wife's body. She fell dead. Then the murderer stabbed his daughter, who had fallen from the arms of her slain mother.

Oswald went back to his apartments. He locked the door and hanged himself in the throat.

The police reserves and an ambulance were summoned. The victims were beyond medical aid.

Several policemen entered Oswold's blood he left as he went to the bed-murderer's blood. He had cut his rooms. They were covered with the throat in the kitchen. The trail of room led the policemen to look for him under the bed. They dragged Oswold from under the bed and a hard fight followed.

Wireless Telegraphy.

London, April 26.—The British Admiralty will shortly make a series of experiments with a view of learning to what extent the wireless system of telegraphy can supersede the present system of signalling by flag, semaphore or flag-lamp. The wireless system is also soon to be tried between the lightships and lighthouses of the United Kingdom.

London, April 26.—The Birmingham Post says it is probable that an armistice will be proposed in the Philippines with the idea of giving the Filipinos autonomy under an American Resident General.

Paris, April 26. The Matin says that the Countess Esterhazy, wife of ex-Mayor Esterhazy, is about to sue for a divorce from her husband.

A Twelve-Foot Turtle.

A startling reminiscence of a time when this country was inhabited chiefly by reptiles has just been unearthed.

It is in the shape of a turtle twelve feet long, whose forearms measured twenty feet across when outstretched, and who was generally built in proportion. There is no creature alive today as large as this, for a well grown elephant is not more than nine feet high at the shoulder.

The skeleton of this monster was found recently near the South Fork of the Cheyenne River, about thirty-five miles southeast of the Black Hills.—New York Journal.

He Came for the Third Chicken.

Harry had just begun to go to school, and was very proud of what he had learned. One day he thought he would show his father how much he knew, and asked him at dinner, "Papa, how many chickens are there on that dish?" "Two, my boy," said papa. "I thought you knew how to count?" "You're wrong," said Harry, "there are three. That's one, that's two, and two and one make three." "Very well," said his father; "your mother may have one for her dinner, I'll take the other, and you can have the third."

He Had Them All.

Here is a true story of a certain earl, now living, who is a miser, and hoards bank-notes. Being at his banker's one day, he happened to take out his pocket-book, in which was a ten-thousand-pound Bank of England note. "Why, my lord," said the astonished banker, "are you aware that there are only two other such notes in circulation?" "I ought to be," was the quiet reply, "for I have got them both framed and glazed at home."

He Was Well Informed.

An Irish schoolmaster recently informed his pupils that the feminine gender should be applied to all ships and vessels afloat, except mail steamers and men-of-war.

OFF TO PEACE CONFERENCE

Sir Julian Pauncefote Leaves for the Hague as Delegate to Czar's Congress.

Washington, April 26.—The British Ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, has left for The Hague, where he will be the senior British delegate to the Czar's disarmament congress. Sir Julian will be accompanied to London by Lady Pauncefote and their four daughters, with a large household revenue. They sail to-day on the New York of the American line. The Ambassador made a parting call call on the President and Secretary Hay. Reginald Tower will become British Charge d'Affaires during the Ambassador's absence.

Victoria, B. C., April 26.—Japan's delegates to the peace conference at The Hague have arrived here on the steamship Empress of China. The delegation consists of Capts. Sakemoto and Uyehora and a lawyer named Inagara.

Sir James W. Carrington, Chief Justice of Hong Kong, was also a passenger on the Empress of China. He says that Great Britain will take over the Kowloon extension May 17.

Arkansas Mine Troubles.

Little Rock, Ark., April 26.—The clash of authority came at Fort Smith when the State District Attorney obtained an injunction restraining any railroad from hauling any force of men to Huntington to take the places of the striking miners, alleging that such men were armed and lawless and that their appearance at the mines would endanger the peace of the State. On learning of the action of the State court, the attorneys of the coal company caused the injunction of the Federal Court prohibiting interference with men who desired to work to be served also on the Sheriff on the ground that he is interfering with the operation of the mines by prohibiting the railroad from takng new men to the mines. The Sheriff has appointed a number of deputies to enforce the order of the State Court. It is said that the Governor approves the action of the State Court.

President Will Visit Philadelphia.

Washington, April 26.—Arrangements have been made for the President's trip to Philadelphia to witness the unveiling of the Grant Monument April 27. The party will consist of the President and Mrs. McKinley, Secretary and Mrs. Gage, Secretary and Mrs. Long, Attorney General Griggs, Secretary Hitchcock, Captain Algernon Sartoris, Assistant Secretary Cortelyou, and servants. The party will leave here Thursday morning by special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad. After the unveiling the President will attend a banquet given by the Union League Club, and later in the evening an entertainment at the Academy of Music. Friday morning the party will visit the Raleigh and it will return to Washington Friday afternoon. The ladies of the President's party will be entertained at special functions while the men are at the banquet.

Aesthetics in Illinois.

Chicago, April 26.—Among the bills signed by Governor Tanner is one providing for an art commissioner for towns having populations of more than 100,000. It is intended to prevent any display of vulgarity or crudity in buildings erected and streets laid out in the future, and at the same time to tone down existing monstrosities. Only a few days ago a society was formed having for its object the propagation of artistic fancies and facts for the city's guidance in its externals. It is proposed to change the present hideous structures over the Chicago River into bridges more on the pattern of those across the Seine or in Venice. This is a beginning of Chicago's development as a city in artistic directions.

Alabama's Constitutional Convention.

Montgomery, Ala., April 26.—There now appears to be doubt as to whether the Legislature has the power to repeal the constitutional convention act. Senator Morgan has wired the State Democratic Executive Committee in part as follows:

"The Legislature has exhausted its powers in taking the first step in revising the constitution, and the people have the right to act. The first step is as irrevocable as any that are to follow."

The committee says there are precedents in support of that opinion.

The Revenue Stamp Frauds

Youngstown, Ohio, April 26.—Eighteen thousand cigars have been seized in this city in boxes bearing bogus revenue stamps.

Houston, Tex., April 26.—Revenue officers have seized in Galveston about 200,000 cigars in boxes bearing counterfeit revenue stamps.

New Haven, Conn., April 26.—Revenue officers made additional seizures of cigars manufactured by W. M. Jacobs, of Lancaster, Pa., at factory No. 3,741, and bearing counterfeit stamps. The lot taken by the Government numbered 10,000, making more than 18,000 cigars seized in this city.

The Samoan Commission.

San Francisco, April 26.—The members of the Samoan Commission have arrived and will go to Apia on the transport Badger, which sailed Wednesday. Mr. Tripp, the American representative, says that the commissioners are in thorough harmony in their desire to avoid international complications, and are in accord on the main issues.

Russia on The Persian Gulf.

Bombay, April 26.—The Times of India says it learns from an "unimpeachable source" that Russia has obtained an interest in a portion of the Persian Gulf, sufficient to give her the right to take possession of it whenever she chooses. It is added that the information comes direct from Teheran, and it is believed that the port referred to is Bunder-Abbassee.

Gov. Tanner Burned in Effigy.

Campaign, Ill., April 26.—Students of the University of Illinois last night prepared and effigy of Governor Tanner, swung it from the limb of a tree and afterward burned it. The indignation against the Governor was caused by his veto of a part of the appropriation for the university passed by the last Legislature.

Subtle, But Untrue.

The Elizabeth Journal yesterday published a long editorial under the caption of "Shall Elizabeth Sleep On or Wake Up?" It was a solicitious essay in reference to the trolley situation in Elizabeth as developed by the application of John Kean for a franchise to change the old horse car line into an electric railway, and the declination of the majority of the City Council to accept the meagre benefits which the shrewd corporation financier has seen fit to offer the city in return for the valuable privilege.

The Journal gives prominence to a report that unless the officials of Roselle grant the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company the franchise asked for through that borough, that company will skip Roselle by going on the north side of the borough and build a line to Irvington, there to connect with the trolley line to Newark.

For the purpose of argument the Journal gives the article a great deal more weight than it is entitled to, as well as putting constructions upon the facts presented therein that are at variance with the known and conceded plans of the promoters of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company.

The Journal says that "if Roselle is sidetracked by this scheme, Elizabeth will also be sidetracked." And then the Journal advances some subtle argument to shew that Elizabeth's salvation for trolley connections to Plainfield and intermediate towns is in the scheme which John Kean is promoting. Therefore the Journal insists that the Council should concede all that Mr. Kean asks, and grant him the franchise.

The Daily Press has assurances from an authoritative source that the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company have no intention of making connections with Elizabeth. Even if the Roselle Council declines finally to grant them a franchise—and it is by no means certain that the result will be this—the company has already had offered to them several routes to Elizabeth that are almost as desirable as the one through Roselle; and certainly just as advantageous to Elizabeth in providing suburban transit in this direction.

The principal object of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company in building this line is to tap Elizabeth and Plainfield, and they will take extraordinary recourses to accomplish this. Elizabeth need have no fear that she will be sidetracked in trolley connections with Plainfield.

The Journal's argument has an air of dignity about it, but it is not based on the truth. The Elizabeth Council should hold to their present position and compel John Kean to agree to better terms than he is negotiating for.

RICHARD CROKER, TAMMANY LEADER.

He isn't an office holder in the city government, but, as the leader of the Tammany Hall Democracy, Richard Croker probably wields more influence than any other man in New York City. He declared when a witness before the Mazet investigating committee that, "other things being equal, the entire patronage should go to loyal members of the dominant party."

In view of the proposed street improvements in the centre of the city where it is intended to supercede the present macadamized roadbeds with asphalt, the observations of a writer in the American Architect on this matter is of local interest. The superiority of asphalt is regarded as unquestionable by many of the best judges in this country, and this is evidenced by its increasing use in so many of the cities. One minor trouble is remarked in its use, which has been a matter of careful experimenting. Waves appear at intervals in its smooth surface, caused by the heat of summer and the pressure of traffic. These sometimes showing a depression of an inch from the level in a linar distance of from eighteen inches to two feet. The present regulation standard of permissible depression is three-sixteenths to one half inch.

Gov. Voorhees yesterday appointed a commission to work jointly with a similar commission in New York to examine into and report as to the best methods of preserving the Palisades. It is to be ardently hoped that through the joint efforts of these commissions some plan may be evolved whereby the work of gradually tearing away the majestic Palisades for commercial purposes may be effectively stopped. The palisades should be preserved.

It is a cold day when New Jersey is not mentioned in some of the great deals of the world. Now it is announced that Richard Croker and a number of his bosom friends have rented a house at Red Bank which will be run as a sort of a summer annex to their much-discussed Democratic Club. In consonance with the town, the annex is designed to be a red-hot affair.

The decision of the State Board of Taxation yesterday in dimissing the appeal of the local Y. M. C. A. to have the assessment made against their property made by the city set aside, is an important one. It will doubtless establish a precedent to guide the action in future contentions of the same kind.

Advertising is an essential of a successful business that cannot be neglected at any time of the year. Trade is never so dull nor never so brisk but that publicity in the columns of The Daily Press will prove satisfactory.

A milk company with $20,000,000 capital has been incorporated at Trenton. Of course, it is superflous to refer to any relation between milk and water when we consider the stock of this concern.

Now that the time for holding Jefferson celebration dinners has passed the Democrats are looking around to see what else there is to relieve the political monotony with.

It would seem as though a little of the President's "benevolent assimilation" would not be a bad thing for Georgians to experience.

Perhaps if Captain Coghlan had weighed his words a little longer they would not have been quite so strong.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The fact that a race between the college crew of Yale University and the Annapolis naval cadets only awaits the sanction of the faculty, gives interest to all news concerning the crew. In the official statistics of crews it is found that Raymond A. McGee, of Plainfield, is among the oldest, tallest and heaviest of the college crew. There is only one other of the same age, two others of equal height and one other of the same weight. The age is 22, height 6 ft. 1 in. and weight 185 pounds.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Manager Edwards announces for the first time in this city, at Music Hall tonight, "Tangled Relations." It is adaptation by Robert Whittier from the French of Alexander Bisson, that brilliant author who has created so much amusement to our theatre-going public by his brilliant, satirical wit in "Masked Ball," "On and Off," "Because She Loved Him So," etc., lately produced by that enterprising manager, Chas. Frohman. It is said to be superior to all other plays of the popular author, abounding in funny situations and cleverest satirical wit. The original play had a run in Paris of over 1,100 performances and was accorded highest praise. The company who are to appear in the presentation of tonight are all well-known people, and the play will shortly be produced in New York by this same cast. The characters in the the play are interpreted by the following: Robert Whittier, Giles Warren, Henry Webster, Jerome Anthony, Teddy Hart, William Andrews, Frank Grey, Miss Gussie Hart, Miss Alice Baird and Miss Constance Thill.

"A Milk White Flag," Hoyt's most successful effort in comedy, comes to Music Hall Wednesday evening, May 3d. The plot and satire are constructed on broader lines than most of Hoyt's skits, and its witticisms strike in hilarious style in every direction. "A Milk White Flag" is the kind of piece that fills the theatre and pleases the audiences.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 26—A large gathering of friends helped Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Emery to celebrate Mr. Emery's fifty-first birthday Sunday evening. The time was spent in a quiet but very pleasant way and mine host received many congratulations and wishes that he would live to see many more. During the evening Mrs. Emery furnished a bountiful collation and covers for twenty were set. All left about midnight with the last wish that Landlord Emery might live to see fifty-one more natal days. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. Blimm, Mr. and Mrs. Peddefiou, Mr. Findlay, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Spiegel, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Westphal, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Werner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Adelman, all of Plainfield, and Mr. and Mrs. O'Melia and Mrs. Edward Emery and daughter, of Bayonne.

Miss Minnie Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Robinson, of Fanwood, entertained a number of friends at a birthday party at her home last evening. The evening was pleasantly spent in dancing, playing games, social talk and congratulating the young hostess, who was celebrating her sixteenth natal day. Friends were present from New York, Brooklyn and Plainfield, besides a large number from the borough and Plains.

There is a little laugh in the borough over what might have been a serious affair. One well-known resident was wandering about his property Monday evening, when another well-known citizen, thinking he was a suspicious looking person, fired his pistol at him. Fortunately he missed his aim and made the excuse that he did not aim at him. It is said there was a warm time there while explanations were being made.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in eight bottles. It has cured me and thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

We haven't a jumbled lot of things you don't want; you will find here ample, liberal stocks of the very goods and styles you do want—that ninety-nine women in a hundred will pick, even with a city full of goods to choose from.

They are spread out for easy inspection. They are marked at lower prices, quality for quality, than anywhere else. This statement is so easy to make that many stores make it as a matter of habit. We want you to know that we WEIGH EVERY WORD; what we say is based on accurate knowledge of what every other store is doing.

There was never so extensive variety shown in this city. Just think of it, more than 150 TRIMMED HATS to select from, not two alike, either, copies of the very latest French models. OF UNTRIMMED STRAW SHAPES we have every desirable shape and color, in all the new straws, all marked at prices less than you would expect to pay.

WOMEN EDUCATORS.

TWO WHO HAVE CHARGE OF THE SCHOOLS OF COLORADO.

Mrs. Grenfell Is State Superintendent and Mrs. Peterson Is Her Deputy. Both Have Been Teachers and Have Come Up From the Bottom.

[Copyright, 1899, by American Press Association.]

It is very evident that as women are being tried in positions of public trust and responsibility they are not found wanting; on the contrary, they are found to possess ability, judgment and a conscientious devotion to duty which make them invaluable in many public positions heretofore considered as belonging entirely to men. Especially is this true in matters pertaining to education.

After an experience of several years with a woman as superintendent of public instruction, Colorado has again elected a woman to that position with the unanimous vote of all parties. No more flattering recognition of woman's fitness and ability in guiding the educational interests of a state could be given than the unanimous choice of a woman, irrespective of party affiliations.

Mrs. Helen Loring Grenfell, the present incumbent, is a beautiful, cultured and earnest woman, who will give a great impetus to education in Colorado, as her past record in educational matters shows, and the citizens of the state may well congratulate themselves that such a capable, practical and earnest woman will sacrifice a life of ease and comfort for the duties, cares and responsibilities of superintendent of public instruction.

Mrs. Grenfell is a home loving, domestic woman, whose personal happiness would be best consulted by remaining quietly at home; but, having no children, she feels it her duty to respond when the office seeks her.

Mrs. Grenfell is a descendant of the old Puritan families of White and Thatcher, her father being one of the Lorings of Boston. While she was born in Valparaiso, Chile, she was brought up in Colorado, where most of her education was received. She attended the Albany normal school, as preparation for teaching, in which work she was engaged for eight years previous to her marriage to Mr. Edwin I. Grenfell.

She was chosen superintendent of schools in Gilpin county in 1896, and when the time for election next came she was nominated upon every one of the four political tickets in the field. Her success in administering the schools of Gilpin county attracted so much attention that the nomination for state superintendent of public instruction was offered her by the unanimous choice of all parties on the fusion ticket last fall.

Mrs. Grenfell has always been a firm Republican, and while not a politician in the sense usually attached to that word has evinced so much clear judgment, sound sense and unswerving integrity upon all questions that her opinions and advice are invariably sought by the lawmakers of her own county and already receive marked attention from others of the state.

She was the first woman candidate to accompany the nominees for governor and for secretary of state on their tour preceding election, when, by her quiet, sensible and powerful addresses she won many votes for the ticket.

Mrs. Grenfell has appointed as her deputy Mrs. Celia F. Osgood Peterson, an equally brilliant woman, who is devoted to the cause of education and a writer of note along educational and progressive thought lines. Mrs. Peterson was appointed entirely upon merit, and without any political pull whatever, she being a Democrat, while the state superintendent is a Republican. If for no other reason than that women will consider fitness for office rather than party, they are most desirable for public offices of trust and responsibility.

Mrs. Peterson is also an eastern woman, born in Exeter, Me., and brought up in Medford, Mass., where she was graduated from the high school in 1879 as valedictorian. Her parents removed that year to Denver, where she attended the high school and graduated from that institution the following year. She began teaching in the fall of the same year and the following year was appointed a teacher in the Denver public schools, where she has not missed a year since until in June, 1898, she resigned to marry Joseph E. Peterson, a merchant of Denver, formerly of Chicago.

MRS. HELEN L. GRENFELL.
[State superintendent of schools, Colorado.]

In addition to her regular duties as teacher, she has for the past four years been instructor in methods in the summer school and institute work of the state. In September, 1898, she accepted the position of teacher of methods and of United States history in the Denver Normal and Preparatory school, from which position she was called to that of deputy superintendent of public instruction.

A Denver paper, belonging to the opposite political party, says of her appointment: "If the fusionists who were put in power at the last election make as satisfactory appointments in every office as that of deputy superintendent of public instruction, the people will be well satisfied. Mrs. Grenfell, the newly elected state superintendent, has appointed as her deputy Mrs. Celia Osgood Peterson. As Celia Osgood, a teacher in the East Denver district, the new deputy was well known in educational circles, where her abilities won her special recognition. She was regarded as one of the star teachers in the district, and it is said that Superintendent Gove still cherishes a grudge against the gentleman whom she married last spring. She was the first president of the Teachers' club and has always been a prominent member of the educational department of the Woman's club. Her appointment will be very pleasing to a large element of the most representative women in the city."

Inasmuch as both the superintendent and her deputy have devoted their lives to public school work, they are especially well fitted to take charge of the educational interests of the state.

Aside from her interest in educational matters, Mrs. Peterson has taken an active interest in the Woman's club of Denver, one of the largest and most in fluential clubs in the United States, and says that she considers it one of the greatest honors of her life to be chosen by them to represent Colorado as a speaker at the biennial convention of the Federated Clubs of the United States, which met in Denver last summer.

Mrs. Peterson has grown up in an atmosphere of progressive thought, and among her earliest recollections she says she remembers the expressions in her home, on the part of her parents and their friends, of a belief in the equality of man and woman and equal rights and privileges for both in every department of life. She believes thoroughly that women are by nature equally active with men and have an equal impulse to join in the wide field of the world's work, and as opportunities open to them they will prove this to be true. NOTES OF WOMEN'S WORK.

Warwick castle, the historic seat of England's famous "kingmaker," has been converted into an asset of a new and unique corporation, the Lord and Lady Warwick company, limited. It is said to be a plan of the Countess of Warwick, otherwise known as Lady Brooke, to unload a big debt which burdens the estate.

Miss Rosamond Rodkinson, a daughter of Dr. Michael L. Rodkinson, the Jewish historian, gives lectures or talks in Jewish communities throughout the country, explaining her father's translation and compilation of the Babylonian Talmud. She is a talented linguist, speaking seven languages.

The strangest of wedding journeys is that of Miss Emeline Smith, who is taking a trip, accompanied by her mother, from St. Louis to Manila, via San Francisco and Hongkong, to wed Lieutenant Pegram Whitworth of the Eighteenth United States infantry.

Misses Mary Mendel of Pittsburg and Edith Hallenbaugh of Columbus have become teachers in the schools of Ponce, Porto Rico.

Miss Laura Smith, professor of English literature in the University of Nevada, has been notified by the British court of chancery that she has fallen heir to a fortune of $1,000,000. She is young, pretty and bright.

Lady Randolph Churchill is devoting her energies and some of her cash to the establishment of a literary and artistic quarterly magazine which will sell for $5 a copy. It will be published simultaneously in London and New York in June.

Miss Frances Willeta Parker is a Bostonian who has made a specialty of folklore songs and earns a pretty penny singing them to society people.

Mrs. L. G. Sherman is an anatomical artist in Chicago and paints the blood vessels on models of the human body, giving each vein and fiber the actual color of arterial fluid and with such accuracy that clinical instruction can be given from the models.

Mrs. Hortensia M. Black, wife of Captain William P. Black, the attorney who defended the men who were convicted of participation in the Chicago Haymarket riots, is a strong advocate of the theory of reincarnation and believes that animals have souls and that their lives should be as sacred as those of human beings. This belief finds practical expression in the extreme kindness with which she treats all living creatures.

The National Relief Association of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, originated by Mrs. A. Livingston Mason of Rhode Island, contemplates the establishment of branches in every state which will co-operate with the national society in measures to provide necessities and comforts for our army and navy or for sufferers in any great national disaster.

JACKETS AND CAPES.

Prevailing Fashions In Out of Door Apparel.

Jackets and capes are both worn and will continue to be worn for some time. The jacket does not replace the cape, because each has its different uses. The jacket is for general wear; the cape accompanies more elaborate toilets. Short capes of silk, satin, embroidery, lace, chiffon and guipure are seen in all varieties and colors and are lavishly trimmed. The more extravagant ones have often a hat and parasol to match.

The ornamentation of cloth capes consists principally of applications and incrustations of cloth and straps, pipings and folds of cloth or satin. White predominates among these trimmings, with attractive results. Two or more shades of the same color are also employed and are always pleasing—for example, dark brown, light brown and beige or dark gray and light gray. As for embroidery upon cloth, it is quieter and less elaborate than it was last year and is used alone or in combination with lines of stitching or bands of satin.

The picture shows a charming costume for a girl from 14 to 16 years old. It is of silver gray satin cloth, the skirt having two slant circular ruffles around the foot, bordered with stitching. The open coat, which has a short basque, is made with large horizontal stitched plaits and has a row of large pearl buttons on each side of the front. The circular pelerine is bordered with stitching, and there are stitched cuffs at the wrists of the tight sleeves. The chemisette is of white surah, the cravat of white lace, and a plain linen collar is worn. The hat of gray straw is trimmed with a drapery of white tulle and a fan of lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

PARASOLS.

They Are Gayly Colored and Richly Embroidered.

Parasols are this year less fluffy than they have been in previous years, but are no less costly and elaborate, for frills are no more expensive than the rich applications and embroideries now employed. The covering is usually of silk or satin plainly stretched, but covered with incrustations of lace or guipure or lace. Embroidered moire covers are also seen. Parasols of plain or embroidered mousseline de soie are not by any means entirely abandoned, however. They are trimmed with ruches, shirring and lace and are carried with elaborate costumes. There are also one or two bizarre novelties, noticeable because of their oddity, but hardly to be reckoned as a fashionable influence. Among them may be be mentioned a parasol covered with a large plaid silk, having blue and white bars on a straw ground. In the middle of each square is a chou of white mousseline de soie with a gold button in the center. Another novelty is the circular covering, which is all in one piece instead of being cut in breadths with a seam down each rib. Among plain parasols are solid colors in rose, cherry, blue, lilac and green, very attractive stripes in black or color and white and small plaids. The last are also employed for sun umbrellas, which are seen in the usual reds, blues and browns besides, with cases to match. Natural wood handles, stained green or black, are favorites.

A picture is given of an attractive vest or plastron to be worn with an open coat or bolero. The middle plait of white satin is studded with gold buttons, and on each side of it is a revers of white satin with an embroidered border falling in coquilles. Outside the revers is a ruffle of white mousseline de soie, and the collar is also of mousseline de soie. The cravat of black or colored velvet is fastened by an ornamental buckle. JUDIC CHOLLET.

PLAN AHEAD.

This is Something That is Very Often Neglected.

If you have never planned to have early horseradish, pie-plant and asparagus now is the time to plan for next spring for it is necessary that the plants you intend to force should be where you can conveniently get at them to force them, of course you won't want to use your whole bed so this spring is a good time to set out a new one or to divide the old into early and late.

In setting pie-plant it is better to get old roots as the seedlings are not sure to come true to type and as one cannot conveniently run an experiment station in a garden and do much else I say plant the old roots. Of course you might from seed get some grand new sorts; if you are in it for money take good old roots and divide with a sharp knife or the spade into as many pieces as there are eyes or buds; you must be careful that each piece has a bud or it will not grow no matter how large the cutting.

To prepare the ground, select a southern exposure and plow deeply and heavily fertilize. Do not be afraid of putting on too much manure, there is no danger of that, for pie-plant is a heavy feeder. The roots should be set for the purpose of forcing about five feet apart in rows each way arranged so that the plants of the second row will come midway between the plants of the first row. I think spring the best time to set out, and the crown of the plant should just come above the ground, you cannot force a new bed for two years, without danger of injuring it, but you may cut from it at any time when it is large enough.

The forcing is done by placing kegs around the plants and banking with heating manure or by using rows of boards and banking around it. You can force it here and have it ready for market in February or by the first of March unless the winter is unusually cold. Of nights a piece of old matting or carpet should be thrown over the top to keep out the chill air.

If you will plant horseradish sets any time up to the first of June you may force them next spring. By sets I mean the little top shoot with about half an inch of stalk on it, set these out on the south side of a building, give them rich soil and plenty of water and they will do the rest, the latter part of January scrape away the snow if there is any and cover six inches deep with well-heated manure, notice it in a week and see if the shoots have not started, if they are an inch high they will do to dig; wash and grind the roots and place in good vinegar in pint and quart cans and you can sell them as fast as you want to.

For forcing asparagus you must stake off the bed you mean to force. I would advise forcing one end of the bed one spring and one end next as it is not safe to force it two consecutive seasons. You must also in the fall before the ground freezes dig a trench eighteen inches to two feet deep around each clump of roots, far enough from it so you expose none of the roots. This trench must be well packed in with straw; give the surface of the ground a good dressing of well-rotted manure or, better yet, fertilizer.

When you want to force your asparagus dig the straw out of the trench and fill with heating manure banked up to two feet above the plants on the north and a foot on the south, then put on your sash, plant bed cloth or plain factory and your asparagus is ready to start a growth, you must keep it watered well.

I hope you will plan ahead and grow something early and get a good price for it, as I know you can.—G. M., in Garden and Farm.

The Small Farm Best.

Three years ago I sold a farm of 200 acres that was heavily mortgaged, and out of my equity I bought and paid for a fifty-acre farm, with fair improvements, and I think it was the best trade I ever made in my life. We have four in the family, do all of our own work, get much larger yields from small fields, in proportion, than I did from the large ones and having less land to cultivate I can give more attention to cows, hogs and poultry which I find pays better than drowned out or dried-up crops, and since we have no hired help or interest to pay we are living comfortably and can succeed in "hanging on" through about as hard times as anybody can. For a money maker, to say nothing of the greater comfort in living, I vote every time for a small farm paid for against a big farm with a mortgage.—S. Allons, Mich.

Tillage.

The object of tillage is to secure the proper arrangement of soil particles with relation to each other. The stirring of the soil is very beneficial in the destruction of weeds, but any system that will keep the soil in the best physical condition will also keep down the weeds. Soil temperature can be considerably influenced by physical conditions. The water-holding capacity or facility with which water can move through the soil, and consequently the supply of plant food which may be carried to the roots of the crop, the amount of water taken to the surface and evaporated, are governed largely by the arrangement of the particles. The free access of air can be secured in sufficient quantities, supplying the necessary amount of oxygen, and the soil can be placed in such a condition of fineness as to allow the perfect root development. The importance of these points make it necessary to give a great deal of attention to the preparation of the seed bed.—South Dakota Experiment Station.

FAITHFUL UNCLE BOB.

Gov. Atkinson's Family Friend and the Story of the Friendship.

No official in the United States has a more faithful servitor than has W. Y. Atkinson, Governor of Georgia, in old Uncle Bob. The old negro is now over sixty years old, past the time when he can earn his living by hard work. So, when first elected Governor, three years ago, Gov. Atkinson wrote a letter to Uncle Bob, then living in Griffin, and offered him a place as janitor at the Capitol at a salary of $20 a month, and the old darky gladly accepted the place. He stood sadly in need of assistance, for he had been turned out of his own domicile by a girl whom he had dopted when she was a little thing, and had reared and educated out of his own earnings.

When Gov. Atkinson was suffering with the attack of appendicitis that came near proving mortal last year Uncle Bob sat on the doorsteps in front of the sanitarium where the Governor was being treated night after night, and never left his post unless he was required to go on an errand for his sick master. When the operation was performed he sat up the whole night, and his was among the first voices to cheer the Governor in his convalescence. One day the Governor was indisposed and Uncle Bob heard of it and went to the mansion to spend the night with his master and to cheer his lonely hours. The Governor was restless. Uncle Bob began to recount the occurrences of his past life so as to help while away the hours, and for the first time related his war experience. He was sent to the front with Gov. Atkinson's eldest brother, John B. Atkinson, who was a member of the Seventh Georgia Regiment, and he recounted the story of his master's death and his own fidelity, apparently unconscious of his own heroism in the affair.

"Hit was on de mawnin' of de fus' Manassas," said he in his old plantation lingo, "an' we had stopped to get breakfus. I wus busy wid de camp fire tryin' to hurry up de breakfus, 'case dem wus sich squally times dat we didn't know w'at minit we'd hatter jump and run, w'en de Gin'l ordered de Sebent Geawgy to forrerd. I watch Mars' John as he lip to his feet an' grab his musket an' fall inter line.

"In er mighty few minits de ridgment come tearin' back, but Mars' John was slow 'bout comin', an' des fo' dey got to de camp de Eight' Geawgy wus ordered to forrerd, an' dey bein' er lot o' Mars' John's kinfolks 'mong dem Eight' Geawgy people, w'en be meet 'em he turned an' started back inter de fight. I wus whar I could keep my eye on 'im, 'case I done promus ol' Missis I gwine ter watch out fo' de young Marster, an' I seed 'im way in front er de flag des er chargin' an' er hurrayin', an' den dey wus er flash lack lightnin' in front an' be fall.

"I neber had such feelin's in all my borned days. De bullits wus er flyin' thick as hailstones, an' I seed de men waver an' fall back, an' I knowed dat dey'd done let dat po' boy all lone on de fiel', and I look roun' fo some way ter git to 'im. Dey wus er little ravine dat led off in erroun'erbout way, an' I slid inter dat an' crawled fo' er quarter uv er mile, tell I got nigh 'nough ter retch 'im 'dout 'sposin' myse'f ter de bullits. I crope up ter whar be laid, an' he wus er tryin' to load 'is muskit. Er great big ball done struck 'im in de side an' tore er hole w'at look lack I could ram my fis' in, but be wusn't payin' no 'tention to de woun', but wus er tryin' to load de gun. I 'splained to 'im how bad hurt he was, an' 'suaded 'im ter git on my back and hol' on ter me twel I could git out er dat place. De bullits wus er singin' roun' my head, an' I had ter crawl back ter de ravine wid him on my back, an' den creep erlong twel I got over de hill an' out er range er de bullits.

"He was bleedin' tur'ble an' I knowed dat ef I didn't get he'p soon dat he'd bleed ter die. 'So I walked an' run as fas as I could go fo' six miles ter de station an' den I had ter wait eber so long fo' de train come gwine ter Richmon'. De ball wus lodged in 'is lef' side an' I des knowed dat 'is insides wus all tore up, an' I give 'im water an' sot an' fanned 'im an' bathed 'is face all dat long Sunday mawnin' twel de train come.

"Well, sah, at las' de train come an' I managed ter git de po' boy on boa'd an' we started on dat ride ter Richmon'. W'en we got dar de hospitals was so crowded dat I t'ought I'd never git er comfo'terble place fo' Mars' John. He was out'n 'is head an' kep' er talkin' 'bout home and de home folks and hit almost bruk my heart to lis'n ter his child talk. Hit was late Monday night 'fo' I could git er surgeon to dress de woun' an' den hit was too late. Death done struck de po' boy w'en de doctor 'examined de woun' an' shuck 'is head an' said mortification done sot in. All dat I could do wus ter set by de bed an' wet 'is lips an' fo'ed an' bresh back de long ha'r dat looked so boyish an' curly as he laid dar gaspin' fo' breath.

Hit wus 'way pas' midnight, an' I wus des drappin' inter a lil' doze, w'en he spoke ter me, an' he ax whar he wus, an' I tol' 'im dat he wus safe an' I wus dar to see dat he wus tuck good care uv, an' den he ax me w'at time hit wus, an' I tol' 'im hit's soon be daylight. I ax 'im ef he feel better, an' he sorter smile lack an' say he feel fus' rate. Den he 'gun ter tell me w'at to tell he maw w'en I git back ter Geawgy, an' I couldn' keep down de tears, an' he tol' me I mus' be er better sojer dan dat, an' ter tell de folks dat he done 'is bes'.

"I gin 'im some water an' he drink a sip an' den tell me ter tell all de folks good-by fo' he'd never see ol' Geawgy no mo', an' den I des bruk down. He beg me ter raise 'im up an' I lif' 'is head an' he fetch one long breff and was gone."—New York Sun.

ONE AHEAD.

They Were His First Poems—and it Was a Very Pleasant Sensation.

She was an unusual woman, and carried herself superbly, whether mounted for a gallop, floating in a shimmering maze of tulle in the ball room, or crossing the dining hall in a blue gingham. Yet they had both been there a month and he did not notice her until one lazy afternoon in the very heart of the summer.

He sat smoking and thinking at a bend of the piazza, where he could see and not be seen. The hills were blue and dreamy, and only a sigh came from the pine forest below the hotel. She was lying in a hammock with a book. The veranda was deserted, and she was reading aloud something familiar—reading, in fact, in a voice full of feeling, a quantrain from his own poems:—

Like bending boughs frost-wrapped in winter's breath,
Agleam with bright, unmelting, slanting sun
Is Art when thought alone its content is,
And Love, forbidden, stands aloof, undone.

They were his first poems—and it was a very pleasant sensation. She closed the book, placed her hands behind her head, and looking far away toward the northern mountains, repeated the last line in a voice that fell through the soft silence into his very heart, and thrilled him in a manner unknown before.

Shakespeare presents the supreme egotist of all fiction in Othello, and with an egotism like Othello's he first noticed this woman in a personal way when he found she was interested in him—or rather in his little stories in rhyme. He noticed then the round white arm from which the sleeve fell away. He noticed the exquisite outline of her figure and the curve of her chin and throat, and he felt the melody of her voice, and all—not for herself—but because she loved his poem.

That night, when the music sighed and throbbed, he danced with her. It was his first waltz for years. She had read his poem and partly for that he liked it. Perhaps partly, too, that the woman was a poem in herself.

One evening, soon after, they watched together a storm coming down from the mountains. All the winds of heaven were let loose. The pine trees fought like demons and fell back with a sob when the wind passed them. The thunder boomed like mighty cannon and the lightning played in the mountain tops.

As he watched her, her face was transformed. The glory and the grandeur of it all had made her forget him. Suddenly there was a long moment of silence in which he could hear her deep breathing, and then came the rain and hail and howling of the wind.

She was leaning far out into the darkness, and as she drew back a hailstone struck her cheek, causing her to cry out. He caught her to his heart and for one moment forgot himself and why he had cared for her.

In less than a year he was thinking of it all, one evening, as he silently smoked in the firelight of his library. He leaned back and laughed aloud.

"That was a sensation, truly! And how nearly, after all my experience, all my vows made at the altar of ambition, did I lose myself for a woman—but such a woman! I shall never see her equal again. There comes the postman. Invitations—invitations—how they do run after an eligible! Letters—from Kitty and from Ruth—sweet girls, both of them. And—good! A card from the publishers announcing the prize winners of the last contest. I wonder if its first or second place I come in—a thousand dollars would not be so very bad just now—by Jove."

He started to his feet and held the paper at arm's length. He read it again. The name of the first prize winner was her name. He wasn't mentioned, either, for second.

"Well," he mused over his pipe, "she wasn't such a goose, if she was in love with me once."

Neither Did the King.

It is told of King Frederick VI of Denmark that while traveling through Jutland one day he entered a village school and found the children lively and intelligent and quite ready to answer his questions.

"Well, youngsters," he said, "what are the names of the greatest kings of Denmark?"

With one accord they cried out, "Canute the Great, Waldemar and Christian V!"

Just then a little girl, to whom the schoolmaster had whispered something stood up and raised her hand.

"Do you know another?" asked the king.

"Yes—Frederick VI."

"What great act did he perform?"

The girl hung her head and stammered out, "I don't know."

"Be comforted, my child," said the king. "I don't know either."

No Flies on Them.

Pretty Teacher (intent on the lesson)—And vast swarms of flies descended on the land and came into the houses of the Egyptians and covered their clothing and their tables and all their food, but (impressively) there were no flies on the children of Israel. Small Boy—Please, ma'am, there ain't now, either.—Harlem Life.

Venom.

Mabel—Are you going to return the poor fellow's ring?

Florence (who has just broken her engagement)—I haven't decided. I suppose he'll propose to you now, and I thought I'd just hand it over to you to save bother.

READY FOR THE STEPPERS

OPENING WILL TAKE PLACE SATURDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 13TH.

New Jersey Driving Association Will Also Be Reorganized—Probably a Triangular League—Woodbridge's Active Season.

In three weeks the trotting season in Plainfield will open. Within that time a meeting of the Central New Jersey Driving Association will be called and an attempt made to reorganize that league for the coming season. The triangular league, including Plainfield, New Brunswick and Trenton, seems the most probable choice. Meanwhile the local driving association has been going ahead alone and planned to open the track on Park avenue, Saturday afternoon, May 13th.

While Woodbridge is not in the league and is not likely to join, the horsemen of that place and Plainfield have decided to combine forces for their opening days. The opening in Plainfield will be held the 13th. That in Woodbridge will be held a week later.

It is not the intention of the Plainfield horsemen to arrange any formal race meet for the opening here. There will be, however, a number of matches between local and Woodbridge horses and, perhaps, some speed trials.

There are a number of fast horses, both trotters and pacers, owned in and around Plainfield this year. Some of them are known favorites and others are entirely new on local tracks. The success of last year's meet and the revival of the general interest in this kind of contests have prompted the horsemen foremost in the Plainfield Driving Association to plan another season as active or more so than the last. Already a number of the horsemen have been out on the road and exciting brushes have been quite numerous Saturday afternoons.

Snap Shots in Switzerland.

Major W. H. Coughlin, of Brooklyn, delivered an illustrated lecture at the Y. M. C. A. last night, entitled, "Snap Shots in Switzerland." The lecture was illustrated with eighty colored views of the parts of country about which he spoke, and they made what the speaker told about very plain. The pictures were taken by him during his trip to Switzerland last summer, and being an artist, Major Coughlin colored them and prepared them for exhibition. A. V. Searing, Jr., who handled the stereopticon, produced the Alpine glow which made a very pretty effect.

Not Fighting the Law.

The Union Building and Loan Association is not fighting the new law governing building and loan associations, because the law is right and just, in that it protects the stockholder and guarantees him that he shall at least receive as much as he pays in, in monthly dues. And after one year this association guarantees him six per cent. interest on his instalments from the date of his first payment. This is all and even more than the State law requires.

STILL NO TRACE.

Dr. Tracy's Whereabouts Not Yet Disclosed—Family Is Hopeful of News.

Up to date no news has been received regarding Dr. Robert S. Tracy, son of J. Evarts Tracy, of West Eighth street, but still the search is being continued in the hopes that he may be found soon. It has been thought that Dr. Tracy was in a sanitarium being treated for mind trouble. This is not true, so a representative of The Daily Press was informed today. Dr. Tracy has been suffering with lung trouble and it was for the treatment of that ailment that he was stopping at the sanitarium.

Various theories have been advanced regarding his whereabouts. One is that he may have fallen in a swiftly-flowing stream in the mountains and drowned before anyone could assist him. Another theory is that he may be stopping at some out of the way place, where all communication is cut off, and where no one would be apt to hear that the doctor is being looked for.

The family is still hopeful and they believe that he will be found soon. The extended absence without any word has a telling effect on the family and relatives, but they bear the misfortune with remarkable fortitude.

BADGE FOR DEWEY.

Handsome and Costly Jewel is Voted to the Admiral by Patriotic Society.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, April 26—Appleton Morgan, president of the Society of the War of 1812, of New Jersey, went to New York this morning and delivered a package to Commander George E. Ide, of the U. S. S. Yosemite, which the latter will deliver to Admiral Dewey at Manila.

The package contains the badge which the society voted Admiral Dewey in honor of his services in the Phillipines. The badge is made of gold. It is in the form of a Maltese cross, between four golden eagles, upon an anchor. The arms of the cross bear the four arms of the service—cavalry, artillery, infantry and naval. In the centre of the cross is a medallion bearing the figures 1812, surrounded by 18 stars representing the States in the Union during the war of 1812. On the reverse side is a sunburst with the name of Admiral Dewey engraved thereon.

Handsome in Every Way.

Those who happened downtown this morning found Bonn's, the new ladies' outfitting store at 140 West Front street, open and ready for business. L. B. Bonn, the proprietor, has had twenty years experience in New York city, and is thoroughly acquainted with the details of the business. The store is handsomely fitted up and contains a large and excellent assortment in the lines that are included. Hats, flowers, ribbons, veilings, belts, waists, skirts, corsets, underwear and wrappers have all received attention. What Mr. Bonn especially wishes to impress on the Plainfield public is that he carries all grades and at all prices.

"Rodney" is Entered.

J. D. James, of Sycamore avenue, has gone to Baltimore, taking with him his celebrated dog "Rodney," whom he will exhibit in the dog show at that place. Mr. James was also accompanied by his son, Frank James.

Benefit for Mrs. Bender.

This evening a dance and phonograph entertainment together, with a cake-walk, will be held in Saengerbund Hall for the benefit of Mrs. Henry Bender. The cake-walk will take place at 10 o'clock.

J. E. McClintock. of 21 Fairview avenue, has returned from a business trip to Washington.

MODEL SCHOOL BUILDING

NEW BOROUGH INSTITUTION UP-TO-DATE IN ALL RESPECTS.

The Rooms are Light and Commodious and the Sanitary Arrangement as Nearly Correct as Can be Secured.

In the new public school building located at the corner of Mountain and Watchung avenues, in the borough, which has very properly been named "Watchung School," the taxpayers have one of the best up-to-date educational institutions to be found anywhere in this section.

In view of the fact that the school will be formally opened tomorrow by the transfer of two classes from the High School building, a description of the building and its arrangement will not be amiss at this time.

The building is of brick, with two stories and an attic, and is located on the northeast corner of Mountain and Watchung avenues, which seems to be a very desirable location, when it is considered that that section is being thickly settled with nice comfortable homes. The approach to the building is not quite as imposing as the one to the High school, but nevertheless harmonizes nicely with the building. Directly in front of the building is a stately flag pole, from which will be floated a handsome flag. The foundation of the building is located at a depth of about eighteen inches under ground. The cellar is well cemented and is provided outside with a tar preparation as a double preventative against water.

On entering the building one is surprised to see the vast amount of room, which is arranged in a most advantageous way. The rooms are all large, well ventilated, and light. On each of the two floors there are six classrooms. On the first floor each classroom will seat about forty-nine pupils, and in the classrooms on the second floor forty-five can be seated. In each classroom there is a well-arranged closet, adjustable windows and large ventilators, through which air is thrown in the room by means of a large electric fan wheel that is located in the cellar. Thus the air in the rooms is changed continually. There is also ample provision made for heating the rooms through the use of four heaters in the cellar, and it is estimated that the four will be needed in extreme cold weather. The heaters are so arranged that they can be used to the best advantage for various temperatures in weather.

On each floor there is arranged in a neat alcove a drinking apparatus, where scholars can quench their thirst without leaving the building. This is one of the best arrangements provided. Another one equally as good is the arrangement of the closets in the basement. There are seven on the girls' side and five on the boys. The cremation system is used and the refuse is burned twice a month.

The arrangement and style of desk used in the classrooms is adjustable and can be raised as the children become larger. There is not the slightest attempt at crowding, and there is a general appearance of roominess about the whole building.

On both floors there are also front rooms provided for the work of the school, or they can be used by the teachers. The building in some respects is like the High School. There is a class room on the east side, one on the west side and one in the rear on each floor.

As for exits there are three. One is the front and main entrance, while on either side in the rear there are exits easy of access from any part of the building. Another improvement is the arrangements on the roof, whereby in winter snow cannot slide off and endanger the lives of children and teachers. In the hallways on each floor there is also ample accommodation for hats and coats, doing away with doors, and thus eliminating a great amount of unnecessary noise. There is not any more wood inside the building than is necessary and arrangements have been made for fire protection through the use of hose and large pipes attached to the water mains. Altogether the building is one of the most complete and up-to-date to be found, and the people of the borough cannot help but be pleased with it.

Will Have to be Confirmed.

Although it is understood that P. Kiely has received the contract for laying sidewalks and crosswalks in the borough, the action of the street committee will have to be confirmed at the meeting of the Council Friday, May 5th.

Exchange of Property.

J. P. D. Kirch was at Basking Ridge yesterday arranging for the exchange of the property situated at 124 Duer street, in the borough, for a store at Mt. Bethel. Both parties live out of town.

MAKEUP OF NATIONAL GUARD NOT YET FIXED

Work of Re-organizing the Regiments Uncompleted.

A NEW KIND OF UNIFORM.

IT WILL BE PATTERNED AFTER REGULAR ARMY HABILMENTS.

Formal Orders Will be Promulgated When Proposed Consolidation of Regiments Take Place—Men Who Enlisted as Volunteers During the War Will Not be Considered Members of Companies.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 27—It was expected that the order formally declaring the make-up of the reorganized New Jersey National Guard would be issued Tuesday by General Sewell, but owing to the fact that the work of reorganization of the regiments has not been completed the order was not to be promulgated. The State Military Board was in session considering the question of uniform for the organized guard.

It will be the same as that now used by the regular army. The old black and white helmets are abolished, and the regulation army hat and cap will be used. The dress coats for privates are also abolished. The uniform will include lined blouse, dark flannel shirt with roll collar, dark brown leggings and blue cartridge belt. All mounted officers will have boots and gauntlets. The trimmings for officers' uniforms will be white, red and yellow. The ornaments on the caps of officers will be the same as in the regular army except that they will contain the figures of the regiment.

The formal order cannot be promulgated until the proposed consolidation of regiments has taken place. The State Board expects this work to be accomplished in the course of a few days. General Campbell and Colonies Hine and Smith, of the First, Second and Fourth Regiments, were in the city endeavoring to have the Committee Guard revise its plan. General Campbell wants the First Regiment to be taken intact, and Colonel Smith is anxious to have the same order prevail with regard to the Fourth.

Colonel Hines does not ask so much but is interested in having the organization of some of the companies in the Second Regiment, particularly that at Orange, continued. The men who enlisted in the volunteer regiments and prior to their enlistment were not members of the National Guard do not become a part of the new organization. In order to remain members it will be necessary for them to enlist in the Guard the same as any other citizen. For the present, at least, the companies of the reorganized militia will continue with the same numerical strength as the old Guard. The number is fixed by law at a maximum of eighty and a minimum of fifty. This cannot be changed by order of the military authorities, but it is probable that the next Legislature will be asked to so amend the law as to bring the numerical strength of the National companies up to that of the regular army.

MARRIED IN A HURRY.

Thomas A. Nevins Proposed Tuesday Night and Sailed With His Bride Yesterday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Orange, April 27.—Among the passengers who left for Europe on the American liner New York yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Nevins, of East Orange, who were married three hours before the stemship sailed. Mr. Nevins is President of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, President of the Newark Consolidated Gas Company and is interested in the Newark Telephone Company and other concerns. His bride was Miss May Vincent Jackson, of County Tipperary, Ireland, who has been visiting Mr. Nevins parents. Tuesday night Mr. Nevins suggested to Miss Jackson that she should marry him and accompany him on his trip. She consented and the ceremony was performed by Rev. P. A. Wenzel, rector of St. Vanantaus's German Catholic church. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Doyle, of Detroit, Mich., brother-in-law and sister of the bride, were the witnesses.

Steam Roller at Work.

The steam roller was taken out yesterday morning for the first time this year and put to work on Park avenue. The roller has been treated to a fresh coat of paint, and has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired. The repairs have cost the city a snug sum of money, but the roller now is as good as new. As soon as the work on Park avenue is finished, the roller will be taken to another part of the city.

FEW CRIMINAL CASES.

NO PRISONERS OF IMPORTANCE IN SOMERSET COUNTY.

Tomorrow Will be Sentence Day, and Judge Bartine Will Sentence Six Culprits—Few Appeal Cases to be Decided.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Somerville, April 27.—Tomorrow will be sentence day in the Somerset County Court of Quarter Sessions and Judge Bartine will parcel out justice in six criminal charges, none of which, however, are of a very severe character. The criminal cases this term of court have been remarkably few and not one of them has resulted in a trial.

When the cases first came up after the indictments were filed, only two pleaded not guilty, the rest entering pleas of guilty or non vult. Yestorday, in the second of the two cases, that of the Baldwin brothers and Hartfelner, of Washington Valley, the plea of not guilty was retracted and non vult offered instead. That ended the possibility of a crimnal trial this term. Sentence day will dispose of the matter entirely. There are still remaining some Justice of Peace appeal cases which will be heard. Meanwhile the petit jury has been dismissed until May 11th when those cases will come up for trial.

COURT UPSETS TWO LIVES.

Declares That Marriage Performed Many Years Ago is Illegal.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, April 27 — The Court of Chancery has, on verbal orders, separated Mr. and Mrs. James S. Graham, who for nineteen years have been living happily together as man and wife.

The case came into court on an order to sell a parcel of land near New Brunswick. In her application Mrs. Graham stated that in 1864 she married a Henry Smith in Virginia. In 1869 she took advantage of the Massachusetts law and secured a bill of separation from her husband. In 1880 she believed the term of separation sufficiently long to be equivalent to a divorce, so she married James Graham in Washington.

The persons to whom she desired to sell the land were not sure that the title she could give was clear so she applied for the order. Vice-Chancellor Grey refused to grant it on the ground the woman had no right to remarry and that her second marriage was illegal. He declared her Mrs. Smith with perfect right to sell the land in that name.

The Vice-Chancellor subsequently made it plain that she had no right to the name of Graham or the protection of Mr. Graham, although they had lived together for nineteen years. The two will at once arrange for a new wedding. Smith, of Virginia, died some years ago.

HEADQUARTERS, BUT NO RUSH.

Dr. Carroll Will Take His Time in Compiling Porto Rican Report.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, President McKinley's special commissioner to Porto Rico, has established headquarters for the commission at No. 124 Watchung avenue, in the Hand building, where the work of compiling the report is now going on. There is no special rush about its completion, and it is likely that it will require several months. Dr. Carroll will have his report ready by the time the President sends his message to Congress when that body convenes next December.

WIFE WANTS A DIVORCE.

Mrs. Lizzie Wilson Alleges That Her Husband Deserted Her.

Testimony is to be taken next week before Special Master Charles A. Reed in the application for divorce of Lizzie Wilson from her husband, John Wilson. William G. DeMeza represents the applicant,

Wilson and his wife have lived in this city for many years. The bill sets for that the husband has deserted the wife, and although living in the State at the present time does nothing towards her support. They have no children.

A Little Bit Fishy.

A fish story of interest to anglers generally is told today by Charles Lyman and Isaac Vail, who spent yesterday afternoon on the Raritan river at Bound Brook fishing for perch. The reputation of the two men for veracity is too good to doubt their stories, but when they say that they caught 40 perch in a few hours, and that they saw a man in another boat with over 200, it is hard to believe.

Going Abroad

Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard aud her daughter, Miss Daisy Shepard, of "The Gables," will sail next Monday for Naples on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. They will be abroad during most of the summer.

CRAZY SURE ENOUGH.

DWYER TOO STRONG FOR SHERIFF'S MEN TO HANDLE.

Rebelled at the Attempt to Take Him Into Court—Subsequently Gave Jail Warden Dodd a Very Lively Tussel.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 27.—John Dwyer, who is under indictment, charged with the murder of his sister-in law, and whom experts pronounced insane, is developing eccentricities that may prove fatal to some of his attendants.

Yesterday Sheriff Kirk wanted him to go into court and Deputy Warden Dyer was sent in after him. He asked him to come to the office, as the Sheriff wanted him, and Dwyer, who is a powerful man, picked up a spade that some workmen were using, and struck at the deputy's head. He ducked and caught a glance blow on the arm that nearly broke it. The two men closed and a fierce struggle followed, until the other prisoners turned in and helped the jailer disarm him. Dwyer was not taken into court. Justice VanSyckel was satisfied to let proceedings go on without him.

Later in the day Warden Charles Dodd and his assistant, Dyer, undertook to put Dwyer in his cell. Dwyer ran to the bathroom, grabbed a mop and turned on his keepers, breaking the mop over them before they could close in on them and drag him to his cell.

As he is a Sheriff's prisoner, it will fall to the Sheriff's office to take him to the Morris Plains Asylum and it is exercising the office as much as did the recent hanging of Louis Boesel.

When the May term of court opens next Tuesday, Justice VanSyckel will make an order committing Dwyer to the insane asylum for further examination.

PASTOR OPDYKE DECLINES TO GO.

Has Bought Property at Martinsville and Will Make it His Home.

The troubles of the M. E. church at Mt. Horeb were exploited in The Daily Press a short time ago, but notwithstanding the fact that Bishop Fowler removed what seemed to be the principal bone of contention—Rev. H. D. Opdyke—the religious people in that section still have their troubles.

This time it is reported to be at Martinville. It will be remembered that Bishop Fowler removed Mr. Opdyke and placed him in charge of the M. E. church at Cokesbury. Rev. Mr. Harris, of New York State, was sent to look after the charges at Mt. Horeb, Martinville and Springdale.

Mr. Opdyke has since shown a disposition to remain where he is, and has purchased property as close to the M. E. church parsonage as possible.

Thursday night last the friends of the pastor gave a supper at the Martinville chapel and invited the deposed preacher to be present and have a few words to say.

From all reports Pastor Opdyke used strong language in denouncing those who do not favor his ministry in that section, and as a consequence the neighborhood is still agitated by church affairs.

WEEK'S ILLNESS ENDED FATALLY.

Gustave Grotman Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia.

Gustave Grotman, aged 37 years, an employe of the Pond Tool Works, and a resident of 827 West Third street, died yesterday after an illness of one week with pneumonia. He was a member of Court Plainfield, I. O. F., and Central Lodge, A.O.U.W., and they will meet in their respective rooms next Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock for the purpose of attending the funeral services to be held that afternoon at 2 o'clock from the German Reformed church on Craig place. Mr. Grotman leaves a wife and two children.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 27.—Aaron M. Baker, one of the most widely known farmers in Union County, is dying at the residence of Mrs. Crozier, on Cherry street, where he has boarded for some years. Mr. Baker is eighty-one years old, and nearly all his life conducted a large farm at Salem, which was known as the model farm in Union County, Mr. Baker became wealthy in the business and finally retired. He is a widower and has no children.

PROSPECT OF MILITIA COMPANY IN THIS CITY

Veterans of the Spanish-American War Want to Start One.

MAY TAKE ACTION TONIGHT.

MEETING WILL BE HELD TO DISCUSS MEMORIAL DAY PLANS.

Now That the New Jersey National Guard is Being Reorganized, the Local ex-Soldiers Want to Have a Company Here—Others are Anxious to Join—Action Must be Taken at Once.

There has been lots of talk ever since the first war rumors were started of organizing a militia company in Plainfield. Now that the militia of New Jersey is being reorganized on a new footing the interested ones point out that this is an opportune time for the formation of such a company. The young men who served Uncle Sam during the Spanish-American war are now considering the advisability of taking definite steps in that direction and are likely to take action of some kind at a meeting this evening.

While the meeting tonight is called for the purpose of deciding whether to turn out in a body on Memorial Day or not, the young veterans will also discuss the proposed company for Plainfield.

The young men who have been in the army and know something of military tactics, want to form a nucleus about which will gather a number of others who have no drill, but are interested in the formation of a company. If sufficient interest is shown in the proposed company then some of the leaders will make application to the State authorities at once to have the company included in the makeup of the new militia organization of the State.

If any action is to be taken at all it is necessary that there should be no delay. So, if the young men are really in earnest in their wish to start a company, the movement will be regularly started very shortly. The matter will be discussed tonight and possibly action will be taken.

THE SISSER LICENSE.

BOROUGH PEOPLE WONDERING IF IT WILL BE GRANTED.

Remonstrance Signed by the Borough Officials, Who Think Another Saloon Will Not be a Very Proper Thing.

There seems to be a growing opinion that the Somerset County Court will grant James Sisser a license to open a saloon to sell liquors on Somerset street near the dividing line. A Press representative was informed yesterday by an official, who, by the way, has signed a remonstrance, that he believed that Mr. Sisser would secure a license.

This makes the third or fourth attempt at securing a license for the same place, and each time the Mayor and Council of the borough has succeeded in defeating the attempts. It would seem strange to have the court go contrary to the wish and will of a majority of the people of the borough, who openly express their disapproval of the location of a saloon at that place. One advantage for a man securing a licenee there is that the people from this city would not have so far to go after 11 o'clock in the evening to get a drink, as is now the case. It would be just over the line, and no doubt the police would experience a great deal of trouble.

The officials of the borough deplore very much the possibility of a saloon stationed there. It is quite a distance from the lockup and they realize that there would be trouble in store for the marshals.

An official of the borough yesterday said that he understood on excellent authority that Mr. Sisser, who comes from Raritan, is not the man who would really own the saloon if the license is granted to him, but that another person, who has applied several times before for a license, would be the real owner.

The general opinion at present is that there are enough saloons on Somerset street and any more would be a detriment to all interests of the borough.

LOST THE WHIST TROPHY

NEW JERSEY WHIST CLUB WON IT FROM THE PARK CLUB TEAM.

The Local Players Were Outclassed by the Veterans—Newark Players Won Two Out of the Three Rounds Played.

The State whist trophy has taken its departure from the clubhouse of the Park Club. Last night the veteran team from the New Jersey Whist Club, of Newark, defeated the Park Club team by a score of 17 to 12. It was merely the result of better playing by the veterans than by their young rivals.

The career of the trophy has already been given in the Daily Press. Last night the Newark combination came as challengers for the trophy. The Park Club team put up a good and strong fight but it was not strong enough to overcome the visitors.

The first round went to the Parks, 5 to 4 In the second the New Jersey Club won out 7 to 3. They also won in the third round 6 to 4, making a total score of 17 to 12 in their favor.

The well-known quartette, Messrs. Otis, Awar, Eagles and Cameron, represented the New Jersey Whist Club. The regular Park team, Peter B. Matthews, Albert Woltmann, Arthur A. Freeman and Fred H. Freeman, defended the cup.

The next match will be played in Newark with the team from the Elizabeth Chest and Whist Club as the challengers. The Parks have already entered another challenge for the trophy and will try again.

OPEN FOR INSPECTION.

New Watchung School Building Can Be Visited.

Tomorrow afternoon after 3 o'clock and Saturday afternoon the new public school building in the borough, located at the corner of Watchung and Mountain avenues, will be thrown open for public inspection. The members of the Board of Education are especially desirous that as many people in the borough as possible visit the school and inspect it thoroughly. The building and it equipment is one that the Board is proud of, and they want the people to see what has been done with their money. Women are particularly invited to be present.

Benefit for Deserving Widow.

An entertainment, dance and cake walk was given in Saengerbund Hall, last evening, for the benefit of Mrs. Henry Bender, whose fortunes have not been favorable since the death of her husband. Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, opened the programme with a number of selections on a phonograph, after which dancing was enjoyed by the large number of persons present. The music for dancing was furnished by Eugene O'Reilley. About 11 o'clock there was a cake walk in which Miss Anna Hart and Frank Burke competed with Michael Higgins and Miss Mamie Wendell for honors. The judges awarded the cake to Miss Hart and Mr. Burke.

Policeman Killed by Express Train.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, April 27—Policeman Jeremiah Dunham, while on duty at the Pennsylvania Railroad station last evening, was struck and torn to pieces by a New York bound express train at 8 o'clock. The train was running seventy miles an hour at the time, and it is said displayed no headlight. One of Dunham's legs was carried on the engine to Jersey City. He was fifty-six years old and had been on the police force about ten years. He was a veteran of the Civil War, and leaves a family.

McCullough, of Swedesborough. Among those from Plainfield who made remarks at the reception, were V. W. Nash, of Columbia Lodge, and Messrs. Newcorn and Mosher from Central.

TIMBER TRACT BURNED.

THREATENING FLAMES ON PROPERTY OF LATE G. C. CODDINGTON.

Neighbors Turned Out and Worked Hard to Save Farm Buildings—One Man Exhausted by His Efforts to Assist.

Last Tuesday evening a fine timber tract on the farm of the late George C. Coddington, located in Warren township, was damaged to a large extent by fire which was started through carelessness on the part of Conrad Smith, a man employed to work the Nelson farm, which adjoins the Coddington estate. Smith was burning brush along the fences in the field adjoining the timber tract, when the wind carried the flames and cinders into the woods where the ground was covered with a thick bed of leaves.

The neighbors discovered the fire and hastened to extinguish it. By their efforts they succeeded in saving the farm house and adjoining buildings. George Nuse, a neighbor, who worked very hard, was finally exhausted by the heat, and was taken with a severe attack of hiccoughs, and he is now in a serious condition. The fire burned for several hours and it was only after a very hard struggle that the flames were subdued and finally extinguished.

ELIZABETH'S BOOM.

Factories at the Port Have More Work Than They Can Do.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 27.—There is a marked industrial boom in progress at Elizabethport. At Nixon's shipyard the plant is running day and night, and there are orders ahead to keep the yard busy for two years.

At the New Jersey Transportation Company's drydock the employers are rushed with work, and an order has just been received to construct twelve big barges for the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. The drydock company likewise has a couple of years' work ahead, and more men are now employed there than ever before.

The Singer Sewing Machine Works now employ 5,000 persons, and the company is preparing to erect additions to the plant that will give work to 1,200 more. Two weeks ago the weekly payroll of the Singer works was $68,000, the highest amount ever paid out in one week at the immense establishment.

The Babcock & Wilcox Boiler Company, which adjoins the Singer plant, is building an addition 300 feet long to the boiler plant, and when finished this will give employment to many men.

CONGREGATIONALISTS FREE FROM DEBT.

Annual Meeting of Congregational Church Last Night.

MORE MONEY FOR PASTOR.

OFFERINGS FOR BENEVOLENT PURPOSES WERE INCREASED.

Officers of Church and Society Were Elected—Committees Appointed—Good Showing in All Departments—Mayor Rockfellow Elected President of Board of Trustees—Church Free From Debt.

The Congregational church is prospering. There isn't a cent of indebtedness, the benevolences have grown and the pastor's salary has been increased. Such were the facts brought out at the adjourned annual meeting of the church and society, held in the church parlors last night.

The church meeting was first held, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the pastor, presiding and George E. Fuller acting as clerk. There were fifty present. The report of the superintendent, Joseph A. Robinson, showed the Sunday-school in good condition with an increase in the amount of collections. The report of Official Board, made by Rev. Mr. Goodrich, told that the offerings for benevolences was over $1,500, the largest on record in the history of the church. Assistance had been given to the local Swedish church.

The election of officers was held and resulted as follows: Clerk, George E. Fuller; deacons, for two years, A. C. LaBoyteaux and George S. Reynolds, for one year to fill unexpired term, John M. Whiton; members of the Official Board, Rev. M. E. Dwight, H. C. Nomer and Joseph A. Robinson.

A pastor's aid committee of ten men and ten women was appointed. A committee of applied Christianity of three members was appointed to work with the committee appointed by the recent conference at Washington, D.C.

An amendment to the constitution to change the date of the annual meeting from the third to the fourth Wednesday in April was introduced and will be acted upon at a special meeting to be held in two weeks.

The adjourned annual meeting of the society followed the adjournment of the church meeting. John M. Whiton was made chairman and George E. Fuller, clerk. The report of the treasurer, M. C. VanArsdale, showed that the church was entirely free from debt in any shape and that there was a small balance still remaining in the treasury after all the year's bills had been paid.

The election was next held and resulted as follows: Clerk, George E. Fuller; trustees, M. C. VanArsdale, J. E. Morse, George W. Rockfellow, John E. Stewart, Ellsworth E. Dwight, Louis I. VanAlstyne and Alexander Millar; auditor, Stacy Raynolds.

It was decided by motion to increase the pastor's salary. A resolution was passed that a collection should be taken up every year to start a building fund. An amendment to the constitution was introduced, changing the date of the annual meeting from the third to the fourth Wednesday in April. The amendment will be acted upon at a special meeting called for Wednesday evening, May 10th.

The board of trustees met for organization at the close of the society meeting. The following officers of the board were re-elected: President, George W. Rockfellow; secretary, Joseph E. Morse; treasurer, Morris C. VanArsdale.

BLOODHOUNDS ON TRAIL.

A Negro Accused of Assaulting White Woman in Greenville, S.C., the Pursued.

LYNCHED IF CAUGHT.

The Chase Leads From South Carolino Across the Border Into Georgia Mob Increasing at Every Village.

In his Efforts to Escape the Negro Has Already Exhausted Two Horses Stolen by the Way—Everything Quiet at Palmetto, Though Two Other Negroes Are Being Sought.

Atlanta, Ga., April 27.—Bloodhounds are following close on the trail of a negro accused of an assault upon Mrs. Williams, a white woman of Greenwich, S. C.

With the pack of hounds are several hundred infuriated vigilants. They will lynch the negro as soon as he is caught.

Day and night the chase has been kept up since the brutal attack on Mrs. Williams was made on Saturday.

So close behind the fugutive are the vigilants that news of his lynching is momentarily expected.

The mob, increasing in numbers at every village through which it passed, has pursued the negro from South Carolina, across the Georgia line.

By the aid of telephone and telegraph, the general route of the fugitive has been ascertained and followed by the mob.

The bloodhounds have never once wavered from the scent. It is with difficulty that the mob has kept pace with the animals, and once, when the pack shot ahead on a stronger scent, the mob ran, fearing the hounds had run the negro down and might kill him before the lynchers could wreak their vengeance.

In his desperate efforts to escape the certain death that awaits him, the negro has already exhausted two horses, which he stole from farmers along the highway.

This enabled him to gain a momentary advantage over his pursuers, but the flagging pace of the horses was offset by the eager speed of the bloodhounds.

The negro stole a mule from a farmer living five miles south of Anderson and made good time along the country roads, but the hounds kept pace and scent throughout the flight.

According to latest reports the mob was hardly an hour behind the negro. The hounds, the vanguard of the enraged mob, were then keeping the trail covered and the leaders of the vigilants were hurrying forward.

The members of the Palmetto mob who assisted in burning Sam Hose and lynching Lige Strickland have returned to their work, and the little town is comparatively quiet. All but two or three of the negroes in the community have left the county, many coming to Atlanta. There are two other negroes marked for execution in Palmetto, but they cannot be found, though a well organized band spent two days searching for them.

Governor Candler has not yet offered a reward for the arrest of the lynchers of Hose and Strickland, but it is probable he will take action today.

Great Auto-Mobile Combination.

New York, April 27.—Representatives of the Electric Vehicle Company the Electric Storage Battery Company and the Pope Manufacturing Company have effected a combination for the manufacture of automobiles, and one of a number of factories will be at Hartford, Conn.

This new company has a capital of $3,000,000, and its organization is simply in line with the policy pursued by the Storage and Vehicle companies in securing what will be complete control of the electric vehicle industry, which will, it is conceded, revolutionize certain trades, establish new ones and afford a new means of transportation for freight and passengers.

The Pope Company is reported to have disposed of its automobile properties to the new corporaion, to be known as the New Columbia Motor Carriage Company, and it will retain a considerable interest in the new concern. Wiliam C. Whitney is also largely interested in the new company, which has also about secured control of the patents for rubber vehicle tires.

Run Down by Freight Train.

New York, April 27.—Fast freight No. 115 on the Hudson River Railroad ran a man down at Hunt's Point. He was walking on the track. The locomotive flung him into the ditch, where he was picked up with a broken leg. His nose was smashed, his scalp torn and he was suffering greatly from shock.

The man was a stranger. He was apparently 40 years old, rather undersized and slightly bald, with dark complexion, and a brown mustache. He wore a dark check coat, gray striped trousers, a check shirt and red necktie. In his pocket the surgeons at the Harlem Hospital found a steerage ticket for the Clyde line steamship Iroquois for "voyage 56." On the back of it was written "Mrs. L. Joyce, 90 Third avenue," but at that address no one could throw any light on the identity of the man.

James McCabe, the engineer of the freight was put under arrest.

Liqu'd Air as an Explosive.

Vienna, April 27.—In the recent experiments here with liquid air as an explosive the liquid was mixed with a silicious marl, which is insusceptible to shock and will only act under direct ignition. Hence, the enormous advantage of the combination over dynamite. One-fortieth of a litre was placed in a crevice in a quarry two feet deep and ignited by electricity. The effect of the explosion was equal to twenty times the same quantity of dynamite.

Cannon tests showed that the explosive imperceptibly generates heat, the gun remaining cold. It is estimated that the explosive will considerably increase the range of projectiles. Experts declare that the results of the experiments were sensational and that liquid air will be the explosive of the future.

THE LATEST NEWS.

KAUTZ SAYS HE IS "BOSS OF THE RANCH."

Cincinnati, April 27.—A letter written by Rear-Admiral Kautz to his cousin, Mrs. Charles N. Lindley, of Cincinnati, has been made public by the recipient. It is dated March 23, and is in the easy vein of a relative's private correspondence. In the letter he says:

"You will probably read a lot of stuff about me in various newspapers, but I can assure you that I am all right and have done nothing that I nor my friends may be ashamed of, unless it is the making of a king, which I was obliged to do to-day. But he is a very inoffensive sort of young fellow, a native 19 years of age. He wears a French Admiral's cocked hat, but no shoes or stockings or trousers. Still, considering the torrid weather, he looks very well in this climate. But I hardly think he would look as well on Fourth street, Cincinnati.

"I am not a king here, but just plain 'boss of the ranch.' The German consul had that position up to my arrival, but since then he has been a very silent partner. I am very much afraid that he does not like me—in fact, I am not at all popular here with the Germans. But I am all right with the English and hope to pull through with them. I have no doubt of being sustained by the Government in all I have done. I hope to get away from here in a month from this time, but will not be in San Francisco before the middle of May.

"With love to the Kentucky Colonel and yourself, Your cousin,

"Albert Kautz."

"P. S.—I was in error about the shoes and trousers of His Royal Highness. At the last moment his advisers prevailed on him to put on both, just for this occasion only. A. K."

Washington, April 27.—The publication of Admiral Kautz's letter referring to his position at Samoa caused absolute consternation at the Navy and State Departments at first reading, but there soon was exhibited a disposition to minimize the affair when it was clearly apparent that the letter was a strictly private communication passing between members of the same family.

The letter was brought to the attention of the President, and some sort of a reminder may be sent to the officer to be more careful in his correspondence.

In official German quarters the letter was not treated seriously, and there was no indication that the German authorities would take cognizance of it.

TREASUPY AGENTS UNDER HOT FIRE.

New York, April 27.—Charges of violating the Federal law and the Treasury Department regulations were made against twenty-two inspectors whose duty it is to examine the baggage of steamship passengers. The names of the men accused were withheld by Collector Bidwell and Surveyor Croft, as was the exact character of the charge; but it is understood that a few are accused of accepting bribes.

After an investigation by the Collector and the Surveyor it was found necessary to prefer charges, as the detectives who have been at work on the piers for several months discovered gross irregularities.

It became known in the Custom House that Thomas H. Browne, a deputy collector, had been dismissed from the service on charges preferred by the collector of neglect of duty in allowing Chinese to enter the country illegally. Mr. Browne had charge of the Chinese bureau in the Custom House.

HE FILLED THE BOYS WITH BIRDSHOT.

Canton, N. Y. April 27.—A dozen St. Lawrence University students, while out on a lark, attempted to burn a small frame building near College Hall. As a result of their pranks five of them are confined to their rooms to-day and their skins peppered with birdshot. While engaged in starting the fire they were shot at by Tracy R. Southworth, the college steward, and as the students tried to flee he poured the shot into them like hail. The injured students are: Farmer, class of 1900, shot in mouth, nose and chin. McGillis, class of 1902, shot in shoulder. Stevens, class of 1899, shot in legs. Waterman, class of 1901, shot in both hips. Wight Abbott, class of 1900, shot in foot. Their wounds will confine them to their rooms for several days.

WHITNEY SYNDICATE'S BIG MORTGAGE.

New York, April 27.—Another big mortgage has been executed by the Whitney syndicate. The New York Gas and Electric Light, Heat and Power Company, commonly called the Whitney syndicate placed on record a mortgage for $21,000,000 on the property in First avenue, Ninety-sixth and Ninety-seventh streets and East River, together with its plant, privileges and franchises to the Central Trust Company, acting as trustee. The mortgage is given to secure an issue of fifty-year 4 per cent. gold bonds for the amount stated, which is to be used in the purchase of at least 55 per cent. of the capital stock of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company.

FORTUNE CAME TOO LATE TO SAVE HIM.

Augusta, Ga., April 27.—Joseph Dunn, a young chemist of this city, died here, having virtually sacrificed his life to the cause of science. A few days before his death came the news that an English aunt had left him a large share in property in St. Louis, valued at $122,000. This fortune, coming earlier, would have enabled him to take treatment which would probably have saved his life. As city dispenser, he made a dangerous chemical experiment a year ago. From this he contracted blood poisoning, which ultimately resulted in his death.

VICTORY FOR OUR TROOPS.

Calumpit the Filipino Capital Has Fallen Into the Hands of the Americans.

OUR LOSS IS SMALL

Only Eight Americans Killed in the Advance Upon City While Native Loss Was Terrific.

Calumpit on Fire When the Concerted Advance of General MacArthur's Division Was Ordered—The Native Army Chased Through the Burning City Flee to the Hills Closely Pursued.

Manila, April 27.—Calumpit, the Filipino capital, is in the possession of the American troops. The flower of Aguinaldo's army has been annihilated and General MacArthur holds the strategic key to the entire northern part of Luzon.

Eight Americans were killed in the assault upon the city. The loss to the natives was terrific. What remained of their army was finally driven back into the town and beyond it to the hills.

General MacArthur had 6,000 troops engaged in the attack. Their valor was unparalled.

Calumpit was on fire when the concerted advance of General MacArthur's division, comprising the brigades of Generals Hale, Wheaton and Lawton, was ordered.

The Filipinos met the advance with severe firing. The greater part of Aguinaldo's army was in the town and the trenches before it, having made a stand there after the fall of Malolos.

The strategic attack upon the city was made by Hale's brigade, which moved down the right bank of the Quingua River, and by Gen. Wheaton's brigade on the left bank.

Gen. Wheaton's command, the Kansas and Montana Volunteers, repaired the bridge over the Bagbag River. The volunteers then crossed and rushed upon the Filipinos in the trenches.

The southern defences of the insurgent capital were first attacked and taken. They were a mile south of the city and on the north bank of the Bagbag River.

The order to advance upon Calumpit was received enthusiastically by the American troops. There had long been a thirst among the troops to avenge the death of several of their fellows during the fighting march from Malolos, and they were eager for the capture of the main stronghold of Aguinaldo and his men.

Scouting parties sent out a short time before the attack returned to report that Calumpit had been set afire by the rebels.

In the attack the American troops were deployed in a long line before the city. This line was gradually closed in, maintaining an intense firing upon the trenches and immediate defences of the capital.

It was short range fighting, and the Americans were more than equal to it, while the natives were pressed back whenever they attempted a stand.

The guns of the Utah Artillery did masterful work. They tore great gaps in the trenches and drove the rebels out with appalling slaughter. The infantrymen charged the trenches. The rebels stood their ground as long as they could and then fled.

The Americans then had little difficulty in entering the city. The fire set by the natives was spreading rapidly and it seemed a forlorn hope to attempt extinguishing it.

On all sides was to be seen the havoc wrought by the intensity of the American firing. The dead lay two and even three deep in some places. The trenches were choked with dead bodies.

What remained of the native army fled to the hills, closely pursued by the American soldiers, although the latter were in a worn out condition from the continuous fighting of the last few days.

Before the advance upon Calumpit could be made it was necessary for the American soldiers to cross the Rio Grande River. This was accomplished by wading and swimming in the face of a hot fire. Gen. Hale was among the first who floundered across the stream, which was neck deep at the ford.

MacArthur Enters Calumpit.

Manila, April 27.—Major Starr of Gen. Lawton's staff arrived in Manila, travelling by the way of Bocave. The object of his visit is to confer with Major-General Otis in regard to further operations.

Gen. Lawton's troops are still encamped at Norzagaray.

It is reported from Spanish official sources that Gen. Antonio Luna supersedes Aguinaldo as the Filipino leader. Luna, the report says, has issued a proclamation pronouncing the sentence of death upon all natives found with the proclamation of the United States Commissioners in their possession.

Victory Depends on Lawton.

Washington, April 27.—The question of effective results in the fighting at Calumpit depends largely, it is believed, on Major-Gen. Lawton, and the force under his immediate command. The latest cable despatches from Manila indicate beyond a doubt that the plan of the insurgents is not to make a final stand at Calumpit.

Fortunately the American troops are preparing for precisely such an event. The forced march of Lawton's division from Novditches toward Norzaray was deliberately planned for the purpose of cutting off the retreat of the enemy under the attack of MacArthur's and Hale's comands on the south.

Irish Home Rule.

Dublin, April 27.—Home Rule has begun in Ireland. Not the Home Rule that Gladstone so gallantly fought for in the House of Commons in 1885, but the nearest approach to it that has ever been seen in the history of the Emerald Isle. In a word, the County and District Councils elected by the votes of the people—not the aristocracy—have assumed their offices.

BIG WHEEL TRUST.

To Be Formed Shortly With $50,000,000 Capital A.G.Spalding at its Head.

Cleveland, O., April 27.—There is a strong probability that within a few days nearly one hundred of the largest bicycle manufacturing plants of the United States will be under the ownership of one gigantic company, capitalized at $50,000,000. The capitalists behind the scheme have exact data upon the situation, it is said, and definite action will come at a meeting of the manufacturers early next week. A. G. Spaulding, of New York and Chicago, is the chief figure in the enterprise. H. A. Lozier, of Cleveland, and Col. Pope, of Boston, are also said to be among the prominent promoters. The trust, it is said, will make three grades of wheels, a high-priced, medium and cheap grade.

The Threatened Tie-Up on D. L. & W.

New York, April 27.—Employes of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad are threatening a general tie-up of the entire system. In the past few weeks meetings of the employes' labor organizations have been held almost nightly. The most important of these conferences have been those held in Hoboken and Scranton.

The principal grievances complained of are: The recent wholesale discharges of old employes; the scale of wages, which is said to be lower than on any other railroad; Sunday work without extra pay; the irksome new rules enforced since the new management assumed control of the road.

Fully five hundred men have left the company's service, most of them involuntarily. So sweeping have been the removals that those left in the company's service are in a condition of panic, no one knowing when he, too, may be laid off.

In replying to these charges President Truesdale said:

"There is no cause for the report that 500 men had been discharged, for, as a matter of fact, it does not approach the truth. The road is being managed on a strictly business basis, and when we find men on our pay rolls whom we do not need we lay them off. This has been done to some extent in the past month or so, but not in a manner to arouse criticism from any fair-minded man. This newspaper report makes much of the fact that men over 45 years of age are not considered useful now by the Lackawanna management. I am above that age, and I don't see why a business man or a laborer should be regarded as too old for service at those years. As far as my relations with Mr. Sloan, the former President, are concerned, they have been of the pleasantest. The statement that we are pulling apart in the affairs of the company is pure invention."

Counterfeiters' Bribes

Lancaster, Pa., April 27.—W. L. Kendig, charged with being one of the principals in the extensive counterfeiting of revenue stamps, said, in speaking of the alleged connection of former United States District Attorney Ingham and his law partner, ex-Assistant United States District Attorney Newitt with the scheme, that the last bribe money paid out was to these two men, and that the amount was $3,000.

It was divulged that W. M. Jacobs, the alleged chief of the counterfeiters, had made an unsuccessful attempt to bribe another internal revenue deputy collector before approaching Collector Downey, who was arrested Monday. Aldus C. Herr, formerly a clerk for Jacobs, became suspicious that everything was not right and resigned. A year later he was appointed a deputy collector. Jacobs then called on him and asked whether any secret service men were in Lancaster, proposing that Herr should keep him posted if any came, and tell as much as possible of their purpose. The deputy said:

"Mr. Jacobs, you must remember that I am a sworn officer of the law." That ended the episode so far as Jacobs was concerned, but Mr. Herr reported his suspicions to the collector and then learned that Jacobs was under surveillance.

Headache Powders Kill Two

Pittsburg, April 27.—Mrs. Charlotte Evans, of Lowell street, died as a result, it is said, of taking headache powders. Dr. W. B. Cathcart, who attended Mrs. Evans, told the police death was caused by spasms of the heart. Mrs. Evans was about twenty-six years old. A second death, alleged to be due to the use of headache powders has been reported, the victim being Margaret Price, aged eight, who was given one-half of a powder, and died on Saturday in spasms.

Will Continue Investigation

Albany, April 27.—The Assembly has voted to permit Chairman Mazet and his committee to continue their investigations in municipal affairs in New York all summer and report to the next Legislature not later than Feb. 1. The extension was granted by a party vote of 85 to 62 after a peppery discussion. The two Democratic members of the committee presented a minority report, attacking the good faith of the Republicans and asking for dissolution of the investigation. Both reports were debated.

SAYS COGHLAN'S ALL RIGHT

Admiral Dewey Doesn't Know Particulars of the Diplomatic Row but Speaks.

GERMANS ARE FRIENDLY.

The Admiral Shows Correspondent Letter of Congratulation from Captain of Raleigh.

Secretary Long Writes a Letter of Reprimand to Captain Coghlan, and it is Not Probable That Any Further Action Will be Taken by the Department—McKinley to Visit Cruiser.

Manila, April 27.—Admiral Dewey has been seen to-day by a correspondent on the Capt. Coghlan incident.

The Admiral is still unacquainted with the details of the famous speech, but he declared that his relations with Capt. Coghlan are most cordial.

He received a cablegram from the Captain of the Raleigh when that warship reached Algiers congratulating the Admiral on his promotion.

Admiral Dewey is certain that Coghlan could not have said anything calculated to place the Admiral in a false position.

He showed the correspondent a letter from Admiral von Diedrichs, of the German Navy, congratulating him on his "deserved promotion" and also his letter in reply, which closed with the words, "all our differences were of newspaper manufacture."

Admiral Dewey also says he is on the most friendly terms with Prince Henry of Prussia, who succeeded Von Diedrichs as Comander-in-Chief of the German fleet in Chinese waters.

COGHLAN APPLAUDED.

Admiral Dewey Approves the American Feeling Against Germans—"Went as Far as They Dared."

Hong Kong, April 27.—During a reception given to Princess Henry and the German admiral, Von Diedrichs, here, on Tuesday, the news was received that Captain Coghlan of the American cruiser Raleigh had been publicly telling the truth about the conduct of the Germans at Manila.

Captain Coghlan is a favorite with the English and foreign residents of Hong Kong, the Germans excepted, and his action was learned with quiet but general satisfaction.

It is hoped that it will lead to an intelligent understanding of the German attitude on the Asiatic coast.

Some weeks ago, during an interview with Admiral Dewey, I told him that the feeling entertained against Germany in the United States was very strong.

"It ought to be," he said gravely.

"The Germans out here went as far as they dared."

COGHLAN CENSURED.

Secretary Long of the Navy Sends Raleigh's Captain a Sharp Letter.

Washington April 27.—Secretary Long has sent a letter of reprimand to Capt. Coghlan at Philadelphia.

This will be the only action taken by the Department.

Capt. Coghlan will be in command of the Raleigh when President McKinley pays his visit of state to the cruiser at Philadelphia.

The President takes the ground that it would be an unkind and unwarranted reflection upon the officers and crew of the ship to abstain from paying the visit, which had been arranged for and occupies a prominent place on the programme.

General Miles to Philippines.

Washington, April 27.—Secretary of War Alger and Major General Miles were at the White House together, an incident so unusual that it caused much gossip.

It was said that Gen. Miles was to be sent to the Philippines to take charge of the campaign and that it was at his request he was to go.

This story had no official authorization, but it was given publicity, with some show of backing. It was also said that the President, realizing how much is at stake in the Philippine campaign, is determined to end it successfully, and for that reason favored General Miles's taking charge.

General Joe Wheeler is not going to Manila, it is asserted, but may be given command of the Department of Texas, which is to be re-established shortly.

Transvaal to Resist English.

Cape Town, April 27.—There is renewed uneasiness over the situation in the Transvaal. President Kruger's General in Chief, Joubert, is inspecting the frontiers and selecting places suitable for entrenchments. More rigid inspection of the military has also been ordered.

Kruger, as he intimated a month ago, evidently is expecting hostilities with England.

The Dutchmen are uneasy over the result of the petition to Joseph Chamberlain, England's Colonial Minister, signed by 21,000 English residents in the Transvaal and setting forth their grievances. Chamberlain's action, it is believed, will mark a crisis in English-Dutch relations. The British army here is being steadily augmented.

Germany and our Sausage.

Washington, April 27.—Consul C. W. Erdman writes the State Department from Breslau, Germany, that a German butchers' paper is agitating the raising of the duty on American sausage. The paper holds that competent officers are of the opinion that the American smoked sausage, on account of its changed composition and method of manufacture, must be placed under the head of "Sausage for better table enjoyment."

Such a change would increase the duty from $4.05 to $14.28 for every 220 pounds. Consul Erdman also says that the duty on meal, fowl and game imported from Austria-Hungary into Germany is considerably less than on the same articles imported from the United States.

THE GRANT MONUMENT.

Officers of the Raleigh Attend Unveiling Ceremonies in Fairmount Park

Philadelphia, April 27.—The Grant Monument in Fairmount Park will be unveiled to-day by Miss Rosemary Sartoris, the granddaughter of Gen. Grant. Mrs. Grant arrived last night and was at once escorted to the Hotel Walton, where a handsome suite of apartments have been reserved for her and party.

Chief Marshall Major-Gen. George R. Snowden issued his general orders concerning the formation of the parade. The column will be composed of four divisions, the first division, Capt. Joseph B. Coghlan commanding, being composed of marines and seamen from U. S. S. Raleigh.

The column will move at 2:30 o'clock P. M., company front, north to Broad street, west on Spring Garden street, and thence by the east side Schuylkill River drive to the statue. At this point companies will form columns of fours successively to the right, passing through the northern arch of the railroad viaduct to the Oxford street entrance, at which point the companies will be dismissed.

Friends in Samoa

Berlin, April 27.—With the view to rectifying the reports of the discord said to exist between the three naval commanders at Samoa, the Nord-Deutsche-Zeitung publishes extracts from the reports of the Commander of the German warship Falke up to March 23, in which Capt. Schoenfelder says:

"As a matter of fact, the relations between the different commanders and officers are thoroughly courteous and of an accomodating character. In spite of the arduous nature of his guard duty, Capt. Sturdee attended the funeral of a (German) sailor Wichl, with a deputation of an officer and sixteen men, and Admiral Kautz hoisted his flag at half-mast. No disputes have occurred between the German and the American or English crews.

"At a recent meeting the military representatives of the three powers expressed indignation at the rumors, and whenever the Commander and officers of the Falke meet the American and English officers and consuls social form are strictly observed."

Alibi For Hugger

Hackensack, N. J., April 27.—John Sprague, eighteen years old, of Rutherford, charged with having attacked at least fifteen women in the vicinity of Dead Man's Corner, near Rutherford, during the past two months, and who was roughly handled by the women after his capture, was placed on trial at Hackensack charged with assault upon Miss Annie Jackson, a school teacher, and Mrs. Abbie Woods. Miss Jackson positively identified the young man, as also did Mrs. Walter Hunt, who accompanied the school teacher on the day of the assault. R. M. Hart, counsel for the defendant, said he proposed to prove an alibi for his client. Mrs. James A. Butler, of Rutherford, an invalid, the first witness called by the defense, testified that John Sprague was at her home the entire afternoon of March 30, when the alleged assault was committed. Mrs. Sprague, the young man's mother, testified to the same effect.

Uncle Sam Must Pay

Washington, April 27.—The board convened by a special order to examine into the report upon the responsibility for the loss of 300,000 pounds of refrigerated beef sent to Porto Rico last summer has submitted its report and findings. The beef was shipped on the transport Manitoba from Swift & Co., in Chicago and Kansas City. The tenor of the report is that the beef was good, that bad handling and the lack of refrigerating facilities caused it to become bad, and that Swift & Co. should be reimbursed.

Smith to Face Court

Albany, April 27.—Gov. Roosevelt has decided to appoint a court of inquiry to investigate the conduct of Lieut.-Col. Smith, of the Seventy-first Regiment, during the fight at San Juan Hill. He said that he had finished writing his decision in the case of the other Seventy-first Regiment officers, but the resignation of Capt. Whittle necessitated some changes in it, and he would not make his decision known at present.

To Call Volunteers

Washington, April 27.—Senator Chandler, of New Hampshire, after calling at the War Department, said that it was his belief that the President would be compelled to call out the 35,000 volunteers authorized by Congress. The Senator says the volunteers will be used for garrison work in the United States, Cuba and Porto Rico, and all the regulars sent to the Philippines.

Spaniards Aid Us

Washington, April 27.—Nearly all of the Spanish troops who surrendered at Manila have gone home, and only a few troops remain to garrison some posts on the other islands. The report from Madrid that Gen. Otis has requested the Spanish garrison at Zamboanga, Island of Mindanao, be held in place until an American garrison can be sent to relieve them is confirmed here.

He's a Much Married Man.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 27.—Adam Peshla was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary for eloping with Anna Stroke, a fourteen-year-old girl of this city. The couple were traced to Philadelphia, New York and Boston, and finally arrested at Hazleton, Pa. Peshla admitted that he had twenty wives in about as many countries which he has visited.

Hale and Hearty at 108 Years.

Mercer, Pa., April 27.—Mrs. Susan McKeever, the oldest woman in the State, has just celebrated her 108th birthday. She was born in County Derry, Ireland, married when thirty years old, came to America and settled on a farm near here. Mrs. McKeever has good hearing and sight, and as a rule her memory is good.

Will Go to Alaska on Mission Work.

Philadelphia, April 27.—The Rev. James Wollaston, of Leverington Presbyterian Church, has been appointed to take charge of a mission at Eagle City, Alaska. Mr. Kirk will be accompanied on his trip by his wife.

Mr. Robert Love, of 44 Duer street, member of the firm of Love Brothers grocers of 257 West Front street, says:—"I suffered from kidney complaint for eight or nine years; pain across the back and a lameness over the kidneys. Colds always settled there and aggravated the pain and lameness. At last my back grew weaker and any heavy lifting or too much standing or sitting gave me additional pain. In the mornings my back bothered me greatly until I moved about and took some exercise, when it became better to a certain extent. I doctored and used different kinds of so-called kidney cures, but it was throwing money away. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our paper, and being in bad shape at the time, I got a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. Before taking half of it my condition was greatly improved, and continuing their use, all the pain left me. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a grand medicine for kidney trouble and it gives me pleasure to recommend them whenever an opportunity presents itself."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Forster-Milburn Co., Buffalo N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

COMING EVENTS.

April 29—"Diplomacy" in Music Hall.
April 30—Dr. Raymond, President of Union College, at Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4:15 p. m.

If there is one thing that Hudson county politicians are thought to believe in, it is the comprehensive epigram "to the victor belongs the spoils." It may be a truism is most instances, but not in all. Mayor Fagan, of Hoboken, is one who has made an exception and has appointed a political opponent to an important local office. Former Senator Stuhr, who was Mayor Fagan's opponent in the municipal canvass, has been named by the latter for membership in the Board af Education. This is a a graceful compliment to Mr. Stuhr and a generous and commendable act on the part of the Mayor, especially when it is recognized that the appointment is an eminently fit one.

The concentration of capital and enterprise into trusts hits the commercial traveler hard. Where trusts control a particular trade, and there is no competition, the genus drummer must needs be of little use. The average drummer is looked upon as a pretty sensible fellow, because he sees a good deal of life and is able to notice the trend of events as quickly as anyone else. Very evidently it is to the interest of the commercial man to unharness the trusts as quickly as possible. More power to the drummers if they undertake it.

The suggestion of the Women's Town Improvement Association that the city foot the bills for sprinkling the streets is an ideal that will not be realized at an early date. Plainfield must have something near 100 miles of public thoroughfares. If one street, or part of a street, was sprinkled by the city all the rest of thoroughfares would have to be treated likewise, or there would be trouble. We imagine the women who advocate the raising of a tax for such a purpose hardly appreciate the magnitude of the job.

By the omission of the word "not" from the most important paragraph in the editorial in yesterday's Press concerning the trolley situation in Elizabeth, the whole article was put out of meaning. The paragraph should have read: "The Daily Press has assurances from an authoritative source that the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company has no intention of not making connections with Elizabeth."

WHERE THE PEACE CONGRESS WILL MEET.
The congress called by the czar to consider the question of international disarmament will meet at The Hague on May 18. The sessions will be held in the House of the Woods, which is in the middle of the Bosch, or forest park, about a mile out of town. The House of the Woods is 250 years old and is one of the private palaces of the queen.

The measure known as the Ford bill, now pending in the New York Legislature, which proposes to increase the taxable valuation of that State $1,000,000,000, is an honest and fair bill. Nothing is said against it and everything for it. Yet it hangs fire in the Legislature, and will probably fail to pass. Is there anything that emphasises more the complete subservience of the Legislative majority to the beck and call of the corporations?

That day when the State authorities of New Jersey do not add a hundred millions or so to the issue of capital preferred and common stock of new-made combinations is a day of murk and mourning, says the Philadelphia Record. Promoters flock thither from the ends of the earth.

Speaking of his alleged trouble with the German officers at Manila, Admiral Dewey says: "All of our troubles were of newspaper manufacture." This statement ought to have some effect in placating the iritation felt by the Germans over the Captain Coghlan incident.

The True American says that the coal combine will raise the of coal after May 1, and every householder will have an opportunity to test Gov. Voorhees proposition that the exclusion of competition is the beginning of lower prices.

One State at least will have a public holiday next Monday in honor of the first anniversary of the battle of Manila Bay, Gov. Stone, of Pennsylvania, having approved a bill designating May 1st as "Dewey Day."

Arkansas is considering the project of building a new State Capitol on the site of a Penitentiary. If such proves to be the case then the Legislators will probably live up to their convictions in the future.

Wireless telegraphy may obviate some of the aggrvating incidents of sending messages to distant points. We still have the impudent and snail like pace of the messenger boy to deal with, though.

A bicycle combine, with 100 firms in it, and capitalized at $50,000,000, is promised. One by one the necessaries of life are being controlled by the trusts.

It is curious how they put jurors in a box and expect to have them make a case out of it.

Tomorrow is Arbor Day. Plant trees.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company has agreed to sprinkle the streets where its tracks are laid and a long-suffering public has expressed its pleasure. Here in New Brunswick we would appreciate similar action by our trolley company and, of course, it is the intention of Mr. Radel to please the patrons of his road.—New Brunswick Home News.

The Elizabeth Presbytery considered the question, "Shall Divorced Persons Marry?" at the recent session. About the most sensible view of the situation was taken by Rev. Mr. Love, of Plainfield. He said it was not for a minister to inquire into the causes that led up to the divorce of persons who applied to him to be married again. He believes marriage in the solemn sense is best for everyone and that the refusal to allow the marriage of divorced persons would not be so much punishment to them as to future generations.—Somerset Messenger.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

An industrious young printer of this city, who is anxious to start in business for himself, had an opportunity to do so down in Kentucky. When he came to consider the offer he found an obstacle in the road which, while by no means unsurmountable, did not please him to overcome. There was a young woman in the case. After due deliberation he decided that the present situation, which included her, was preferable to the other without her. Consequently he still remains in Plainfield.

Two hundred and seventeen years is a decidedly ripe old age, even for a book. One of that age is now in possession, however, of George L. Van Emburgh, of East Second street. It is a queer looking little volume, dried and stained with age. "Marcus Minucious Felix, His Octavius; or a Vindication of Christianity against Paganism," is the rather lengthy title. This is stated to have been translated by P' Lorrain, Gent., and printed in London by F. M. for R. Royston, bookseller to His most Sacred Majesty, 1682. Inside there is a quaintly worded dedication to the Reverend Jonn Tillotson, D. D., Dean of Canterbury and Chaplain in Ordinary to His Majesty. The peculiar type, manner of setting and method of printing all testify as to the great age of the volume.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

There was no performance of "Tangled Relations" at Music Hall last night for very good reasons. The absence of the usual managerial methods of theatrical companies and the failure of the company to appear in town until after 6 o'clock was one of the contributing factors to make Manager Edwards decide that he would cancel the engagement. But the most important one was the information received by Manager Edwards that the company's performance in Elizabeth Tuesday night was very bad. Mr. Edwards was led into making the engagement under the impression that the company was first-class in every respect, but when he found that it was not, together with their neglectful business methods, he concluded that it would be an imposition on his patrons to allow the show to appear. Therefore he did the best thing by closing the theatre last night.

A diverting mixture of farce comedy, comic opera and spectacular burlesque is embodied in Boyt's most popular play, "A Milk White Flag," which is buoyant and inspiring from the start to finish. Dancing, singing, shapely girls, merry jests and the most exhilarating of odd and amusing situations combined with a startling display of showy costumes on attractive feminine forms make the play an entertainment irresistible to any man or woman who loves honest fun. The entire equipment of the play is new this season, including scenic investment, all costumes and the musical features and specialties. That vivacious little footlight favorite, Mary Marble, is cast for "The Orphan," and the supporting company comprises fifty people. They come to Music Hall next Wednesday night, May 3d.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 27.—The landlord and tenant case of Eugene Runyon against Alexander Harris, was tried before Justice Warden a day or two ago, and judgment rendered for the defendant. Runyon claimed that Harris was behind in his rent for a house belonging to Rev. T. J. Todd, and which Harris occupied, and demanded possession of it. Harris' defense was that Rev. Mr. Todd owed him the sum of $84 for nursing his father, which sum Mr. Todd refused to pay. The amount of the bill for nursing was considerably more than the rent bill, and after considering the evidence, the jury brought in a verdict for the defendant. Counselor W. K. McClure, of Plainfield, represented Harris.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in eight bottles. It has cured me and thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug store.

The New Store.

The lively sale of Millinery—the lively sale of Shirt Waists and other goods that commenced here on Wednesday morning is to be kept right up. At the very outset we determined to command public interest—to command it by the power of price as applied to standard goods, and we believed to command the confidence of the community we must set a right standard on these four points:

FIRST—THE GOODS—Qualities and styles must be so thoroughly right that you will always feel perfectly safe in buying here even with your eyes closed.

SECOND—THE PRICES—Never higher than elsewhere, usually lower—frequently very much lower than prices loudly advertised and exploited as big bargains.

THIRD—THE SERVICE—It must be acceptable from beginning to end—not merely courteous selling, but exchanging of goods when desired with a readiness that proves our belief that in pleasing you we best further our own interest.

FOURTH—THE ADVERTISING—It must tell the story of the store exactly as it is. The special sales, the things reduced, must be told of without exaggeration so that you may know and take advantage of them.

It seems absurd but is nevertheless true that there are people in Plainfield who fancy that goods can be bought cheaper in New York stores than here—of course they have not tried our store.

SISTERS OF SILENCE.

COMMUNITY OF WOMEN WHO NEVER USE THEIR TONGUES.

They Are Nuns of the Bernardine Order and Live In the Convent of Notre Dame du Refuge, Near Biarritz, France.

[Copyright, 1899, by American Press Association.]

WE are told by Shakespeare that a voice "ever soft, gentle and low is an excellent thing in a woman." Women without voices or who never use their voices might not be generally regarded as an excellent thing, except by crusty old bachelors and henpecked husbands. There is, however, a community of women, who dwell under the shadows of the Pyrenees, close to the border line between France and Spain, whose voices are never heard, having achieved the rare art of continuous silence.

They are the self sacrificing and humbly devout nuns of the Bernardine order, or, as they are more generally known, the Sisters of Silence. They live close to the convent of Notre Dame du Refuge, of which institution they form a part, among the sand dunes and scattered fir trees on the coast of the bay of Biscay, near Biarritz, France.

They are penitents who are bound by their order to mortify the tongue and the eye, who never speak and who never look into a human face. Here, under the hardest and strictest conditions of life, women rescued from the world seek pardon in self denial and good works. However bitter their tasks, however humble their dwelling, however lowly and unadorned their chapel, their refectory and their cellules, which almost resemble a prisoner's cell, with nothing but sand for the floor, these solitary and silent women are never idle. They till the almost barren soil and make it fruitful; they cultivate flowers and grow vegetables, which are sold in the markets of France and Spain; they make dainty lace and paint cards with exquisite taste. All these things are sold for the benefit of the convent.

As one approaches the home of solitude and silence there are to be seen in the fields and pastures, instead of rough peasants and laborers, silent women in their somber habit of black and white, hooded in black and with large white crosses on their mantles, tilling the soil, gathering the fir cones, guiding the cattle, all speechless and with eyes cast down to the ground.

When the bell on the convent clock tolls, as it does every 15 minutes, the sisters fall on their knees for a moment's silent meditation and prayer. The severity of the rules of self denial are everywhere apparent. The simplest diet prevails. In their sanded refectory at nightfall the penitents receive a piece of dry bread and a jug of cold water. Everywhere there is an utter absence of adornment.

Even the chapel is severely plain and bare. Its floor is sanded and its walls are whitewashed. Unlike the chapels of other convents, there is here no colored statues on the altar, no stained glass windows and frescoed walls, no paintings of the stations of the cross, no altar cloths, laces, light or music—nothing anywhere of brightness and cheer to relieve the austerity, dreariness and monotony of the convent life. There is but the single figure of "Our Lady of Loneliness" on the altar.

Before this altar had knelt upon the sanded floor Eugenie, then empress of France, now sorrow stricken and in exile, and prayed for strength and guidance. The former empress took an especial interest in the Sisters of Silence, and frequently visited their house of refuge. There is at Biarritz, overlooking the blue bay of Biscay, the former palace of Empress Eugenie, where she passed much time. It is now the Hotel de Palais and the temporary home of the hundreds of tourists who annually visit this popular resort.

Queen Victoria and Princess Beatrice on their frequent trips to the south of France never miss an opportunity to visit the Convent of Notre Dame du Refuge, and are greatly beloved by the silent sisters, and in turn feel a most kindly interest in these self sacrificing women.

SUMMER FASHIONS.

White Promises to Be the Leading Favorite.

White continues to enjoy great consideration in the fashionable world. Aside from the white wash costumes prepared for summer, toilets of white cloth, wool or silk are well represented. The revers and pocket flaps of jackets of light or dark cloth are also frequently white, white gloves retain their vogue and white trimmings in the form of folds, pipings and applications are lavishly used. White shirt waists promise to preponderate over all others during the summer, and although there are many comparatively plain ones of lawn or pique there are some which are shirt waists only in shape, being sometimes simply a mass of open embroidery in contiguous bands or separated by lines of lace insertion. A favorite means of introducing a touch of white into the costume is to wear a plastron of white silk, cloth or guipure under an open fronted bodice.

Two shades of the same color are now often combined, and when the plastron is not white it is frequently another tone of the color of the gown. Dark and light shades of brown, green and blue are thus used, also gray and black. Gray and white are always a peculiarly refined and pleasing conjunction, especially when the gray is of a medium or light tone.

The gown illustrated is of bright red cloth. The skirt is cut with a redingote effect, having a circular flounce which is extended to form a tablier. The redingote portion is bordered with black embroidery. The bodice consists of three superimposed boleros, each embroidered with black and parting over a plastron also embroidered with black. The sleeves have black embroidery at the flaring wrists. The belt of red grosgrain is fastened with a gold buckle, and jet buttons ornament the bolero. The cravat is of white tulle with black satin lines secured by a gold buckle. The toque of embroidered black straw has a spray of red azaleas at the side.

NEW MATERIALS.

Light Goods and Light Colors For Warm Weather.

The new materials are all light in weight not merely because they are meant for warm weather wear, but because the increasing amount of tissue used in skirts makes it necessary to diminish heaviness as much as possible. Thin cloths with a glossy finish are favorites and are much used in decided colors and pale tones. Beginning with the tints verging on white, there are chalk, putty, pale suede and pearl shades, which are at the very head and front of fashion and are sufficiently delicate and unserviceable to please the most expensive fancy. Fineness and brilliancy are combined with extreme lightness of weight, and the result is charming. After these tints beige, gray, blues and violets claim fashionable attention, and the violet tones are innumerable from the deep Russian shade to lavender and a pale pinkish lilac. Reds and greens are also seen in new shades and will compose some effective gowns.

TAFFETA GOWN.

Satin de bengale, a new fabric, is having a decided vogue for entire costumes and for elegant bodices and is displacing taffeta, as it lends itself more kindly to the tucks, puffs and shirrings demanded by fashion. Taffeta is not abandoned, however, and has been brought out in wider widths and new designs.

The cut shows a costume of sky blue and white glace taffeta. The plain skirt is covered over the hips with guipure embroidered with silver, which extends downward in long points. The tight bodice has a horizontal drapery in front bordered with a band of embroidered guipure and gathered at the right side under a chou. The yoke of embroidered guipure extends to the waist in a long point at the back. The close sleeves are plaited at the top and have guipure points at the wrists. The collar is of white mousseline de sole.

Die Besitzer hängen des Nachts brennende Laternen im Felde auf und unterhalten Wachtfeuer, um das Roth- und Schwarzwild von den Feldern fernzuhalten. Stettin. Zwanzig ungiltige Ehen hat der Bürgermeister der kleinen Stadt Pölitz geschlossen. Er trat 1898 sein Bürgermeisteramt an und nahm zu gleicher Zeit in dem Irrthum, daß auch das von seinem Vorgänger verwaltete Amt des Standesbeamten ohne Weiteres auf ihn übergegangen sei, die Geschäfte dieses Amtes auf, ohne daß die Aufsichtsbehörde sie ihm übertragen hatte. Jetzt, nachdem er 20 Ehen geschlossen und eine Reihe anderer Beurkundungen vorgenommen hat, ist die Sache zur Anzeige gebracht worden. Sämmtliche Beurkundungen sind für ungiltig erklärt worden. Das Amt des Standesbeamten ist dem Bürgermeister nun übertragen worden. Damit werden aber die bis dahin von ihm geschlossenen Ehen nicht giltig. Vielmehr werden für sie neue Eheschließungsakte und neue Beurkundungen nöthig. Für die neuen rechtsgiltigen Eheschließungen hat der Minister den Dispens von den Aufgeboten ertheilt.

HOLY CROSS COLLEGE.

ITS CORNERSTONE LAID, IT WILL BE DEDICATED NEXT FALL.

This Noble Adjunct to the Catholic University at Washington Is For the Higher Education of Women. Bishop O'Gorman's Address.

On the 19th of last month the cornerstone of the College of the Holy Cross, which is building on the summit of a hill adjoining and overlooking the Catholic university at Washington, was laid with impressive services by the Rev. Dr. Thomas O'Gorman, bishop of Sioux Falls, S. D.

There were present at the services Dr. P. J. Franciscus, president of the Society of the Holy Cross; Rev. John A. Zahm, provincial of the Holy Cross of Notre Dame, Ind., the parent of the institution now in process of erection; Rev. Dr. Gilbert Simmons, president of the Paulist college; Father Smith and Father Callaghan of the Paulists; Rev. Father Descreaux, president of the Marist college; Brother Leo of the Franciscans; Drs. Bouquillon, Shahan, Pace, Chappiux, Creagh and Aiken of the Catholic university, and many of the students of the university and the colleges in connection with it.

In a strong sheet iron box, which was sealed and then cemented in the cornerstone, were placed local papers, several of the New York papers, Catholic journals, a specimen of every United States coin, Cuban coins, a Spanish coin which was on the battleship Maine at the time that it was blown up in Havana harbor, presented by Rev. Father Chidwick, the chaplain of the ship; a Catholic Bible and prayer book and other mementos of the day and order. After the ceremony of laying the cornerstone was concluded Bishop O'Gorman addressed the assemblage as follows:

"Unheralded and informal as may be the laying of this cornerstone, yet it marks an important stage in the growth of the Catholic University of America. The first decade of its existence is coming to a close, but what a decade of struggle for life and of progress through difficulties and of triumph over obstacles. We do not repine, we do not regret, we do not complain, for does not growth mean, in institutions as in men and everything else that lives and grows, resistance to and victory over resisting forces? And, if growth means also a favorable environment, has not this university been favored with the warm sunshine and fertilizing waters of papal protection and love, with the fostering care of hierarchy and clergy, with the warm and generous sympathy of laity, eager for the blessings of the highest and best education? The force of circumstances, or, rather, to speak the language of a Christian, the ruling of Providence, has made this youthful institution during the first ten years of its existence the center of the Catholic church in the United States, so that the history of our church in the decade just closing is contained in the history of the Catholic university within the same period. Struggle shows life; environment accounts for growth.

"I have named some factors of the environment in which the university has prospered. This ceremony draws attention to a factor of the greatest power and importance. From this hill where we stand behold the imposing halls of the university itself and see clustering around them the houses of studies established by the Paulists, the Marists, the Franciscans.

"This building, the cornerstone of which is blessed this afternoon, will be the home of the students of the congregation of the Holy Cross. The dimensions, the solidity, the architectural beauty, of this college prove that its founders have confidence in the future of the university as an undoubted center of higher education for the Catholics of the United States. In the middle ages the great universities became sooner or later the rallying points of numerous colleges erected by different nations or provinces or monastic and religious bodies. Thus grew Oxford and Cambridge, Paris and Salamanca. Thus, in our own days, grows Louvain, where Dominicans and Jesuits and Redemptorists and others have grouped their respective houses of studies around the university.

"History is repeating itself in our time, on our soil, in this capital of the nation. As in the administration, so in the educational sphere the District of Columbia is to be the theater of a growing centralization. Here converge around the dome of the capitol the departments of the nation's political existence. Here are converging and will converge more and more with time, around Caldwell and MacMahon halls, the houses of studies of our religious orders, men and women. The days of doubt and hesitation are over, the future is secure. We hail the blessing of the cornerstone of this building as the augury of a second decade more successful than even the first decade of the university."

The Holy Cross college for the higher education of women is being erected by the Holy Cross society, whose principal institution is at Notre Dame, Ind. The foundation has been laid, and from this time forward workmen will be busily engaged upon the building until it is completed. It is expected that the structure will be in readiness for occupancy not later than September, and it will be dedicated in October, at the time of the annual meeting of the archbishops. Cardinal Gibbons will then be present, and the discourse will be delivered by Bishop Spalding.

The Pope's Little Joke.

Pope Leo's little joke about the electric installation at the Vatican is a good deal better than the average. "They will be able to say no longer that the Vatican is the enemy of light," said his holiness when the installation was completed.

CATHOLIC WRITERS.

A Guild to Bring Them Together and Further Their Interests.

The Guild of Catholic Authors and Writers, the only society of its kind in this country, is doing a good work, and its meetings in New York are becoming the talk of literary circles. The aims of the guild are:

First.—To bring Catholic writers of the metropolis and of the country together.

Second.—To help its members, young and old, toward success. For this purpose committees have been appointed to read manuscript, look after copyrights and give advice to struggling and inexperienced writers.

Third.—To aid in the development of the Catholic idea in literature. To this end discussions at the meetings will be directed, new fields of work will be described, and eminent writers will address the members on occasions.

Fourth.—To revive or keep alive the memory and the good work of deceased Catholic writers. At each meeting at least one such writer will have his work described.

The officers are as follows: President, the Rev. John Talbot Smith; first vice president, John J. Rooney; second vice president, Miss Ellen A. Ford; secretary and treasurer, Arthur Ryan; corresponding secretary, Miss Marion J. Brunowe; librarian, Miss Marie F. Giles, and trustees, the Rev. John J. Donlon and James Clancy.

FIFTY YEARS A PRIEST.

Mgr. Stephan Raised to the Dignity of Prothonotary Apostolic.

By a papal brief recently received by the apostolic delegate Mgr. Joseph Stephan has been raised to the dignity of prothonotary apostolic. This is the highest honor which is ever conferred on Catholic clergymen outside of the city of Rome. A few years ago Mgr. Stephan was made private chamberlain of the pope, with the title of monsignore. That honor, however, raised him but one grade above priests in general and did not constitute him a prelate. The dignity carries with it many privileges, even that of using many of the pontifical vestments in the celebration of solemn functions.

This honor has been conferred by the pope on Mgr. Stephan in recognition of his services in promoting Catholic interests among the Indians of the United States. Mgr. Stephan has for many years been the head of the Catholic Indian bureau in Washington. He was a chaplain in the civil war. The favor of the pope came to him at this special time in order to honor the occasion of his golden jubilee in the priesthood. On the 21st of last month Mgr. Stephan completed 50 years of ministry.

Catholic Schools In Santiago.

A correspondent of Harper's Weekly, after stating that General Wood, the American commander at Santiago de Cuba, found the city schools—which of course are Catholic ones—so good that he left them alone, adds that he visited two of those schools himself. This is his report: "I must say that never in my life have I seen happier, cleaner, better dressed collections of little children. As the Spaniards made attendance at these ward schools compulsory and as they were gratuitous the families of rich and poor alike share in the advantages of free education. In the boys' school I was surprised to find a museum of natural history, a chemical laboratory and all the appliances for elementary education in natural science. As for the pupils, they would have compared well in manners, clothing and brightness with a similar school in any part of the world."

Decorated by the Pope.

The Countess di Cesnola, wife of General L. P. di Cesnola, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, has received from the pope one of the highest decorations that can come to a good Roman Catholic. This is no other than an exquisite intaglio of his holiness to be won around the neck with a slender gold chain. With it came a letter stating that it was given as an appreciation of her labors among the poor Italians of New York. The countess founded the Italian Orphan asylum at Manresa-on-the-Hudson and a hospital and a convent in New York city. The Countess di Cesnola is the daughter of Captain Samuel Chester Reid, U. S. N., the hero of Fayal. He designed the United States flag as it is today and received the thanks of congress for so doing.

Father Brindle's Appointment.

Father Brindle's appointment as auxiliary bishop to his eminence Cardinal Vaughan has been confirmed by the pope, who has also created him a domestic prelate, with the title of right reverend monsignore. The new bishop has, as an army chaplain, seen more fighting than falls to the lot of most clergymen in the service. He has been twice promoted on the field, possesses the distinguished service order, wears the medjidieh, the osmanieh, the khedive's star and at least half a dozen medals. He was at Omdurman and the fall of Khartum.

The Love of God.

There are many who want me to tell them of methods and systems and secret ways of becoming perfect, and I can only tell them that the sole secret is a hearty love of God, and the only way of attaining that love is by loving. You learn to speak by speaking, to study by studying, to run by running, to work by working, and just so you learn to love God and man by loving. All those who think to learn in any other way deceive themselves.—St. Francis de Sales.

Remember It.

Our lapses from virtue would be far fewer in number and smaller in measure if we always remember that our guardian angel is ever beside us, a witness of all our thoughts, words and actions.

A LOST ART.

That of Poisoning as it Existed in the Middle Ages.

The art of poisoning, if we are to believe an eminent authority, must be reckoned among the lost arts, says the Church Gazette. It is not because we are less coarse than our ancestors, and carry our refinement even into our crimes; we are less unscrupulous or cruel than our forefathers were. Though the toxicology of the ancients was necessarily incomplete, there is every reason to believe that antiquity was acquainted with the use of arsenic, opium, henbane and prussic acid. The oldest poison in use was probably an importation of serpent venom. Theophrastus speaks of a poison made from aconite, with rapid or slow effects, in accordance with the operator's wishes. During the empire the removal of inconvenient people by means of poison had become so common that the emperors had a number of men in their service whose duty it was to taste all dishes put upon the imperial table, and that no dinner was partaken of without one of the court physicians being present.

One of the most notorious poisoners of the day was Locusta, the murderess of Claudius and Britannicus. About the year 331 B. C., large numbers of women belonging to the higher classes of Roman society were indicted for poisoning their husbands (a modern instance of the epidemic occurred of late years in Hungary. One hundred and seventy were convicted and condemned. The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were the halcyon days of poisoning. There is no doubt that La Spara and the, if possible, still more wretched hag La Toffania, were as bad as you make them. The latter is said to have caused the death of over 600 persons. She used a preparation of arsenic which she sold under the name of "Aqua Toffena." It was a slow poison, the victim growing daily weaker and gradually dying from physical exhaustion. In France the most notorious female poisoners were Mme de Brinvilliers, who was taught the secret of the "succession powder" by Sainte Croix, which she successfully administered to her father and brothers, and the still more notorious Lavoisin and Lavigoreux, who, being ostensibly midwives, carried their poisons to high and low—married couples anxious to hasten the dissolution of the irksome tie, or needy heirs wishful to accelerate the departure of rich relatives. A veritable mania for poisoning appears to have set in toward the middle of the seventeenth century.

In England poisoning was declared, by an act passed in the reign of Henry VIII., to be high treason, and those guilty of it were to be boiled alive. The most notorious case (the poisoning of James I. by Buckingham is only a surmise) of poisoning was that of Sir Thomas Overbury in the year 1613. He had incurred the displeasure of Lord Rochester and his wife, and they had both vowed to be revenged on him. So after they had got him committed to the Tower, they set themselves to poison his food by mixing arsenic and cantharides with it. For many months, though suffering intensely, he appeared to have lingered on. At last a stronger dose than usual put an end to his miserable existence. The guilty couple, to the King's everlasting disgrace, were released after five years' imprisonment.

A Curious Accident on a Trolley Car.

An inspector in the Brooklyn Water Department is now at his home in Brooklyn suffering from an electric shock, which paralyzed him from the waist down, which he received in a trolley car. He boarded the car while it was raining hard. He wore no rubbers, but had on very thick shoes, the heels of which were secured by rows of heavy nails. He stepped from the platform upon the iron plate which forms the threshold of the car, the door of the car sliding back and forth in a groove in this plating. He at once experienced a sharp shock, and the conductor pulled the helpless man away from the plate and carried him to a seat. The other passengers were then sent out of the car; the car was run to the power house, and after a considerable time had elapsed the man was sent home in a carriage.

It is difficult to account for such a severe shock. The pressure carried by the trolley wires is about 550 volts, and the shocks which are ordinarily obtained do not do any harm. It is probable that the injured man must have received the current through the iron nails in the heels of his shoes. It is also possible that the car heaters were improperly wired, and that a loose wire may have touched the framework of the heaters and been thereby conducted to the iron plate which covered the threshold of the door, through the medium of the iron supports of the heaters.

A Religious Dog.

There is a dog in New London, Conn., which is an unusually intelligent animal, in spiritual things, anyway. Some nights since the mistress of the house attempted to send him from the room, but he who never before failed to obey, refused to move. The family then had their usual evening prayers, after which Master Nero arose and left the room with no urging. After that he was urged to leave before prayers a number of times, and he always refused. After prayers he is ready to go.

A Monster Canoe.

While digging along the shores of Cedar Swamp Creek, near Petersburg, N. J., a few days ago Penn Baner uncovered a large Indian canoe. The canoe was nearly sixteen feet long, over five feet wide, and the red cedar from which it had been cut must have been a monster tree.

SPORTING.

GOLF.

There will be general play next Saturday afternoon on the links of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club.

Everything is now in readiness for the formal opening of the Park Golf Club course next Saturday afternoon, and the affair gives promise of being an auspicious one.

Mr. Barry, formerly green-keeper of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course, is acting in the same capacity for the Park Golf Club this season, and not Fred Coverly as stated recently.

The Rahway and Middlesex Golf Club, which has been recently organized, is working hard to have its new clubhouse on the Edward Adams farm, in Woodbridge township, so that it can be opened next month. The clubhouse will be the old homestead on the farm, which is being completely renovated. An addition is also being made as large as the original homestead itself. The club is making an oulay of several thousand dollars on the place and expects to have one of the finest clubhouses and golf links in Union county. The president of the club is Charles B. Squier, a Raway millionaire, and its members comprise the wealthiest men in Rahway and Woodbridge, several of whom have their country residences in close proximity to the club's grounds.

CYCLING COMMENT

Miss Elizabeth Smalley, of Craig place, has purchased a new 1899 wheel.

Mrs. Louis E. Eaton, of East Second street, is one of the latest cycle enthusiasts, and since she has secured a handsome wheel she enjoys frequent spins.

Mrs. Norman L. Sofield and Daisy DeHart, of Mariners Harbor, S. I., rode their wheels to this city yesterday to visit Miss Grace Adams, of Netherwood avenue, and Grace rode home with them today for a visit.

ROD AND GUN.

The tomcods and eels at Elizabethport have been busy looking for sandworms on hook for the last ten days, and the catches have been big. The fish, also, have been larger than the general run.

The effect of trout stocking by the Fish Commission is seen in every county in Northern New Jersey, and even Ocean county is paying respects to the efforts. The fishing in Morris, Sussex and Warren counties has been better since the season opened on the first of the month than at any time within twenty years, and owing to the efforts of the wardens the catching of fingerlings has been abated.

VARICUS SPORTS.

Rhey T. Snodgrass, who graduated from the Plainfield High School last June, and is now a freshman at Dickinson College, has won his coveted "D" already. He was one of the candidates for the college relay team that will take part in the intercollegiate relay race at the University of Pennsylvania Saturday afternoon. In the contests held Saturday to determine the four men who are to compose the team, Snodgrass made an excellent showing, running a quarter in 55 2-5 seconds. This gave him a place on the team and the right to wear the "D" on his sweater. Then he gets a handsome prize if his team is victorious in the race.

POOL.

The Johnson-Coriell game of pool played at Smalley's pool room at Dunellen Tuesday night, resulted in a victory for Mr. Johnson, 198 to 118. Mr. Coriell threw up the game at 11 o'clock in favor of Mr. Johnson.

FIREMEN DISPOSING OF THEIR EFFECTS.

Engine Company No. 2 Make Presents of Many Articles.

SOME THINGS TO BE SOLD.

PROCEEDS TO PROVIDE A FAREWELL DINNER FOR THE MEMBERS.

Many of the Pictures Given to Fire Companies in Other Towns as Souvenirs—President's Chair Presented to Warren Engine Company—Affairs of Company to Be Wound Up Monday.

The visible evidences of the volunteer fire department in Plainfield are fast disappearing. The company rooms in the department headquarters on East Second street are being dismantled. Last week the members of the Zephyr Hook and Lader Campany gave away or sold all the furniture and pictures used in fitting up their room. Last night the members of No. 2 Engine Company followed their example.

There were twelve men out for the meeting of No. 2 Company. The pictures, with which the walls of their room are lined, were given to the Exempt Firemen's Association, and friendly companies in the Princeton, Perth Amboy and Bayonne departments. The handsome president's chair was sent over to Warren Engine Company, of North Plainfield. The pedestal, which looks like a hydrant, went to Bayonne.

There are still remaining the chairs, desks, carpet and dishes, which will be sold among the members at a meeting which is called for Monday night. The proceeds from the sale, with the small balance in the treasury, will go to provide a dinner for the members of the company.

The meeting Monday night winds up the affairs of No. 2 Engine Company. The members will ask for their exemption papers in a body. They are waiting the action of the fire committee, who promised that they shall all go out together in proper form.

While Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company will still exist in name, it practically ends its career at a meeting to be held Monday evening. Last week the property of the company was sold or otherwise disposed of. Last night an informal meeting was held, when the funds still remaining in the treasury were divided among the members. There was nearly $5 for each, making $20 in all, including the results of the first division some time ago.

Monday night a meeting will be held, when the company will go through the form of electing officers. That is expected to be the last meeting, however, for the members are waiting at the request of the fire committee before presenting their application to be retired in a body.

With the disbandment of all these companies it will seem very strange not to count them in the fire department. Every company has served the city well and faithfully during their existence and the most hearty thanks of every resident in the city is due them for the services they have given. The rooms they occupied at headquarters will be used for other purposes. One room will be used for a billiard, smoking and reading room, while another room will probably be used as a bed-room. Still there is need of a place at headquarters where members can hold a meeting if necessary. Sometimes the Firemen's Relief Association or the Exempt Firemen want to hold a meeting there and the chances are that some arrangements will be made whereby these meetings can be held.

It has not yet been learned whether the members of Alert Hose Company will accept the offer of the Common Council of $300 for their apparatus. It is reported that they received an offer of $350 from outside parties. The passing of the various companies and the institution of the call system will be watched with considerable interest. It is a recognized fact that the adoption of the call system is the first step toward the securing of a regular paid fire department, and there will be interest evidenced in the selection of men for the call system. There are a large number of men looking for appointments and the best judgment will have to be exercised in the selection.

SPREADING THE GOSPEL.

THAT IS WHAT KING'S FOREIGN MISSIONARY CIRCLE DOES.

Third Anniversary of the Society Held in Warren Chapel Last Evening—A Letter Read From Miss Rachel Maier.

The third anniversary of the King's Foreign Missionary Circle of Warren chapel was celebrated last evening at the chapel. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the chapel, presided. He made a few introductory remarks commending the members of the circle on the completion of their third year. He spoke in a congratulatory manner and told of the work that the members are doing for foreign missions.

After Mr. McKelvey's remarks there was a piano solo by Miss Dewey. A pleasant feature was the reading by Miss Mary Maier of a letter from the president of the Circle, Miss Rachel Maier, who is a missionary in Africa.

After the reading of the letter an enjoyable number was the vocol solo by Edson Martin, accompanied by Mrs. J. O. McKelvey. Mr. McKelvey then introduced Rev. Dr. Main, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, who gave a talk on foreign mission work.

The concluding numbers on the programme included a song by Ada Thompson, a recitation by Helen Woolley and a piano solo by Miss Dewey, after which refreshments were served in abundance by a committee consisting of Mrs. Edward Stine, Miss Randolph, Miss Wilson, Mrs. Drake, Miss Sowden, Miss Hattie Taynor and Mrs. Louis Mowhring.

Mrs. L. C. Ely had full charge of the literary part of the affair, and Miss Maier assisted in a general way. The Circle now numbers 20 active and 30 honorary members. During the past year two barrels valued at $40 have been sent to foreign fields and $22 in cash. In all about $75 has been contributed. At present a Scripture quilt is being made to be sent away. The Circle is also supporting several children in Africa.

BOYS SUPPLIED WITH SOCKS BY THE GIRLS.

FAIR ONES HAD MONEY TO SPEND.

Girls' Athletic Association Did Not Want to Keep Their Funds in the Treasury.

The baseball players of the Plainfield High School will appear in the game at the Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon with brand new red and blue stockings. This new array of hosiery is the direct result of a curious state of affairs that exists in the treasury of the Girls' Athletic Association of the High School.

The treasury contains about $50, which the young women haven't the slightest idea what to do with. It was intended to pay the expenses of the basket ball team, but the benefit entertainment was such a success that there was enough money raised to run several basket ball teams. So some of the young women thought it would be real nice to make a present of some kind to the young men who represent the High School on the baseball diamond, and thus spend some of their funds.

A banner, a trophy, pins and emblems were all suggested, but Manager Wm. A. Fisher said that what the team needed most was uniform stockings. So the young women have instructed him to order the stockings and they will foot the bill. The stockings are expected to arrive in time for tomorrow's game with the Rutgers Prep. School

A Big Sunday-school.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church met last evening in a regular business session to talk over matters pertaining to the general welfare of the school. The business was of a routine nature and nothing of any great importance was considered. A report was read showing that there are 425 members of the school, which includes officers, teachers and scholars.

RODE HORSEBACK THROUGH PALESTINE.

Interesting Experience of the Honeyman Tourists.

DR. RICHARDS' ENDURANCE.

COVERED 200 MILES IN THE SADDLE IN SEVEN DAYS.

Dean Rodman and Messrs. Estil and Honeyman Came Near Succumbing From Exhaustion, But Soon Recovered After Their Arrival at Haifa—Dr. Richards Preached at Nazareth.

Advices from the Honeyman party from Beyrout state that the camping tour through Palestine was accomplished without accident and, though the first two days were stormy, no one suffered except from fatigue.

Dr. Richards carried off the honors as to endurance, with Mrs. Foster of his congregation a close second. Dean Rodman, Mr. Estil and Mr. Honeyman nearly succumbed under the strain of heat and seven or eight hours a day in the saddle, especially when the way was through dry beds of streams full of boulders and over plains nearly red hot and with no breath of air.

The journey of two hundred miles was made in the saddle in seven days. But all were well and fresh the day after arrival at Haifa and would not have given up their delightful camp experiences and views of Samaria and Galilee for a large sum.

The itinerary, at last accounts, was being strictly followed. At Nazareth, when in camp, Dr. Richards preached to the party on "The Silence of Jesus when at Nazareth between twelve and thirty years of age."

Dean Rodman is reported as having accomplished wonders in endurance for one of his age, and as being very joyous.

DONE "IN HIS NAME."

Tenth Anniversary of the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters Celebrated.

To celebrated their tenth anniversary the What-so-ever Circle of King's Daugters of the Park Avenue Baptist church gave a reception last night in the chapel.

In the way of entertainment there were musical selections and recitations. Miss Carrie Dunham, the secretary, read a short history of the circle from the time it was organized ten years ago to the present.

A piano duet was rendered by Miss May and Miss Essie Thompson. There were recitations by Miss Euphemia Demarest; vocal solos by Miss Elma Runyon and Thomas A. Cuming; a piano solo by Harry Smalley, a young musician, but one who surprised many there with his ability, and selections by the orchestra.

This orchestra was composed of the members of the circle, and although their selections were played on combs, the music was as much enjoyed as though it was the melody drawn from harps and violins. Clarence Mills on the violin accompanied Mr. Cuming in his solo.

It Will Ask for the Appointment of an Excise Board.

The Summit Common Council has unanimously decided to request the Union County Court to appoint three excise commissioners for the city, to have full control of granting liquor licenses. Councilman Buckley was appointed chairman of the sewerage and drainage committee, and a bicycle ordinance was referred to the law and ordinance committee, as was also one regulating the police force.

The latter fixes the salary of the captain of police at $60 a month and of patrolmen at $50 a month. The Mayor is given exclusive control of the police, with power to appoint and remove subject to the Council's approval.

MOST BARE FACED FRAUD

BOGUS INTERNAL REVENUE STAMPS FOR CIGARS ARE FOUND.

Deputy Revenue Inspector VanVoorhis Finds Jacobs' Counterfeits in Great Numbers, but None in Plainfield.

Deputy Internal Revenue Collector George E. VanVoorhis, for the district covering Union and Middlesex counties, has discovered quantities of the counterfeited cigar stamps said to have been manufactured by William M. Jacobs and confederates, and has seized about 12,000 of the cigars in the boxes thus stamped.

So for none of the bad paper has been found in Plainfield, but in other sections of his district Mr. VanVoorhis is making discoveries. He confiscated 2,150 cigars in Rahway, and 9,600 cigars in New Brunswick.

The dealers from whom the seizures were made were ignorant of the fraud against the government, and notwithstanding the violation of the laws governing the dealing in tobacco, there was on the boxes containing the cigars, on which no duty had been paid, a notice to this effect:

"The manufacturer of these cigars herein contained has complied with all the requirements of law. Every person is cautioned not to use either this box for cigars again, or the stamps thereon again, nor to remove the contents of this box without destroying said stamp, under the penalties provided in such cases."

The use of this notice is probably the most barefaced offense against the revenue laws of the United States and against the rights and privileges of the legitimate manufacturers that the counterfeiters have dared to perpetrate, and the probabilities are that their punishment will be the more severe as the result of this discovery.

PRIZE ESSAY SUBJECTS.

DR. BRIGGS ATTACKED.

Rev. F. M. Clendenin Formally Protests Against His Ordination.

Once more a theological storm is gathering around the head of Prof. Charles Briggs, whose withdrawal from the communion of the Presbyterian church and whose determination to enter the Episcopal fold are matters of history. It has been known for some time that the high church element in the Episcopal church was strongly opposed to Dr. Bliggs' entering their priesthood, but hitherto no open expression of this antagonism had been made.

Rev. F. M. Clendenin, rector of St. Peter's, West Chester, where Dr. Briggs was to be ordained May 14th, has written to Bishop Potter, protesting against the ordination in his church of one holding what he alleges are the heretical views of Dr. Briggs.

Rev. Mr. Clendenin is well known as a clergyman. His wife was a daughter of the late Horace Greeley.

Dr. Briggs is well known in Plainfield.

CLUB WOMEN APPEAR IN WAX WORKS SHOW

Eleventh Anniversary of the Monday Afternoon Club.

HISTORICAL PERSONAGES.

PERIOD FROM 1558 TO 1660 WAS SHOWN WITH CHARACTERS.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall Acted as Mrs. Jarley-Ward—The Various Characters Were Portrayed in a Pleasing Manner—Large and Fashionable Audience Present—Supper was Served Later.

Every April 27th the Monday Afternoon Club celebrates its anniversary in a way to make it long remembered by the members and their friends. Last night another birthday, the eleventh, came around, and this was observed in an elaborate entertainment at the Casino, when "Mrs Jarley-Ward's New Wax Works Show" was presented.

The period shown was that from the reign of Queen Elizabeth to the accession of Charles II, from 1558 to 1660. During the year the members of the club have been studying the events of this period, so the selection was a pertinent one.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall was Mrs. Jarley Ward. She wore her grandmother's dress, which is 75 years old. It was an embroidered strawberry colored China crepe. There was also the crossed handkerchief, fastened at the throat with a brooch, bearing a portrait supposed to be that of the late Mr. Jarley.

Her two assistants were Eugene Hatch and Mr. Hall. Mr. Hatch wore a Lord Fauntleroy suit and Mr. Hall, who was supposed to have just arrived home from Manila, was attired in white trousers and vest, topped off by a red turban.

The characters were well taken and the ladies who took the parts deserve much credit. Their costumes were the cause of much favorable comment.

The first figure was that of Queen Bess dancing before the Spanish Ambassador. The character was represented by Mrs. Charles Reed, in a dark blue and black silk, with a magnificent stomacher of gold. There were brilliant gems in her hair and over her was the conventional black veil. The traditional ruff was about her neck.

The next was Mrs. W. L. C Glenny as the "troublesome witch" on her way from Plymouth to Salem Mrs. Glenny had on the witch cap, with its pointed crown, a hump on her back, and rode a broomstick.

In red cardinal robe and cap was Mrs. Samuel McCutchen as Cardinal Woolsey about to lose his power at the court of King Henry. In the next scene John Hall as Sir Walter Raleigh, in the yellow and black costume of the period, was seen throwing down his cloak for Queen Elizabeth to walk upon. Miss Elizabeth Stewart was Queen Bess, and in a garnet colored bodice and pink silk skirt, with white brocade panels, looked a vision of loviness.

The most amusing scene was Charles Stewart escaping from England on a bicycle. Miss Shrieve was Charles Stewart, who was supposed to have made his escape in female disguise. She wore a sword and crown, and her face was hidden in the depths of a big sun bonnet.

The last was called the "six ages of woman." Mrs. Stephen Haff was considered the best as a baby. The school girl was Mrs. Eugene Hatch. Mrs. William M. Stillman sat in state as a lady love, gorgeous in a costume of organdie muslin and lace. Mrs. Gibbs, of Fanwood, made a pretty Red Cross nurse. As judge Miss Elvira Kenyon was stern in black robe and powdered wig. In the last age Mrs. J. M. Wnlton, as club president, in an up-to-date tailor made gown, with high collar and mannish hat, pounding on the table with a gavel, called the audiences back to present times again.

At the conclusion all the figures were brought upon the stage and wound up for a finale. The committee in charge of the entertainment consisted of Miss Emily Tracy, Mrs. Eugene Hatch and Mrs. Albert Atterbury.

Miss Ada Marsh furnish the music, a very necessary accompaniment. In the absence of the president, Mrs. E. C. Perkins, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, first vice-president, took her place.

The club members invited their friends to a supper after the entertainment, which was served in the Casino. The decorations were pretty, palms, plants and flowers being scattered profusely about.

—Closing exercises of the Warren chapel sewing school will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

TRUCE IS NOW ASKED.

TWO OFFICERS SENT TO CONFER WITH GEN. OTIS.

Proposition For Time to Call the Filipino Congress Together and Decide What the People Want to Do.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Manila, April 28, 6:25 p. m.—Colonel Manuel Argueleses and Lieutenant Jose Bernal, chief of Gen. Luna's staff, entered Gen. MacArthur's line bearing a flag of truce today, and proceeded to Manila by train to confer with Gen. Otis regarding terms of surrender.

Their advances, however, were productive of no immediate result. The delegates told Gen. Otis that they were representatives of Gen. Luna, who had been requested by Aguinaldo to ask Gen. Otis for a cessation of hostilities, in order to allow time for the summoning of the Filipino Congress, which body would decide whether the people wanted peace. Gen. Otis replied that he did not recognize the Filipino government.

There will be another conference tomorrow.

SAENGERBUNDS HAVE GOT TO HAVE MORE ROOM.

MUCH DISCUSSION OVER PLANS.

Some of the Members Want the Society to Sell Present Building and Put Up a New One.

The members of the Saengerbund met last evening in special session to consider the advisability of enlarging their hall on Somerset street, and extending it in the rear a distance of fifty feet. The meeting was a lively one and it was nearly 1 o'clock this morning when it adjourned.

Some of the members wanted to sell the present hall and buy a new and large place, while others wanted to expend a small amount of money to improve the hall. After a great deal of talk the members finally agreed to put the plans out and ascertain from contractors just what it will cost to make the improvements.

There will be another meeting next Tuesday evening, and at that time there will be a report submitted and the members will then know what the proposed improvement will cost the society.

An error was made in reporting the bids received for laying crosswalks and sidewalks in the borough a few days ago. The bid of P. Kiely was 46 cents for sidewalks and 48 cents for crosswalks. This is per running foot. In justice to Mr. Kiely this correction is made.

APPLICATIONS FOR LICENSES REFUSED.

Strong Remonstrances Presented to the Court.

DECIDED THIS MORNING.

ARGUMENT MADE FOR JAS. LOUGHLIN BY R. M. CLARK.

W. K McClure, Representing James Sisser, Who Wanted a Saloon License, Withdrew the Application—Baldwin Boys Sentenced to Pay Costs—Horse Thief Sentenced to Six Years.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 28—The Somerset County Court in session this morning was occupied with a number of cases of interest to Plainfielders. Judge Bartine was on the bench.

One of the important cases was that of the application of James Loughlin for a liquor license at Mountainside Grove, He was represented by Lawyer R. M. Clark. He read several letters, including one from John Adleman, superintendet of the trolley road, in which the alleged advantages of a licensed place in th mountain near the end of the trolley were set forth. On the other hand Murphy & Blatz, representing the people who remonstrated against the granting of the license, told the court in a plain manner of the evils that would come with the granting of the license. Judge Bartine, after hearing both sides, refused to grant the license.

In the case of Mr. Sisser, of Raritan, applying for a license for Charles Bock's place on Somerset street, Murphy & Blatz again represented those remonstrated, and were successful in defeating the license. The application was finally withdrawn by W. K. McClure, who represented the applicant.

In the case of George Baldwin, Augustus Baldwin and Wm. Hartfelder, charged with trespassing on the Corby farm, Murphy & Blatz, representing the young men, entered a plea of non vult and requested leniency. They were fined just the costs of the case.

The case of Daniel O'Connor, of the borough, charged with assault on Mr. Pearson, was represented by Murphy & Blatz, and a plea of non-vult was entered. In this case Mr. O'Connor was fined $1 and costs.

A man named VanFleet, charged with stealing a number of horses throughout the county, was sentenced to six years in State Prison. The defendant in a rape case was also called and this matter was laid over till May 11th.

FRANCHISE GRANTED.

Rahway Council Acts Favorably on Trolley Application.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Rahway, April 28—At the meeting of the Common Council held last evening a franchise was given to the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway to operate a trolley line through this place. This road will be a part of the cross-county line that is proposed, and at the meeting of the Board of Freeholders next week Thursday the trolley company will ask that body for a franchise to run over the county road. This is the road that it is proposed to run to Westfield.

Their Last Gathering.

The Thursday Evening Euchre Club were entertained last evening by Mr. and Mrs. William N. Tier, of Bank place. This was the last meeting of the club for this season. During the evening there was vocal and instrumental music, which was in charge of Benj. LaVere and Edward Clark. Miss Charlotte Messersmith and Miss Clara Williams were awarded the first and second prizes for the women, while the first and second for the men were won by Theodore Mantz and Fred Ross.

IN THE HANDS OF THE JURY

Mrs. George on Trial for Murder of George D. Saxton at Canton.

THE ISSUE IN DOUBT.

Wide-Spread Interest in the Case as Victim Was President McKinley's Brother-in-Law.

Court House Struck by Lightning Just as Prosecution Stated Mrs. George Could Not Escape the Eye of the Almighty—The Defendant Starts Up With Piercing Scream.

Canton, O., April 28.—Before a great throng of people, who hung upon his every word, Prosecuting Attorney Pomerene finished his suming up of evidence in the remarkable trial of Mrs. Annie E. George for the murder of George D. Saxton, brother to the wife of the President of the United States.

There was an uncomfortable silence upon the crowd as he closed his ringing address to the jury, and all eyes turned upon Judge Taylor, awaiting the opening of his charge—the last advice to the twelve men who have in their hands the decision as to the fate of the woman.

The case has gone to the jurymen, and, in all likelihood, a verdict will be announced sometime Friday.

Now that the anouncement of Mrs. George's fate is only a matter of hours that only a few legal forms remain to be observed before her guilt or innocence is to be proclaimed, all Canton is ocupied with discussing the probabilities of the verdict and reviewing the strange phases of this strange case.

The people here vitally call up the circumstances—omen is what many designate it—of the lightning bolt which struck the Court House, as Mr. Pomerene cried out that though Mrs. George might escape the hand of justice, it would be impossible for her to evade the eye of the Almighty.

As he pronounced the last word a lightning bolt struck the building, flashed into the globes of the electric chandelier and dismayed the crowd.

Mrs. George started up with a piercing scream just as the crash of thunder followed the bolt.

The woman's cry and the voice of the prosecutor were swallowed up in the reverberation, and for a moment the court was all confusion. It was several minutes before Mrs. George regained her composure.

The trial of Mrs. George has stirred Ohio as political campaigns have stirred it. The relationship of the dead man, Saxton, to the wife of the nation's chief magistrate has given the case an eminence never before attained by a murder trial in the state. In its ramifications, in the details adduced in the testimony of the scores of witnesses for and against the accused woman, the trial has concerned many of the most prominent persons of the State.

George D. Saxton, was widely known even before his brother-in-law became President of the United States. Mrs. George was the wife of a carpenter, and soon after Saxton met her, they became much attached.

Mrs. George subsequently obtained a divorce from her husband. The defence ought to show that this had been accomplished at the instigation of Saxton, and that he intended to marry her after the divorce was granted.

The marriage did not take place, and according to one witness, Mrs. George declared her intention to kill Saxton. Seven hours after this declaration Saxton was shot down as he was entering the home of Mrs. Althouse.

The murder of Saxton was committed on a very dark night, and on this fact the defence based much. It was brought out that it had been necessary for those who found the dead man to light matches in order to be sure of his identity. This, according to the defence, was practical proof that the testimony that Mrs. George had been recognized from across the street was not worthy of credence.

Inherits $250,000 at Eighteen.

San Francisco, April 28.—The young woman who was arrested two weeks ago as Mildred Wilson is the adopted daughter of Daniel Webster, an engineer, employed on Mare Island, and will be eighteen years old in August 1900. Her arrest on April 10 was the result of her leaving her home in Vallejo and coming to San Francisco to see a soldier. Fred Melville, with whom she had fallen in love. She was sent home to Vallejo. Webster came to take her. He said the girl was born at Burke's Point, Mo., and when she is eighteen years old, she will have a quarter of a million dollars.

Senator Jones Will Go to Europe.

Washington, April 28.—Senator Jas. K. Jones, of Arkansas, accompanied by his wife and son, will sail next Tuesday from New York for Europe by the North erman Lloyd Line. They expect to land at Southampton and to make a tour from there. It is probable they will remain abroad until the Fall.

Senator Jones returned to Washington several days ago from Atlantic City, where he went for his health. Though somewhat improved, he is yet under the care of a physician. He hopes to entirely recover before returning from his European trip.

Tar and Feathers!

Cape May, April 28.—The Grand Jury which investigated the tar and feather case at Ocean City last October has returned indictments for conspiracy against six well-known young men of Ocean City. Others alleged to be in the crowd turned State's evidence. Harry Anderson, whose conduct had not been edifying, was the victim of the tar and feathers.

Gold Medal for Dewey.

New York, April 28.—Appleton Morgan, president of the Society of the War of 1812, of New Jersey, has delivered to Commander George E. Ide, U. S. S. Yosemite, the gold badge which the society voted to Admiral Dewey, in honor of his services in the Philippines.

The A. T. Stewart mansion, former home of the Manhattan Club of New York, it is reported, will be torn down.

THE LATEST NEWS.

SHE SHOT HER LOVER IN A JAIL.

New Orleans, April 28.—W. Harrington, a well-educated young man who came to Leesville, this State, from Kentucky lies in a dying condition in Leesville with a bullet in his left lung, fired by a woman. Harrington was arrested about a month ago on the charge of assaulting Miss Mary Lacaze, daughter of Joseph Lacaze, one of the most prominent citizens of Vernon parish Negotiations had been in progress to compromise matters by Harrington marrying the girl. Miss Lacaze visited the jail with a view, it was supposed, to make the final arrangements. Before being allowed to see the prisoner she was searched by the sheriff, but no weapon found. On entering Harrington's cell she drew a revolver from her bosom, exclaiming: "I have come to kill you!" With this she opened fire. Her first shot missed, but the second went true, the ball penetrating the lung. His death is only a question of hours. Miss Lacaze was arrested and placed in jail.

WOMEN ACCUSED OF PENSION FRAUD.

Newark, N. J., April 28.—Three women are in jail or under heavy bond in this city on the charge of being implicated in a pension swindle. The alleged principal, Mrs. Mary Burroughs, of Oxford Furnace, is locked up in the county jail in default of $2,500 bail. Mrs. Lucy Perry, of this city, is under $1,000 bail, and another woman whose name is withheld is under $1,500 bail. Mrs. Burroughs is the wife of a Brooklyn carpenter who lives in Oxford Furnace. It was there that she was arrested. While the wife of Burroughs, it is said, she has been drawing a pension of $8 a month as the widow of John C. Kierstead. This has been going on for four years, so that the amount illegally received, it is alleged, is between $300 and $400. John C. Kierstead died six years ago, and four years ago the widow was married to Burroughs. The other two women acted as her witnesses while she was a widow, and are said to have continued to act thus after her second marriage.

UNVEILING OF THE GRANT MONUMENT.

Philadelphia, April 28.—In the presence of President and Mrs. McKinley, members of the Cabinet, three generations of General Ulysses S. Grant's family and a great crowd of people, Miss Rosemary Sartoris, granddaughter of Gen. Grant, unveiled an heroic equestrian statue of her illustrious grandfather in Fairmount Park. Although the day was not a holiday, there was a great outpouring of patriotic citizens. Flags were everywhere. This city each year commemorates the birthday of Gen. Grant, but never did it celebrate it as it did on this occasion. The President met Capt. Coghlan, of the Raleigh, for the first time since the gallant sailor's return from Manila, and by his hearty greetings to the captain seemed to show that he harbored no ill-feeling on account of Coghlan's remarks in the Union League Club, New York.

A TERRIBLE TORNADO IN MISSOURI.

St. Louis, April 28.—A special from Kirksville, Mo., says: "A gathering storm that had been threatening broke upon Kirksville in all the fury of a tornado. A path a quarter of a mile wide and as clean as the prairie was swept through the eastern part of the city and 400 buildings, homes and stores were leveled to the ground in scattered ruins. Twenty-five dead bodies have been taken from the ruins. It is confidently expected that the list of the dead will reach between fifty and sixty, if it does not exceed that. Almost a thousand persons were more or less injured. Daylight will be necessary before an adequate estimate of loss of life and property can be had. Each blanched face reports a new calamity.

RIOTOUS ADJOURNMENT OF NEW YORK ASSEMBLY.

Albany, April 28.—What was practically the last day's work of the Legislature ended with one of the most sensational adjournments ever witnessed in the Senate. What was almost mob violence ruled for a time in the Assembly. The members rushed about frantically, went so far as to threaten each other, nearly carried Acting Speaker Kelsey off the dais in their rudeness and even broke into the Speaker's private room where Speaker Nixon was lying sick. The cause of the turmoil was through definite action being delayed on Senator Ford's bill taxing franchises.

ROBERT GOELET DIES AT NAPLES.

New York City, April 28.—Word has been received from Naples by the friends of Robert Goelet in this city telling of his death on the yacht Nahma while in that port. It is less than two years ago that Ogden Goelet, the brother of the millionaire, died on his yacht, the Mayflower, while it was at Southampton. The brothers, Ogden and Robert Goelet, were the grandsons of Peter Goelet, who laid the foundation for the immense fortune now estimated at $50,000,000.

FOUR VERY BOLD WOMEN BANDITS.

New York, April 28.—Four colored women "held up" a well-dressed man in front of the Arena restaurant in Thirty-first street and robbed him of all he had in his pockets. Three of the women escaped in a cab, but the other was caught. She fought the policeman all the way to the police station, and even attacked him inside the place. The others defied the policeman and attacked him before they escaped.

COUNTERFEITERS IN COURT

Former United States District Attorney Ingham Charged with Conspiracy.

ATTEMPTS TO BRIBE.

Tobacco Manufacturer Identifies Ingham and Says He Paid Him Money as a Retainer.

Witness Says He Wanted to Find Some Way of Forestalling the Government Agents for Two Years Even to Paying Them a Stipulated Sum if Necessary—Making Counterfeit Revenue Stamps.

Philadelphia, April 28.—Former United States District-Attorney Ellery P. Ingham and Harvey K. Hewitt, who was Inghams' assistant, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edmunds on the charge of attempting to bribe Secret Service Operative William J. McManus, in connection with the Jacobs-Kendig-Taylor-Bredel revenue stamp counterfeiting conspiracy.

The hearing took place in the United States Circuit Court room.

William L. Kendig, the Lancaster tobacco manufacturer, was the first witness. He identified Mr. Ingham and said he first met him on Jan. 31. At that time witness said that he (witness) was making counterfeit revenue stamps of the denomination of fifty cigars.

William M. Jacobs, of Lancaster, he said, was associated with him in this business. He said also that Arthur Taylor had engraved the plates, with the assistance of Baldwin S. Bredell.

Kendig said on the occasion of his first visit to Mr. Ingham's office he had questioned Mr. Ingham regarding the latter's acquaintance with Secret Service operatives Burns and McManus asking the lawyer whether or not he thought they were corrupt or corruptible. Ingham, witness said, demanded a retainer and received $50.

Kendig then detailed to Ingham, he said, the whole story of the bogus revenue stamps, and also informed him that he and Jacobs were in possession of the "Monroe head" $100 counterfeit silver certificate.

Witness said he told Ingham that he believed that the Secret Service agents were after him and Jacobs, and he wanted to find some way of forestalling them, even to paying the agents a certain sum for two years, if necessary.

It is estimated that William M. Jacobs, who conducted a cigar manufactory at Lancaster, Pa., and who was the head and front of the gigantic conspiracy, scattered fully 8,000,000 cigars over the country in boxes bearing bogus internal revenue stamps made by his tools.

In this city alone Internal Revenue Collector Treat, of the Second District, says about 750,000 cigars have been seized in the three internal revenue collection districts.

In the Second District, which embraces the territory below Fourteenth street, up to yesterday there had been seized 300,000 cigars in boxes stamped with Jacob's counterfeits.

These cigars were found in the hands of jobbers principally by the Secret Service agents. Many of the holders as soon as they learned that Jacobs from whom they bought the goods, had been using bogus stamps, sent their names to the Collectors in their districts and cheerfully surrendered the contraband goods.

The complaining witness against the two ex-United States officials is John E. Wilkie, Chief of the Secret Service Bureau. Mr. Wilkie personally prosecuted the search for the conspirators, and on last Tuesday caused the last of them to be arrested.

This was no less a person than Ellery P. Ingham, United States District-Attorney in Philadelphia during President Harrison's Administration.

Harvey K. Newitt, Mr. Ingram's assistant in the United States District-Attorney's office, and his present law partner, had been taken into custody previous to Mr. Ingham's arrest.

Six other men are prisoners in Moyamensing Prison, in Philadelphia, and it is asserted that the eight men in custody were all that composed the band which so cleverly and so largely defrauded the Government.

Recalls Primary Bill.

Albany April 28.—The Primary bill has been recalled from the Governor at his suggestion for amendment, and an emergency message will be necessary to repass it.

The Governor objects to the section that does not allow of the publication of enrolment lists of each party, but only permits transcripts to be made. He says:

"If a man is ashamed to have his name published as a member of his party, the party does not want him. Keeping the lists secret allows frauds to be perpetrated by dishonest voters."

He will not sign the bill unless it is amended.

$100,000 For Princeton.

New York, April 28.—An anonymous friend of Princeton University has just presented, through President Patton, a gift of $100,000 for the founding of a professorship of general politics, diplomacy and kindred subjects. It is said that the college needs the new professorship, and that nominations for the chair will be considered by the board of trustees at its meeting in June.

Tornado Kills Three.

Omaha, April 28.—A tornado is reported twenty miles east of Onawa, Ia. Three people reported killed and great damage to propery. A special from St. Edward, Boone County, says a terrific windstorm swept over that place doing a great deal of damage to property and injuring several persons.

Hail covered the ground to the depth of two inches. Considerable live stock was killed. Everybody in St. Edward went into caves or cellars. Hail broke most of the windows in town.

Shamrock's Designer Ill.

London, April 28.—Designer Fife, who is preparing the plans for Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock, the American Cup challenger, is seriously ill of influenza. His illness may delay the building of the yacht.

Filipinos Driven Across the Rio Grande—Chased Beyond Calumpit.

VERY BRILLIANT CHARGE

MacArthur's Men, the Kansas and Montana Volunteers Now Occupy the Town of Apalit.

Americans Lose Only One Killed and Six Wounded While Native Loss Is Extremely Heavy—Scores of Dead and Wounded Abandoned Along the Roadway By the Flying Filipinos.

Manila, April 28.—The main body of the Filipino army, under command of Aguinaldo's chief general, Antonio Luna, was driven with heavy loss across the Rio Grande and was chased four miles beyond Calumpit on the road to Bacolor. Apalit, one of the largest towns in Pampanga province, into which the fighting has now been carried, fell into the hands of our pursuing troops.

The town is now occupied by the Kansas and Ohio Volunteers, who led the forward movement. The Filipinos have taken up their position just beyond, about 11 miles from the capital of the province.

In the fighting we lost one man killed and six wounded. Three of the latter were officers who fell in the charge across the river. Scores of dead and wounded were abandoned along the roadway by the fleeing Filipinos. The native army is now almost completely disorganized.

AGUINALDO WANTS PEACE.

An Escaped Spanish Captive Says the Native Army is Practically Disbanded.

Manila, April 28.—The revolt of the Filipinos against the authority of the United States appears to be on the eve of collapse.

Aguinaldo, according to a representative of the Filipino commission here, is now conferring with the Cabinet concerning peace overtures. The next advance of the American troops will bring about absolute surrender of the native forces.

A feeling of hopelessness is spreading throughout the army, and many of Aguinaldo's and Luna's officers are returning to work in Manila.

On the other hand Mabini and Luna are seeking in every way to prolong hostilities. They insist that the resistance shall continue and attempt to cheer their men with highly-colored tales of American disaster.

The common people however, are strongly in favor of peace. They protest against Luna's order that all towns abandoned to the Americans shall be burned. Hundreds have been rendered homeless through the execution of this order, and the feeling against Luna is intense.

Jose Martinez, an escaped Spanish captain, who had been compelled, during his captivity, to act as servant to an insurgent colonel, says that the army is practicaly disbanded, and that the Filipino Republic is a thing of the past.

The fighting is being continued, however, by isolated bands in the face of increasing desertions from their ranks.

The Indian fighting tactics of Gen. Lawton have demoralized and crushed the hopes of the insurgents.

So great has become the fear among them that they soak their undischarged cartridges in water as an excuse to go to the rear for fresh ammunition. Once at the rear they lose no time in deserting. The American soldiers have, as corroboration of this, found large piles of unexploded cartridges.

Preparation has been made to land an army at Dagapan in order to catch the scattered remains of Aguinaldo's forces between two armies, one at the north, the other at the south. This will be the last big military operation before the rainy season sets in.

The taking by General Lawton of the town of Norzagaray, which is in the hills, fifteen miles east of Calumpit, although accomplished with little difficulty so far as the actual investment was concerned, was prefaced by a remarkable march of twenty-eight miles. The line of the brigade's advance lay over the roughest, hilly country, which presented nearly insurmountable obstacles.

The road by which General Lawton advanced was a narrow trail, and Chinamen had to be employed to drag some of the lumbering vehicles over the hills.

Upon General Lawton's advance on Norzagaray the natives fired a few shots and retreated to the hills.

The position of General Lawton's brigade at Norzagaray is at the mouth of a trap. He has his men in advantageous position between Calumpit and the foothills to cut off the escape of the natives when they are driven northeast by the main body of the American army. Thus they will be caught between two forces and annihilated if surrender is not forthcoming.

The natives have flocked to Calumpit, now that it is occupied by American troops. The city was practically deserted when the Americans entered. Staff headquarters have been established in the plaza in front of the church.

The natives have been pursued into the brush.

Want to Assassinate Otis.

Washington, April 28.—Private advices received from army officers from Manila tell of the extraordinary precautions that have been taken to protect General Otis from assassination by murderous Filipinos.

It is said that for several weeks it has been realized that Manila was filled with natives friendly to the Filipino cause and that treachery from them against the lives of high ranking American officers might be expected unless unusual means were taken to guard against such attack.

According to present advices a special guard of fifty selected men is maintained day and night with reliefs around the official quarters of General Otis.

Cheap washing soaps and powders, too,
With alkali are strong;
The dire destruction which they do
Is sure to show ere long.
But Ivory Soap will never hurt
The fabric, howe'er tender;
It makes short work of stain and dirt,
But no work for the mender.

ALL QUIET AT APIA.

Admiral Kautz Reports He is Not Punishing Natives—Merely Protecting U. S. Property.

Washington, April 28—This despatch from Rear Admiral Kautz was made public by the Navy Department:

Auckland, April 27,
Apia, April 13.

"Secretary of Navy Washington:

"The receipt of telegram of March 25 and April 2 is acknowledged. Coal canot be obtained at Apia must be ordered from Auckland. Everything is quiet at Apia. I am not aggressive on Mataafa rebels, but I am protecting the United States Consulate, the United States property and the Samoan Government as established by the decision of Chief Justice of Supreme Court.

(Signed). "KAUTZ."

The Department has made arrangements for coal and Admiral Kautz will be supplied with it.

Auckland, N. Z., April 28.—The news from Samoa, under date of April 18, shows that in the battle between the rebels and the native "friendlies" the rebels lost 100 killed and wounded. The particulars show still further the active hand of Germans in the insurrection.

Von Buelow, a former lieutenant in the German army, who organized the Mataafan forces, has been arrested by order of Capt. Stuart, of the British cruiser Tauranga.

Von Buelow was proceeding to Savali, armed, with fourteen boats and over 400 rebels. The German warship Falke at the same time left Apia on a secret mission, with the German Consul aboard.

Captain Stuart, acting in the temporary absence of Admiral Kautz, suggested the detention of Von Buelow, and the next day the Falke returned with him on board.

Deserters from Mataafa say that they received ammunition hidden in bags of rice supplied to them by the Germans last winter. Thousands of cartridges, they say, have been smuggled along the coast in this manner.

Admiral Kautz, of the American cruiser Philadelphia, fired a blank shot across the bow of a German schooner on April 8. The schooner was leaving Apia without reporting. She promptly hove to, and went through the necessary formalities.

The battle between the "friendlies" and the rebels occurred on the same German plantation of Vailele, on which the allied British and American forces were ambushed on April 1. The rebels had the German flag flying from their forts.

The rebels dragged their dead and wounded away with them, leaving only four dead on the field.

Lieutenant Gaunt of the British Porpoise, in command of a force of marines, aided the friendlies and succeeded in driving the rebels back.

Lieutenant Gaunt was in a fight again two days later when about 2,000 Mataafans attacked his party while he was trying to effect a landing fourteen miles east of Apia. Gaunt had 100 men with him. They were subjected to a heavy fire, and were forced to turn about and swim for their boats.

TO CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS

Regulars May Have to Be Sent to Reenforce Otis and Their Places Filled

Washington, April 28.—In anticipation of the necessity that may arise for sending heavy reinforcements of regulars to the Philippines, the Administration is making inquiries and preparing data that will enable it to proceed to the organization of the provisional volunteer army of 35,000 men without any delay. Until the present campaign in the island of Luzon has been ended the advisibility of calling for these volunteers will not be considered with the intention of deciding definitely what shall be done. It may be necessary to send fresh troops to Otis to continue his present aggressive campaign, and the plan is, should it be determined that the aggressive tactics now being pursued must continue, to send a large force of regulars from the United States to Manila and fill their places in this country with volunteers.

The Secretary of the Treasury has been asked to estimate the cost of transporting a large additional force of soldiers to Manila, and he has informed the War Department that it will take about $1,000 to put each man in the Philippine capital. Other information as to the number of regulars available and the means for transporting them quickly has ben asked for by the President, and everything indicates that the Administration will be fully prepared to meet any emergency that may arise from the failure of Lawton and MacArthur to crush Aguinaldo in short order.

Campbell for Governor.

Cleveland, O. April 28.—Ex-Governor James G. Campbell has pitched his political tent in Ohio for the summer, and there is no doubt here that he is again to enter the field of active politics and be a candidate for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination at the coming State convention. This has been emphasized within the past few days by the visit of Mr. Campbell to Columbus and his conference with a number of leading members of his party, including Claude Meeker, his former private secretary.

Osborne's Nomination Confirmed.

Albany, April 28.—By a vote of 40 ayes to 7 noes the Senate confirmed the Governor's nomination of William Church Osborn to succeed Goodwin Brown as State Commissioner in Lunacy.

"TOMBSTONE BROWN'S ORGAN."

Lacking an Imposing-Stone, a Neighboring Graveyard Supplied the Want.

One of the most fin de siecle products of far western "wild and woolyism" is "Tombstone Brown." Brown had been alternately hobo or tramp printer, according as climate and opportunity dictated, but he finally drifted to California and anchored in Mendocino and Lake counties, where he began to take notice in matters social and political. Brown managed to scrape together a little money, and one day he came over the "grade" from San Francisco with a brand new second-hand organ, on which were loaded a Franklin press, a few fonts of type, ink, rollers and bundles of paper. Brown gave it out cold that he was going to start a paper, but said that the whole of society was so blank rotten that he wouldn't mingle with it. He drove on through town and off down into the bottom of a picturesque canyon, where he staked out his horses and began writing the first issue of his paper. He was the whole staff in himself.

When it came to setting the matter up in type, Brown discovered that he hadn't bought any imposing-stone, and with something of old Ben Franklin's "savoir faire," the editor made a quiet sneak into a graveyard, and selecting a not overprosperous gravestone, he carried it off to the perambulating printing office. The stone episode got out on him, and thence his name of "Tombstone Brown," but Brown was not in the least worried, and, turning the title to account, named his journal "Tombstone Brown's Organ," and he soon made the county howl. "Brown's Organ" had a front seat in every issue that showed above the grass, and when one canyon got too warm he would hitch up and print the next issue a "little farther on." The title of the paper, drawn and engraved by Brown himself, showed a gigantic tombstone crushing to earth the emblems of opposition. The paper soon had a great vogue, but "Tombstone" could not stand success, and when last seen was moving north with a row of citizens marching up the grade behind him.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THIRD NEGRO KILLED.

Georgia Mob Riddles Him With Bullets Because He Talked Too Much.

Leesburg, Ga., April 28.—For "talking too much" about the recent burning at the stake of Sam Hose, the scene of which tragedy is at least 150 miles north of here, Mitchell Daniel was lynched by his white neighbors.

The body was found on the roadside nine miles south of Leesburg, riddled with bullets.

Daniel is a well-known negro leader of his section. The body was found near his home, and showed evidence of a terrific struggle.

From the tracks in the road and the various bullet holes in his body the mob must have consisted of twenty or thirty men.

The Coroner's jury has not yet returned a verdict, but the verdict will unquestionably be that the negro's death was from the hands of "parties unknown," as there is no clew to the members of the mob.

In February a negro was lynched in this county for assault. It is alleged that Daniel has been making threats against the whites and inciting the negroes over whom he had influence.

Mitchell also talked of the Hose lynching, it is said, in a manner that was not relished by many of the whites.

Atlanta, Ga., April 28.—It has been learned that the third lynching in this State within a week, news of which was received here, was not at Palmetto, where Sam Hose was burned at the stake and Rev. "Lige" Strickland hanged, but at Leesburg, in Lee County, Southern Georgia.

The citizens of Palmetto are still hunting for two more victims and threaten to burn them at the stake caught.

One of the intended victims is a negro named Sewell and both he and the other fugitive are accused of some remote connection with the Crawford murder. The real reason for the intended lynching it is said, is the fact that the men have been urging the negroes to arm and get revenge.

J. B. HOLLAND'S VISIT

He Has Not Been Negotiating for the Sale of Submarine Boats

London, April 28.—J. P Holland, inventor of the Holland submarine boat, sailed for New York on board the steamship Etruria. His negotiations with the Admiralty for the sale of his invention to the British Government failed completely, the Government objecting to the principle of submarine boats, not against Mr. Holland's specific system. Mr. Holland's partner, Capt. Jacques, is now in Russia, and it is believed that he is offering the submarine boat to the Russian Government, the Russian naval authorities now being most willing to consider such inventions.

At the office of the Electric Boat Company, which now owns the patents of the Holland submarine boat, it was said that Mr. J. P. Holland had gone to Europe on a pleasure trip, that he could not have failed, since he was not authorized to negotiate with the British Government and did not offer to sell either his invention or any of the boat to any Government. It was further said that Capt. Jacques was not representing the company abroad, but that all negotiations for the sale of the Holland boats were being conducted by the boat company itself.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 28.—"I'll never have another birthday," cried Mrs. Herlan Fink, of Union Township, at a gathering of friends to celebrate her birthday. Attracted by her peculiar manner and voice, the guests turned to her, and she calmly cut her throat with a large butcher knife. She was twenty-eight years old, and seemed very happy with her husband and three small children.

A Retrospective Glance.

Though we realize that the time for its doing good has passed, a little retrospective glance into the matter of extending the trolley to Scotch Plains may be instructive in the light of what has transpired. It will be remembered that when the Plainfield Street Railroad Company asked for a franchise to extend its road to the eastern limits of the city, and offered very meagre benefits for the privilege. The Daily Press and a large number of prominent citizens, who had their foresight about them, urged delay for further negotiations for better terms. The cry of those who were anxious for the trolley extension, without respect to the protection of the public rights in the future, was: "Don't delay. Give it to us now. We want the trolley immediately, because every day that we procrastinate means a loss in the prospective business that the city will secure through the transit facilities to be afforded by the extension. Etc., etc."

Of course, the whole tenor of this sort of agitation was that if the Council did not immediately grant the franchise for whatever the Street Railway Company wanted to give, the business interests of the town would be made to suffer by the lack of trade which the trolley would bring; and if the franchise was granted forthwith the advent of the trolley to Scotch Plains would be brought about so quick, and the increased business thereby would be so enormous, that Plainfield would be on the high-tide of prosperity. In a word, it was taken for granted that the acceptance of the trolley company's terms would mean that the latter would resort to extraordinary efforts to put the road in operation immediately.

Well, what has been the result? The Street Railway Company have had their franchise since the early part of the year, and the weather has been propitious for the construction of the extension for over two months, and yet not one thing has been done that would indicate that they intend to build a road to Scotch Plains. On the other hand the corporation is spending its best efforts in building a section of track in Garwood that begins and ends nowhere in particular and is of worthless value to the people as it stands.

This condition of affairs simply shows the practical deception which the Plainfield Street Railway Company, the same as nearly all other corporations of a similar kind, practice upon the people when they are asking for favors. They give approval either by direct word or significant action that every argument used to outwit the rights of the people in demanding proper terms, is actually so. But once they secure their franchise, whether at the terms they originally asked for or by those dictated in the view of public interests, they forget the people and consult only their private and selfish interests.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The first lot of American bar iron to go to Europe was from the ore of the Andover mine, in Sussex county. It was landed in Liverpool in 1745, and found to be of a superior quality. The iron for the great suspension bridge at Niagara was also made from this ore.

Letter-carrier Charles Glaentzer, who delivers mail in the business part of this city, has had some queer experiences with the large box for papers and packages at the North avenue station. Some time ago there used to be a box there, similar in size and shape to the U. S. mail box, in which magazines and papers intended for Muhlenburg Hospital were dropped. This box has been taken away, but the public do not all know it, and a few people leave their old magazines and papers in the mail box at regular intervals, thinking that it is the hospital box. A well-known young man, who was cleaning out a closet full of magazines a few days ago, took an armful of these down town each day, and dropped them in the box, expecting them to find their way to the hospital. When Carrier Glaentzer opened the box on his daily rounds, he found these magazines, and turned them over to the baggagemaster at the station. The young man in question kept leaving his package every day, and Charlie would lay them aside until all the magazines were left. Then the donor learned his mistake, but it was too late. The books had been disposed of.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The best protection the farmer's have ever been given against trespassers was the law of 1898. The first instance where it has been brought into effect in this county or, at least, where the case has gotten as far as the Grand Jury, is that of the three Plainfield young men who were indicted by the last Grand Jury. It is possible that under the present ineffectual method of publishing the laws there may be few people who know that they can be indicted for trespassing on a farmer's lands when the notices have been posted for the proper time. The farmer has ample protection under this law where before he was at the mercy of every gunner who had a mind to walk over his grain fields or pull down his fences in hunting for game. The farmer should take advantage of the law so as to show the gunners that they must act decently, stay off the premises or run the chance of indictment.—Unionst-Gazette.

Chas. H. Hoyt has always furnished the stage with beauty and brightness; but he never furnished so much at once before as he provides in a "Milk White Flag," which will be seen at Music Hall next Wednesday night. The satire contained in the play has been perpetuated with such excellent discretion and exquisite good humor that its very victims must laugh most at its thrusts. "A Milk White Flag" has for its central theme that universal weakness, love of uniform. It pictures a military company of fifty officers and one private with a Colonel "Whom Napoleon Resembled." The armory furnishes all the bracing required, while an exceptionally tempting lot of pretty girls give opportunity for the other exercise. The most exacting connoisseur could not in this galaxy of feminine loveliness find one that is homely. The ladies, like all of Mr. Hoyt's ladies, have exceptionally shapely figures and a fondness for silk hosiery. The singing, the dancing, the music airs of this spectacular farce-comedy are simply bewitching. Such stage settings are seldom seen, even the furniture, especially carved, being carried. The story itself, interspersed as it is with the cleverest of specialties, has a continious interest. Fun bubbles effervescent in every line. Summarized and condensed "A Milk White Flag" can properly be called Hoyt's best handiwork.

Charles E. Blarney's latest and most successful comedy, "A Female Drummer" will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House in New York, Monday, May 1. The production is on a magnificent scale, interpreted by artists well known throughout the country, and is designed to eclipse all the many efforts of the author as a money maker. The mirth is long and hearty through the efforts of fun makers, who are headed by Miss Johnstone Bennett as Haza Bargain, "A Female Drummer," George Richards, Eugene Canfield, Willis P. Sweatman, Tony Williams, Nellie O'Neill and a number of others of equal prominence and ability. Twenty pretty girls are also included in the cast. Extra fine singing and clever specialties are interpersed throughout the play.

"The Purple Lady" is in her fourth week at the Bijou in New York. More properly speaking, she is in her second week, for Laura Burt Monday night last gave as an entirely new version of the comedy unconsciously, and now there is a new "The Purple Lady" in her hands the farcial situations are handled in such a way as to make the most of its comedy nature. Her work is admirable in every way, evincing sterling qualities as an actress.

Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. FASHION HINTS.

The Preferred Mode in Stationery and Minor Matters.

Mourning toilets should always be simple. Flat trimmings are preferable, and for jewelry dull jet or black wood is alone allowed. A line of white may be worn at the throat and wrists and inside the edge of the bonnet.

Some years ago black hats were almost universally worn, accompanying even the lightest gowns, but this season there is a change, and it is not possible to have millinery too gay in color. Pale gray hats with gray trimming and white hats with white trimming will go well with any toilet, but decided colors are apt to be inconvenient for a woman who cannot afford a variety of different hats.

Most stationery now has a cipher. The cipher is small, at the top or left hand upper corner of the street. Light, soft greens, blues, lavenders and grays being favorite tints for paper, the cipher is usually white, and there is often a white border. Light rose pink stationery with the same white trimmings is also seen, but is less elegant. There is white sealing wax for use with these papers, and the cipher is repeated upon the seal.

The gown illustrated has a double skirt of pearl gray cloth, over which is a tunic of pearl gray cloth pointed in front and at the back and bordered with applications of gray velvet. The bodice, which fits tightly behind, is slightly gathered at the waist in front and is cut away to show a guimpe of plaited white satin decorated with silver buttons. The top of the bodice is edged with gray velvet applications, and the sleeves are covered with the same ornamentation. The gray velvet belt is fastened by a silver buckle. The hat of pearl gray straw is trimmed with a drapery of gray tulle and white feathers.

VARIOUS NOTES.

Silks For Bodices and Spring Hosiery and Gloves.

The new taffetas have white or black stripes or dots on a colored ground, and these stripes and dots are of velvet, chenille or satin and are an attractive novelty.

It has been announced many times that black stockings are condemned by fashion, but nevertheless they hold their own and are as well worn if not as universally worn as ever. Colored hosiery is much used, but a large class of elegant women prefer black to any other for general wear.

White and pearl gray gloves continue to be preferred, although dead white is perhaps not quite as fashionable as those indescribable shades which have the effect of white, but are yet shadowed with a tinge of color. A suspicion of suede or fawn or drab is rather more pleasing than absolute chalky colorlessness. The stitching may be dark or light, according to taste. In fancy shades of kid yellow appears to predominate. Glace gloves continue to be preferred to suede, perhaps because, light tints being fashionable, glace kid is more convenient. White or pearl suede gloves could not be worn in the street more than once without becoming soiled to the degree of unsightliness.

The illustration given today shows a ball costume of mauve silk. The trained skirt has five narrow plaitings around the foot. The long tunic, which is rounded in front and at the back, is bordered by a deep flounce of white lace headed by a garland of wallflowers in front and by a little ruche of silk behind. The lace flounce is carried up the left side of the tunic in coquilles. The tight bodice is draped at one side and has a bretelle of lace at the other, which is a continuation of the lace bertha which surrounds the round decolletage. The plastron is covered with little plaitings of mauve silk. The bertha is headed by a fold of mauve velvet, which forms a knot on the right shoulder, and a garland of wallflowers is carried from the left shoulder to the waist in front. The mauve velvet belt is fastened by a jeweled buckle.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Posen.

Posen. Die Stadtverordneten bewilligten den Ausbau der hiesigen Realschule zur Oberrealschule, der ersten Anstalt dieser Art in der Provinz. Den Mittelklassen sollen Handelskoeten angegliedert werden.—Die hiesige Strafkammer verurtheilte den verantwortlichen Redakteur des polnischen Wochenblattes „Praca," Stanislaus Chilomer, wegen Aufreizung zu Gewaltthätigkeiten durch Veröffentlichung zweier Gedichte „An das Vaterland" und „Großpolen zum neuen Jahre" zu einer Geldstrafe von 800 Mark.

Karpisco. Nach einem Erlaß des Gemeindevorstandes dürfen auf der Straße von jetzt ab nicht mehr als drei Personen auf einem Fleck zusammenstehen. Der Unmuth der Dorfbewohner über diese Verfügung ist natürlich groß.

Provinz Ostpreußen.

Königsberg. In einem Restaurant vergiftete sich der Geschäftsreisende Max Pohl aus Fürstenwalde mit Cyankali.

Osterode. Die Mutter des hiesigen Arztes Dr. Romey ging an den Drewenzsee, um das Spülen der Wäsche zu beaufsichtigen. Da ihr ein Wäschestück nicht rein genug erschien, trat sie selbst an den Steg, um es zu spülen. Sie muß dabei von Schwindel erfaßt worden sein, denn plötzlich stürzte sie in das ziemlich tiefe Wasser und ertrank.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Danzig. Nachdem Kadinen in kaiserlichen Besitz übergegangen ist, soll dortselbst nun das alte Schloß einem Neubau Platz machen. Die Vorarbeiten sind in die Wege geleitet, und dürften die Bauarbeiten demnächst in Angriff genommen werden. Auch die zum Gute gehörige Ziegelei wird der Neuzeit entsprechend eingerichtet, so wird durch die Aktiengesellschaft für Feld- und Kleinbahnenbedarf vormals Orenstein u. Köppel jetzt eine komplette Ziegeleibahn, sowie eine Feldbahn, welche die Ziegelei mit dem Haff verbindet, hergestellt. Man nimmt an, daß der Kaiser noch in diesem Herbste zu längerem Aufenthalte und zwar zur Besichtigung der neugeschaffenen Anlagen nach Kadinen kommt.

Marienwerder. In dem kleinen Tiegenort an der Tiege wurden der Besitzer Duesterbeck und der Arbeiter Pawlowskii vom Blitz erschlagen und auf der Stelle getödtet.

Rheinprovinz.

Aachen. Für die Anlage einer Ruhrthalsperre in der Eifel sind vom Kreistage zu Montjoie entweder 400,000 Mark als Stammkapital und Nachschüsse bis zu 50 Prozent, oder eine Stammeinlage von 320,000 Mark und Zuschüsse bis zu 50 Prozent bewilligt worden. Der Kreistag zu Jülich hat 450,000 Mark Stammkapital und Nachschuß von 50 Prozent, oder 360,000 Mark Stammeinlage mit 80 Prozent Nachschuß hierzu bewilligt. Da auch die anderen Kreise dem Projekt zustimmen, ist die Anlage der Ruhrthalsperre gesichert.

Barmen. Im hiesigen Stadttheater verursachte ein Schnürbodenbrand, wobei der eiserne Vorhang fiel, eine Panik, die sich jedoch bald legte. Einige Frauen fielen in Ohnmacht.

Bonn. Ein Reisender, der einer Firma in Halle 6000 Mark unterschlagen hatte, wurde auf dem hiesigen Postamte, als er postlagernde Briefe abholen wollte, festgenommen.

Provinz Sachsen.

Mühlhausen. Stadtbaurath Walter, welcher vor etwa drei Jahren von Düsseldorf hierher kam, ist unter 68 Bewerbern zum technischen Beigeordneten der Stadt Offenbach a. Main einstimmig gewählt worden.

Naumburg. Den Feuertod erlitt der im dritten Jahre seiner Lehrzeit stehende Tischlerlehrling Moschner in der Möbelfabrik der Gebrüder Schneider. In dem Etablissement war Feuer ausgebrochen, und um dieses möglichst auf seinen Herd zu beschränken, waren schleunigst alle Zugangsthüren geschlossen worden, so daß sich der im Trubel vergessene Moschner, der sich in der Tapezierstube befand, nicht zu retten vermochte.

Provinz Schlesien.

Breslau. Der deutsche Lehrertag, der im vorigen Jahre in Breslau tagte, schloß mit 16,750 Mark Einnahme und 20,300 Mark Ausgabe ab. Das Defizit deckt die Stadt Breslau.

Brieg. Die hiesige Strafkammer verurtheilte den Kassirer Clemens Grottkauer von der Volksbank wegen Unterschlagung von 40,000 Mark zu zwei Jahren Gefängniß und 1000 Mark Geldstrafe.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 30—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—How shall we divide our time?—Eccl. iii, 1-15.

The proper use of our time is one of the most important duties of life. It is a gift of God which once gone never returns. Our success in life depends upon our ability to properly divide and properly use the time which God allots to us. In these days, when the demands upon the time of those who are active and industrious are so multitudinous, the question of the proper dividing of time becomes all the more important. Alfred the Great of England divided his day into three periods of eight hours each—one period for work, a second for recreation and the third for sleep. Thus he accomplished much in life.

The wise man in the topical reference teaches us that God has set a time for all things. The changes that are going on in life are constant, and yet nothing is done haphazardly or without system. There is a time for every work of God. and each comes in its season. If God finds it necessary in order to carry out His purposes in life to have a time and a season for everything, how much more certain it is that if we are to accomplish the purpose for which God made us we must have a time for the duties of life and perform them at their time.

Just how each one is to divide his time is a question that he only can decide. But there are certain principles which should have due influence upon all in the use of time. 1. We should use our time in conformity to the will of God. Time is a precious gift of God that should be consecrated to Him, just as we consecrate our money or our talents to Him. 2. In the division and use of our time ample provision should be made for all religious duties and devotions. The spiritual is often neglected for the material and sacrificed for that which is of less importance. Many who allot sufficient time each day for the feeding of the body make no provision for the soul, yet it is just as necessary that the soul should be fed as the body. 3. We should divide and use our time in the light of eternity in view of the fact that time will some time end and we shall be called upon to render an account for the use we have made of it. We should strive to use each moment, hour and day of our lives as we shall wish we had used them when the end of our time here comes. No better motto or rule for the proper division and use of time could be suggested than that.

Bible Readings.—Ps. xxxix, 1-5; xc, 10-12; Eccl. xii, 1; Isa. lv, 1-6; Math. vi, 24-34; Luke xix, 41-44; John ix, 4; xii, 35; Rom. xiii, 11-14; II Cor. vi, 1, 2; Gal. vi, 9; Eph. v, 15-21; Col. iv, 5, 6; Rev. x, 5, 6.

One as Good as a Thousand.

One positive promise of the Lord on any particular subject is as good as a thousand, and the Lord is just as sure to fulfill that promise as though it was repeated over and over again. We do not need, even from each other, a number of promises on the same subject. This is especially true in matters of religious experience. One positive promise of heart purity, if there were but one in the whole Bible, is as good as a thousand, and yet the Lord, in order to impress this subject upon our minds, has given us hundreds of promises bearing on the subject. We do well to collect these promises and keep them in our minds. And yet we will bear in mind that if there were but one promise the Lord would hold Himself bound to fulfill that one just as fully as though the promises were more numerous. Let us get hold of one good promise in every matter of religious experience, and let us hold on to it just as tenaciously as though we had a hundred.—Christian Standard.

Sunshine.

"Sun of my soul, thou Saviour dear," is a line that ought to be said or sung every hour of the Christian's life. Some good people are the prey of naturally despondent temperaments. Such need a double supply of grace and must pray for it. So must they whose digestion is weak and whose nerves are oversensitive. The worries of business or household cares, the loss of sleep or the derangement of the bodily machinery, puts such Christian folks under a cloud pretty often. Today they sing like larks—tomorrow the barometer goes down, and they are in the dumps again. Such people should look after their bodily health as a spiritual duty. Moreover, they should keep their Christian faith where it would not be exposed to every east wind or drenched to death by every shower that falls. Keep a good supply of tonic Bible texts within reach, and take them freely the next time that an ague fit comes on.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

Religion With Trimmings.

Many church members turn up in Sunday clothing at popular conventions and for all dress parade occasions, but when there is a real battle with evil to be fought they are missing. As one has well said, "The tendency in our day is to take our religion with too many trimmings."—D. W. Whittle.

The True Life.

That is the true life—the life of active employment, whatever be the work God has given you to do, and the station He has appointed you to fill. I repeat, the busy, active life is always the happy one. —Dr. Macduff.

Impressions.

Only a ray of sunshine,
Only a passing thought,
But it left an imprint on the heart
Like iron, deeply wrought.

Only a swift winged arrow
Shot from the bow of love,
But it healed a weight of sorrow
That ages failed to move.

'Twas but a fleeting shadow,
But it lent a tender grace
And covered the look of anguish
Reflected on the face.
—Philadelphia Ledger.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 30. "How Shall We Divide Our Time?"—Text, Eccl. iii, 15.

"That which hath been is now, and that which is to be hath already been, and God requireth that which is past."

No one truth is more pressed home upon me by the Bible than that of personal accountability for the use of personal power and opportunity. The world of things moves in regular lines of law, and a man can know assuredly what is to be in the future from what has been in the past. Circumstances may change, but the great fundamental principles of human nature and the rules which apply to conduct never shift ground. We are what we make ourselves. God has given the raw material of our lives, and we manufacture character. For this He holds us responsible, and offers rewards for right results and pronounces penalties for wrongdoing and evil. The only sober thing for every man is clearly to recognize his duty to God and then to set himself to work to use his time and talents and opportunities so as to bring the largest and best results to God and himself.

It is folly to devote one's time and energy so fully to securing business advancement that the other needs of life are neglected. Soul needs should be recognized and fully provided for. Social duties and wants are real issues of moment in every life. One must cultivate neighborliness for his own sake and the good of others. He must learn to give and take or be less the man than he should be. Knowledge of men and things at large, the world and its great movements and interests, also have a claim on our attention and time.

Above all, a man should take time to be alone with himself and his God. The "quiet hour" is needed daily in every life. It is needed to sober one from the intoxication and excitement of the world's mad rush around us. It is needed to cast the anchor of faith and hope deeper and more securely in the unseen but real things of existence. Time must be given to think of God, of heaven, of holiness and the real happiness.

Stint your sleep if necessary, cut short your pleasures, economize time in your business, be frugal in social exertions, but give yourself ample time to get acquainted with God. If you can't bear to talk a few minutes a day with Him now, how can you ever expect to enjoy an eternity with Him hereafter?

Our New Possessions.

Deeper than the interest we have in the political future of Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines is the care we must have for their religious uplift. Already plans are maturing for our church to send its missionaries into the islands not before occupied by us. We have had a mission for some years in Honolulu, but none in the West Indies or the Philippines.

Magazines and illustrated papers have for months been filled with articles on these newly opened lands. It would be of much profit and awaken new life in the literary work of the League to spend an evening in a review of the religious condition and needs of these lands. Short papers or addresses by several members could without great labor be prepared and illustrated by maps and pictures cut from current periodicals. Even when one has read much there is a charm in having a condensation of facts gathered from many sources and placed in new language. The exercise will well repay those who do the work for all exertion they may expend.

Open Thou Mine Eyes.

Not what one reads with the eyes but what one sees with the soul is the valuable thing in Bible study. The illumination needed is not on the text, but on the human understanding. Often one has read a passage so frequently that it has become memorized and stereotyped and almost meaningless. Suddenly under some new stress of circumstances, danger, sorrow, helplessness or new found joy, the passage beams out as the flash of some great lighthouse far over the sea. The word grows luminous, the soul is flooded with pure radiance, and the eyes see as never before beauties and glories which no tongue can describe, but which one's own spirit eyes must behold if he is ever to comprehend. The finger of God has touched the eyes before blind or held and has opened the vision.

New Magazine.

For years there has been talk of an up to date Methodist magazine. Now the announcement is made that such a one is to be published in St. Louis. It will have two editors, one from the Church South and one from the Methodist Episcopal church.

Such a venture ten years ago would have been sure of a cordial greeting and had good prospect of success. Now the field has been so filled with cheap magazines with fine articles and profuse illustrations in the highest style of art that the attempt is more hazardous. It will need a large sum of money to insure it a place in the field already well filled.

"If only, Lord," the happy voices sing—
"If only we have Thee, who faileth never,
Nor life nor death nor any other thing
Can hurt our joy forever and forever!"

If men could know how quickly pain is spent,
What compensations heaven has in keeping,
What home means, after earth's bleak banishment—
If only they would smile instead of weeping!

Sing louder, radiant host, wake our dull ears
Till, though the path be hard and the day lonely,
We, too, shall answer through the mist of tears
"If only we have Thee, Lord—have Thee only!"
—Susan Coolidge.

AUTOMOBILES.

Comparison of Electric Vehicles of America With Those of French Make.

In comparing electric vehicles of French and American make it is pointed out by Modern Machinery that the French machines are more crude, more experimental, more primitive and more complicated than those of American design. Sprocket chains are almost invariably used by the French builders, apparently because the hydrocarbon automobiles were designed in advance of the electric carriages, and the oil engines were necessarily placed in the body to avoid the difficulties of flexible piping. Imitative these, the makers of the French electric automobiles have put the motors in the body of the vehicle, while in America street railway practice has been followed, and either the field or the so-called "wheelbarrow" or Sprague suspension has been used, with open gears. The French also, regardless of the liability of breakdown, have added complication after complication to get small refinements far in advance of the time. Some of these are, for example, nine speeds forward and almost as many backward, electric brakes, utilizing the motor as a generator on dead resistance, battery recuperation on down grades, etc. American builders have aimed for simplicity and effectiveness. The French have used in these vehicles plain axles, while American made vehicles have axles of the ball-bearing or roller-bearing type. Although Americans are quick to adopt and develop ideas brought out abroad, "automobilism" has not attained proportions in this country comparable with what it has reached in England and France. There is a general movement, however, in the larger cities for the use of the vehicle both for commercial purposes and as a private equipage, and it may be that the horseless vehicle will be taken up as a fashionable fad by the "modish" set.

Discovery of the Philippines.

With an expedition splendidly furnished by Emperor Charles V., Magellan set sail on August 10, 1519. He crossed the Atlantic, touched at the Bay of Rio de Janeiro, made his way southward, repressed savagely a dangerous mutiny, and on October 21 entered the straight which bears his name. On November 28 he passed out of it with only three of his five vessels left, and found himself and his rejoicing crews in the Pacific. He felt that he had succeeded, but he had miscalculated the vast extent of the new ocean; and sailing on for days and days, in some fashion missed the countless islands of the Pacific, and did not see land until he reached the little group which he called the Ladrones, because the inhabitants stole a boat from him. There he lingered a short time, either at Rota or in the curious harbor of Guahan. From the Ladrones, which were discovered March 6, 1521, the weary voyage was continued until a new archipelago was reached, on the fifth Sunday of Lent. Gradually the magnitude of this new discovery became apparent and Magellan named the new group in honor of St. Lazarus, on whose day it was discovered. They landed on Mindanao, made their way to Cebu, flattered themselves that they had converted and subdued the inhabitants, and then becoming involved in a tribal war Magellan was killed, and his chosen successor, Serrano, was left behind to death and torture. Two ships escaped, one going east, and on the Victoria, under Elcano, which left Timor on February 11, sailing still to the westward. On September 6, 1522, after many hardships and perils, the Victoria reached Spain, and a great voyage, the first which circled the globe, second only to that of Columbus in conception, and beyond all in the daring displayed and the distance traversed, came to an end.—From "The Spanish American War," by Hon Henry Cabot Lodge, in Harper's Magazine.

Julius Caesar.

Of all great conquerors, writes Marion Crawford in "Studies from the Chronicles of Rome," he was the least cruel, for he never sacrificed human life without the direct intention of benefitting mankind by an increased social stability. Of all great lawgivers he was the most wise and just, and the truths he set down in the Julian code are the foundation of modern justice. Of all great men who have leaped upon the world as upon an unbroken horse, who have guided it with relentless hands and ridden it breathless to the goal of glory, Caesar is the only one who turned the race into the track of civilization and, dying, left mankind a future in the memory of his past. He is the one great man of all without it is impossible to imagine history. We cannot take him away and yet leave anything of what we have. The world could have been as it is without Alexander, without Charlemagne, without Napoleon. It could not have been the world we know without Caius Julius Caesar.

Bought Her Laugh.

A society girl, one of whose greatest attractions is a soft musical laugh, entertained an interested group lately with an account of how that prominent charm of hers was acquired. "Very few persons have, as you all know," she said, "an agreeable laugh. I had simply nothing that could be called such in my possession. The lack made me seem glum and too far from merry to be a successful companion. So I took lessons of an actor and learned the mechanism of forced laughter. This I practised and improved myself till I had the art to perfection, and it became second nature. It cost me many dollars to buy my laugh, but I would not part with it for thousands."

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

An interesting baseball game is promised at the Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 3:30 o'clock, between the Plainfield High School team and the nine from the Rutgers Prep School of New Brunswick. It will be the first chance to see the local school boys against any out-of-town team and a good attendance will undcubtedly be present. A small admission fee will be charged. Edwards and Squires will be the battery for the High School team.

The candidates for the Plainfield High School nine were out for practice at the Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon. A. B. Meredith, science instructor at the High School, was present and coached the boys. He gave them some valuable hints that will be used in the game tomorrow.

CYCLING COMMENT.

A. D. Cook, Dr. Wells and Fred W. Stack are riding Columbia chainless wheels.

R. Frucht is the agent for Plainfield of the Syracuse chainless bicycle, on which he gives to all cash customers a discount of twelve per cent. He has a very large stock of bicycles and bicycle goods which he is selling at a very low figure. Call at his store and get prices.

Sunday was really the active opening of the bicycling season in the metropolitan district. Of course there have been many who have been riding their wheels for a month or so already. This was, however, the first warm pleasant Sunday of the season and there were, in consequence, a host of wheelmen out. All the roads in this part of Jersey were thronged all day with the wheelmen who had come out for their Sunday outing. Plainfield saw a whole host of them pass through on the county roads. There were many who stopped here for dinner as of old. The roads were in good condition, although rather dusty, and the wind, while there was some of it, was not enough to spoil the pleasure of the riding.

GOLF.

A scratch tournament, for members only, will be held on the Park Golf Club links tomorrow afternoon. It will be the first contest of the year on that course.

L. E. Waring, chairman of the golf committee of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, has arranged a number of matches with other clubs and will announce the dates for the matches in a few days days.

The new golf links at Findern are about completed and it is hoped that play can be started in a short time. The location of the course is an ideal one and already the membership of the club has reached one hundred and fifty persons.

A number of sunken bunkers have been added at the new links of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. Owing to the extreme dryness of the ground, however, the projected improvements to the course will not be made until after the dry spell breaks.

VARICLS SPORTS:

There will be no contest in gymnastics for the championship of the Y. M. C. A. this year. The aspirants for that honor are so few that Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood has decided to give up the contemplated contest. In the whole association there were not four young men willing to compete.

For some time Mr. Heywood has been contemplating a contest to decide the gymnastic championship. Such contests have been held for the past two years and Walter L. Long has carried off the honors. This year there was a novice gymnastic contest and the pentathlon contest, which included both athletic and gymnastic work. The other meet was delayed until now. Mr. Heywood decided, however, to hold it even at this late date if he could secure four competitors.

It was generally felt that Long had an easy thing of it again this year and so most of the others did not care to go in, believing that it would be of no use. As there were only three willing to compete, Mr. Heywood has declared the competition off

The only remaining event of the season in the physical work department of the Y. M. C. A. is the presentation of the medals won during the winter and the social time that will accompany it. The date for the affair has been fixed for Tuesday evening, May 9th. On that occasion all the medals and other trophies won, including the banner in the dual contest with New Brunswick, will be presented. There will be some kind of entertainment and refreshments will follow with a social hour.

The only Laundry advertising to guarantee not to fade colored shirts under penalty of paying for all spoiled.

BURGLARS IN DUNELLEN.

RANDOLPH CLAWSON AND T. C. BODINE'S HOUSES RANSACKED.

Evidently the Burglars Were Looking for Money, But as They Did Not Find Much They Took Little Else

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 28 — After several months of comparative quiet and freedom from the visits of burglars, the borough was treated to another scare Wednesday night. Although they did not get off with very much they ransacked Randolph Clawson's house on Church street, and that of his neighbor, T. C. Bodine.

The burglaries took place in the most thickly settled part of the residence section of the town, near the two churches. In neither case did the families know anything about the midnight visitors until yesterday morning when they arose.

At Mr. Bodine's house they forced an entrance through a window and ransacked the whole lower floor in their search for money. When Mr. Bodine's family came downstairs soon after daylight they found the door and window still open, and their belongings scattered all over.

As far as they could find out in a hasty examination, the only things taken are an overcoat, a derby hat, several silver spoons and a pocketbook containing a certain sum of money, Mr. Bodine does not know how much.

At the Clawson house the work of the burglars was as quiet and uninterrupted as in the Bodine house. Walter Clawson, the son, did awake during the night at hearing his dog bark, and says that he remembers that some one seemed to quiet the animal, but the fact made no impression upon his mind at the time.

Therefore no one knew anything about it until morning, when their house was also found turned topsy-turvy. Not a thing was missing here, although a careful search was made, as was shown by the systematic way the tables, drawers and closets were ransacked. Fifty cents in a pair of trousers belonging to one of the men was overlooked. In both cases the burglars confined their operations to the first floor.

CHILDREN WITH MATCHES.

They Found a Combination That Made a Lively Time For Borough Firemen.

Children playing with matches in a bed room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Steiner, on Somerset street, over Mundy & Drake's butcher shop, called the fire department out this morning at 10 o'clock. The fire damaged to more or less extent matting, furniture, woodwork, clothing, carpets, etc., and owing to the room being quite small the firmen had difficulty in fighting the fire. It was finally put out with extinguishers.

The alarm of fire was sent in from box No. 142, corner of Manning avenue and Somerset street by Chas. Stahl, and the firemen were quick to respond. If they had been obliged to go much further a serious fire would have resulted.

Mrs. Steiner fought the fire bravely until the firemen arrived and in so doing she burned her arms quite badly and the burns cause intense suffering. She rescued her children just in time to save them from receiving serious burns and probably fatal injuries. There is no insurance on the contents of the house, but the building is insured.

—Say! men folks, if you want stylish tan shoes or Oxford's, the Park avenue shoe house is the place this season.

PLANTED AN OAK TREE.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS OBSERVED ARBOR DAY.

Pretty Little Ceremony in Yard of the Stillman School—President Wm. A. Fisher, of the Class, Dedicated it.

Arbor Day was observed at the Plainfield High School this morning with special exercises and the planting of an oak tree by the members of the Senior class. The programme of the exercises, as published in yesterday's Daily Press, was followed. Then the pupils and visitors were invited to adjourn to the girls' yard where the tree-planting was to take place.

After a short address by Superintendent H. M. Maxson, the tree was placed in position while the Seniors sang a round in which the parts were "Arbor Day, Pine Oak, Plainfield High, '99. William A. Fisher, president of the class, made a short dedicatory speech and then the roots of the tree were covered, each Senior adding a handful of earth. It was planted by Mr. Udall.

The class prophecy was read by Miss Helen Lovell. Then followed the class song, "Neath the Oak," adapted by Miss Angie Kuhl for the occason. The '99 yell and the High School yell ended the dedication.

There were twenty-one in the Senior class. Most of the young women were gowned in white, trimmed with red. A hugh class banner in the class colors, red and white, formed a background about which the class grouped.

HOSPITAL SHOULD BE IN CENTRAL LOCATION

The Advantages Pointed Out by a Correspondent.

IT WOULD BE BUSINESS-LIKE

M. E. DWIGHT MAKES A STRONG ARGUMENT FOR THE CHANGE.

There is Manifold Wisdom in Having it Where Both Citizen and Stranger Could See the Noble Lesson in Christian Charity—There is More Than the Question of Money to Take in Consideration.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Now that plans for the enlargement of our local hospital have been drawn, and appeals for the necessary funds to carry out these plans have been made, the whole matter becomes one of deep public interest. Permit me therefore, through the columns of The Press, to urge the advisability of seeking another site for the hospital.

Men do not light a candle and set it under a bushel, but on a candlestick. Why should they do differently with a hospital? Such an institution, as the noblest evidence of our Christian civilization, should shine conspicuously to remind us all of the beauty and value of genuine charity.

A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. St. Luke's Hospital, that noble monument to Dr. Muhlenberg, was first planted conspicuously on the finest avenue in New York; and recently it has been removed from Fifth avenue and set upon an eminence that overlooks the whole city—the grandest site on Manhattan Island. Why should not our own hospital—happily named after the founder of St. Luke's—be removed from its present obscure position and placed as conspicuously — relatively speaking — in the midst of Plainfield? This would be to imitate the wisdom of Dr. Muhlenberg, after whom we have been pleased to name our own institution.

There is a manifold wisdom in having this noblest object lesson in Christian charity where it can be seen and pondered both by our citizens and by the stranger that is within our gates. It is evidence of the character and tone of our civilization. It is a constant reminder of an incentive to the practice of charity in general; while it directly inculcates the beauty and value of a particular charity, and so provides (forward) strong incentives for liberal gifts for its maintenance and its future enlargement.

It is said that the removal of the hospital to a new site or its enlargement upon the old site, is a question simply of money. It is more than this. It is a question also of the education of a people in charity for the sick and in love for home institutions. Yet if it were simply a question of money, then surely it were needful to conform to wise business methods to obtain money—money for tomorrow as well as today—since the hospital should grow with the growth of the city.

If you wish to sell goods advertise them and set them in the shop window. If you desire to raise money for a hospital advertise and set it where it can be seen. This is "good business," and especially in hospital matters. For a hospital is a hotel as well as a charity—a hotel for patients who can pay, and a charity for those who cannot. It should, therefore, be located as conspicuously and pleasantly as possible so as to attract the attention of paying patients and induce them to enter it. But who would put a hotel for well-to-do patients where the present hospital buildings stand, within the smoke of factories and the noise of locomotives?

It was in the beginning the intention of its founders to place the hospital in the very midst of Plainfield. A plot of ground was actually contracted for on Arlington avenue near what is now the City Park; but after consideration and argument led to its being located on its present site which was then outside the city and free from the objectionable features which now mar it. If Muhlenberg Hospital is ever to become the noble institution projected by its founders; worthy of the name it bears, and an honor to the city, it should be removed from its present site to a central locality—perhaps to Park avenue as has been suggested—so that it may speak more loudly to our citizens of the duty they owe to it, and may attract more of such patients as can support it by their patronage and their benefactions.

SPILLED IN A RUNAWAY.

AN EXCITING BUT LUCKY EXPERIENCE OF E. D. BARRETT.

He Was Riding to the Borough Fire With Several Friends When His Wagon Was Upset in Turning a Corner.

When the fire broke out last evening in the building in the rear of Dreyer's Hotel, corner of Somerset street and Lincoln place, a somewhat serious accident occurred near the hotel. Ernest D. Barrett, the plumber, was driving at a reckless speed to the scene of the fire and in his wagon there were five or six friends.

When the hotel was reached Mr. Barrett tried to turn the corner into Lincoln place, but he turned to short, and the result was that his wagon was completely wrecked and the occupants of it were thrown in all directions into the street. Those who saw the accident felt sure that someone would be killed, but fortunately everyone escaped with comparatively slight injuries.

Mr. Barrett was bruised considerably and he received several cuts. The other persons escaped with slight bruises and sprains.

As soon as the accident occurred some friends caught the horse, who was uninjured, and placed him in a nearby barn. Mr. Barrett was taken to a local physician where his injuries were properly treated.

"DIPLOMACY" TONIGHT

FINAL DRESS REHEARSAL PROMISES A GREAT SUCCESS.

Local Amateur Thespians Went Through Their Parts for Last Time Last Night Before Regular Performance—Costumes.

The final dress rehearsal of "Diplomacy" was held in Music Hall last night and everything passed off very satisfactorily. If the performance this evening is as successful, and there is no reason to thing otherwise, Plainfield will be highly entertained.

Sardou's "Diplomacy" is not by any means an easy drama to produce, even for professionals. There are points when intense feeling and passion are needed to properly portray the characters. Judging from last night's rehearsal, however, Plainfield is singularly fortunate in possessing excellent dramatic talent among those who only occasionally appear before the footlights, and then for some worthy object.

"Diplomacy" is well staged. The costumes are all of modern times so there is no chance among the men for anything elaborate. The ladies, however, have taken advantage of the opportunity given them and their elaborate and beautiful gowns will lend to the effectiveness of the play.

The story of the play is an old and well-tried one so there will be no doubt as to its success. It is filled with interesting situations and there is no drop in the action that would tend to break the spell of interest. The acting is good and there isn't any doubt but that those who will go to see "Diplomacy" at Music Hall this evening will find themselves fully repaid for the effect.

AN OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

A Combination of Grip, Rheumatism and Paralysis Ended His Life.

Another death has occurred among the old citizens of Plainfield in the person of John J. Sharp, of 442 West Sixth street, who passed away at 7:30 o'clock this morning. Mr. Sharp had been ill but three weeks. First he had an attack of grip, then muscular rheumatism and lastly a slight attack of paralysis, which caused his death.

Mr. Sharp was a blacksmith by trade. He was born in Reading Township, Hunterdon county, this State, and moved to this city in 1880. He first opened a shop on West Sixth street, where Adam Blair's livery stable now is, but later moved to another part of town.

The deceased was a member of the First Methodist church, and has been a faithful attendent. He married a Miss Gertrude J. Amerman, of Neshanic.

Besides the widow, Mr. Sharp leaves seven children, Mrs. R. P. River, of Newark, Mrs. N. Y. Hull, of New York, Mrs. S. C. White, of Newark, John B. Sharp, of Staten Island, and Miss Minnie Sharp, Miss Gertrude Sharp and William B. Sharp, of Plainfield.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house. Mr. Sharp was 68 years of age.

Important Move of Consolidated Traction Company.

WILL GET INTO METUCHEN.

THEN THE ROAD TO PLAINFIELD WOULD PROBABLY BE BUILT.

Negotiations are Now in Progress for the Acquisition of the Controlling Interest of the Perth Amboy by the Consolidated—It Has an Important Relation to Plans to Tap Plainfield

The Perth Amboy Railroad Company has secured a right of way from Perth Amboy to Metuchen and from Perth Amboy to Woodbridge, connecting at Metuchen with the Consolidated Traction Company. It is said that negotiations are now in progress for the acquisition of the controlling interest of the Perth Amboy Company by the Consolidated Company.

The absorption of the Perth Amboy Company would give the Consolidated Company a direct route to the Staten Island Ferry.

The officers of the Perth Amboy Railroad Comyany are: President, Leonard Lewisohn, president of the well known copper corporation of Lewisohn Brothers, of New York city; vice-president, C. J. Wittenberg, and secretary and treasurer, J. C. McCoy.

The fact that the Consolidated Traction Company is spreading out in the direction indicated in the above paragraphs is of importance to Plainfield in view of the prospective trolley road from this city to Metuchen. Though the latter project does not seem to be progressing rapidly at this particular time it is understood that plans are gradually shaping themselves for consummation at an opportune moment, and it is not unlikely that in the event of the Consolidated Company securing an entrance to Metuchen that the projected road to this city would soon be built.

1,000 VOLUNTEERS PAID.

Four Thousand Jersey Soldiers Yet to Receive State Money.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 29—Paymaster Gen. Richard A. Donnelly has succeeded in distributing the extra State pay to one thousand volunteers of the Jersey regiments during the week ending last night. He estimates that the remaining 4,000 New Jersey volunteers can be paid off within the next three weeks. The amount disbursed so far is about $35,000. Gen. Donnelly has kept his office open until 10 o'clock every night in order to meet the demands of the soldiers. So far ninety per cent. of those receiving the State bounty have called in person at the State House. This plan has proved satisfactory, as each volunteer, in addition to presenting his discharge from the service, has to make affidavit and sign a receipt. In attempting to follow this plan by mail little progress has been made.

WANT PLAINFIELD TRAFFIC.

Lehigh Valley Talking of Establishing an Office Here.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company officials are making arrangements to give the people of this city and vicinity better facilities for using their road. They are now considering strongly the advisability of establishing a ticket office in this city, possibly on Front street, where tickets for any station on their road can be purchased.

They also have under consideration some sort of a plan to transfer their patrons back and forth between this city and South Plainfield. The present method is slow and tiresome and cannot always be depended upon. Recently an official of the road was in this city getting points which will be used in making several proposed improvements.

Insurance Settled.

The insurance companies have satisfactorily settled the loss for the fire that distroyed the contents of the Philadelphia Candy Store, West Front street, with John Mantika and Company. The loss on the stock and fixtures was fixed at $641.04, and the insurance companies settled for that amount. William Newcorn represented the proprietors of the store in the settlement. The loss on the building has not yet been settled.

Extending Their Mains.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company is now engaged in extending their mains out South avenue so as to locate two additional fire hydrants along that thoroughfare. Steady progress is being made by the company in laying mains for their new standpipe on the mountains.

SOMERSET HOTEL WAS THREATENED BY FIRE.

Flames Broke Out in the Barn a Second Time.

OF AN INCENDIARY ORIGIN.

APPEAL TO JURY INTERRUPTED TO GIVE THE ALARM.

Lawyer Swackhamer Noticed the Flames in the Midst of His Summing Up to the Jury—Building Owned by Mrs. R. A. Boyce—She Offers $50 Reward for Detection of the Guilty Party.

Three fires in the borough in one day is something that rarely happens, but such was the case yesterday. Yesterday morning a fire broke out in the apartments over Drake & Mundy's butcher shop on Somerset street. Early in the afternoon another fire was discovered in the hotel sheds in the rear of the Somerset Hotel, corner of Lincoln place and Somerset street. It was reported that some small boys were playing about the sheds and barn and had started a small fire that was discovered and extinguished just in time to save the buildings. This fire was supposed to have been put out, and Chief Fairchild informed a Press representative that it was.

Another fire broke out in the barn in the rear of the hotel about 6 o'clock last evening, and this time the barn and sheds were completely gutted and rendered practically useless. The fire seems to have started in the hay loft of the barn, and at the time a case was being tried in the hotel. While Lawyer Swackhamer was talking to the jury he noticed a volume of smoke arising in the rear of the hotel and he gave the alarm. In a few minutes an alarm was sent in from Box 142 corner of Manning avenue and Somerset street, from which box the other two alarms were given.

People hastened to the scene of the fire and the buildings by this time was wrapped in flames that were sweeping toward the hotel. At one time it was feared that the hotel might go, but the quick arrival of the firemen prevented this and at the same time confined the fire to the burning buildings, which was done by hard work. Several lines of hose were laid and water was thrown on the fire from all sides. There was no live stock in the buildings, and only a few wagons. There was also a quantity of hay and straw in the upper part of the barn.

Mrs. R. A. Boyce is owner of the buildings and there was an insurance of $600 on them. The general belief is that the fire was of incendiary origin, and Mrs. Boyce, in another part of The Press, offers a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who set fire to the buildings, and it is hoped that the guilty parties will be caught.

Great credit is due the firemen for the way in which they handled the fire and saved the adjoining buildings that are of more value.

At this fire as in the case of the other two the apparatus was taken out of the engine house by hand, the team of horses being out of the house.

PRISONERS DIGGING OUT.

Plans to Escape From the Middlesex County Jail Discovered in Time.

(Special to The Daily Press)

New Brunswick, April 29—It has leaked out that a wholesale jail delivery at the Middlesex county jail was averted by the discovery several days ago of sawed bars in the window of one of the cells in the upper corridor of the men's wings. The discovery was the result of a hint given to the jailer by a trusted prisoner, who would not reveal the names of the men concerned in the conspiracy.

It was found that in a cell opening out of the upper tier, and looking on the jail yard, three bars had been cut almost through, with a file or nicked pocket-knife. The bars were at once replaced with solid bars and a search was made of all the prisoners and of the jail. No tools were found.

Powerful Engines.

It is said that the the new engines on the Central Railroad can draw over 200 empty cars and can run from Hamption Junction to Jersey City, a distance of 60 miles, without taking water. With three exceptions they are the strongest locomotives ever built.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

Changing Beats of Cops.

Next Monday evening there will be a change in the beats of the police and some who have been spending a month in the city will have an opportunity to view the beauty of the country on the outskirts.

LESS HOURS TO WORK, BUT PAY TO BE SAME.

Concession to the Employes in Potter Press Works.

NO DEMAND; A REQUEST.

PETITION SIGNED BY THE MEN SENT TO MR. POTTER.

Hereafter the Men Will be Given a Full Hour for Dinner, But on Friday They Will be Permitted to Quit an Hour Earlier—Shows the Good Feeling Between Employes and Employer.

During yesterday afternoon the men employed in the Potter Press Works were notified by big placards, posted in the shops, that after this week the regular number of hours to be worked each week would be fifty-four, but pay would be made for fifty-five. This change was the result of a petition presented to Mr. Potter a few days ago, which had been signed by nearly all the men in the factory, and is evidence of the close friendship and good feeling that exists between the employes and the employer.

Ever since the shop has been in operation it has been the practice of the employes to take less than an hour's nooning, the few minutes gained at the time being applied to a shorter workday Fridays, when the week ends at the shops on account of the proprietor being a Seventh-Day Baptist.

Recently some of the men started a petition asking that they be allowed a full hour for dinner each day and also be permitted to quit work Fridays at 5:30 o'clock, one hour earlier than is required to make the fifty-five hours service for a week. There was no dissatisfaction among the men; in fact all were well pleased, but they thought that the concession might be made by Mr. Potter without trouble.

The matter was taken under consideration by Mr. Potter and it was finally decided to grant the request of the men, giving them the extra hour a week without any reduction in their pay.

FILIPINOS BEATEN.

Manila, April 29—3 p. m.—The conference today between Gen. Otis and Col. Manuel Argueleses and Lieut. Jose Bornal, to ask for a cessation of hostilities, was fruitless.

It is understood that the Filipino Commissioners were given the terms upon which the Americans will consent to negotiate.

SPRINKLING THE TRACK.

The Street Railway Company Started the Work Today.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company, at the earnest solicitation of many privare citizens and some of the city officials, has agreed to commence sprinkling the streets, over which their tracks run, today. This is a creditable determination on the part of the Street Railway Company, and they will receive the thanks of the large number of householders who will be benefitted by the sprinkling.

Under the terms of the ordinance the company is not compelled to start this work until May 15th, but the officers recognize the disagreeable manner in which great clouds of dust are stirred up by the cars and they have decided to obviate that fault of the trolley.

New Type of High-Speed Engine.

The American Engine Company, of Bound Brook, of which F. H. Ball, of Myrtle avenue, is one of the prominent officials and F. O. Ball, of Mercer avenue, superintendent, has just completed a duplex compound stationary engine. It is a new type of high-speed engine and has two cylinders, one above the other, drawing to the same crosshead. It will be exhibited at the coming electrical exhibition at New York, this spring.

Cars Smash a Greenhouse.

Three gondola cars on the main line of the Jersey Central jumped the track at 8 o'clock last night and one of them plunged into Henry Leahy's greenhouse, in East Broad street, Elizabeth, whose plant adjourns the railroad tracks. The greenhouse was wrecked and Leahy's damage is fully $1,000. No one was hurt. The cars were empty. Leahy and his clerks were badly scared.

Nurses Who Will Graduated.

HAD BOTH ARMS BURNED.

THREATENING FIRE IN FLAT OCCUPIED BY MRS. PARKER.

She Attempted to Strike a Match and the Head Flew Off and Ignited the Fringe of a Sofa in the Room.

The lighting of a match came very near resulting in a very serious consequence in the flat of Mrs. Parker, over the plumbing establishment of E. D. Barrett, 148 East Fifth street, shortly after midnight, last night. Mrs. Parker lighted a match and the head flew off and set fire to the fringe of a sofa closeby. There was bedding on the sofa which blazed up and threatened the building with destruction.

Mrs. Parker screamed "fire" and then brought water from the bathroom and attempted to put out the fire. She had the fire under control when James Babbitt, who lives in the rear of the property, sent in an alarm from box No. 25.

The fire department responded promptly and the remaining blaze was put out with an extinguisher. Mrs. Parker had both arms burned in her efforts to put out the flames.

Her loss will reach nearly $50, all of which is covered by insurance. The damage to the building is slight and is also covered by insurance. The alarm was sent in at 12:16.

SHOPS AT ELIZABETH.

BIG PLANT TO BE ERECTED BY THE JERSEY CENTRAL.

Eight Shops to be Spread Out Over Seventy Acres—Work to be Done There Will Employ About 1,500 Men

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 29.—The Central Railroad Company has at last prepared to build its immense railroad shops in this city on land lying between the Newark Bay bridge, the Newark and Elizabeth branch and the main line of the Central. The ground, it is said, will be broken for the buildings next month.

There will be eight shops, and all the work now done at Elizabethport in the old shops, and also at Hampton Junction and other points will be done at the Elizabethport plant, which will cover about seventy acres. The plans for the building have all been drafted and approved by the Board of Directors. This sets at rests the stories published from time to time that the Central Railroad machine and repair shops were to be removed from this city. The shops, it is said, will give employment to not less than 1,500 hands.

The large stove factory of Eugene Munsell on Fulton street, which has been idle for some years, has been leased by a New York chemical company, with a three years' option of buying the building and land. The company intends to remove its plant from New York to Elizabeth and fit up the factory for its business as soon as possible. The concern will employ several huudred persons.

County Supporting Maniac.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, April 29.—The county has a violently insane man, Charles W. Fredericks, on its hands, and an object of public expense. Fredericks has been in the Morris Plains Asylum once, but the authorities learned that he owned property and refused to accept him again unless his family paid his board. This his family declines to do, and Fredericks remains in the County Jail. He is a source of a terror and annoyance to his keepers and the other inmates.

Nineteen Postoffice Sites Offered.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 29—New Brunswick property owners submitted bids yesterday for sites for a Federal postoffice building. The bids were opened at the office of the supervising architect, Treasury Department, Washington. Congressman B. F. Howell, of this city, was present. Nineteen sites were offered at prices ranging from $11,000 to $39,000. The sites are in all parts of the city.

FLAGS WILL FLOAT IN HONOR OF DEWEY.

Dewey Day Will be Observed on Monday.

IN CITY AND BOROUGH.

BOTH MAYORS HAVE ISSUED PROPER PROCLAMATIONS.

Monday Will be the Anniversary of Admiral Dewey's Great Victory at Manila and all Good and Loyal Citizens of City and Borough are Called Upon to Fly the Stars and Stripes in Honor of the Day.

Monday is to be observed through the country as Dewey Day. City and borough will both participate in the general remembrance of Admiral Dewey's great victory in Manila Bay, a year ago. Proclamations have been issued by Mayors Rockfellow and Smalley, calling upon all good citizens to fly the national colors from their places of business and homes Monday. Flags will fly from all the city buildings where they are to be had and all the prominent merchants will fall in line. There are lots of flags in Plainfield and North Plainfield and they will present a fine appearance when they are all displayed.

The proclamations issued by the two Mayors are as follows:

In commemoration of the glorious achievements which one year ago testified to the power of the American defenders, it is fitting that some recognition of Monday as the anniversary of Dewey's great victory in Manila Bay be given by the people all over the United States. That Plainfield may not be lacking in the universal observance of the first glory to American arms during the late war, it is suggested that our cititizens unite with those of other parts of the country in honoring the day.

To this end, I would enjoin upon all residents of the city to let loose the Stars and Stripes upon Monday, as evidence of what great results attended those who fought beneath that flag one year ago and of what the future outholds for the glorious emblem of our strength and our independence.

George W. Rockfellow,
City of Plainfield. Mayor.
April 29, 1899.

To the People of North Plainfield:—

In accordance with the general observance of Monday as the anniversary of Admiral Dewey's victory at Manilla, it will be appropriate for our borough to unite with the other municipalities of the country in a fitting celebration of the day. We recognize the importance of the great victory achieved last year. We honor the men whose guiding hand directed our forces and brave men behind the guns.

To show our appreciation of the glorious triumph, let us float Old Glory from every home in the borough. I would recommend this step to all our loyal citizens.

Newton B. Smalley, Mayor.
Borough of North Plainfield,
April 29, 1899.

CHANGES IN BOROUGH SCHOOLS.

Six Classes to be Transferred to the New Building.

Monday next six classes from the Borough Public High School will be transferred to the new school at the corner of Watchung and Mountain avenues. Owing to tho fact that several changes in the High School had to be made this week the classes were not transferred. Principal Wightman has just completed a change in the top floor of the High School which presents a chapel appearance, and after the six classes are removed the additional room gained will be used to good advantage. There is considerable work attached to the change, but when completed it will be a great relief to the instructors who have been handicapped by an overcrowded condition.

Dr. Raymond to Preach.

Rev. A. A. V. Raymond, D. D., President of Union College, Schenectady, will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church tomorrow, both morning and evening. Dr. Raymond will be the guest of Isaac L. Miller, of Watchung avenue.

New Telephone Company.

There is a rumor afloat in the borough that a new telephone company is soon to locate in that place and that more advantageous terms will be granted boroughites than those now given by the local company.

Bishop to be Present.

On account of the presence of Bishop Scarborough at the Church of the Redeemer, the usual evening service has been changed from 4:30 p. m. until 7:30 p. m., at which latter time the Bishop will confirm a class.

REPORTS OF A DIVORCE.

Rumor Has it That Henry T. Sloane Has Secured a Divorce.

WIFE MARRIED AGAIN?

Stated That the Decree Was Secured Several Days Ago and Perry Belmont Mentioned as a Principal.

Mr. Belmont Whispered Something in Mr. Croker's Ear the Other Day and the Gossips Are Conjecturing That This Was the Secret—Croker Was Glad to Hear It At Least He Said So.

New York, April 29.—It was reported at the State Court building this afternoon that the divorce suit brought by Millionaire Henry T. Sloane had ended in a decree of divorce issued by Justice Slover.

It was furthermore rumored that the decree was issued several days ago and that Mrs. Sloane had married again. The name of Mr. Perry Belmont was mentioned as one of the principals.

Augustus C. Brown, counsel for Sloane, and DeLancy, counsel for Mrs. Sloane, called on Justice Stover, in his private chambers in the County Court House.

It was stated that the visit was with reference to the submission of the referee's report in the divorce had been granted refused to discuss the case.

The family troubles of the Sloanes were the subject of gossip by the social set which counts among its members the Vanderbilts, Asors, Gerrys—in fact, all of the wealthiest families of New York, long before Henry T. Sloane made public the fact that he and his wife had separated.

On December 2, 1898, Mr. Sloane authorized the following statement:

Mr. Henry T. Sloane and his wife have separated.

Mr. Sloane has left his home, No. 9 East Seventy-second street, and is now living at the Buckingham Hotel.

Mrs. Sloane is still at the Sloane mansion.

On Ocober 1, 1898, Mr. Sloane transferred to his wife the Sloane residence in East Seventy-second street. This he did, not as a peace offering, but as an indication of his wish that Mrs. Sloane might maintain her status in society.

Mr. Sloane has retained A. C. Brown, of the Equitable Life Building, as his legal adviser to take charge of his legal interests.

Mr. Sloane's children are living with their mother pending a legal decision in regard to them.

Mrs. Sloane owns the mansion in East Seventy-second street and is now there. Mr. Sloane is living at the home of his sister, Mrs. Coffin, No. 13 West Fifty-seventh street.

Just as the steamship New York was about to sail on Wednesday last Mr. Perry Belmont came close to Mr. Croker on the gang plank and whispered in Mr. Croker's ear. It was somehing very secret, very important, very interesting. Mr. Croker listened intently and answered: "Is that so. I am glad to hear it, very glad."

It may be that the secret which Mr. Belmont told to Mr. Croker was that which had to do with the Sloane divorce decree and Mrs. Sloane's marriage.

Mr. De Lancey Nicoll said this afternoon that he was not ready to make any admission or give any information as to the Sloane divorce suit. He would not answer any questions as to why he and Mr. Sloane's counsel visited Justice Stover in the latter's chambers this morning.

"I will make a statement to reporters at my house to-night," said Mr. Nicoll.

FRANCHISES TAXED.

The Ford Bill, Taxing Franchises in New York, Passed Both Houses of the Legislature.

Albany, April 29.—The Ford bill taxing, franchises passed the Asembly by a vote of 10 4ayes, 38 noes. This is a splendid victory for the people. All night the lobbyists worked to buy votes to defeat the measure, but without success.

The party leaders were active too, and spent the night whipping the doubtful men into line.

Governor Roosevelt, sent another urgent communication to the Assembly, urging the passage of the bill.

Marconi's System Saves Lives.

London, April 29.—Marconi's system of wireless telegraphy has proved o be eminently serviceable. The Goodwin Sands lightship was run into by a vessel. The lightship had the wireless apparatus on board, and by means of it the crew was enabled to notify the station at South Foreland that the lightship was sinking. Marconi's assistant was at the South Foreland lighthouse, twelve miles away from the Goodwin lightship. He was startled at hearing the alarm bell and immediately replied to the signal. Learning the particulars of the collision, he telegraphed to Margate for tugs, which were sent o the lightship's assistance. It was found that the British steamship R. F. Matthews of London had come into collision with the lightship. The R. F. Matthews is now anchored in Dover Roads.

Oil at Wheeling, W. Va.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 29.—The attention of oil men is attracted to developments within half a mile of this city, which is at least forty miles from the nearest oil-producing district of consequence.

The oil operator has invaded the most exclusive residence suburbs, and next week a company headed by Chas. F. Bachman will begin drilling a test well on the land of the Thompson estate. Years ago a test well was driven on this property and oil was struck but the hole was plugged through influence brought to bear by an oil corporation which was indirectly interested. Should the new test result in the discovery of oil, Wheeling will have its first oil boom.

The New York Senate adjourned at 2:27 P. M. Friday without date, and the Assembly at 2:40.

THE LATEST NEWS.

CHURCH SPLIT OVER DR. BRIGGS.

New York, April 29—One of the most embarrassing questions that has troubled the Episcopal Church in America for many years has arisen over the proposed ordination of the Rev. Dr. Charles Briggs as a priest in that church. Dr. Briggs, who became famous through being tried for heresy by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, left that communion and took orders in the Episcopal Church a year ago. He is to be ordained as a priest of the Episcopal Church by Bishop Potter some time in the early part of next month.

It was the intention of Bishop Potter to ordain Dr. Briggs in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, in Westchester, on Sunday, May 14, but this brought forth a storm of protest from the rector and wealthy parishioners of St. Peter's. Bishop Potter has withdrawn his plan to ordain Dr. Briggs in St. Peter's. It is practically assured, however, that Dr. Briggs will be ordained, although he has not announced where the ceremony will take place.

RAN TRAIN WITH A BROKEN ARM.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 29.—With his right arm broke by the reversing lever, David Smith, of Camden, brought the Reading mile-a-minute express train, of which he is engineer, safely into the station with 300 passengers on the train. He was bent double with pain but clung to his post, refusing to allow the fireman to handle the throttle in violation of the train rules. At Winslow Junction Smith slowed up his train for the crossing. The reversing lever failed to catch in the cog and flew forward, breaking his arm below the elbow. He was flung to the floor of the cab. His fireman happened to see him fall, and finding him conscious, propped him up in his seat, where Smith ran the engine for forty miles in forty minutes, reaching here on time.

WHITEWASH IN THE PHOENIX CASE.

Greenville, S. C., April 29—The trial of the famous McCormick conspiracy case growing out of the Phoenix election riot and lynching in Greenwood County in last November ended in the Federal Court here with a verdict of not guilty. The jury, composed entirely of white men, and half of them Greenville County men, were out less than fifteen minutes. The defendants were prominent Greenwood County men who, at the time of the Phoenix riot, served resolutions upon James W. Tolbert, the Republican assistant postmaster at McCormick, advising him to go away, and telling him they would not be responsible for his life, though they would protect him for thirty-six hours. Six hours after he started a mob rode into McCormick to kill him.

BUFFALO ARMING IN FEAR OF RIOTS

Buffalo, N. Y., April 29.—The Sixty-fifth Regiment has been ordered to assemble at the Broadway Arsenal and to be prepared for field service immediately. The order is the result of the recent disturbances caused by the split in the ranks of the Grain Shovellers' Union and of the anticipation of riots along the docks in the near future. In consequence of a number of disturbances in the elevator district, in which three men were beaten, one severely, and two saloons badly damaged by members or friends of rival grain shovellers' unions, the authorities detailed 100 policemen to preserve order in that district. Now the trouble has grown so alarming that the order for the militia has been given.

PERRY BELMONT MARRIES MRS. SLOANE.

New York April 29.—Perry Belmont and Mrs. Jessie A. Sloan were married at 9 o'clock last night in Greenwich, Conn. Exactly five hours before that the bride had been divorced by her husband, Henry T. Sloan. Justice Stover of the Supreme Court had handed down the decree of absolute divorce, in which it was pronounced that Mrs. Sloan could not legally marry again in New York State. Perry Belmont was named as co-respondent. Hardly was the ink dry on the divorce papers than the defendant in the suit and the co-respondent were on their way from New York State's jurisdiction to a quiet wedding in Connecticut.

TERRY M'GOVERN DEFEATS BERNSTEIN.

New York, April 29.—Terry McGovern received the decision over Joe Bernstein in the Broadway Athletic Club after twenty-five rounds of the fastest fighting ever seen between "feathers." McGovern not only won "on points," but won on superior all-around fighting and his ability to punch hard and clean. He clearly had the better of twenty-three of the twenty-five rounds. In only two rounds, the first and twenty-fourth, did Bernstein manage to break even. Except some roughing on the ropes, in which they were equally guilty, it was one of the fairest contests ever seen under these rules.

NEW JERSEY NEWSBOY INHERITS $50,000.

Princeton, N. J., April 29.—John Hamilton, who for two years has been selling papers to the students of Princeton, has received a legacy of $50,000 by the death of an uncle. Hamilton has been industrious and hard-working, but since coming into possession of the fortune has become rather lavish, buying dress suits, diamonds, etc. He is just 21 years old. He says he has a deal on to buy the Titus Woolen Mills of Trenton, N. J., for $27,000.

100 KILLED BY TORNADO

The Tornado Which Passed Over Kirksville, Missouri, Extremely Disastrous.

INJURED NUMBER 500.

Strip a Quarter of a Mile Wide Swept Bare of Houses—Loss of Life in Other Towns.

Students at Kirksville Engaged in the Work of Rescue—Along the Middle of the Storm's Course Trees and Everything Was Demolished and Swept Away—Help Telegraphed For.

Kirksville, Mo., April 29.—It is believed that the list of dead from the tornado which passed over this town and neighborhood will reach 100. This estimate is made by Mayor Noonan and Dean J. Martin Littlejohn of the American School of Osteopathy, who have been engaged in rescue work. At least 500 persons, it is thought, have been injured.

Almost half of this town was destroyed. Those who are known to be dead are: William B. Howells, senior in the American School of Osteopathy, and a resident of New York City; Mrs. H. W. Sherbourn, wife of a senior in the school; James Weaver, Sr., retired contractor; Theodore Brigham, retired merchant; Ed Beeman, a boy; Mrs. W. W. Green and Miss Bessie Green, wife and daughter of W. W. Green, who is at Durant, Indian Territory; Mrs. Henry Billington, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Glaze, Mrs. Ben Green, Mrs. John Larkin, Sr.; Mrs. T. Mahaffey, Mrs. C. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. A. Little, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Woods, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rainschott, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Gibbs, A. C. Beal, James Cunningham, Mrs. Mitchell. The following are reported killed: Mrs. Peck, Mr. Anderson, Mrs. Stephens, Dr. Billings, Col. Little and family, Mrs. Penschott and child, Miss Leona Whaler, Mrs. Conder.

Following are the injured so far as known: Mr. Denniston, Mrs. Denniston, Mrs. Hobson, Harry Mitchell, Miss Evans, Sam Weaver, Will Parke, two Ingall brothers, Ella Weaver, Mrs. Patience Hill, J. F. Waddill and family, of six, Daniel McGonnighan, W. Brown, Mrs. William B. Howells, and one child, Charles Douglass, Mrs. Douglass, Mrs. Murphy, Harry Ayers, Willis Kellogg, Hollis Kellogg, Seth Feather, Albert Whaley, Pearl Ollphant, Mr. and Mrs. Chaney, Mrs. Clem. D. Skaggs, Mrs. W. H. Vincent, S. French, Mrs. Lily Byrne, Mrs. Melinda Coonfield.

The tornado approached Kirksville from the southeast and swept over the west side of the town, missing the heart of the city by two or three blocks.

The extreme west end of the village, built up round the Osteopathy College escaped. Many students' families lived in the path of the storm, however. Mr. Howells, who was killed, was one of the best-known students. He was a native of New York City and was to have been graduated in June. His wife and one child were badly injured. A complete roadway a quarter of a mile wide now lies through the town, with hardly a brick or a board to mark where homes stood.

Students of the American School of Osteopathy, 600 strong, working under their professors, who are competent surgeons, organized a rescue corps and began to dig the injured from the debris along the edge of the storm's path.

Along the middle of the storm's course, trees, everything was demolished and swept away. Help has been telegraphed for by Mayor Noonan all along the line of the Wabash Railroad.

Kirksville was not the only town that suffered. Newtown, Sullivan county, was practically wiped out.

The Dead at Newtown.

Chillicothe, April 29.—Reports from Newtown, Sullivan County, are that twenty persons were killed in the tornado and between thirty and forty injured. Many of the injured will die.

The known dead are: S. Bedford, and wife and five children; L. Evans and two daughters; William Hay, wife and seven children; unknown man.

The injured are: The five Brooks children, Ella Evens, A. J. Jones and wife and three children; May Gregory and two daughters; Mrs. George and son; Mrs. Pearson and three children; Mrs. Flagg, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Guisey, Dora Stafford and three children; M. C. McCristine and wife; Moses Gunnison and wife.

The entire eastern part of the town was destroyed. The path of the storm was about five hundred or six hundred feet wide, and hardly a dwelling in its course escaped. Frame houses were lifted from their foundations and crushed like egg shells. The more substantial buildings were partly wrecked and half a hundred persons at least are homeless. Traffic on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul is suspended on account of the destruction of the bridge over Medicine Creek and the high water.

A terrific electric storm followed the tornado, and the excitement was intense. Women and children ran about the streets shrieking for their parents and friends, and men searched the ruins in the drenching rain, hoping to locate the bodies of victims. Houses of survivors were thrown open to those who were rendered homeless, and everything possible is being done to care for the injured.

Construction trains have left here to repair the railroad tracks leading into Newtown. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul depot stock yards and ten palace stock cars were completely demolished. Fully one-third of the business portion of the city was destroyed.

"I know a Mrs. Curry, who lives in Tennessee," said the Professor, "who never had any trouble with her health, aside from rheumatism, until after she was sixty years of age, but then there came some derangement of the digestive organs, and at the suggestion of her daughter, with whom she was living, she tried Ripans Tabules and was benefited immediately. Now she keeps them in the house all the time, and generally takes one just after eating. She finds that it cures any irregularities of the bowels, and says that, in her opinion, no family should ever be without a supply of Ripans Tabules in the house."

TRIBUTE TO DEWEY

McKinley Visits Raleigh—Captain Coghlan Does the Honors and There is no Sign of a Censure.

Philadelphia, April 29.—If Captain Coghlan has been or is to be disciplined for his after-dinner utterances in New York the fact was well concealed by the President and Secretary Long when they visited the cruiser Raleigh.

The President, on reaching the warship was warmly saluted by the jackies. He was received by Captain Coghlan, whom he greeted warmly. The Captain said:

"Mr. President—These are the men of the Raleigh. Part of them are from the flagship Olympia. They all served throughout the whole campaign."

After passing before them with bared head, Mr. McKinley addressed the Manila heros as follows:

"Capt. Coghlan and men of the Raleigh—It gives me great pleasure to bid you welcome home, and to congratulate you and each one of you on the heroic part you played in the great battle on the first day of May at Manila, which was a most glorious triumph of American arms, and made a new and glorious page in American history. I assure you that when I give you welcome I am only speaking the heart's welcome of seventy-five million American citizens, who honor you all for your splendid services to our country. This feeling not only extends to your great Admiral, whom we all love and honor, but to the humblest member of the crew who was in that great fleet at Manila Bay."

Secretary Long then addressed the sailors. At the conclusion of his speech the sailors gave three cheers for the President of the United States and three cheers for the Secretary of the Navy. This was followed by the ship's yell:

Who are we?
Can't you see?
We are members of the new navee.
Rah, rah, rah, Raleigh.

President McKinley in New York.

New York City, April 29.—President McKinley and his party arrived in New York last night. Those who accompanied the President were his wife, General and Mrs. Frederick D. Grant, Secretary and Mrs. Long, Captain S. S. Saxton, United States Volunteers, and Mr. Foster, Private Secretary of the President. The President and party went directly to the Manhattan Hotel.

MRS. GEORGE FREE

The Jury Brings in a Verdict of Not Guilty—Charged With Killing George D. Saxton.

Canton, Ohio, April 29.—Mrs. George was acquitted of the murder of George Saxton, President M'Kinley's brother-in-law.

The verdict was received with demonstrations of approval in the court room.

Mrs. George was congratulated by her counsel and friends.

Mrs. Anna George was accused of the murder of George D. Saxton, the only brother of Mrs. William McKinley, at Canton, O., on the evening of Friday, Oct. 8, 1898.

About 6 o'clock that evening Saxton rode on his bicycle from his place of business to the home of Mrs. Eva Althouse, on Lincoln avenue, Canton.

Saxton dismounted, leaned his wheel against the curbstone and started across the pavement to the steps that lead to the terraced lawn in front of the Althouse home. Just as he put his foot on the lower step a shot was fired at him by a woman in black. A second shot followed quickly.

Mrs. George was arrested soon after the shooting and charged with Saxton's murder.

Mrs. George was divorced from her husband in the Dakota courts. He had left her because he charged her with being intimate with Saxton. He began a suit for divorce, but abandoned it and allowed her to get a divorce from him on the ground of abandonment. It was said at the time that Saxton was going to marry her as soon as she obtained a divorce.

The police ascribe the murder of Saxton to Mrs. George's jealousy. Saxton was well off and paid attentions to many women, neglecting Mrs. George after the first year succeeding her divorce. She sued him for support and for money which it was alleged he had promised to pay her. Mr. George also sued Saxton for alienating the affections of his wife, but the case was settled out of court.

German Comment on Samoa.

Berlin, April 29.—The newspapers here, commenting on the latest news from Samoa, express satisfaction with the attitude of Admiral Kautz, interpreting it as a sign that the United States will henceforth side with Germany in the Samoan trouble. The "Boersen Courier" says that the American Admiral's position may indicate how differently the Americans and the English in Samoa interpret instructions received simultaneously.

WAR HAS NOT ENDED YET.

Otis Informed Envoys That He Did Not Recognize Filipino Government.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE.

For the First Time a Large Body of Filipinos Attempted to Face Americans in the Open.

Could Not Stand Rain of Lead From Our Troops and Hastily Retreated—Montana Regiment Attempted to Capture Moving Train—Heat Wilts the U. S. Soldiers—Must Rest Repeatedly.

At 5 o'clock the two Filipino officers, escorted by Lieutenant Sladen and Major Mallony, left the palace. They did not look at all elated as a result of their talk with Gen. Otis and the members of the Philippine Commission.

Manila, April 29.—The Filipinos' advances for peace have been fruitless. Colonel Manuel Argueleses and Lieutenant Jose Bernal, who came into General MacArthur's line under a flag of truce, told Gen. Otis that they were representatives of Gen. Luna, who had been requested by Aguinaldo to ask Gen. Otis for acessation of hostilities in order to allow time for the summoning of the Filipino Congress, which body would decide whether the people wanted peace. Gen. Otis replied that he did not recognize the existence of a Filipino Government. There will be another conference.

General Luna Gave Fair Fight.

Manila, April 29.—At Calumpit for the first time a large body of Filipinos attempted to face the Americans in open ground. The Filipinos in the trenches were dispersed after making a ridiculous feeble resistance; but Gen. Luna's brigade came upon the field from Macabeles on the double quick, the two regiments preserving a perfect formation.

The Americans from the south bank of the river, which is higher than the north bank, could see General Luna, mounted on a black horse, galloping frantically along the lines and evidently exhorting his followers to make a stand. He finally succeeded in getting them spread in an extended line of battle, which would have done credit to a civilized army.

But when the American bullets showered quickly among them, stirring clouds of dust from the sandy soil, the Filipinos again showed that no amount of drilling could fortify them sufficiently to make them face the American rifles, and their train puffed up the track with its load of dead and wounded, in plain sight of the Americans, who were entering the town so closely that the rebels barely slipped out of their victors' hands.

The Montana Regiment made a rush to capture the train, running up the track, yelling shrilly and even dropping their guns in the pursuit, but the engine backed off hastily, leaving the bodies of six warriors to their enemies.

Twenty Filipinos who came to meet the conquerors, bearing a white flag, declared that they were heartily sick of fighting, adding that food was very short in their camps. They ate the army rations given to them with an eagerness that testified to the truth of the latter statement. One who had been severely wounded dragged himself after his comrades, showing remarkable nerve.

Fifty Americans were overcome by the heat and Colonel Funston dropped utterly exhausted after the battle. The men of the Kansas regiment cheered him crazily when he went among them.

The flames of burning villages and scattered huts gave the horizon a glow as of sunset, and the cracking of the bamboos as they caught fire sounded like musketry in a battle.

If the American troops were not fighting the heat as well as the rebels, they might pursue the natives until they compelled them to scatter into the mountains; but the soldiers are so wilted that they must rest while the insurgents have time to reorganize, dig new trenches and fortify San Fernando, where it is expected they will attempt another battle.

The matter of the transportation of supplies also hampers General MacArthur's movements; since, with the railroad cut at the bridge over the Bagbag, it is difficult to supply so large an army in such a rough country.

Senator Quay at Work.

Washington, April 29.—Senator Quay will know before Congress meets again whether he has any chance of getting a seat in the Senate. He began preparations to canvass the question with every Senator, and, if possible, to get a definite expression from him. The scheme was concocted at a conference held at Quay's house, which was attended by Attorney-General Elkin, Gen. Bingham, of Philadelphia, and several politicians of lesser note. The fact that Senator Hanna has said he would vote to seat Quay will be used in his arguments with Republican Senators. It is expected sufficient Republicans will be induced to change from the position they took a year ago to insure his admission.

FUNSTON A GENERAL.

Brave Kansan Will Get Promotion and Medal of Honor.

Washington, April 29.—It was stated at the War Department, that Col. Funston would secure a brigadier-general's commission as a reward for his services in the various engagements culminating in his daring and heroic feats yesterday.

It was also stated that Col. Funston and the two men who crossed the river under the fire of the enemy would secure medals of honor.

The supply bills passed the New York Legislature without friction, save for a demur by Democrats in the Senate over a $50,000 item for Mazet Committee expenses.

GEN. OTIS'S REPORT.

Sends News of Peace Overtures and Praises Col. Funston of Kansas.

Washington, April 29.—The following was received at the War Department:

"Adjutant General, Washington:

"After taking Calumpit MacArthur's division crossed Rio Grande River in face of great obstacles, driving the concentrated forces of enemy back on railroad two miles.

"MacArthur reports that passage of river remarkable military achievement the success of which due to daring skill and determination of Colonel Funston, under discriminating control of General Wheaton.

"Casualties slight. Number not yet ascertained.

"This morning Chief of Staff of commanding General of insurgent forces entered our lines to express admiration of the wonderful feat of the American army in forcing passage of river, which was thought impossible.

"That officer reports that insurgent commanding General has received from insurgent Government directions to suspend hostilities pending negotiations for the termination of the war.

"The staff officer, with party, is now en route to Manila, and will arrive soon.

"Lawton's force well in hand in vicinity of Amgat, east of Calumpit, where he is awaiting supplies to be sent to-morrow.

"Yesterday morning a force of 1,500 insurgents attacked troops at Taguig. Driven back by Washington regiment, with considerable slaughter. Our loss 2 killed, 12 wounded. (Signed) OTIS."

General Otis has been under orders not to consider any offer of peace until the insurgents laid down their arms and surrendered unconditionally. The instructions of the President to General Otis some time ago were to this effect, and they have not been changed. The conditions are the same as in the case of the Spanish surrender at Santiago.

Philadelphia, April 28.—President McKinley sent the following cablegram to General Otis at Manila:

"To Otis, Manila:

"'Your message announcing the achievement of MacArthur's Division and the proposition by the insurgents of suspension of hostilities most gratifying. Convey to officers and men heartfelt thanks and gratitude for their signal gallantry and triumph.

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

CAN'T USE THE MAILS

Orders Preventing Edward Atkinson From Mailing Anti-Imperialist Documents.

Washington, April 29.—The Postoffice Department has issued orders prohibiting the use of the mails by Mr. Edward Atkinson for the circulation of his anti-imperialist pamphlets which he acknowledges in a newspaper review having sent to American officers at Manila. No more communications of this sort will get into Manila.

A prominent officer of the Government said: "It is improbable that the War Department will take any steps in the way of prosecution for sedition unless there should be further developments showing that the activity of the anti-imperialists league is persisted in, and is having an effect injurious to the good order and discipline of our army in the Philippines. Care will be taken to guard against seditious despatches being delivered at Manila. It is doubtful, however, whether Mr. Atkinson's circulars "The Hell of War" and "Criminal Aggression" have had as wide a circulation as he thinks."

News in Brief.

This month has been the driest April in nearly two decades and farmers are threatened with loss.

The revenue officers in Brooklyn have thus far seized 160,000 cigars that carried counterfeit stamps made in Philadelphia.

Three thousand dollars worth of blooded cattle were burned in a fire on the Hiram Cramer farm near Saratoga Lake, N. Y.

The steamboat Florence, plying between Philadelphia and Bordentown, N. J., was struck by a Reading coal barge and beached.

Arrangements for the bringing of Robert Goelet's body to this country arrived in New York from Cambridge, Mass.

Prof. Bliss Perry, of Princeton, and Prof. Gardiner, of Brown, have been selected for judges of the Yale-Harvard debate at Cambridge, May 12.

The "Westminster Gazette" announced that Germany had addressed an expostulatory note to France on the Dreyfus case. The Berlin Government threatened to publish officially the facts unless the agitation was soon ended.

Giant Flour Trust

New York, April 29.—The United States Flour Milling Company, incorporated yesterday at Trenton, represents the combination of flour mills that Mr. Thomas A. McIntyre has been trying to develop for the past year. It has a capital of $25,000,000, one-half 6 per cent. cumulative stock. The amount of bonds to be issued is $15,000,000. The produce Exchange Trust Company are fiscal agents. The stock has been entirely absorbed. The flour "trust," as this combination is termed, includes many of the largest milling concerns in the United States. The daily capacity of the company will be in the neighborhood of 50,000 barrels. The Hecker-Jones-Jewell properties in this city, the Buffalo mills, and several of the largest in Duluth and Superior are included in the combination. Mr. McIntyre made a strong effort to get the Pillsbury and Washburn Mills into his "trust," and made a trip to England last winter to offer inducements to stockholders of the former concern, but they declined. It is learned, however that in case the earnings of the trust prove equal to the representations of the promoters, these mills will join forces with Mr. McIntyre's company.

Man Annoys Alger

Washington, April 29.—Nearly all the Cabinet officers are in almost daily receipt of crank letters, generally harmless. Secretary Alger, however, is the subject of a more vindictive attack, and his correspondent incloses daily about every disagreeable criticism upon the Secretary's conduct that is to be found in opposition papers. Duplicates of these annoying articles are also sent to Mrs. Alger.

There is nothing quite so good for dinner as chicken, is there? It is something of which we never tire. A tender, juicy fowl, nicely browned, and a hungry man — well, they instantly become one. We pride ourselves on our dressed chickens. We would like to have your meat trade—and we think a plump dressed chicken would be a good introduction.

The Position of The Daily Press.

The Elizabeth Journal yesterday devoted a few lines less than a column to a reply to the editorial in The Daily Press a few days ago concerning the construction that The Journal put on the report that the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company will not run through Roselle. The sole purpose of The Journal in giving prominence to this report about the Elizabeth and Westfield Company being unable to get through Roselle, was to attempt to prove that that would mean the side-tracking of Elizabeth for trolley extension in this direction; and that such being the case Elizabeth's only salvation for trolley facilities to Plainfield and intermediate towns is in the scheme of Senator Kean. The Journal used its subtle argument with all the force that could be brought to bear in driving the Elizabeth City Council into a bargain with Senator Kean that is unfair and not conceived in the view of protecting the public rights as the conditions warrant.

The interest that The Daily Press has shown in the trolley situation in Elizabeth is caused by three things. First, because whatever Elizabeth does with John Kean's plan is of contemporaneous interest in Plainfield by reason of the county boulevard improvement extending to this city; second, because Plainfield experienced almost exactly the same sort of agitation last winter that is now stirring Elizabeth, and we have felt inclined to offer to Elizabeth the lessons that were learned with such profit here; and third, because we are unalterably opposed to the constant aggression and inroads of corporations into the people's rights without being surrounded by proper conditions and accompanying benefits somewhat commensurate with the value of the privilege, whether it be in Plainfield or in Elizabeth.

We fear, however, that the Journal's relation to corporations has been such that it can only view its contemporaries with a feeling akin to its own position in such matters. Therefore the Journal professes to see something very suggestive in the attitude of The Daily Press over the trolley affairs of Elizabeth. It intimates that The Daily Press is under the influence of the promoters of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company, who, it is alleged, are striving tooth and nail to defeat the plans of John Kean. Such an inference is both untrue and ridiculous.

The same stockholders own the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company that own the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and it is an open book to readers of The Daily Press is to what the opinion of this paper is in respect to the negotiations participated in by the latter corporation.

We do do not favor the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company over John Kean; and we do not favor John Kean's schemes over the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company; but what we do favor, and always will, is the rights of the people being preserved from the shrewd, unequal dickering of a corporation such as is now trying to secure inestimable valuable privileges in Elizabeth for benefits that are not ample enough.

Their Work of No Account.

The Newark Advertiser seems to thing that the State Board of Taxation is about one of the most useless bodies that the taxpayers are called upon to foot the bills for. The Advertiser sizes the Board up in this shape: "The State Board acts and operates in violation of the organic law of the State, and if its so-called decisions could be taken into court on constitutional grounds it would be thrown out neck and heels as a law-breaking body. The people are paying salaries to the commissioners of the Board to do nothing else but go around the State whenever they feel so inclined to deprive municipalities and townships of legitimate sources of taxation. The gross inequalities that exist in assessments in this State are not caused by excessively high rates in particular cases, but by excessively low rates in many cases. But the Board does all it equalizing down. It never equalizes up. And in point of fact it has no right to equalize on any other basis but true value. Every adjustment made that ignores that constitutional basis for assessment is illegal."

The Paterson Press says that Judge Dixon told the litigants in a Passaic election squabble a fact that makes food for unpleasant reflection for Jerseymen. There is, he said, no law in this State regulating or prescribing the manner in which the result of a primary shall be determined. Often there is no vote, only a show of hands; or the advocates of one candidate are asked to stand, while the advocates of his opponent remain seated. Candidates are frequently nominated by acclamation. There are many ways; and all that the law imposes on the primary officers is that they be honest. How can primary elections be anything better than a farce or contests in roguery so long as this state of affairs exists?

Mayor Rockfellow's proclamation that Monday be honored as Dewey Day by the display of the Stars and Stripes wherever possible, is particularly timely and appropriate. Similar proclamations have been issued in neighboring cities, and it is well that Plainfield should not be neglectful of the movement to give some recognition to the greatest hero of the Spanish-American war. Admiral Dewey's great victory at Manila on May 1st was an achievement that will always be cherished as a particularly brilliant act of bravery and naval skill by Americans, and it is but proper and fitting that the first anniversary of the battle should be observed. Every citizen should make an effort to display the Stars and Stripes in a conspicuous place Monday.

It is gratifying to see that the Plainfield Street Railway Company has started the work of sprinkling its tracks two weeks before it is obliged to, according to the terms of the ordinance under which it operates. The dust nuisance is one of the disagreeable features of the trolley service in dry weather, but by sprinkling the tracks twice a day it will be obviated to a large extent. The action of the company is a liberal one.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A funny sight was witnessed yesterday morning on North avenue. A full grown horse had been left by its driver in front of one of the stores, and becoming tired lay down in the harness to rest. A great many people stopped to look at the horse, as though it was sick, but the animal lay there until he was rested, then got up and stood quietly as before. It is an unusual sight to see a horse lay down while hitched, but this time nothing about wagon or harness was broken.

Mr. Willis will soon enter the Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Va., where he will spend the remainder of his days.

There is a feeling on the part of the New York commuters that go to New York every morning on the 8:30 train that arrangements should be made so that the westbound Philadelphia train arriving about the same time should be held back until their train gets out of the way. There is a very large crowd assembled every morning and if the greatest care is not exercised someone is sure to get in trouble and serious injury may follow.

There is an elegant chance for a few of our wealthy citizens to start a first-class trout preserve within the city limits. The low ground south of Grant avenue, along Green brook, which abounds in living springs, could be utilized for the purpose and at a small outlay. One of the best trout ponds could be made and maintained at a small annual cost, equal to any within one hundred miles of New York.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

In Mr. Hoyt's satirical military comedy, "A Milk White Flag," which will have its first presentation at Music Hall next Wednesday night there is a delicious jumble of characters and scenes that keeps an audience in interested expectancy during the entire performance. The production is vastly clever and entertaining and many of the scenes are intensely funny, and presented as they are by a large and competent cast and lavish scenic and costuming accessories, they cannot fail to make a large hit. The story deals with the Ransom Guards, a military organization who have adopted as a fitting emblem of their fighting proclivities, a milk white flag. Of course there is a plot, but the chief merit is fun. To the comedy is added excellent singing, ensemble chorus work, and clever fascinating dancing specialties. The play being of a military character allows great scope for flashy and fetching costumes. John W. Dunne as "The Colonel Whom Napoleon Resembled," makes up wonderfully like Napoleon and has a conception of his role that creates laughter galore. Mary Marble is an important factor in the cast. She has a charming personal appearance, and a bright dashing manner that makes her the favorite with the audience at once. The company is a large one, numbering fifty people and requires two cars for the transportation of the scenery and people.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scoth Plains, April 29—Mr. Stefler, of Plainfield, employed by A. L. Frentz, the carpenter, concluded Friday that the old horse he had been driving for some time would have to give way to a faster steed. So Friday afternoon in company with Samuel Taynor, the blacksmith, he journeyed to one of the camps of gypsies which surround the town. Among their stock he found one which its owner said was fast, kind and gentle. So Mr. Stefler left his horse with the gypsies, while he took the prospective purchase out for a spin. Stefler found the horse a fast animal. He and Mr. Taynor concluded to see how gentle he was,and while they were talking in A. L. Frentz's yard about the merits of the animal Mr. Traynor concluded to test the animal's gentleness and slapped him. That settled their opinion, and the last seen of the animal he was tearing up the side street, leaving wreckage of wagon and harness at every jump and kick. The animal never stopped running until he got to the gypsy encampment. Mr. Stefler returned to the camp and took his own animal home again, concluding he was fast enough to suit him, while Mr. Taynor is nursing a badly injured thumb which was received during the tussle for the mastery.

Drafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

FASHION HINTS.

Facts Concerning the Details of Present Styles.

The draped tunic and the redingote opening over the skirt are enjoying eminent success in fashionable circles and appear in all sorts of gowns, from the tailor made costume to the evening toilet. The skirts over which the tunic or redingote appears need not be of the same color or goods. It may be entirely different if the general scheme of the costume demands such variation, or it may be covered with lace or guipure while the tunic is left plain. In some of the summer models of light gowns the body of the gown is of silk or satin, the tunic of gauze of the same color.

The favorite fashion of fluffy neckwear—bows, ruches, etc.—is gradually leading to the revival of tulle and mousseline bonnet strings. These pretty soft scarfs are seen on some of the newest hats and are likely to be welcomed, as they are usually very becoming when tied in a fluffy bow under the chin.

Boleros and coat bodices divide empire over the upper part of the costume. The coat bodice is the more dignified of the two and is therefore more suitable for mature women, but as the bolero now comes down to the waist line behind and sometimes a trifle below it while in front it is frequently elongated in points or squares it is not very flippant and may be appropriately worn by almost any woman.

A picture is given of one of the simplest of the present fashionable petticoats. It is of fawn and blue glace taffeta and, like the skirts of gowns, is molded to the figure at the top. Around the foot is a deep flounce, increasing in height toward the back and headed by a pinked ruche of taffeta. The flounce is bordered by a pinked ruffle of taffeta. The corset usually matches the petticoat in color, or at least harmonizes with it, and in this case a corset of either fawn or blue satin might be chosen. JUDIC CHOLLET.

PRETTY ACCESSORIES.

Attractive Details of the Summer Fashions.

Some of the new parasols have painted designs of flowers thrown across them or forming an elaborate pattern around the entire circle. The simplest painted parasols are of plain, thin silk, white or of a delicate color, with a spray of apple blossoms or roses at one side, but more elaborate ones are ruffled with gauze and almost covered with painted flowers. Another novelty in parasols has the edge cut in deep tabs or scallops and bordered with little ruchings.

Incrustations of cloth have been much worn, but now there is a new development, in which the cloth designs are appliqued on a foundation of heavy net, the goods thus created being used for parts or the whole of costumes.

Maize and golden tan straws are the newest. Italian straws and straws mingled with chenille, tulle and gauze are also seen. Hats are still worn forward over the eyes, and the back is more or less lifted, with trimming placed under the brim near the hair. Violet and blue are the most fashionable millinery colors, and therefore violets and bluets, or cornflowers, are used in great profusion in both dark and light shades.

Children's hats are extremely attractive this season. They are large and are usually simply trimmed. Some of the prettiest are chiefly ornamented with field flowers—buttercups, daisies, poppies, cornflowers or red and white clovers, with grasses and plain or plaid ribbons. The hat shown in the sketch is of the old fashioned leghorn variety and is trimmed with pink taffeta ribbon at the top and under the brim on each side, the ribbon also forming strings which tie in front. A spray of hawthorn is placed in front, falling upon the brim. JUDIC CHOLLET.

OUT OF DOOR GOWNS.

Street and Outing Costumes of Various Kinds.

The coat bodice and the tunic are more becoming to a tall than to a short figure. The tunic in particular, which suggests the classical idea, requires height and dignity in the wearer to appear to the best advantage. The bolero, however, is becoming to almost everybody in its present rather elongated form and may be safely chosen by any woman.

For bicycling and golf suits reversible woolens are used, in which the sides are different. No lining is employed. For example, a suit of dark beige goods consists of a short skirt finished around the edge by many lines of stitching and a double breasted bolero. The wrong side of the goods shows a brown and buff check. The suit is unlined, the seams being neatly bound with ribbon. Such a costume is exactly suited for out of door sports, with the addition of gaiters and an alpine or sailor hat, and in it a woman is comfortably equipped for mountain climbing or any athletic amusement. With a short skirt the petticoat is desirably replaced by bloomers of black material or of goods matching the color of the gown.

There are many odd and pretty ways of decorating the bodice, and one of the new methods of trimming is illustrated. There is a yoke, or rather applied plastron, of plaited white mousseline de sole, around which is a drapery of white lace, fastened at the right shoulder by a jeweled buckle and at the other side by bows of red satin. The lace is carried down the left side in coquilles and fastened again at the waist with red satin bows. The collar of red satin has coques of the same material and a lace frill. JUDIC CHOLLET.

TAILOR MADE GOWNS.

Materials, Styles and Trimmings For Such Costumes.

Tailor made gowns have lost no portion of their prestige and are seen in greater variety than usual because of the wide range of color and trimming allowed them this season. There are many blues besides navy blue—old blue, bluet and a sort of purplish blue both deep and medium—a series of faint tints just off white, grays and pole beiges, as well as the usual deep colors and red. Then for materials there are numerous sorts of thin cloth with a velvet, silk, kid or satin finish, thin serges and cheviots of a hairy surface and both coarse and fine venetian cloth. The simplest style of making shows a plain, straight skirt, touching the ground all around, very tight around the hips and with an invisible fastening, and a short jacket or a bolero with open or closed fronts, plain stitching being the only decoration. For more elaborate gowns there is the tunic skirt or the skirt with several circular flounces and the bodice with a pelerine or double revers. As for trimming, there are folds and stitched straps of cloth or satin, scallops, vandykes, circular ruffles, applications of cloth and embroideries made directly upon the goods, not to mention braiding, either plain or fanciful. Attractive costumes of black venetian cloth show applique decorations of black silk or satin outlined with braid or cord, the same adornment covering the revers, which are, however, of white silk or cloth instead of black. The lining of skirts and boleros is usually of silk of a light or bright color—rose, mauve, cherry or pea green.

The illustration shows a jacket of mastic cloth. It has a tight fitting back, without seams, and the basque is shorter on the hips than elsewhere. The front is straight and crosses over to the left, closing with two rows of pearl buttons. The large collar is faced with white cloth, and the jacket is finished with lines of stitching. This little coat may be worn as a separate jacket or may be accompanied by a skirt to match. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Paderborn. Nach den kürzlich publizirten Angaben des kaiserlichen Gesundheitsamtes ist es mit dem Gesundheitszustande der Bevölkerung unserer Stadt bei Weitem nicht so trostlos bestellt, wie es in der letzten Hälfte des vorigen Jahres, als der Typhus hier herrschte, den Anschein hatte. Die Anstellungsanerbietungen sind günstig, doch müssen die Dozenten der holländischen Sprache mächtig und protestantisch sein, auch eine Prüfung an der Akademie bereits bestanden haben.

Kamenz. In Neudörfel brannten sieben Besitzungen nieder. Veranlassung zu diesem Brande waren die Vorwürfe, welche eine Frau ihrem spät und betrunken heimkehrenden Manne machte. Im Zorn darüber ergriff Letzterer die brennende Petroleumlampe, um sie nach seiner Gattin zu werfen. Die Lampe zersprang natürlich, und bald stand das Haus in Flammen, die in der Folge fast das ganze Dörfchen vernichteten.

Plauen. Auf offener Straße am hellen Tage wurde der Schutzmann Ostermann von einem arbeitsscheuen Menschen Namens Landrock plötzlich hinterrücks überfallen und mit einem frischgeschärften Beile in's Genick geschlagen. Die Wunde ist 10 Centimeter lang und durchdringt den Hals bis auf den Wirbelknochen. Der Schutzmann hatte noch die Geistesgegenwart, das Seitengewehr zu ziehen und den Angreifer zu Boden zu schlagen, ohne ihn indessen schwer zu verletzen. Landrock, der jahrelang nicht gearbeitet hat und sich von seiner Frau, einer Fabrikarbeiterin, ernähren ließ, hat vor der That das Beil auf der Straße offen getragen und geäußert: „Der Erste, der mir 'rankommt, den hau' ich nieder!"

OLD EMPEROR AND NEW EMPEROR.

How William the Grandfather Has Been Made to Contradict His Grandson.

The last "Bismarck Year Book" sheds a rather peculiar light upon the young Emperor's speech about the men who were "mere instruments" in the hands of his grandfather when Germany was unified. It contains several letters, hitherto unpublished, from Emperor William I. to his Chancellor. If these letters show anything they show the fulness of gratitude felt by the monarch toward the man who had made him great. Again and again the old man manifested his thankfulness to Bismarck, his confidence in him, and his modesty in yielding to him all the credit for the achievements that made the present empire a possibility.

The farewell words in some of the letters are: "God be with you. Your William;" "Your truly devoted William;" "Your thankful king, William;" "Your truly devoted and thankful William." In a birthday letter written on April 1, 1881, the Emperor apologizes for not offering congratulations in person; he was ill, otherwise he would have called to see the man "whose creative genius" had evolved and carried out "so many vast plans." Writing in 1882 the old man spoke of the labor rescripts, the prototype of the young Emperor's labor rescripts, as "Bismarck's own exclusive work." In 1888 he referred to Bismarck as the one "who wrought out and guided the mighty events that led to the glorious peace" of Frankfort.

In every letter the old Emperor inquired after Bismarck's health, not perfunctorily, but with an earnest solicitude and affection which are pathetic in their simple honesty. It is doubtful if the contrast between the modest honesty of the grandfather and the pompous presumption of the grandson could be marked more clearly than it is by the publication of these letters immediately after William II's last speech.

THE EMPRESS OF GERMANY.

She Loves Her Nursery Better than the Whole Empire.

The Empress of Germany, also Queen of Prussia, and just one year older than her energetic mate, Emperor William II., is the proud mother of seven handsome children, and came to the throne with her husband in 1888. The Empress Victoria Augusta plainly shows in her face that she is a contented, wholesome and unambitious woman. She takes no part in politics, is a happy wife, a devoted mother and ardently religious. Since her coronation she has, from her husband's treasury, expended something like $6,000,000 on the building of churches alone; she gives largely in charity, but her delight is her nursery, and it is a proverb in Germany that the Empress suffers more keen anxiety over the croupy cough of one of the royal babies than the most momentous question affecting the whole Empire, though her husband and the nation respect her none the less for this feminine trait and her maternal solicitude.—Philadelphia Ledger.

In Better Business.

"Why did I cease to be an agitator, a socialist and an advocate of utopian ideas?" echoed the man of affairs to a former friend who is still working on the problem of making this an ideal world.

"I'll tell you just as frankly as I can. While I was sentimentalizing about the masses and grinding out humanitarian cant wherever I could get an audience, I made the startling discovery that I was not making my own home as much of a heaven on earth as it might be. I was neglecting my household in an effort to reclaim the world..

"But such sacrifices must be made in the great cause."

"Not a bit of it. Our first duty is to those akin to us. What awakened me was a wife working night and day to get along on scanty means, one little one staying at home from school because he had no shoes, another wearing clothes that excited ridicule of other children, the coal bin empty and a very short allowance in the larder. I concluded then and there that the rest of the world would have to get along the best it could until I had created some sunshine in my own home. I've been kept very busy in this new line of work, finding some time, however, to afford relief where immediate relief was needed."

The visiting agitator looked much paler than when he had entered and went out chewing his mustache.—Detroit Free Press.

Typewriting Injurious.

Now that type-writers are found in homes almost as commonly as the writing desk, it is perhaps pertinent to remind women that the use of the machine is very hurtful to a piano player. The sharp staccato movements of the writing machine stiffen the fingers and tend to lessen the suppleness necessary for the piano keys.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Costly Laces.

Laces can be made to represent large sums of money. The Astors have been credited with owning lace worth about $3,000,000, and the Vanderbilts value theirs at $4,000,000. The Pope is said to be content with $75,000 represented in lace, and the Princess of Wales can boast of $250,000 worth.

Criminal Extravagance.

Mrs. Higglebaum (excitedly)—Oh, Isaac, Ivaac! der cook has plown herselluf oop mit dat fife-gallon can oaf gasoline!

Old Higglebaum—Discharge her! Discharge her instandtly, vor vastefulness. Vun gallon vould haf done her roost as vell!"—New York Journal.

TRIALS OF A WAITRESS.

She Would Rather Wait on One Man Than One Woman.

"It always makes me sick," said the pretty little waitress with the big brown eyes, "to see a woman drop into a chair at one of my tables. I'd rather wait on ten men than one woman."

"Why so?"

"It's worse than having your teeth pulled to feed a woman," she went on. "A woman will come in here and sit down and take off her gloves and put them in a back skirt pocket. I'll be standing here waiting for her order. She'll push her veil up over her hat, pull down her skirt in front, from the belt, and ask me for the card. It's laying rigth in front of her, but she never sees it. I poke it at her, she takes it and begins to read. She glances up and down that card nine times, then asks me if the potatoes are new ones. Of course they're new ones. At this time of the year old potatoes are curiosities, but she doesn't know that. Then she asks if the beef is tender. Of course it's tender. She wants to know if the stewed corn is real 'evergreen' or just unripe 'field' corn. I'm getting pretty mad by that time, and don't answer. Finally she says she guesses she'll have half-a dozen macaroons and a cup of tea. I'm glad to get away from her, but I've taken no more than half-a-dozen steps before she calls me back and tells me to make the cakes three macaroons and three lady fingers."

"And a man?"

"Oh, a man's different. He comes in, hangs up his hat, grabs the bill of fare, looks down the list once, throws it aside, and calls for a slab of beef, two potatoes, a dish of summer squash, a cup of coffee, two scones, and a hunk of pie with a piece of cheese on the side. Then he reads till he gets it, eats and gets out, all inside of fifteen minutes. Yes, sir; I'd rather wait on ten men than one of these macaroon and tea shoppers."—Detroit Free Press.

Not the Only One.

"What say, Mr. Turpin, money or my life? Jehosaphat! every cent I've got is locked up in a life insurance! This is hard!"

The Tender Little Birdie.

"It ain't everybody I'd trust my little gal to," said old Farmer Skinner to the lovelorn swain who in the Far West had become enamoured of Miss Skinner, and wished to carry her from the loving care and shelter of the home nest.

The "little gal," who was five feet eleven inches tall in her bare feet, as she was at that moment, hid her happy blushing face on the dear, fond old father's shoulder, and wept happy tears as he said to Sally's deeply-moved and sympathetic young lover:

"You must take good keer of my wee birdling, Jack. Ricollect that she's been raised kind o' tender-like. Two acres a day is all I ever asked her to plough, and an acre of corn a day is all she's used to hoeing. She kin do light work, sich as makin' rail-fences, and digging post-holes, and burning brush, and all that, but ain't used to regular farm work, and you mustn't ask too much of her. It's hard for her old dad to give his little sunshine up. He'll have to split his own cordwood and dig his own taters now. But go, birdie, and be happy."

A Smart Boy.

The smart boy had applied at a Liverpool solicitor's office for a job, and the solicitor, a kindly man, was asking him a few preliminary questions of a moral character.

"Now, my boy," he said, after several interrogatories, "do you know what will become of you if you tell lies?"

"Yes, sir," replied the boy promptly.

"Glad to hear it," said the [illegible] solicitor.

"Now tell me what."

"I'll be a great lawyer when I grow up; mother said I would."

The solicitor was so tickled by the quaintness of this confession that he engaged the boy on the spot.

Boston Woman Lectures in Chicago.

The car turned sharply around a curve, and the tall man who was holding on to a strap somewhat loosely was suddenly thrown from his upright position with a force that landed him in the lap of a dignified dowager sitting near him, while his high silk hat flew from his head and rolled down the aisle of the car.

"Sir," she said, as he rose to his feet again, with profuse apologies, "I and compelled to say that in my judgment you were lacking in that complete grasp of the strap which was essential to the highest efficiency in maintaining an upright attitude when turning a curve."

That was all. But it crushed him.—Chicago Tribune.

FACTS AND FANCIES

A little nonsense now and then
Is relished by the best of men.
—Hudibras.

A large head is about as much evidence of brains as a paper collar is of a shirt.

Tourist (in railway car)—"I understand you have very good drinking water in Munich." Municher—"So I hear."

Counsel—"How old are you, madam?" Witness—"I shan't tell you; but I'm not nearly as old as you think I am."

A man who has several marriageable daughters has placed in each of their rooms the motto, "Learn to say 'yes.'"

A Timely Warning.—Mamma (authoritatively)—"Maud and Clara, leave the room. Your father has mislaid his glasses!"

Teacher—"How old would a person be now who was born in 1856?" Johnnie—"Please, sir, was it a man or a lady?"

"Marriage is that chapter of the book of life in which prose is turned to the truest poetry, and the poetry to baldest prose."

Miss Passay—"I dread to think of my forthieth birthday." Miss Pert—"Why? Did something unpleasant happen then?"

Seedy Inventor—"I've got a capital idea. Sir, I——" Capitalist (interposing)—"So have I. I'm not going to part with my capital."

Hardluck—"My wife reminds me of the career of a golf ball." Feltz—"Why?" Hardluck—"Because I am helped out of one hole only to get into another."

"I say, Captain Bragg, has it ever happened to you to have your leg bitten off by a shark?" "Has it ever happened to me? Why, dozens of times!"

Naggson—"Why don't you limit yourself in your drinking?" Jaggson—"I do, but I set the limit so far off that I always get drunk before I reach it."

Mrs. A.—"Your husband dresses very quietly." Mrs. B.—"Does he? You ought to hear him when he can't find his collars, or when his cuff-links become mislaid."

At the Exhibition.—"Weel, John, ha' ye brought any beasts to the show this year?" "Naw, Garge—only me woife." (He didn't mean any harm, still it sounded strange.)

Mrs. Lakeside—"Garcong, garcong, don—don—don—dun donnez mol—oh, why don't you waiters understand English?" Waiter (politely)—"Why doesn't madam speak it?"

Laura—"When Bob proposed last night did you know what was coming?" Lucretia—"No; I didn't know papa was within hearing; neither did Bob. Poor Bob!"

First English Duke—"Why don't you travel incognito, as I do? It's far pleasanter." Second Duke—"Yes, but my wife always goes with me, and I married an American."

"I think I know now," said the soldier who was making a determined effort to masticate his first ration of army beef, "what people mean when they talk about the sinews of war."

An excellent time to speak words of comfort to your friend is when he needs them.

Some people are born tired, and some seem to have been born for the purpose of making others tired.

"When there is anything to be done," soliloquized the philosopher, "the best thing to do is to hire somebody to do it." And he put both feet on the chair in front of him and closed his eyes.

Liked a Real Still Dog.

A Congressman from the West was the guest of honor at a Thanksgiving dinner in Sixteenth street, Thursday. He is a man who is given to expressing his opinion frankly, and when he has dined he always has the courage of his convictions. Opposite him at the table sat a man who would be considered "impossible" if his natural vulgarity weren't gilded to the depth of several millions. He talked about his dog, and the tenor of his remarks was something like this:

"Awfully good dog. Had him with me at Monte Carlo last year. Prince of Wales stopped to pat him—asked me where I got him. Chauncey Depew took greatest kind of fancy to him; told the French President he'd give a thousand for one like him. Coming over on the steamer, Pierpont Morgan made me an offer for him, but Andrew Carnegie was bound to get him, and offered twice as much. But I wouldn't sell. Great dog, that. When I was in——"

Here the host interrupted the narrative.

"What kind of a dog do you like, Mr. Congressman?" he said to the guest of honor.

The Congressman replied with great deliberation:

"I'd rather have an iron dog," he said. "It don't bite. It stays where it is put. It don't get fleas. I'd rather have an iron dog."

Not So Very Popular.

"You have written some popular songs, I believe."

"Oh, yes," replied the composer carelessly; "some that were moderately popular; not popular enough to make people really mad, you know, but popular enough to make them rather tired before they heard the last of them."—Chicago Evening Post.

Suspiciously Cordial.

Miss Honeysuckle (in some trepidation)—Here's the bill for my new bonnet, papa.

Mr. Honeysuckle—Seventy-five dollars? Why, that's remarkably cheap for so pretty a one; and how well it becomes you.

Miss Honeysuckle—Papa, I believe you are getting ready to tell me that I can't go to Saratoga this summer.

PERFUMED BUTTER.

The New Indulgence of the Royal Family and the Rich Set in London.

Perfumed butter on the dinner table is the fad of royalty and of the very rich in London. The dairies where this butter is made are as odorous as a florist's shop or the laboratory of a perfumer. On all sides there are flowers and jars of leaves, pressed and loose.

At first glance it might be supposed that the butter receives its subtle odor by working it with some sort of essence. But this is not the case. In the first place the butter is made in small pats like those in ordinary use. Each pat is wrapped in a bit of fine muslin and placed on a bed of rose leaves specially prepared in an earthern jar. On top another layer of the fresh and delicate rose leaves is placed before the jar is filled with a solid chunk of ice. Then the jar is placed in a refrigerator and allowed to remain there for ten hours, when the pats are ready for the customer.

This is all there is to it, but, simple as the idea is, it has made for its discoverer a fortune, and he is now permitted to announce that he is "by royal appointment" purveyor to Her Majesty the Queen and the royal family.—New York Journal.

BEARS ON THE TRACK.

The Trouble They Make on the Railroad in Pine Creek Canon.

Pine Creek Canon is so narrow and the rocks on either side are so straight and high that in some places the sun cannot shine in the ravine until noon, and in two hours it is gone. The day in Pine Creek Canon is practically but two hours long. At Tiadaghton, in midsummer, they have four hours of sunshine. The canon is fifteen miles long. The railroad track is constantly under patrol that distance. A veteran among the track walkers of the canon is Pat Callahan. Falling rocks, drunken lumbermen, and bears, he says, keep him and the rest busy.

"And I have more trouble with the bears than the other things," Pat says. "I've come face to face with bears walking along the track many and many a time. They seem to be stuck on wandering into the canon from the three adjoining bear-hunting counties, and inspecting the railroad track. None of 'em ever seemed to want to tackle me, but they always give me a good deal of trouble in getting them to leave the rail. I've had to flag trains more than once, and call the train men to help me rid the track of obstructing bears."—New York Sun.

Football Players Saved the Horses.

Conductor Stevens of the Moscow run has an even better opinion of football players now than he had before, says the Colfax Gazette. His increased good opinion was brought about peculiarly. Thanksgiving day the evening train to Pullman had on board the college football team, and when the train was forced to stop by finding three horses fast in a trestle, Captain McCroskey came out just as the trainmen were preparing to hitch chains to the horses to pull them out, expecting, of course, in clearing the track, to kill the horses. But the football hero called for a stay of proceedings, and called out his chrysanthemum-locked eleven, showed them the horses, said 4-1144, or something like that; four men took hold of a horse, seven other men took hold of the four, there was a straining of muscles, and one horse was set on on his legs by the side of the track, and trotted off uninjured. The other two animals were rescued, and the train went on its way, passengers and trainmen repoicing.

SPORTING.

CYCLING COMMENT

Fred Dunavan, of Randolph's pharmacy, is authority for the statement that he has ridden 725 miles on his wheel this year."

Arthur A. Zimmerman, the old-time champion bicyclist, has just completed the lease of the old athletic grounds from the Asbury Park Athletic Association for a term of years. He will be associated with Fouriner, the former French champion. It is the intention of the management to put the track and grounds as well as the grand stand and the bleachers in perfect order, and a series of athletic sports consisting of bicycle races, baseball games and other popular games will be presented during the coming season. The bicycle track is to be rebuilt, and the turns to be banked higher. A bicycle meet Decoration Day will inaugurate the seasons sport. Zimmerman has withdrawn from the L. A. W., and the races to be run on the track will be under the auspices of the National Cycling Associatton.

BASKET BALL.

Walter L. Long, who is coaching the team of the Girls' Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School, and who also looks after the scheduling of games, says that the team will probably play one more game this season. None has yet been scheduled, however.

There will be no more basket ball at the Y. M. C. A. this season as far as the association team is concerned. There has been comparatively little talk as yet regarding plans for the next season's work. There will be a change in the management and a possible change in the composition of the team.

GOLF.

There will be no regular event on the course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club this afternoon, but general play will prevail. Next Saturday there will be the final play for the Fisk cup; junior handicap.

A scratch tournament, open only to members, will be held on the links of the Park Golf Club, this afternoon. This will be the first contest of the season on this course and will be watched with considerable interest as it will bring forth some of the Washington Parkites who are playing good golf now but have not heretofore appeared in any competitions.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The nine from the Rutgers Prep. School, of New Brunswick, will come to Plainfield this afternoon to meet the local High School team on the Crescent Oval. It will be the first game of the High School boys at home and against outside talent. The boys have been practicing hard since last Saturday's game and are confident of coming out ahead.

FUNERAL OF GUSTAVE GROTMAN.

Attended by Lodge Members and Fellow Workmen From Ponds.

The funeral services of the late Gustave Grotman were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the German Lutheran church on Grove street and Rev. Mr. Eyme, the pastor, officiated. There were present members of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., and Court Plainfield, I. O. O. F., while there was also a delegation of fellow workmen from the Pond Machine Tool Works. Representatives from the organizations served as pallbearers and the members escorted the remains as far as the Park Avenue Baptist church, after which the cortege proceeded to Hillside Cemetery, where the interment was made.

The floral tributes consisted of pillows and wreaths from the Workmen and Foresters and a pillow from the family. On each their were appropriate inscriptions.

To Reconsider the Matter

The question of locating a private drain in the upper part of the borough as proposed by A. I. Smalley, for the purpose of draining surface water from surrounding cellars, will be brought up at the next regular meeting of the Borough Council on Friday evening, May 5th, in an amended form that will no doubt be satisfactory to all parties concerned. There is a disposition to grant this privilege to Mr. Smalley, and hence a reconsideration of the matter.

Surprised Her on Her Birthday.

Mrs. Wm. Thompson, of Liberty street, celebrated the anniversary of her birthday yesterday, and in honor of the event a large number of her friends gave her a surprise party last evening under the direction of Mrs. Howard Thompson, who arranged the affair. During the evening there was a phonograph entertainment, dancing, the playing of games, and at a late hour a bountiful supper was served.

Could Not Agree.

A suit to compel payment for work done as a surveyor and civil engineer was brought by F. A. Dunham, through Ephriam M. Vail, to whom he assigned the claim, yesterday, against Frank W. Miles. The case was tried before Justice Smalley and a jury of twelve men, who could not agree upon a verdict, and the case will have to be tried again.

In Township's Favor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 29—Justice Warden rendered his judgment yesterday in the case of the Township of Fanwood against the New York and Philadelphia Traction Co. The decision was for the township, for the full amount sued for, $200. W. R. Codington, of Plainfield, is counsel for the township. The case may be appealed.

State Officers Present.

Court Plainfield, No. 5, 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, at their meeting last night adopted new by-laws and made arrangements to attend their late brother Grotman's funeral today. High Secretary John H. Davis and State Supreme Deputy Alex Dick were present and gave an interesting talk on the good and welfare.

—Danish services will be held in the German Reformed church Monday evening. Rev. C. G. Mengers will preach. Assistant Secretary Davis, of the Y. M. C. A., will render a cornet solo.

ARBOR DAY EXERCISES.

Programme Rendered in North Plainfield Public School.

Arbor Day was celebrated appropriately yesterday in the Borough Public High School and exercises of an interesting nature were held. In the morning the exercises were under the direction of the High School scholars, at which time recitations and music in harmony with the day were presented. In the afternoon the programme was presented by the scholars in the lower classes. Chamber Music.

The chamber music concert, to be given at the Casino Monday evening under the Ward Styhen's direction, has already received very substantial encouragement by Plainfield music lovers. There is probably no more enjoyable or restful way of spending an evening than listening to chamber music when it is well rendered.

A Neat Programme.

Andrew E. Kenney, of the borough, has designed a neat and attractive programme for the performance of "Diplomacy," which will be given in Music Hall this evening. It is printed in various colors and displays unusual taste.
